Part 1 (ss 1-12) The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission

Section 1, Sch 1 provide that there will be a new body corporate called the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission and set out how the Commission will be structured. Section 2 sets out the main objective of the Commission, which is to maximise the number of effective child maintenance arrangements in place, and also sets out two subsidiary objectives, which are to encourage and support parents to make and keep their own maintenance arrangements, and to support the making of applications for child support maintenance under the Child Support Act 1991 and to enforce maintenance arrangements made under that Act where appropriate. The 2008 Act s 3 sets out that the Commission has functions relating to child support transferred to it from the Secretary of State, and any other functions conferred under this Act or other legislation. By virtue of s 4, the Commission is under a duty to take such steps as it considers appropriate to raise awareness among parents of the importance of taking responsibility for the maintenance of their children and if they live apart, making appropriate maintenance arrangements. Section 5 places a duty on the Commission to provide relevant information and guidance to help establish effective and appropriate maintenance arrangements for children who live apart from one or both of their parents. Under s 6, the Secretary of State has regulation-making powers to enable the Commission to charge fees in connection with the exercise of its functions. The Commission may make arrangements with a government department or prescribed public body, for the functions of one of them to be exercised on their behalf by the other, or for one to provide administrative, professional or technical services to the other: s 7. By virtue of s 8, the Commission may contract out any of its functions to another person or organisation. Section 9 requires the Commission to produce a report for each financial year, which must deal with the activities of the Commission in the financial year for which it is prepared, and include the report prepared by the non-executive functions committee. Under s 10, the Secretary of State may give written guidance and directions to the Commission regarding the exercise of its functions. Section 11 sets out that the Secretary of State must review the status of the Commission as a Crown body, as soon as is reasonably practicable after the end of an initial three-year period, and may review any other time after that if he considers it appropriate. Section 12 sets out the definition of 'child' for these purposes and makes provision for the Secretary of State to make regulations about when a child is to be regarded as living apart from a parent.

Part 2 (ss 13, 14) Transfer of child support functions etc to the Commission

Section 13, Schs 2, 3 transfer most of the functions under the Child Support Act 1991 from the Secretary of State to the Commission, including functions relating to calculation, collection and enforcement. By virtue of the 2008 Act s 14, the Secretary of State may make one or more schemes to transfer property, rights and liabilities which he is entitled or subject, in connection with the transferred functions, or under arrangements entered into in preparation for the coming into force of the Commission's functions.

Part 3 (ss 15-45) Child support etc

Section 15 repeals the Child Support Act 1991 ss 6, 46. The 2008 Act s 16, Sch 4 amend legislation regarding how maintenance calculations are performed. Section 17 provides a regulation-making power to the Secretary of State in relation to the supersession of decisions. By virtue of s 18, the Commission must, on receipt of an application from a person with care to vary a maintenance calculation, consider any information or evidence that is available to it or take steps to obtain further information or evidence, if it appears that further information would affect a decision to vary a maintenance calculation. Section 19, Sch 5 make provision for the movement of existing cases onto the new calculation rules and provide that the Commission may require the parties in existing cases to choose whether to remain in the statutory scheme under the new calculation rules or to leave the scheme as far as future liability is concerned. Section 20 makes it clear that regulations as to the method by which payments of child support maintenance are to be made can include deduction from earnings orders as an initial method of collection. What will be considered as 'earnings' for the purpose of deduction from earnings orders is defined by s 21. Section 22 enables the Commission to deduct child support maintenance from the non-resident parent's account. Provision made by s 23 relates to lump sum deduction orders, which enable the Commission to collect payments from a non-resident parent's account held with a deposit-taker, or from money due or accruing to them from a third party; such orders may be used only to collect arrears and not ongoing maintenance. By virtue of s 24, the Commission may apply to a court to prevent a non-resident parent who has failed to pay maintenance from disposing of or transferring property, if it is being done to avoid paying child support maintenance. Section 25 introduces a new liability order which will be made administratively by the Commission and which will certify the amount owed by the non-resident parent, and will be the first step to enforcement action. Section 26 removes the requirement that an order from a county court needs to be obtained before an application for a charging order or a third party debt order can be made; such an application can now be made where an administrative liability order has been made. Under s 27, the Commission has the power to apply to a court to disqualify a non-resident parent for holding or obtaining a travel authorisation. The Commission also has the power to apply to a magistrates' court for a curfew order to be made against a non-resident parent who fails to pay maintenance: s 28. By virtue of s 29, the Commission may make a separate application to a magistrates' court to commit a non-resident parent to prison for failure to pay child support maintenance. Section 30 enables the Commission to make a separate application to a magistrates' court to disqualify a non-resident parent for holding or obtaining a driving licence if they fail to pay child support maintenance. Section 31 provides the Secretary of State with regulation-making powers enabling the Commission to offset liabilities to pay child support maintenance, including arrears, in prescribed circumstances. Under ss 32, 33, the Commission may accept partial payments of maintenance arrears from a non-resident parent in final settlement of the whole arrears, and may write off arrears in certain circumstances. Section 34 provides regulation-making power to the Secretary of State, to enable the Commission to enter into arrangements with other persons or organisations under which liability in respect of arrears of child support maintenance becomes debt due to such a person or organisation. Section 35 applies in relation to Scotland and relates to registered maintenance agreements. Provision dealing with offences relating to the provision of information is made by s 36. Section 37 allows for the offset of maintenance liabilities where two parents of the same children each have care for one or more of those children. By virtue of s 38, the Secretary of State has the power to make regulations to enable arrears of child support maintenance to be recovered from the estate of a deceased non-resident parent. Section 39 enables a party to family proceedings to disclose information relating to those proceedings to the Commission or to a person providing services to the Commission without such a disclosure being a contempt of court, unless a court dealing with the proceedings directs that the section does not apply. Provision made by s 40 relates to the disclosure of information to credit reference agencies. Section 41 enables the power to pilot any regulation-making power under the 1991 Act. The definition of 'child' in the 1991 Act is substituted by the 2008 Act s 42. Section 43 provides for the write off of outstanding liability in respect of interest and fees. Information sharing gateways are set out by s 44, Sch 6. Section 45 amends the provisions concerning liable relatives and the exclusion of the parental duty to maintain contained in the Social Security Administration Act 1992.

Part 4 (ss 46-54) Lump sum payments: mesothelioma etc

Section 46 provides for the Secretary of State to make a lump sum payment to either a person with diffuse mesothelioma, or to their dependant if the person with diffuse mesothelioma is deceased. The conditions that must be satisfied by persons with mesothelioma, and by a dependant of a person who, immediately before their death, suffered from mesothelioma in order for a lump sum payment to be made are set out by s 47. Section 48 sets out how a claim for a lump sum payment is to be made. By virtue of s 49, the Secretary of State may reconsider a decision not to make a lump sum payment where there is a change in circumstances that may affect the claim since the decision was taken, or a decision to make or not to make a lump sum payment if the original decision was made in ignorance or based on error about the facts of the case. A person who has made a claim for a payment under s 46, will have a right of appeal to an appeal tribunal against a decision made by the Secretary of State on the claim, or a decision made following a reconsideration: s 50. Section 51 provides a right of appeal to a Social Security Commissioner against any decision of an appeal tribunal under s 50, on the ground that the decision was wrong in law. Section 52 concerns how lump sum payments are to be made to a person under the age of 18, or a person who lacks capacity within the meaning of the Mental Capacity Act 2005 in relation to financial matters. By virtue of the 2008 Act s 53, the Secretary of State has the power to make regulations by statutory instrument, which includes power to make such incidental, supplementary or transitional power as the Secretary of State thinks fit. The Social Security (Recovery of Benefits) Act 1997 is amended by the 2008 Act s 54 so as to provide the Secretary of State with powers to make regulations providing for the recovery of lump sum payments made under the Pneumoconiosis etc (Workers' Compensation) Act 1979, the new scheme or those made on an extra-statutory basis following the rejection of a claim made under that Act.

Part 5 (ss 55-63) General

Section 55 provides that, where the Secretary of State is empowered to make regulations, these are to be made by statutory instrument. Section 56 deals with interpretation, and s 57, Sch 7 contain minor and consequential amendments. Repeals are dealt with by s 58, Sch 8, and s 59 makes transitional provision. Financial provision is made by s 60. Section 61 deals with extent, s 62 makes provision for commencement, and s 63 specifies the short title.

The Act received the royal assent on 13 November 2008 and the following provisions came into force on that date: ss 7, 39-41, 43-45, Sch 3 paras 1-3, 5-28. The remaining provisions come into force on a day or days to be appointed.

Part 1 (ss 1-6) Delivery of social work services for children and young persons

Section 1 enables a local authority to enter into arrangements with a body corporate for the discharge by that body of some or all of the authority's social services functions in relation to individual children who are looked after by the authority and such functions in relation to care leavers. By virtue of s 2, restrictions are placed on the functions that may be the subject of arrangements. Under s 3, any acts or omissions of a provider of social work services or its employees are to be treated as the acts and omissions of a local authority. Section 4 provides for the regulation of providers of social work services. By virtue of s 5, the power to enter into an arrangement with a provider of social work services is a social services function. Section 7 imposes a general duty on the Secretary of State to promote the well-being of children in England. Section 8, Schs 1, 2 re-enact the duties on local authorities to provide accommodation for children who are in their care and to maintain all looked after children in other respects apart from the provision of accommodation. A general duty is placed on a local authority by s 9 to take steps to secure sufficient accommodation that is appropriate for the needs of children looked after by the authority within its authority area. Sections 10-14 make provision in respect of independent reviewing officers. By virtue of s 15, local authorities are required to ensure that all looked after children and children who were looked after, but ceased to be looked after as a result of prescribed circumstances, are visited by a representative of the local authority and that appropriate advice, support and assistance is made available to them. Section 16 extends the group of looked after children for whom an independent person must be appointed to visit, befriend and advise to include all those for whom an appointment would be in their interests. Section 17 ensures that, when accommodation is provided for a child for at least three months or the provision of accommodation for a child ceases, notification is sent to the local authority's director of children's services or lead director for children and young people's services. Section 21 adds to the duties owed by local authorities to former relevant children by requiring the authorities to pay a fixed sum to those who go on to pursue a course of higher education. Section 22 extends the duties of local authorities to appoint a personal adviser to include a former relevant child who informs the responsible authority that he is pursuing or intends to pursue a programme of education or training but to whom the local authority would otherwise owe no duty because the young person is over 21 years of age and has completed the programme set out in his original pathway plan. Under s 23, the upper age range in respect of which the appointment of a personal adviser may be required is extended to persons who are under the age of 25. By virtue of s 24, the restrictions on the making of cash payments by local authorities to children in need are lifted by removing the requirement that such payments can only be made in exceptional circumstances. Under s 25, a duty is imposed on local authorities to provide breaks from caring to assist parents and others who provide care for disabled children. Sections 26-29 amend the Care Standards Act 2000 to confer additional powers and duties on the registration authority in relation to standards in children's social care settings. The 2008 Act s 36 provides that an application for a residence order may be made by a relative, without first seeking the permission of the court, in circumstances where a child has been living with the relative for one year immediately prior to the application. By virtue of s 37, a residence order lasts until a child reaches the age of 18 unless the court directs that the order should end earlier or another order is made prior to that date discharging the residence order. Section 38 makes provision in respect of a relative's entitlement to apply for a special guardianship order.

Part 5 (ss 39-45) Supplementary, general and final provisions

Part 1 (ss 1-37) Social security

Section 1 enables the Secretary of State to impose a requirement on claimants of jobseeker's allowance to participate in schemes designed to assist them to obtain employment, and in particular to require claimants to undertake work as part of a 'work for your benefit' scheme. Under s 2, the Secretary of State may require lone parents in receipt of income support to undertake work-related activity in certain circumstances as a condition of continuing to receive the full amount of benefit. Section 2 also requires the Secretary of State to provide persons in receipt of specified benefits who are required to attend work-focused interviews with an action plan. Section 3 makes provision exempting specified categories of lone parents from the requirement to attend work-focused interviews and undertake work-related activity. Section 4, Sch 1 deal with the entitlement of certain claimants to jobseeker's allowance without seeking employment, and s 5 removes entitlement to income support and income-related employment and support allowance for couples where one member is capable of work. Section 6 enables the Secretary of State to permit persons in receipt of statutory sick pay to claim income-related employment and support allowance instead of income support. Section 7 makes transitional provision and s 8 deals with the Parliamentary procedure for regulations imposing work-related activity requirements on lone parents of children under seven. Provision is made for income support to be abolished when there are no longer any groups of people that require it: s 9, Sch 2. By virtue of s 10, the Secretary of State may specify a work-related activity which a claimant of employment and support allowance in the work-related activity group must undertake as a condition of continuing to be entitled to the full amount of his allowance. Section 11, Sch 3 provide for claimants of jobseeker's allowance and employment support allowance who are dependent on drugs, and ss 12, 13 amend the contribution conditions for jobseeker's allowance and contributory employment and support allowance. The entitlement conditions for the higher rate mobility component of disability living allowance are amended by s 14 so as to entitle persons with a prescribed severe visual impairment, and s 15 abolishes the payment of adult dependency increases for all new claims for maternity allowance and carer's allowance. Under s 16, the Secretary of State may make arrangements with external providers to make loans to individuals who are receiving prescribed benefits or have prescribed needs ('external provider social loans'), and under s 17 he has power to restrict the availability of social fund loans in areas where external provider social loans are available. Section 18 deals with the supply of information in connection with external provider social loans. Sections 19, 20 provide that where goods and services covered by a community care grant are provided under arrangements that the Secretary of State has made with a supplier, he may require the grant to relate to specified goods or services and the payment of the grant to be made to that supplier. Section 21 provides for Parliamentary control of regulations relating to unauthorised disclosure of information in relation to external provider social loans or community care grants. By virtue of s 22, the Secretary of State may extend the range of situations in which payments of benefits on account can be made, and s 23 enables him to up-rate benefits for the tax year 2009-2010 even if the general level of prices has not increased. Section 24, Sch 4 extend the provisions relating to the loss of benefit where a claimant is convicted of benefit fraud, and s 25 introduces new benefit sanctions against claimants of jobseeker's allowance who are convicted of violent conduct in connection with their claim. A pilot scheme under which benefit sanctions have been applied to certain offenders who are in breach of specified community orders is brought to an end by s 26, and provision is made by s 27 for new pilot schemes for the calculation and payment of state pension credit to increase the number of eligible persons receiving the benefit. Section 28 extends the time limits for certain pilot schemes relating to working-age benefits, and s 29 provides for the exemption of victims of domestic violence from the jobseeking conditions of jobseeker's allowance for a prescribed period. Section 30 provides that where regulation-making powers in specified provisions enable circumstances to be prescribed that constitute good cause for failing to undertake mandatory activities, the regulations must always include the availability of childcare and the claimant's physical or mental health in the list of circumstances that must be taken into account. The well-being of children must be taken into account when agreeing the activities that a parent will undertake as part of a jobseeker's agreement or action plan for recipients of employment and support allowance: s 31. By virtue of s 32, specified functions of the Secretary of State under the Jobseeker's Act 1995 may be contracted out. Section 33 provides for the continuation of entitlement to jobseeker's allowance where a claimant fails to attend a mandatory interview without showing good cause for the failure to attend, subject to a delay in payment for a fixed period. Section 34 expands the scope of the sharing of social security and employment training information, and s 35 makes provision regarding the age at which persons will be required to attend work-focused interviews to reflect the equalisation of the state pension age for men and women. Section 36 requires the renaming of council tax benefit as council tax rebate, and s 37 makes minor legislative amendments.

Part 2 (ss 38-50) Disabled people: right to control provision of services

Section 38 states the purpose of the 2009 Act Pt 2 as being to enable disabled people to have a greater choice and control over the way in which relevant services are provided for them by defined public authorities. 'Relevant services' are defined in s 39 and public authorities are defined in s 40. Section 41 provides a general power for an appropriate authority to make regulations for the purpose of Pt 2, while s 45 defines 'appropriate authority' for these purposes, s 46 makes supplementary provision, and s 47 requires consultation on any proposed regulations. Section 42 sets out the provisions that may be included in regulations dealing with direct payments to disabled people. Section 43 provides for the making of regulations for the exercise of the rights to control the provision of services on behalf of persons who lack capacity within the meaning of the Mental Capacity Act 2005. Section 44 deals with the establishment of pilot schemes, and s 48 empowers the Secretary of State to repeal the exclusion of community care services from the definition of relevant services. Section 49 deals with the control of regulations and orders by Parliament, and s 50 deals with interpretation.

Part 3 (ss 51-55) Child maintenance

Section 51, Sch 5 permit the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission ('the Commission') to order the disqualification of a person who has arrears of child maintenance from holding a driving licence or travel authorisation without applying to the court, and makes provision for appeals to the court against such disqualification orders. Sections 52, 53 provide for the Commission to pilot the powers of disqualification for two years and require the Secretary of State to report to Parliament on the operation of the pilot schemes. By virtue of s 54, the Commission may specify the intervals at which child support maintenance payments are made, having regard to the preferences indicated by the parent who does not reside with the children concerned. Section 55 extends the scope of offences relating to the provision of information.

Part 4 (s 56) Birth registration

Section 56, Sch 6 make provision for the joint registration of births where the parents of a child are neither married to each other nor civil partners of each other so as to increase the ways in which an unmarried father may register jointly with the child's mother, and confer additional rights and duties on both unmarried parents to enable unmarried fathers' details to be entered on the birth register in as many cases as possible.

Part 5 (ss 57-62) General

Section 57 empowers the Secretary of State to make consequential amendments and revocations of subordinate legislation, and repeals and revocations are made by s 58, Sch 7. Sections 59-62 deal with financial provisions, extent, commencement and short title.

Amendments, repeals and revocations

The list below, which is not exhaustive, mentions amendments which are or will be effective when the Act is fully in force.

Specific provisions of a number of Acts are substituted, added or repealed. These include: Births and Deaths Registration Act 1953 ss 1, 2, 2A-2E, 6, 10, 10A-10C, 39A; Child Support Act 1991 ss 39B, 39CA, 39CB, 39DA, 39F, 39G, 40B; Social Security Administration Act 1992 ss 2B, 2D-2H, 78A, 108, 122G, 122H; Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 124, 126, 127, 140ZA-140ZC; Jobseeker's Act 1995 ss 1A, 1B, 11A-11C, 15B, 17A-17C, 18A-18D, 19, 20, 20A-20E, Sch A1; Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 60; Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 ss 62-66; Social Security Fraud Act 2001 ss 6A-6C; State Pension Credit Act 2002 s 18A; Welfare Reform Act 2007 s 15A, Sch 1A; Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 s 30.

1. CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS

(1) CHILDHOOD

(i) Terminology

1. Attainment of full age.

A person attains full age on attaining the age of 18<sup>1</sup>. This provision applies for the purposes of any rule of law, and, in the absence of a definition or of any indication of a contrary intention, for the construction of 'full age', 'infant', 'infancy', 'minor', 'minority' and similar expressions in any statutory provision<sup>2</sup>, whether passed or made before, on or after 1 January 1970<sup>3</sup>, and in any deed, will<sup>4</sup> or other instrument of whatever nature (not being a statutory provision) made on or after that date<sup>5</sup>.

1 Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 1(1). Prior to 1 January 1970 (ie the date on which that provision came into force) the age of majority was 21, but a person attained full age on 1 January 1970 if he had then already attained the age of 18 but not the age of 21: s 1(1). As to the time at which a person attains a particular age see para 2 post. There are transitional provisions and savings in relation to: (1) funds in court; (2) wardship and custody orders; (3) adoption orders; (4) a trustee's power to apply income for the maintenance of a minor; (5) a personal representative's powers during the minority of a beneficiary; (6) accumulation periods; (7) limitation of actions; and (8) statutory provisions incorporated in deeds, wills and other instruments: see s 1(4), Sch 3.

2 'Statutory provision' means any enactment (including, except where the context otherwise requires, the Family Law Reform Act 1969) and any order, rule, regulation, byelaw or other instrument made in the exercise of a power conferred by any enactment: s 1(6).

3 Ibid s 1(2)(a). This does not affect the construction of 'full age', 'infant', 'minor' and any similar expression in the Regency Acts 1937 to 1953 (ie the Regency Act 1937, the Regency Act 1943 and the Regency Act 1953) (see CROWN AND ROYAL FAMILY vol 12(1) (Reissue) para 13): Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 1(4), Sch 2 paras 1, 2 (amended by the Representation of the People Act 1983 s 206, Sch 9; the Statute Law (Repeals) Act 1993; and the Electoral Administration Act 2006 ss 61(7), 74(2), Sch 1 Pt 7 para 103, Sch 2).

4 Notwithstanding any rule of law, a will or codicil executed before 1 January 1970 must not be treated for the purposes of the Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 1 as made on or after that date by reason only that the will or codicil is confirmed by a codicil executed on or after that date: s 1(7). As to the execution of wills and codicils see WILLS vol 50 (2005 Reissue) para 348 et seq.

5 Ibid s 1(2)(b). By order made by statutory instrument, the Lord Chancellor may amend any provision in any local enactment passed on or before 1 January 1970 (not being a provision described in note 3 supra) by substituting a reference to the age of 18 years for any reference therein to the age of 21 years; and any statutory instrument containing such an order is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 1(5). At the date at which this volume states the law no such order had been made.

2. When a person attains full age.

The time at which a person attains a particular age expressed in years is the commencement of the relevant anniversary of the date of his birth<sup>1</sup>. This applies only where the relevant anniversary falls on a date after 1 January 1970, and, in relation to any enactment, deed, will or other instrument, has effect subject to any provision in it<sup>2</sup>.

A person may be declared to be of full age before he attains the age of 18 by Act of Parliament, but not in any other way<sup>3</sup>; nor can he alter it by adopting a proceeding which would be valid if he were of full age<sup>4</sup>.

The general rule as to the attainment of full age at 18 years has one exception: in law the Sovereign is never a minor, although a regent is usually appointed when the Sovereign is of tender years<sup>5</sup>.

3. Meanings of 'minor' and 'child'.

The Family Law Reform Act 1969 provides that a person who is not of full age<sup>1</sup> may be described as a minor instead of as an infant<sup>2</sup>, and that term has been used in a number of statutes passed between 1969 and 1989. However, in the Children Act 1989 the term 'child' is used throughout, and is defined as a person under the age of 18<sup>3</sup>. Much of the earlier legislation has been repealed by the Children Act 1989, and this title therefore adopts the usage 'child' to refer to a person under the age of 18 unless there is special reason to the contrary.

However, it should be noted that, in the Children and Young Persons Acts 1933 to 1969, 'child' generally means a person under the age of 14 years<sup>4</sup> and that for certain purposes those Acts refer to a person who has attained the age of 14 and is under the age of 18 years as a 'young person'<sup>5</sup>. Moreover, the various offences commonly known as cruelty to children are in most cases offences in connection with children and young persons under the age of 16 years<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to the attainment of full age see para 1 ante.

2 Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 12.

3 Children Act 1989 s 105(1). The definition of 'child' is subject to the provisions of Sch 1 para 16 (as amended), which extends the definition of 'child' to a person who has reached the age of 18 when application is made for financial relief in certain circumstances: see para 553 post.

4 See the Children and Young Persons Act 1933 s 107(1); Children and Young Persons Act 1969 s 70(1).

5 See the Children and Young Persons Act 1933 s 107(1) (definition substituted by the Criminal Justice Act 1991 s 68, Sch 8 para 1); and the Children and Young Persons Act 1969 s 70(1) (definition substituted by the Criminal Justice Act 1991 Sch 8 para 4(2)). Prior to these amendments, 'young person' meant a person who had attained the age of 14 and was under the age of 17 (see the Children and Young Persons Act 1933 s 107(1) (as originally enacted); and the Children and Young Persons Act 1969 s 70(1) (as originally enacted)), and this is still the definition for certain purposes (see eg s 23(12) (as substituted); and para 1247 note 2 post).

(ii) Capacity of Children

A. IN GENERAL

4. Legal consequences of childhood.

At common law a child is under a general incapacity<sup>1</sup> to exercise the rights of citizenship<sup>2</sup> or perform civil duties<sup>3</sup> or to hold public or private offices or perform the duties incidental to them<sup>4</sup>. It was thought that a child lacked legal capacity to give a valid consent, or carry out any other legally effective act, and that capacity to act in the child's behalf was in general vested in the child's parent or guardian<sup>5</sup>. Until a child attained majority, there was vested in the father<sup>6</sup> a right to custody<sup>7</sup>, although latterly the court would not enforce that right against a child who had attained the so-called age of discretion<sup>8</sup>.

The modern position is that parental rights exist only so long as they are needed for the protection of the person and property of the child<sup>9</sup>, and that it can no longer be accepted that children remain under parental control until a particular specified age. Parental right yields to the child's right to make his own decisions when he reaches a sufficient understanding to be capable of making up his own mind on the matter requiring decision<sup>10</sup>. It is a question of fact whether a child has sufficient understanding and intelligence to be so capable<sup>11</sup>. However, in many cases (notably in relation to the giving of consent to medical treatment<sup>12</sup>, the right to make a will<sup>13</sup>, the right to marry<sup>14</sup>, and the capacity to enter into an enforceable contract<sup>15</sup>), the age below which a person lacks legal capacity for the particular purpose involved is prescribed by statute. In addition, in the exercise of its wardship jurisdiction, the court may override the wishes of a child, notwithstanding the fact that the child would have capacity<sup>16</sup> to take the decision himself<sup>17</sup>.

The Children Act 1989 has to a large extent curtailed the power of the High Court to exercise its inherent jurisdiction by restricting the circumstances in which a local authority may apply for the exercise of the High Court's inherent jurisdiction with respect to children, and by providing, for certain purposes, that no court may exercise the High Court's inherent jurisdiction with respect to children<sup>18</sup>.

1 This incapacity is apparently unaffected by the decision in Gillick v West Norfolk and Wisbech Area Health Authority [1986] AC 112, [1985] 3 All ER 402, HL.

2 As to the nationality of a child see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) para 1 et seq; and as to his domicile see CONFLICT OF LAWS vol 8(3) (Reissue) para 35 et seq.

3 Grange v Tiving (1665) O Bridg 107 at 117.

4 See paras 5-8 post.

5 As to the scope and nature of parental rights at common law see F v Wirral Metropolitan Borough Council [1991] Fam 69, [1991] 2 All ER 648, CA.

6 I.e. assuming the child to be legitimate. If he were illegitimate the child was regarded as legally filius nullius (see Barnardo v McHugh [1891] AC 388 at 399, HL, per Lord Herschell) until it was accepted that the mother had a legal right to custody of her illegitimate child up to the age of 16 (Barnardo v McHugh supra). Cf R v Nash, Re Carey (1883) 10 QBD 454 at 456, CA, per Jessel MR; Re Lloyd (1841) 3 Man & G 547.

The Guardianship Act 1973 s 1 (repealed) provided that a mother should have the same rights and authority in relation to the custody of a minor and in relation to the administration of property or the application of income as the law allowed to a father, and that the rights and authority of mother and father should be equal and exercisable by either without the other. However, this provision did not apply in relation to a minor who was illegitimate: s 1(7) (repealed). This has now been replaced by the concept of 'parental authority' under the Children Act 1989: see generally paras 133-143 post.

7 'Custody' is used in a wide sense to embrace a 'bundle' of rights or powers including 'both the personal power physically to control the infant . . . and the right . . . to apply to the courts to exercise the powers of the Crown as parens patriae' in the wardship jurisdiction: see Hewer v Bryant [1970] 1 QB 357 at 373, [1969] 3 All ER 578 at 585-586, CA, per Sachs LJ; F v Wirral Metropolitan Borough Council [1991] Fam 69, [1991] 2 All ER 648, CA; and see Re K D (a minor) (ward: termination of access) [1988] AC 806, [1988] 1 All ER 577, HL.

Statutory provisions (notably the Guardianship of Infants Act 1925) referred to the child's welfare as the determinative factor (J v C [1970] AC 668, [1969] 1 All ER 788, HL), and the parent's legal right to custody of a child was a dwindling right which the courts would hesitate the more to enforce against the wishes of the child, the older he was. Such a right started with a right of control, and ended with little more than advice: Hewer v Bryant [1970] 1 QB 357 at 369, [1969] 3 All ER 578 at 582, CA, per Lord Denning MR.

8 The age of discretion was judicially set at 14 for boys and 16 for girls: see Re Agar-Ellis, Agar-Ellis v Lascelles (1883) 24 ChD 317 at 326, CA, per Brett MR; Thomasset v Thomasset [1894] P 295 at 298, CA, per Lindley LJ; R v Howes, ex p Barford (1860) 3 E & E 332; Re Lloyd (1841) 3 Man & G 547 at 548 per Tindal CJ. 12 It is provided that the consent of a minor who has attained the age of 16 years to any surgical, medical or dental treatment which, in the absence of consent, would constitute a trespass to his person, is as effective as it would be if he were of full age; and where a minor has by virtue of this rule given an effective consent to any treatment it is not necessary to obtain any consent for it from his parent or guardian: Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 8(1). 'Surgical, medical or dental treatment' includes any procedure undertaken for the purpose of diagnosis, and also applies to any procedure (including, in particular, the administration of an anaesthetic) which is ancillary to any treatment as it applies to that treatment: s 8(2). However, no minor, of whatever age, can by refusing consent override a consent given by a person with parental authority or by the court, though such refusal will be relevant to the court or parent in deciding whether to give or withhold consent: Re R (a minor) (wardship: consent to treatment) [1992] Fam 11, [1991] 4 All ER 177, CA; Re W (a minor) (medical treatment: court's jurisdiction) [1993] Fam 64 at 81, [1992] 4 All ER 627 at 637, CA, where Lord Donaldson of Lynton MR suggested that the wishes of a minor would be of reduced significance where the capacity to make a proper decision was diminished by the disease which required treatment. As to the procedure on applications for leave to perform a sterilisation operation on a child see Practice Note (Official Solicitor: sterilisation) [1996] 3 FCR 95, sub nom Practice Note [1996] 2 FLR 111. Where the medical evidence is clear that the best interests of a terminally ill child would not be served by the continuation of a course of treatment, the court ought not to authorise it, despite the parents' refusal of consent to its withdrawal: Re C (a minor) (medical treatment) [1998] 1 FCR 1, [1998] 1 FLR 384. The views of parents ought to be carefully considered but do not override the court's view of the child's best interests: A National Health Service Trust v D [2000] 2 FCR 577, [2000] 2 FLR 677 (decision not to resuscitate terminally ill child in event of cardiac failure did not breach child's right to life under the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969)). See also the Children Act 1989 ss 38(6), 43(8), 44(7), Sch 3 paras 4, 5 (as amended); and paras 283, 292, 580, 586 post. The Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) para 122 et seq.

Where doctors override a mother's objection to her child's treatment, in the absence of authorisation from a court, there is a breach of the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms art 8: Application 61827/00 Glass v United Kingdom [2004] 1 FCR 553, [2004] 1 FLR 1019, ECtHR. 13 Capacity to make a will is governed by the Wills Act 1837 which provides that no will made by any person under the age of 18 years is valid: see s 7 (amended by the Statute Law Revision (No 2) Act 1888; and the Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 3(1)(a)); para 53 post; and WILLS vol 50 (2005 Reissue) para 323 et seq. However, a person who is under that age being a soldier in actual military service or a mariner or seaman at sea may validly dispose of property by will: see the Wills Act 1837 s 11 (amended by the Statute Law Revision (No 2) Act 1888); the Wills (Soldiers and Sailors) Act 1918 ss 1, 2 (s 1 amended by the Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 3(1)(b)); and WILLS vol 50 (2005 Reissue) paras 371-373.

14 A marriage is void if either party is under the age of 16: see the Marriage Act 1949 s 2; and the Matrimonial Causes Act 1973 s 11(a)(ii). Where the marriage of a child (not being a widower or widow) is intended to be solemnised on the authority of a superintendent registrar's certificate, the consent of certain persons must be obtained: see the Marriage Act 1949 s 3(1) (amended by the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 33(1), Sch 2 para 9; the Children Act 1989 s 108(4), (7), Sch 12 para 5, Sch 15; the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999 s 169(1), Sch 14 paras 3, 4, Sch 16; and the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 139(1), Sch 3 paras 1-4). There are also comparable restrictions on marriages intended to be solemnised on the authority of a common licence and marriage after the publication of banns of matrimony: see the Marriage Act 1949 s 3(2)-(4) (amended by the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 33(1), Sch 2 para 9; and the Adoption and Children Act 2002 Sch 3 paras 1, 5). A civil partnership is also void where either party is under 16: see the Civil Partnership Act 2004 ss 3(1), 49(a); and MATRIMONIAL AND CIVIL PARTNERSHIP LAW vol 72(2009) PARAS 32, 327.

5. Particular incapacities in public law.

With certain exceptions<sup>1</sup> a child may not hold an office or post of public and pecuniary trust<sup>2</sup>. Accordingly he may not act as the clerk of a court where it is a part of the duties to receive money<sup>3</sup>, nor as a bailiff<sup>4</sup> or receiver<sup>5</sup>. If a peer, he may not sit or vote in the House of Lords<sup>6</sup>, nor is a child eligible for the House of Commons<sup>7</sup>. A person is qualified to be elected and to be a member of a local authority or is qualified to be elected and to be an elected mayor if on the relevant day<sup>8</sup> he has attained the age of 18 years<sup>9</sup>. For the purposes of the Representation of the People Acts a person is entitled to vote as an elector at a parliamentary election in any constituency if on the date of the poll he is of voting age (that is 18 years or over); and, if otherwise qualified, a person who is of voting age on the date of the poll at a parliamentary or local government election is entitled to vote as an elector, whether or not he is of voting age on the qualifying date<sup>10</sup>.

A child is not qualified to serve on a jury<sup>11</sup>.

6. Sovereign and peers.

A child can succeed to the throne, and in law there is no such thing as incapacity from infancy in the case of the Sovereign<sup>1</sup>. In the case of a Sovereign under the age of 18, however, provision is made for the exercise of the royal functions by a regent<sup>2</sup>.

A child can succeed to a peerage, and if a peerage is conferred on him during infancy he cannot waive or refuse the dignity<sup>3</sup>. However, a child born as a result of artificial insemination involving a third party is excluded from acceding to titles of honour or dignities as the child is not a blood relative<sup>4</sup>.

A child can do homage<sup>5</sup> and, after the age of 12 years, can take the oath of allegiance<sup>6</sup>.

A child can be lord of a manor and perform the functions of the office, for his actions are only instrumental and for the advantage of the tenants of the manor<sup>1</sup>. If he contracts an unenforceable debt during infancy by a fraudulent representation that he is of full age, and becomes bankrupt after attaining full age, the person defrauded may prove in the bankruptcy for the amount of the equitable liability resulting from the fraud<sup>2</sup>. A child may not be convicted of an offence against the bankruptcy laws unless he can be made bankrupt in the particular case<sup>3</sup>. Where a child is a member of a firm, a bankruptcy order may not be made against the firm as a whole, but bankruptcy orders may be made against the other members of the firm individually, or against the firm exclusive of the child partner<sup>4</sup>.

A child may present a bankruptcy petition by a litigation friend<sup>5</sup>, but may not be appointed a proxy to vote at a meeting of creditors under a bankruptcy<sup>6</sup>.

(2) CAPACITY OF CHILDREN IN CONTRACT, TORT, CRIME AND PROPERTY

(i) Contract

12. Position at common law.

In accordance with the principle that a child is of immature intelligence and discretion<sup>1</sup>, a child's contract<sup>2</sup> is at common law generally voidable<sup>3</sup> at the instance of the child, although it is binding upon the other party<sup>4</sup>. Exceptions to this rule are contracts for necessities<sup>5</sup> and certain other contracts such as contracts of service<sup>6</sup> and apprenticeship<sup>7</sup>, if they are clearly for the child's benefit<sup>8</sup>; such contracts are valid and binding upon a child<sup>9</sup>. In such cases the question to be judged is whether the contract is or is not on the whole beneficial at the date when it is made<sup>10</sup>.

Contracts which are obviously prejudicial to a child are wholly void<sup>11</sup>; thus a child cannot contract a loan or give a penal bond<sup>12</sup>, and a warrant of attorney to confess judgment given by a child was void<sup>13</sup>. A child cannot be bound as a party to a bill of exchange even for necessities<sup>14</sup>. He cannot grant a rentcharge or annuity<sup>15</sup>, or surrender a term of years<sup>16</sup>. In general, a child cannot give a valid receipt or a valid release of a legal claim<sup>17</sup>, but a married child or a child who has formed a civil partnership has power to give valid receipts for all income, including statutory accumulations during the minority, to which he is entitled in like manner as if he were of full age<sup>18</sup>.

13. Prejudicial contracts.

Even a contract which from its nature would be binding on a child may be incapable of being enforced against him if its particular terms are prejudicial to his interests<sup>1</sup> or onerous to him<sup>2</sup>. In that case the question whether the contract is enforceable depends upon whether the prejudicial stipulations in it do or do not outweigh the general benefit which the contract is regarded as conferring upon him<sup>3</sup>.

14. Contracts and guarantees.

Formerly the Infants Relief Act 1874 provided that certain contracts entered into by infants were 'absolutely void'<sup>1</sup>. Moreover, no action could be brought to enforce a promise or ratification made on attaining full age to pay a debt contracted or upon a contract made during infancy<sup>2</sup>. However, the Infants Relief Act 1874<sup>3</sup> was repealed by the Minors' Contracts Act 1987<sup>4</sup> and therefore does not apply to any contract made by a minor after 9 June 1987<sup>5</sup>. The contractual incapacity of minors was much reduced by the Minors' Contracts Act 1987.

Where a guarantee is given in respect of an obligation of a party to a contract made after 9 June 1987 and the obligation is unenforceable against him (or he repudiates the contract) because he was a minor when the contract was made, the guarantee is not for that reason alone unenforceable against the guarantor<sup>6</sup>. Prior to this, a guarantee<sup>7</sup> of a contract rendered absolutely void by the Infants Relief Act 1874 was unenforceable<sup>8</sup>.

1 Infants Relief Act 1874 s 1 (repealed). The contracts in question were all contracts, whether by speciality or simple contract, entered into by infants for the repayment of money lent or to be lent, or for goods supplied or to be supplied, other than contracts for necessities (see para 18 post), and all accounts stated with infants; provided that the Act did not invalidate contracts which might be entered into by infants under another rule of law. As to the definitions of the terms 'infant' and 'minor' see para 3 ante.

2 Ibid s 2 (repealed).

3 See also the Betting and Loans (Infants) Act 1892 s 5 (repealed), which invalidated contracts to repay loans advanced during minority.

4 Minors' Contracts Act 1987 s 4.

5 Ibid s 1(a). This provision came into force on 9 June 1987: s 5. Consequently, ratification after that date of an affected contract made prior to it is unenforceable. Contracts of the type mentioned in note 1 supra made after that date are subject to the general rules governing contracts with children: see para 15 et seq post.

15. Passing of property.

It seems that where goods are delivered to a child under a contract of sale the property passes to him, notwithstanding the fact that the contract does not bind the child<sup>1</sup>. It also appears that property can pass from a child under a contract which is not binding on him<sup>2</sup>.

16. Liability of adult contracting with child.

Where an adult contracts with a child and the child elects to enforce the contract, the adult is bound by it even though the child is not himself liable<sup>1</sup>; and a claim may be brought upon the contract, either on behalf of the child during his infancy<sup>2</sup> or by the child himself after he attains full age<sup>3</sup>. On the ground of want of mutuality, however, a child cannot claim specific performance of a contract made with him<sup>4</sup>.

17. Liability of co-contractor.

Where an adult and a child enter jointly into a contract which does not bind the child, the adult is not bound by it if it can only be performed by them jointly<sup>1</sup>. If it can be performed by the adult without the child, then, whether it is absolutely void or only voidable as regards the child, the adult is liable under it<sup>2</sup>. In the case of a contract which is only voidable on the part of the child, however, the joint contractor may be sued alone only on proof that the child has avoided the contract<sup>3</sup>.

Where specific performance of a contract cannot be ordered against a child, it will not be ordered against an adult co-contractor with him<sup>4</sup>; but where a bill of exchange is drawn or indorsed by a child, the holder is entitled to receive payment of the bill, and to enforce it against any other party to it<sup>5</sup>.

18. Liability for necessities.

The law considers it to be clearly for the benefit of a child that he should be capable of binding himself to pay for the supply of the necessities of life to himself and members of his household<sup>1</sup>. In order to maintain a claim against a child in respect of necessities it must be shown that they were of a nature suitable to his condition in life and actually required by him at the time and that he was not at the time otherwise sufficiently provided with them<sup>2</sup>. The burden of proof is on the claimant<sup>3</sup>, and the claimant's absence of knowledge as to the child's existing supplies is irrelevant<sup>4</sup>.

Where necessities are sold and delivered to a child, he must pay a reasonable price for them<sup>5</sup>. The fact of his having a sufficient allowance does not preclude him from contracting for necessities on credit<sup>6</sup>.

A claim against a child for necessities is usually spoken of as a case of enforcing a contract against the child. It has been said, however, that the basis of the claim is hardly contract; and that the real foundation of the claim is an obligation which the law imposes on the child to make a fair payment in respect of needs satisfied, in other words, an obligation arising re and not consensu: Nash v Inman [1908] 2 KB 1 at 8, CA, per Fletcher Moulton LJ; and see Re Rhodes, Rhodes v Rhodes (1890) 44 ChD 94 at 105-107, CA, per Cotton LJ. Substantially all the goods included in the contract must be necessities: Stocks v Wilson [1913] 2 KB 235 at 241-242 per Lush J.

Where there is a trial by jury, now a most rare occurrence in ordinary civil actions, the question whether or not the goods can be necessities is a question of law for the judge, and the question whether or not they are necessities is a question of fact for the jury; it is, however, a question of law whether there is any evidence upon which the jury can find them to be necessities: see generally Maddox v Miller (1813) 1 M & S 738; Harrison v Fane (1840) 1 Man & G 550; Brooker v Scott (1843) 11 M & W 67; Wharton v Mackenzie, Cripps v Hills (1844) 5 QB 606; Peters v Fleming (1840) 6 M & W 42; Barnes & Co v Toye (1884) 13 QBD 410; Ryder v Wombwell (1868) LR 4 Exch 32; Nash v Inman [1908] 2 KB 1, CA.

19. What are necessities?

Certain things are clearly necessities, such as food, clothing, medicine<sup>1</sup> and lodging<sup>2</sup>. Articles suitable to and proper for a child's position in life, although not actually necessary to his existence, are recognised as necessities<sup>3</sup>. The cost of the funeral of a member of the child's family is a necessary expenditure<sup>4</sup>. Education suitable to the child's prospects in life is a necessary for which he can bind himself<sup>5</sup>. The protection of a child from legal proceedings and the protection of his interests by legal instruments or legal proceedings have been held to be necessities<sup>6</sup>. Articles which are mere luxuries, as distinguished from luxurious articles of utility<sup>7</sup>, are not recognised as necessities, even for a child in a position in which they are commonly enjoyed<sup>8</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/1. CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(2) CAPACITY OF CHILDREN IN CONTRACT, TORT, CRIME AND PROPERTY/(i) Contract/20. Liability for trade debts.

20. Liability for trade debts.

Trading contracts are not contracts for necessities<sup>1</sup>, and a child is not liable upon a contract for work and labour done to enable him to carry on trade<sup>2</sup>, although he may enforce such a contract<sup>3</sup>. A child is not liable for a debt incurred by him in the course of his trading<sup>4</sup>. If, however, he obtains credit for it by a fraudulent misrepresentation as to his age, he may be compelled to make restitution<sup>5</sup>, but the fact of his trading is not in itself a representation by him that he is of age<sup>6</sup>. Even if such a fraudulent misrepresentation is expressly made, it is doubtful whether it will render a child liable to be made bankrupt in respect of trade debts<sup>7</sup>. Where goods are purchased as stock but are used as necessities, the child is liable to that extent<sup>8</sup>.

21. Loans to provide necessities.

Whilst a child may make a binding contract to buy necessities<sup>1</sup>, the loan cannot be enforced at common law if he borrows money for that purpose<sup>2</sup>, and where a sum of money is advanced to a child to enable him to provide himself with necessities, he cannot give a binding security for it<sup>3</sup> nor draw nor accept a bill in respect of it<sup>4</sup>. The lender, however, stands in equity in the place of the supplier of the necessities and may accordingly maintain a claim for the money<sup>5</sup>; and his right in this respect is not prejudiced by the child's having given an invalid security for it<sup>6</sup>.

23. Effect of misrepresentation.

Where a child has obtained an advantage by falsely stating himself to be of full age, he is bound in equity to restore property so acquired and to release persons whom he has deceived from obligations induced by the fraud<sup>1</sup>. The misrepresentation must be explicit, however, and will not arise from mere inferences suggested by or drawn from the child's conduct<sup>2</sup>; nor will it bind or prejudice the child if the person with whom he is dealing is in fact aware that he is a child<sup>3</sup>.

Thus, where goods have been obtained by a child upon a fraudulent misrepresentation, he may be compelled to restore them<sup>4</sup>, and a lease so obtained may be ordered to be cancelled<sup>5</sup>. Similarly, a trustee who has paid over funds to a child on his fraudulent representation that he is of age will not be liable to pay them again<sup>6</sup>, and a specific release given to a trustee by a child who represents himself to be of age will be binding on the child<sup>7</sup>.

Where a person under age has obtained a loan or incurred a debt by a fraudulent misrepresentation as to his being of age, he cannot be sued for it at law<sup>8</sup> but, in respect of his equitable liability, may be compelled to make restitution<sup>9</sup>, and proof of the debt will be admitted in his bankruptcy<sup>10</sup>. A mortgage granted by a child to secure a loan might be held valid on the same principle<sup>11</sup>. Such a fraud, however, will not affect a third person who claims under a disposition made after the child has attained full age without notice of an unenforceable prior charge made during infancy<sup>12</sup>.

The Minors' Contracts Act 1987 confers on the court a wide discretion to require a defendant to transfer to the claimant any property acquired by the defendant under a contract unenforceable against the defendant (or repudiated by him) because he was a minor when it was made<sup>13</sup>. Although this provision does not prejudice any other remedy available to the claimant<sup>14</sup>, it may be that the broad statutory remedy will be invoked in preference to the equitable power to order the restoration of benefits obtained under the contract.

24. Restitution.

Where a person ('the claimant') has after 9 June 1987 entered into a contract with another ('the defendant') and the contract is unenforceable against the defendant (or he repudiates it) because he was a minor when the contract was made, the court may, if it is just and equitable to do so, require the defendant to transfer to the claimant any property<sup>1</sup> acquired by the defendant under the contract, or any property representing it<sup>2</sup>. This is without prejudice to any other remedy which may be available to the claimant<sup>3</sup>.

1 'Property' is not defined for the purposes of the Minors Contracts Act 1987. It is therefore not certain whether the court can order a minor to restore a sum of money, or to pay a sum of money representing the proceeds of sale of property received by him under the contract. See, however, the Theft Act 1968 s 4(1), which provides that 'property' includes money: see CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(1) (2006 Reissue) para 285. In certain cases it is settled that a minor is bound by a contract, but can avoid liability by repudiating before majority or within a reasonable time thereafter. A child cannot hold a legal estate in land<sup>1</sup> but may be liable under a transaction taking effect as an agreement for a lease<sup>2</sup>. A child who agrees to purchase freehold land is bound unless he repudiates<sup>3</sup>. A child is liable for calls on shares<sup>4</sup>. A person is liable to some extent under a partnership agreement made during minority<sup>5</sup>. It also appears that a marriage settlement binds a child unless he repudiates<sup>6</sup>.

(ii) Tort

26. General liability for torts.

A child of an age at which he is capable of distinguishing between right and wrong is liable for the consequences of his own wrongful acts. A child above the age of seven years<sup>1</sup> is not protected from the consequences of his own fraud<sup>2</sup>, and is generally liable for a tort committed by him if it is not directly founded upon a contract on which he cannot be sued<sup>3</sup>.

Accordingly, a child can be sued for the return of money which he has stolen<sup>4</sup>, for trespass<sup>5</sup>, for damage done by a dangerous animal kept by him<sup>6</sup>, for conversion<sup>7</sup>, for slander<sup>8</sup>, for fraudulently passing off spurious goods as being of the claimant's manufacture<sup>9</sup>, or for representing his business as being connected with the claimant's business<sup>10</sup>.

27. Tort founded on contract.

A child is not liable for a tort which is founded on a contract on which he cannot be sued<sup>1</sup>, as in the case of the warranty of goods<sup>2</sup>, or for a fraudulent misrepresentation as to his age which induces a party to contract with him<sup>3</sup>; but he is liable for any tort which, although connected with the subject matter of a contract, is a separate and independent act of a kind forbidden or not contemplated by the contract<sup>4</sup> or if the action in substance arises from the tort itself<sup>5</sup>.

28. Liability of parents and other persons.

Prima facie a parent is not liable for a tort committed by his child<sup>1</sup>. Where, however, a child causes injury to others the parent or any other person in charge of the child<sup>2</sup> may be liable if the parent or other person has control of a dangerous thing which causes the injury<sup>3</sup> or is negligent, either in permitting the child to use a thing which is dangerous in itself or known to be dangerous<sup>4</sup> or capable of causing danger to others<sup>5</sup> or in not exercising proper control and supervision of the child<sup>6</sup>. A parent may also become liable where he has previously authorised or subsequently ratified the child's act<sup>7</sup>.

Parents and other persons in charge of children may also be liable for injuries suffered by a third person arising from a perilous situation created by the innocent act of a child where this ought in the circumstances to have been reasonably anticipated<sup>8</sup>. The question in such cases is not unlike that which arises under the doctrine of allurements<sup>9</sup>.

It is conclusively presumed that no child under the age of 10 years can be guilty of any criminal offence<sup>1</sup>. The rebuttable presumption of criminal law that a child between the ages of 10 and 14 years is incapable of committing an offence has been abolished<sup>2</sup>. A person over the age of 14 years is presumed to have a degree of reason sufficient to make him responsible for his crimes<sup>3</sup>. Special statutory provisions exist in relation to criminal proceedings involving juvenile offenders<sup>4</sup>.

The presumption of criminal law that a boy under the age of 14 is incapable of sexual intercourse, whether natural or unnatural, is abolished<sup>5</sup>.

Where, after 1 January 1997, a person purports to convey a legal estate in land to a minor, or two or more minors, alone, the conveyance is not effective to pass the legal estate, but operates as a declaration that the land is held in trust for the minor or minors (or if he purports to convey it to the minor or minors in trust for any persons, for those persons)<sup>1</sup>. Where, after that date, a person purports to convey a legal estate in land to a minor or two or more minors, and another person who is, or other persons who are, of full age, the conveyance operates to vest the land in the other person or persons in trust for the minor or minors and the other person or persons (or if he purports to convey it to them in trust for any persons, for those persons)<sup>2</sup>. Where, immediately before 1 January 1997, a conveyance is operating<sup>3</sup> as an agreement to execute a settlement in favour of a minor or minors, the agreement ceases to have effect on that date, and the conveyance subsequently operates instead as a declaration that the land is held in trust for the minor or minors<sup>4</sup>.

Where, after that date, a legal estate in land would, by reason of intestacy or in any other circumstances not already mentioned above, vest in a person who is a minor if he were a person of full age, the land is held in trust for the minor<sup>5</sup>.

If a child is party to an exchange of land, and after coming of age continues in possession of the land given to him in exchange, he is bound by the transaction<sup>6</sup>.

Any deed, will, agreement for a settlement or other agreement, Act of Parliament or other instrument or any number of instruments, whenever made, under or by virtue of which a legal estate in land stands for the time being limited in trust for a child in possession, creates a settlement<sup>1</sup>, and the land is settled land<sup>2</sup>.

Where a child is beneficially entitled to a legal estate in land, and by reason of an intestacy or otherwise there is no instrument under which the child's interest arises or is acquired, a settlement is deemed to have been made by the intestate or by the person whose interest the child has acquired<sup>3</sup>.

1 See the Settled Land Act 1925 s 1(1)(ii)(d); and SETTLEMENTS vol 42 (Reissue) para 678. This replaced the Settled Land Act 1882 s 59 (repealed), which provided that where a person who was in his own right seised of or entitled in possession to land was an infant, the land was settled land and the child deemed tenant for life of it. ### 33. Powers of personal representatives and trustees.

Where a child is beneficially entitled in possession to a legal estate in land<sup>1</sup>, or would if of full age be a tenant for life<sup>2</sup> of or have the powers of a tenant for life over settled land, then, during the minority of the child<sup>3</sup>:

- 1 (1) if the settled land is vested in a personal representative<sup>4</sup>, the personal representative, until a principal vesting instrument has been executed pursuant to the provisions of the Settled Land Act 1925<sup>5</sup>; and
- 2 (2) in every other case, the trustees of the settlement<sup>6</sup>, has or have, in reference to the settled land and capital money<sup>7</sup>, all the powers conferred by that Act and the settlement on a tenant for life and on the trustees of the settlement<sup>8</sup>.

This provision does not apply if a child is beneficially entitled in possession to the land jointly with a person of full age<sup>9</sup>; nor does it apply if a child would, if of full age, constitute the tenant for life or have the powers of a tenant for life together with another person of full age<sup>10</sup>. It does apply to two or more children entitled in possession to land until one of them attains full age, and also to two or more children who would, if all of them were of full age, together constitute the tenant for life or have the powers of a tenant for life until one of them attains full age<sup>11</sup>. In any case the child's beneficial interest will not be affected prejudicially<sup>12</sup>.

34. Transitional provisions relating to a child entitled absolutely or for life.

Where, on 1 January 1926, a child was beneficially entitled in possession to a legal estate in land<sup>1</sup>, or would, if of full age, have been a tenant for life<sup>2</sup> or had the powers of a tenant for life, the settled land<sup>3</sup> vested in the trustees of the settlement<sup>4</sup>. If there were no such trustees, then, pending their appointment, the land vested in the Public Trustee<sup>5</sup> upon the same trusts<sup>6</sup>, but he was not entitled to act in the trust until requested in writing on the child's behalf by the parents or parent or testamentary or other guardian in the order named<sup>7</sup>. After accepting the trust, the Public Trustee became the trustee of the settlement, and, except by an order of the court, no trustee might be appointed in his place without his consent<sup>8</sup>.

If there was no other person able and willing to appoint trustees, the child's parents or parent or testamentary or other guardian had power by deed to appoint trustees of the settlement in place of the Public Trustee as if the Public Trustee had refused to act in the trust; and in default of any such appointment, at any time during the minority the child by his next friend might apply to the court for the appointment of trustees<sup>9</sup>.

In the event of the Public Trustee not accepting the trust and no other trustee being appointed in his place, then, when the child attained the age of 21 years, the land vested in him<sup>10</sup>.

35. Transitional provisions relating to a child joint tenant.

The transitional vesting provisions<sup>1</sup> applied to the case of two or more children jointly<sup>2</sup> entitled to a legal estate in land<sup>3</sup>, and to the case of two or more children who would, if all of full age, have together constituted the tenant for life or had the powers of a tenant for life<sup>4</sup>.

Where a legal estate in land was vested immediately before 1 January 1926 in a child jointly with one or more other persons of full age beneficially, the legal estate vested in that other person or those other persons on the statutory trusts, but not so as to sever any joint tenancy<sup>5</sup>.

If a child or children would, if of full age, have constituted the tenant for life or have had the powers of a tenant for life together with another person or persons of full age, the person or persons of full age was or together constituted the tenant for life, and the legal estate in the settled land<sup>6</sup> vested in him or them, but without affecting the beneficial interests of the child or children<sup>7</sup>.

37. Grant or assignment of lease to child.

At common law, a grant of a lease to a child is voidable by the lessee on attaining majority but is binding on him unless repudiated within a reasonable time after attaining his majority<sup>1</sup>. If the lessee elects to avoid it, it is strictly void ab initio so as to relieve the lessee from all liability under it<sup>2</sup>, but the lessee is liable for rent which accrued during the minority in respect of actual occupation<sup>3</sup>, at any rate if the occupation can be treated as necessary for the child<sup>4</sup>, and apparently the lessor can distrain against him for rent in arrear<sup>5</sup>. The lessee will be taken to have confirmed the lease if he continues to occupy the premises and does not give notice to avoid it within a reasonable time after the minority ceases<sup>6</sup>. In that case he became, at common law, liable to satisfy all the obligations of the lease<sup>7</sup>, including the payment of rent which accrued during his minority<sup>8</sup>. If, on attaining full age, the lessee avoids the lease, he cannot recover any money which he has paid under it<sup>9</sup>, unless he has received no benefit<sup>10</sup>.

It has been held that a minor could become a statutory tenant under the Rent Acts<sup>11</sup>.

38. Renewal of lease.

It is a principle of equity that a trustee or guardian<sup>1</sup> or any other person in a fiduciary position who takes a renewal in his own name of a lease in which the person to whom he stands in a fiduciary position is interested as lessee, holds the new lease in trust for that person<sup>2</sup>. This is enforced with special strictness where that person is a child<sup>3</sup>, even though the lessor refuses to renew the lease to the child himself<sup>4</sup>, and the person taking the renewal is himself jointly interested in the lease<sup>5</sup>. Where a lease is renewed to a person who is jointly interested in the lease with a child but does not stand in a fiduciary position to him, he holds the new lease for his own benefit to the exclusion of the child<sup>6</sup>; but where a tenant for life takes a renewal of a lease in his own name, he is deemed to renew it for the benefit of himself during his life and of the remaindermen after his death<sup>7</sup>.

39. Acquisition of property other than legal estates.

The acquisition of property being generally beneficial<sup>1</sup>, a child can take property other than a legal estate in land<sup>2</sup> in any manner whatever<sup>3</sup>, either under intestacy or by will<sup>4</sup>, or by purchase or gift or other assurance inter vivos<sup>5</sup>, except where it would be clearly to his prejudice to do so<sup>6</sup>.

In the case of onerous property taken under an intestacy or a will, on application the court will disclaim on behalf of the child in the same way as an adult can disclaim<sup>7</sup>.

40. Receipts and the discharge of personal representatives.

The mere capacity of a child to take a legacy does not enable him to give a valid receipt for it<sup>1</sup> but a married child has statutory power to give valid receipts for all income (including statutory accumulations) to which he may be entitled<sup>2</sup>. At common law an executor was not discharged by paying a legacy without leave of the court to the father or any person other than the child's guardian on his behalf unless the will expressly or by implication authorised such payment<sup>3</sup>. However, parents and others who have 'parental responsibility' under the Children Act 1989<sup>4</sup> have the rights, powers and duties which a guardian<sup>5</sup> of the child's<sup>6</sup> estate would have had in relation to the child and his property<sup>7</sup>; and these rights include in particular the right of the guardian to receive or recover in his own name, for the benefit of the child, property of whatever description wherever situated which a child is entitled to receive or recover<sup>8</sup>.

Where property (other than a legal estate in land) is given to a child, it vests in the child immediately upon the gift's being completed<sup>1</sup>. A gift inter vivos to a child cannot afterwards be revoked<sup>2</sup>. If a gift, either inter vivos or by testamentary disposition, is made to a child for a particular purpose, the gift is effectual, irrespective of and notwithstanding the failure of the purpose<sup>3</sup>. An appointment of property to a child may be made under a power of appointment to or among children if it is not precluded by the terms of the power and is made in good faith<sup>1</sup>. If it is made for a corrupt purpose, as for instance to a child in bad health, with a view to the appointor taking the appointed property upon the child's death as his next of kin, it is void<sup>2</sup>; but such considerations do not apply to the release of a power of appointment<sup>3</sup>.

A child can dispose of property by sale, demise or gift<sup>1</sup> in the same manner as an adult, except where the alienation of the property is clearly prejudicial to his interests<sup>2</sup>. However, except in the case of alienation of property pursuant to or in performance of a contract which is in law binding upon him<sup>3</sup>, a child cannot make a finally effectual disposition of property by deed<sup>4</sup>, as the disposition is voidable by him when he comes of age<sup>5</sup>, or by his successors in title if he dies before attaining full age or dies after attaining full age without having confirmed the disposition<sup>6</sup>. The disposition remains valid until it is revoked<sup>7</sup>.

A child can consent to the exercise of a power to invest money with his consent<sup>8</sup>, and to a resettlement with his consent pursuant to a power conferred by a settlor<sup>9</sup>.

The doctrine of election<sup>1</sup> applies to children in the same way as to adults<sup>2</sup>. Election will be made by the court on the child's behalf if, on inquiry, it is found to be for his benefit<sup>3</sup>.

CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(2) CAPACITY OF CHILDREN IN CONTRACT, TORT, CRIME AND PROPERTY/(iv) Property/A. ACQUISITION AND HOLDING/49. Mortgages and leases by children.

49. Mortgages and leases by children.

A mortgage by a child will be ineffective<sup>1</sup>.

A lease purported to be granted by a child can at best convey only an equitable interest to the lessee, which may be overridden by a conveyance by the persons in whom the legal estate in the child's land is vested<sup>2</sup>, and the lease is void if it is necessarily to the prejudice of the child<sup>3</sup>.

The grant of a lease by a child is voidable by him on attaining full age<sup>4</sup>, and his successors in title have the same option if he dies before attaining full age<sup>5</sup>, but not during his minority<sup>6</sup>. If the lessee is in possession, avoidance of the lease must be by a distinct act which will intimate the fact of avoidance to the lessee, such as notice or entry or demand of possession<sup>7</sup>. If, after he has attained majority, the lessor accepts rent<sup>8</sup> or otherwise<sup>9</sup> recognises the lease as subsisting, he is taken to have confirmed it and the lease is then binding on him as from its date<sup>10</sup>; if he does not avoid it within a reasonable time after attaining majority, even though he was not aware of his right, the lease in effect is confirmed and he cannot avoid it<sup>11</sup>. The lessee cannot repudiate the lease on the ground of the lessor's infancy<sup>12</sup>.

Leases may be granted and accepted under the powers contained in a settlement, if any, or in pursuance of statutory powers, by the persons in whom the child's land is vested<sup>13</sup>; and the court has jurisdiction to authorise leases in excess of these powers<sup>14</sup>.

1 This is so notwithstanding the repeal of the Infants Relief Act 1874 s 1 (which made contracts for the repayment of money lent to a child 'absolutely void': see para 14 ante): see Nottingham Permanent Benefit Building Society v Thurstan [1903] AC 6, HL; and para 42 note 2 ante.

50. Alienation by payment on delivery.

Payment of purchase money by a child by his own hand on delivery of a chattel is valid and effectual<sup>1</sup>. If it is for valuable consideration, the transaction cannot be revoked after any part of the consideration has been enjoyed by the child<sup>2</sup>, but if the consideration wholly fails, the child may recover any money paid<sup>3</sup>. After an exchange of chattels, the child cannot recover that given in exchange, even if it is the more valuable<sup>4</sup>. Whether or not a transaction will be wholly set aside depends on whether there has been a total failure of consideration, not on whether the child has derived any advantage. Further performance of his engagements cannot, however, be enforced<sup>5</sup>. A child can recover money or chattels disposed of by way of gift<sup>6</sup>.

Where the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act 1845<sup>1</sup> or the Compulsory Purchase Act 1965<sup>2</sup> applies, power is given to trustees, executors and administrators to sell and convey children's land or interests to the company or body of persons authorised to purchase them<sup>3</sup>, and to release land from any rent, charge or incumbrance, and to agree for the apportionment of the rent, charge or incumbrance<sup>4</sup>.

CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(2) CAPACITY OF CHILDREN IN CONTRACT, TORT, CRIME AND PROPERTY/(iv) Property/A. ACQUISITION AND HOLDING/52. Exercise of powers.

52. Exercise of powers.

The capacity of a child to dispose of or affect property by the exercise of a power by deed or writing inter vivos varies according to the character and subject matter of the power. A power may be (1) collateral, where it relates to property in which he has no interest; (2) in gross, where it relates to property in which he has an interest but does not touch his interest in it; or (3) appendant or appurtenant, where he has an interest which may be affected by the exercise of the power<sup>1</sup>.

As regards real estate, a child can exercise a collateral power<sup>2</sup>, but not a power in gross<sup>3</sup> nor a power appendant or appurtenant<sup>4</sup>. As regards personal estate, he can exercise a collateral power<sup>5</sup> and also a power in gross<sup>6</sup>, but he can only exercise a power appendant or appurtenant where the donor of the power has indicated an intention that he should do so during minority<sup>7</sup>, and he cannot even then exercise it so as to defeat his interest in the property<sup>8</sup>, although he can exercise it so as to vary or diminish his interest if the exercise is for his benefit<sup>9</sup>.

A power of appointment over or power to convey or charge land or any interest in land, whether created by a statute or other instrument or implied by law, operates only in equity<sup>10</sup>.

A child may exercise a power to appoint a new trustee of a settlement, subject to the general rule that he will not be bound by an act which is either imprudent or prejudicial to his interest, or which, where he is executing an authority with which he is entrusted, touches his interest<sup>11</sup>.

56. Exercise of powers of tenant for life.

Where a child would if of full age be a tenant for life<sup>1</sup> of, or have the powers of a tenant for life<sup>2</sup> over, settled land<sup>3</sup>, then, during the minority of the child (1) if the settled land is vested in a personal representative<sup>4</sup>, the personal representative, until a principal vesting instrument<sup>5</sup> has been executed; and (2) in every other case, the trustees of the settlement<sup>6</sup>, have, in reference to the settled land and capital money<sup>7</sup>, all the powers conferred on a tenant for life and on the trustees of the settlement<sup>8</sup>.

If the settled land is vested in a personal representative, then, if and when during the minority the child, if of full age, would have been entitled to have the legal estate in the settled land conveyed to or otherwise vested in him pursuant to the provisions of the Settled Land Act 1925, a principal vesting instrument must, if the trustees of the settlement so require, be executed, at the cost of the trust estate, for vesting the legal estate in themselves<sup>9</sup>. In the meantime, during the minority, the personal representative must give effect to the directions of the trustees of the settlement, and is not concerned with the propriety of any conveyance directed to be made by those trustees, if the conveyance appears to be a proper one, and the capital money, if any, arising under the conveyance is paid to or by the direction of the trustees of the settlement or into court<sup>10</sup>.

These provisions apply to the case of two or more children jointly entitled in possession to a legal estate in land until one of them attains full age<sup>11</sup>, and they apply to the case of two or more children who would, if all of them were of full age, together constitute the tenant for life or have the powers of a tenant for life until one of them attains full age<sup>12</sup>.

57. Departure from the terms of a trust.

The court<sup>1</sup> may authorise trustees in whom any property is vested to effect in the management or administration of the trust property any act not authorised by the trust instrument which the court considers expedient<sup>2</sup>. As a rule, a court of equity did not allow a child's realty to be converted into personalty, or personalty into realty. It would not normally order the sale of a child's realty nor allow money which did not partake of the character of realty to be invested in real property. If real property was lawfully sold, the money arising from the sale was impressed with the character of realty<sup>3</sup>. Where, however, the sale was directed by the court for the purpose of paying costs, the balance of the proceeds after payment of the costs was treated as personalty and descended as such<sup>4</sup>.

As to the county court limit and county court jurisdiction generally see COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) para 710 et seq.

2 See the Trustee Act 1925 s 57(1); and TRUSTS vol 48 (2007 Reissue) para 1061. A corresponding but slightly wider power in relation to settled land is conferred by the Settled Land Act 1925 s 64 (as amended), while the Variation of Trusts Act 1958 s 1(1) empowers the court to approve on behalf of a child arrangements varying or revoking trusts or enlarging the powers of the trustees: see SETTLEMENTS vol 42 (Reissue) paras 671-672; TRUSTS vol 48 (2007 Reissue) para 1062. This statutory jurisdiction is additional to the court's inherent jurisdiction to modify beneficial trusts by approving a compromise on behalf of children and possible after-born beneficiaries: see Chapman v Chapman [1954] AC 429, [1954] 1 All ER 798, HL; and para 1423 et seq post. The Matrimonial Causes Act 1973 and the Children Act 1989 confer wide powers to vary settlements: see paras 549, 552 post.

(B) MAINTENANCE

58. Express powers.

It is usual in settlements to rely on the statutory powers<sup>1</sup> to apply the property of a child for his maintenance, and to omit the trusts or discretionary powers, which until 1860 it was usual to insert in settlements, authorising the trustees during the minority of any beneficiary to apply the yearly produce of his share of the settled fund to his maintenance. Express powers of maintenance should, however, be inserted if the settlement is not to be governed by English law, or if the interests thereby provided for children are of such a nature that the statutory powers do not apply, or if it is desired to vary them<sup>2</sup>.

CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(2) CAPACITY OF CHILDREN IN CONTRACT, TORT, CRIME AND PROPERTY/(iv) Property/B. MANAGEMENT, MAINTENANCE AND ADVANCEMENT/(B) Maintenance/59. Exercise of express powers.

59. Exercise of express powers.

Any express trusts or powers for providing maintenance or education for or otherwise benefiting a child, which are lawfully created by the settlement or will, are exercisable in respect of the property in which the child is interested<sup>1</sup>. Where there is an imperative trust and not a mere power to apply the income, the trustees are not entitled to accumulate<sup>2</sup>. A power to apply income for the maintenance and support of a child authorises its application for his education<sup>3</sup> and may be exercised during his father's lifetime in spite of the father's legal duty to maintain the child<sup>4</sup>, if the terms of the power so direct<sup>5</sup> or authorise<sup>6</sup>. A power to apply income for the benefit of a child will include expenditure not strictly comprehended under maintenance or education<sup>7</sup>. If the power is discretionary, the court will not interfere with the donee's discretion so long as it is exercised in good faith<sup>8</sup>, but if the trustees' opinion is divided the court may exercise the discretion for them<sup>9</sup>; and the father cannot obtain under it recoupment of sums paid by him for past maintenance of the child<sup>10</sup>. The trustees must exercise their discretion for the child's benefit, and should not be deterred from doing what is for his benefit merely because it is also a benefit to the father<sup>11</sup>.

If not expressly confined to his minority, a trust or gift for the maintenance and education of a child, or for his use and benefit, may extend to a longer period<sup>1</sup>, and may confer on him a life interest<sup>2</sup>. Where a father by settlement or will provides for the maintenance of his children, the provision is assumed to be intended to continue until they attain full age<sup>3</sup>, and not to cease, in the case of a daughter, on her marriage under age<sup>4</sup>. It is otherwise where the mother is directed to maintain the children until they come of age, and a son marries and leaves the maternal roof<sup>5</sup>.

61. Statutory powers where settlement is in operation before 1926.

The statutory powers of maintenance vary according to whether the instrument creating the settlement came into operation before 1 January 1926 or on or after that date<sup>1</sup>. Where, under an instrument<sup>2</sup> in operation before 1 January 1926<sup>3</sup>, property is held by trustees in trust for a child, either for life or for any greater interest, and whether absolutely or contingently on his attaining full age<sup>4</sup>, or on the occurrence of any event before his attaining full age, then subject to the provisions of the instrument under which the interest of the child arises, and so far as a contrary intention is not expressed in it<sup>5</sup>, the trustees<sup>6</sup> have certain powers of maintenance<sup>7</sup>.

These powers do not arise where the child's interest depends on an event which may not occur until after he has attained full age<sup>8</sup>, nor where he takes a vested but defeasible interest<sup>9</sup>, nor where on attaining full age he becomes entitled to the capital of the property only and not to the interest accrued during his minority<sup>10</sup>. They do arise in the case of a gift to a class contingently on the members of the class attaining full age<sup>11</sup>, or where the child has a life interest determinable on bankruptcy or attempted alienation<sup>12</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> Although it is possible for settlements made before 1 January 1926 to benefit persons who are presently children, it is clear that the provisions described in the text and notes 2-12 infra are of limited application, if not actually obsolete.

<sup>2</sup> In Re Bass, Bass v Public Trustee [1914] WN 368, the court made an order declaring that the Public Trustee, who had been appointed by the court a trustee of the trusts relating to the shares in the personal estate of an intestate, had power, notwithstanding the absence of a written instrument, to allow maintenance to child beneficiaries out of the income of their shares. As to the Public Trustee see TRUSTS vol 48 (2007 Reissue) para 766 et seq.

The statutory provisions are deemed to be incorporated in the settlement: Re Moody, Woodroffe v Moody [1895] 1 Ch 101; Re Stokes, Bowen v Davidson [1928] Ch 716. A direction to accumulate the income was not an expression of a contrary intention (Re Thatcher's Trusts (1884) 26 ChD 426); nor was a maintenance clause ceasing on marriage (Re Cooper, Cooper v Cooper [1913] 1 Ch 350). A gift of residue which would include the income might be a sufficient contrary intention (Re Dickson, Hill v Grant (1885) 29 ChD 331 at 339, CA, per Fry LJ; Re Wells, Wells v Wells (1889) 43 ChD 281; Re Humphreys, Humphreys v Levett [1893] 3 Ch 1, CA); so might a direction that income is not to be applied for maintenance while the child is in his father's custody (Re Borwick's Settlement, Woodman v Borwick, Re Woodman [1916] 2 Ch 304).

<sup>6</sup> This includes an executor where a testator has made a bequest to a child absolutely (Re Smith, Henderson-Roe v Hitchins (1889) 42 ChD 302), and an administrator with the will annexed (Re Adams, Verrier v Haskins (1906) 51 Sol Jo 113). ## 62. Application of income where settlement is in operation before 1926.

Where the statutory powers of maintenance arise<sup>1</sup>, the trustees may at their discretion<sup>2</sup> pay to the child's parent or guardian, if any, or otherwise apply for or towards his maintenance, education or benefit, all or any part of the income of the property, whether or not there is any other fund applicable to that purpose, or any person bound by law to provide for his maintenance or education<sup>3</sup>. The residue of the income must be invested and accumulated in securities sanctioned by the settlement, if any, or authorised by law for the investment of trust money; and the accumulations must be held as an accretion to the capital for the benefit of the person who ultimately becomes entitled to the property from which they arise<sup>4</sup>. The trustees may at any time, if they think fit, apply all or any of the accumulations as if they were income arising in the then current year<sup>5</sup>.

The statutory powers of maintenance vary according to whether the instrument creating the settlement came into operation before 1 January 1926 or on or after that date<sup>1</sup>. The following statutory provisions<sup>2</sup> for maintenance and accumulation apply where the instrument under which the beneficiary's interest arises came into operation on or after 1 January 1926<sup>3</sup>.

Subject to any contrary intention expressed in the trust instrument<sup>4</sup>, where any property<sup>5</sup> is held by trustees (including personal representatives)<sup>6</sup> in trust for any person for any interest whatsoever, whether vested or contingent<sup>7</sup>, then, subject to any prior interests or charges affecting that property (1) during the minority of any such person, if his interest so long continues, the trustees may, at their sole discretion<sup>8</sup>, pay to his parent or guardian, if any, or otherwise apply for or towards his maintenance, education or benefit, the whole or such part, if any, of the income of that property as may, in all the circumstances, be reasonable, whether or not there is any other fund applicable to the same purpose or any person bound by law to provide for his maintenance or education<sup>9</sup>; and (2) if that person on attaining the age of 18 years<sup>10</sup> has not a vested interest in the income, the trustees must thenceforth pay the income of that property and of any accretion thereto<sup>11</sup> to him, until he either attains a vested interest in it or dies or until failure of his interest<sup>12</sup>.

<sup>5</sup> The Trustee Act 1925 s 31 (as amended) applies to a vested annuity in like manner as if the annuity were the income of property held by trustees in trust to pay the income of it to the annuitant for the period for which the annuity is payable, but in any case accumulations (see s 31(2) (as amended)); and para 65 post) made during the annuitant's minority are to be held in trust for him or his personal representatives absolutely: s 31(4).

<sup>6</sup> See ibid ss 68(17), 69 (as amended); and TRUSTS vol 48 (2007 Reissue) para 603. The statutory provisions as to maintenance and accumulation are expressly made applicable where the residuary estate of an intestate or any part of it is held upon the statutory trusts for the issue of the intestate: see the Administration of Estates Act 1925 s 47(1)(ii) (as amended); and EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS vol 17(2) (Reissue) paras 605, 608. Trustees appointed on an intestacy under s 42 (see EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS vol 17(2) (Reissue) para 496), and who hold property on trust for beneficiaries who are to be ascertained according to the provisions of some foreign law, possess the statutory powers of maintenance: Re Kehr, Martin v Foges [1952] Ch 26, [1951] 2 All

12 Ibid s 31(1)(ii) (amended by the Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 1(3), Sch 1 Pt I). This power does not depend upon the person's being under full age when the instrument takes effect: Re Turner's Will Trusts, District Bank Ltd v Turner [1937] Ch 15, [1936] 2 All ER 1435, CA.

As from 1 January 1970, a person attains full age on attaining the age of 18 (see para 1 ante), but this does not affect the Trustee Act 1925 s 31 (as amended) in its application to any interest under an instrument made before that date, or in its application, by virtue of the Administration of Estates Act 1925 s 47(1)(ii) (as amended), to the estate of an intestate dying before that date: Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 1(4), Sch 3 para 5(1). In any case in which trustees have power under the Trustee Act 1925 s 31(1)(i) (see the text to note 9 supra) to pay income to the parent or guardian of any person who has attained the age of 18, or to apply it for or towards the maintenance, education or benefit of any such person, they also have power to pay it to that person himself: Family Law Reform Act 1969 Sch 3 para 5(2).

64. Exercise of trustees' discretion.

In deciding whether the whole or any part of the income arising under an instrument which came into operation on or after 1 January 1926 is during a minority to be paid or applied for the statutory purposes<sup>1</sup>, the trustees must have regard to the child's age and requirements and generally to the circumstances of the case, and in particular to what other income, if any, is applicable for those purposes<sup>2</sup>. Where trustees have notice that the income of more than one fund is applicable for the statutory purposes, then, so far as practicable, unless the entire income of the funds is so paid or applied or the court otherwise directs, a proportionate part only of the income of each fund is to be so paid or applied<sup>3</sup>.

1    le the purposes specified in the Trustee Act 1925 s 31(1) (as amended): see para 63 ante.

2    Ibid s 31(1) proviso.

3    Ibid s 31(1) proviso. Where the instrument came into operation before 1926, if there were two funds, the court applied for maintenance the income of the one which it was more advantageous to the child to have so applied: Re Weaver (1882) 21 ChD 615, CA; Re Wells, Wells v Wells (1889) 43 ChD 281 at 286-287 per North J; and see Foljambe v Willoughby (1824) 2 Sim & St 165; Lucas v King (1863) 11 WR 818; Martin v Martin (1866) LR 1 Eq 369; Re Burton's Will, Banks v Heaven [1892] 2 Ch 38; Smith v Cock [1911] AC 317, PC. Maintenance would be ordered out of the income of a fund in which the child had a defeasible or limited interest rather than out of property to which he was absolutely entitled (Ravenhill v Dansey (1723) 2 P Wms 179; Bruin v Knott (1845) 1 Ph 572; Lygon v Lord Coventry (1845) 14 Sim 41; Methold v Turner (1851) 4 De G & Sm 249; Furley v Hyder (1872) 41 LJCh 583), except where the income of one fund was expressly directed to be only applied for his maintenance so far as actually necessary (Rawlins v Goldfrap (1800) 5 Ves 440). Cf Gisborne v Gisborne (1877) 2 App Cas 300, HL (where the trustees had an 'uncontrollable discretion'). Where maintenance was directed to be supplied from one fund and permitted to be taken from another, the first fund had to be exhausted before the second could be drawn on: Re Wakley, Wakley v Vachell [1920] 2 Ch 205, CA. ## 65. Accumulation.

Subject to any contrary intention<sup>1</sup> expressed in a trust instrument which came into operation on or after 1 January 1926, during the minority of any person, if his interest so long continues, the trustees must accumulate all the residue of the income in the way of compound interest by investing it and the resulting income from time to time in authorised investments<sup>2</sup> and hold those accumulations as follows<sup>3</sup>:

- 3 (1) if any such person attains the age of 18 years<sup>4</sup>, or marries or forms a civil partnership under that age, and his interest in the income during his minority or until his marriage or civil partnership is a vested interest<sup>5</sup>, or if any person on attaining the age of 18 years, or on marriage or formation of a civil partnership under that age, becomes entitled to the property from which the income arose in fee simple, absolute or determinable, or absolutely<sup>6</sup>, or for an entailed interest<sup>7</sup>, the trustees must hold the accumulations in trust for him absolutely, but without prejudice to any provision with respect thereto contained in any settlement by him made under any statutory powers during his minority<sup>8</sup>; and his receipts after marriage or formation of a civil partnership, even though he is still a child<sup>9</sup>, are to be a good discharge<sup>10</sup>;
- 4 (2) in any other case, notwithstanding that that person has a vested interest in the income, the trustees must hold the accumulations as an accretion to the capital of the property from which the accumulations arose and as one fund with such capital for all purposes<sup>11</sup>; and if the property is settled land, the accumulations must be held upon the same trusts as if they were capital money arising from it<sup>12</sup>.

During his minority, the child's interest in the surplus income so accumulated is only a contingent interest upon his attaining full age or marrying or forming a civil partnership under that age<sup>13</sup>. At any time during his minority, if his interest so long continues, the trustees may apply those accumulations, or any part of them, as if they were income arising in the then current year<sup>14</sup>.

<sup>2</sup> 'Authorised investments' means investments authorised by the instrument, if any, creating the trust for the investment of money subject to the trust, or by law: Trustee Act 1925 s 68(1). See further the Trustee Investments Act 1961; and TRUSTS vol 48 (2007 Reissue) para 1017 et seq.

<sup>3</sup> Trustee Act 1925 s 31(2), (5) (s 31(2) amended by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 261(1), Sch 27 para 5). Accumulations of a vested annuity made during the annuitant's minority must be held in trust for him or his personal representatives absolutely in every case: Trustee Act 1925 s 31(4).

<sup>4</sup> As from 1 January 1970, a person attains full age at 18: see para 1 ante. As to the application of these provisions in the case of instruments made, or trusts arising on a death, before that date see para 63 note 12 ante.

<sup>5</sup> If the income which may be received by a child arises from the exercise of the trustees' discretion, the child has no vested interest in it; he takes merely as an object of the discretionary trust, and the Trustee Act 1925 s 31 (as amended) does not apply: Re Baron Vestey's Settlement, Lloyds Bank Ltd v O'Meara [1951] Ch

209, [1950] 2 All ER 891, CA. There is a distinction between an interest which subsists as a vested interest liable to be divested and a contingent interest: Re Mallinson Consolidated Trusts, Mallinson v Gooley [1974] 2 All ER 530, [1974] 1 WLR 1120 (daughter's interest was contingent; income accumulated during her minority to be added to capital to which she was not entitled).

6 In relation to personalty, 'absolutely' here denotes an interest which is not merely a vested interest in the entire capital and income of the property but is so vested free from any power or condition which might in the future defeat it; it is impossible to construe 'absolute' in relation to personalty as meaning 'absolute or determinable': Re Sharp's Settlement Trusts, Ibbotson v Bliss [1973] Ch 331, [1972] 3 All ER 151; Re Delamere's Settlement Trusts, Kenny v Cunningham-Reid [1984] 1 All ER 584, [1984] 1 WLR 813, CA.

As to the application of accumulations for past maintenance see para 62 note 2 ante; and see also Re Cooper, Cooper v Cooper [1913] 1 Ch 350 (receipt of income delayed). Where the children for whom maintenance is to be provided constitute a fluctuating class, the shares of income and accumulations must be provisionally assigned; if a child attains a vested interest, he will take his share and its accumulations, but if he dies without attaining a vested interest, or if another member of the class comes into existence, the shares must be reassigned as at that date: Re King, Public Trustee v Aldridge [1928] Ch 330 (not followed in Re Joel's Will Trusts, Rogerson v Brudenell-Bruce [1967] Ch 14, [1966] 2 All ER 482, where it was held that accumulations of income belonging contingently to a grandchild dying before attaining a vested interest should thereafter be dealt with as part of the entire capital of the trust fund).

CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(2) CAPACITY OF CHILDREN IN CONTRACT, TORT, CRIME AND PROPERTY/(iv) Property/B. MANAGEMENT, MAINTENANCE AND ADVANCEMENT/(B) Maintenance/66. Contingent interests.

66. Contingent interests.

In the case of a contingent interest, the statutory powers to apply income for maintenance and to accumulate surplus income<sup>1</sup> are exercisable only if the limitation or trust carries the intermediate income of the property<sup>2</sup>. Those powers are, however, exercisable in the case of a future or contingent legacy by the parent of, or a person standing in loco parentis<sup>3</sup> to, the legatee, if and for such period as, under the general law, the legacy carries interest for the maintenance of the legatee, in which case the rate of interest, if the income available is sufficient, and subject to any rules of court to the contrary, is £5 per cent per annum<sup>4</sup>.

1 As to these powers see paras 63-65 ante.

2 Trustee Act 1925 s 31(3). The income must follow the capital of the fund, and the same person must under the terms of the trust be entitled to it; the provision does not apply if there is a possibility of complete severance between income and capital (Re Bourne's Settlement Trusts, Bourne v Mackay [1946] 1 All ER 411, CA), nor when the interest in the capital fund is contingent and the right to income arises on the exercise of the trustees' discretion (Re Baron Vestey's Settlement, Lloyds Bank Ltd v O'Meara [1951] Ch 209, [1950] 2 All ER 891, CA). Where there is a specific direction to accumulate the surplus income, the trust does not carry the intermediate income: Re Reade-Revell, Crellin v Melling [1930] 1 Ch 52; Re Stapleton, Stapleton v Stapleton [1946] 1 All ER 323 (distinguishing Re Leng, Dodsworth v Leng [1938] Ch 821, [1938] 3 All ER 181).

Court's powers as to maintenance out of income.

68. Court's powers as to maintenance out of income.

With respect to the income of property belonging to or held in trust for a child, the Chancery Division of the High Court or a county court has jurisdiction to take care of it and apply it for his maintenance or otherwise for his benefit, and accumulate any surplus not required to be so applied<sup>1</sup>. Where, however, the property is vested in trustees upon whom a power has been expressly conferred (which would include a power conferred by statute) of applying at their discretion all or any part of the income for the child's maintenance, education or benefit, the court will not override or interfere with that discretion if the trustees actually exercise it<sup>2</sup> and are not manifestly doing so in a manner prejudicial to the child's interests<sup>3</sup>.

Maintenance will be ordered out of income directed to be accumulated where there appears to be a paramount intention that the child should be suitably maintained<sup>4</sup>.

In exceptional cases<sup>5</sup>, where the income is insufficient, the court has directed maintenance for a child or some other outlay for his benefit to be provided out of the corpus of his personal property<sup>6</sup>, and even, where necessary, by a charge on his real property<sup>7</sup>.

Where necessary, maintenance may be ordered out of capital or income in which the child has only a reversionary or a contingent interest<sup>1</sup>. If the interest is taken under a will, the testator's creditors will be safeguarded<sup>2</sup>; and where recourse is had to income or capital to which the child is not absolutely entitled in possession, its recoupment, in the interest of parties who are prejudiced by the transaction, will be secured by a policy of assurance on the child's life<sup>3</sup>, or by a charge on any interest in remainder which he may have in the property<sup>4</sup>.

CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(2) CAPACITY OF CHILDREN IN CONTRACT, TORT, CRIME AND PROPERTY/(iv) Property/B. MANAGEMENT, MAINTENANCE AND ADVANCEMENT/(B) Maintenance/70. Court's former practice.

70. Court's former practice.

Cases may still occur where the express or implied powers are inapplicable or inadequate and it is necessary to seek the court's assistance. In such cases, regard should be had to the court's former practice under which it would not relieve the father of his legal duty to maintain his children<sup>1</sup> by directing maintenance out of their property<sup>2</sup> unless he was not in a position to maintain them in a manner suitable to their expectant fortunes<sup>3</sup>.

Where maintenance was allowed, the amount depended upon the child's age, position and fortune<sup>4</sup>. The court took into consideration the pecuniary position of the child's father<sup>5</sup> or mother<sup>6</sup>, and also the interests of his brothers or sisters who were otherwise insufficiently provided for and might benefit by the allowance<sup>7</sup>. It would allow a larger sum than actually required for his maintenance<sup>8</sup>, and, if his interests so required, a further amount would be directed, notwithstanding that maintenance had been expressly provided for him under a settlement or will<sup>9</sup>.

On the same principles which regulate directions for future maintenance, the court directed the recoupment of sums advanced for the past maintenance of the child by his father<sup>10</sup>, or mother<sup>11</sup>, or other relatives<sup>12</sup>, or by executors or trustees<sup>13</sup>, or by a stranger<sup>14</sup>, except where the advances were regarded as having been made by way of gift<sup>15</sup>, or where the money had been expended before the statutory power was applicable<sup>16</sup>.

71. Vesting orders.

Where a child is beneficially entitled to any property, then, with a view to the application of the capital or income for the child's maintenance, education or benefit<sup>1</sup>, the court may make an order appointing a person to convey that property, or, in the case of stock or a thing in action, vesting in any person the right to transfer or call for a transfer of the stock or to receive the dividends or income or to sue for and recover the thing in action upon such terms as the court may think fit<sup>2</sup>.

CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(2) CAPACITY OF CHILDREN IN CONTRACT, TORT, CRIME AND PROPERTY/(iv) Property/B. MANAGEMENT, MAINTENANCE AND ADVANCEMENT/(C) Advancement/73. Advancement out of capital by trustees or the court.

(C) ADVANCEMENT

73. Advancement out of capital by trustees or the court.

An advancement for preferring a child beneficiary in life, or otherwise for a special benefit to him, as distinct from ordinary maintenance and education<sup>1</sup>, may generally be made by a trustee in suitable cases out of the capital of the personal estate in which the child has a vested or presumptive or contingent interest, where this is authorised by the terms of the trust<sup>2</sup>, and by the Chancery Division of the High Court out of capital in which the child has an absolute interest<sup>3</sup>, or, with the consent of the other persons interested, out of capital in which he has less than an absolute interest<sup>4</sup>.

The court, however, has no power to charge a child's real estate for the purpose of his advancement<sup>5</sup>, or to dispense with the consent of a particular person where that consent is required under the terms of the settlement governing the property<sup>6</sup>. The mere conferring of 'a power of advancement' upon trustees, without specifying the property out of which the advancement is to be made, does not authorise it to be made out of capital to which the child would otherwise have no right<sup>7</sup>.

74. Extent of power.

The word 'advancement' is properly appropriate to an early period of life<sup>1</sup>, but a power of advancement is often so worded as to include any other benefit<sup>2</sup>, and its operation is sometimes expressly extended beyond minority<sup>3</sup>. Such an extension must, however, be expressly authorised<sup>4</sup>. If a trustee without express authority makes an advance, for a proper purpose, out of capital to which the child is absolutely entitled, the advancement will be sanctioned<sup>5</sup>. If the child is entitled to the capital contingently on his attaining full age, the advancement will be allowed if the child attains full age<sup>6</sup>, but if he dies during minority the trustee will be liable to account for the advance to the person who thereupon becomes entitled to the property<sup>7</sup>.

As to the statutory power of advancement see para 76 post.

4 Clarke v Hogg (1871) 19 WR 617. 7 Worthington v M'Craer (1856) 23 Beav 81 at 85-86 per Romilly MR. This would not apply to the exercise of the statutory powers where the possible defeasance of the interest of the advanced person is expressly contemplated.

CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(2) CAPACITY OF CHILDREN IN CONTRACT, TORT, CRIME AND PROPERTY/(iv) Property/B. MANAGEMENT, MAINTENANCE AND ADVANCEMENT/(C) Advancement/75. Purpose of advancement.

75. Purpose of advancement.

At all events where the enlarging word 'benefit' is not present in the power of advancement in the settlement, the advancement must not be merely to put money into the child's pocket<sup>1</sup>, but must be for a definite purpose to his advantage<sup>2</sup>. The advanced person is under a duty to carry out that purpose, and cannot properly apply the money advanced to another purpose<sup>3</sup>.

The advancement must be replaced if, through the default or negligence of the trustee making it, it is not applied to the intended purpose<sup>4</sup>, but not if, immediately after its having been so applied, the purpose fails owing to circumstances over which the trustee has no control<sup>5</sup>.

76. Statutory powers.

In the case of trusts constituted<sup>1</sup> or created on or after 1 January 1926, a statutory power of advancement is conferred on trustees<sup>2</sup>. Subject to certain limitations<sup>3</sup>, trustees may at any time or times pay or apply any capital money subject to a trust in such manner as they may, in their absolute discretion, think fit, for the advancement or benefit<sup>4</sup> of any person entitled to the capital of the trust property or any share of it, whether absolutely or contingently on his attaining any specified age or on the occurrence of any other event<sup>5</sup>, or subject to a gift over on his death under any specified age or on the occurrence of any other event, and whether in possession or in remainder or reversion, and that payment or application may be made notwithstanding that the interest of that person is liable to be defeated by the exercise of a power of appointment or revocation, or to be diminished by the increase of the class to which he belongs<sup>6</sup>. The advancement need not be for any specific purpose, but the trustees must be satisfied that it will benefit the recipient<sup>7</sup>.

1 A trust in a will is not constituted or created until the testator dies: Re Darby, Farrell v Fergus (1943) 59 TLR 418; Re Taylor's Will Trusts, Public Trustee v Burge [1950] WN 437. In the case of an appointment made under a special power, the relevant date is the date of the creation of the power (Re Batty, Public Trustee v Bell [1952] Ch 280, [1952] 1 All ER 425), but if made under a general power, the governing date is that of the exercise of the power (Re Bransbury's Will Trusts, Grece v Bransbury [1954] 1 All ER 605, [1954] 1 WLR 496).

2 See the Trustee Act 1925 s 32(1), (3); and TRUSTS vol 48 (2007 Reissue) para 1050. This power applies so far as a contrary intention is not expressed in the instrument creating the trust and has effect subject to the terms of the instrument: s 69(2). A protective life interest and the discretionary trust arising under it on forfeiture do not constitute a contrary intention for this purpose, where the will does not contain an express provision for advancement (Re Rees, Lloyds Bank Ltd v Rees [1954] Ch 202, sub nom Re Rees' Will Trusts, Lloyds Bank Ltd v Rees [1954] 1 All ER 7), but a trust for accumulation may show a contrary intention (IRC v Bernstein [1961] Ch 399, [1961] 1 All ER 320, CA; Re Evans' Settlement, Watkins v Whitworth-Jones [1967] 3 All ER 343, [1967] 1 WLR 1294, where a contrary intention was implied from the express power in the settlement).

3 As to the limitations see note 2 supra; and para 77 post. As to the property to which these provisions apply see para 78 post.

4 This includes the application of capital money for educational purposes (Re Harris' Settlement, Dent v Harris (1940) 162 LT 358), the setting aside of money to accumulate for the child's eventual benefit (Re Baron Vestey's Settlement, Lloyds Bank Ltd v O'Meara [1951] Ch 209, [1950] 2 All ER 891, CA), the transfer of money to trustees of a settlement to be made for the child's benefit (Re Ropner's Settlement Trusts, Ropner v Ropner [1956] 3 All ER 332n, [1956] 1 WLR 902), and a resettlement (Pilkington v IRC [1964] AC 612, [1962] 3 All ER 622, HL). There is nothing in the language of the Trustee Act 1925 s 32 (as amended) which in terms or by implication restricts the width of the manner or purpose of advancement; in particular, if the whole provision made for the object of the power is for his benefit, it is no objection to the exercise of the power that other persons benefit incidentally as a result of the exercise, nor is it bad merely because the money is to be tied up in a proposed settlement: see Pilkington v IRC supra at 636 and 628 per Viscount Radcliffe.

5 Although the word 'event' is used in the singular, it may include a compound event, eg the attainment of a specified age and the surviving of the tenant for life: Re Garrett, Croft v Ruck [1934] Ch 477.

77. Limitations on the statutory power of advancement.

The statutory power of advancement<sup>1</sup> is subject to the following limitations: (1) the money paid or applied for the advancement or benefit of any person must not exceed altogether in amount one-half of the presumptive or vested share or interest of that person in the trust property<sup>2</sup>; (2) if the person advanced is or becomes absolutely and indefeasibly entitled to a share in the trust property, the money so paid or applied must be brought into account as part of that share<sup>3</sup>; and (3) no payment or application may be made so as to prejudice any person entitled to any prior life<sup>4</sup> or other interest<sup>5</sup>, whether vested or contingent, in the money paid or applied unless that person is in existence and of full age, and consents in writing to the payment or application<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to the statutory power of advancement see para 76 ante.

2 Trustee Act 1925 s 32(1) proviso (a). As to the trust property to which s 32 (as amended) applies see para 78 post. The person in whose favour the power of advancement is exercised must be absolutely or contingently entitled to the capital, and a person entitled to a life interest only would not be within this power (Re Winch's Settlement, Winch v Winch [1917] 1 Ch 633), though a settlement might expressly authorise the advancement of a life tenant (Lowther v Bentinck (1874) LR 19 Eq 166; Re Brittlebank, Coates v Brittlebank (1881) 30 WR 99). Where two trustees differed as to the exercise of a power of advancement, the court gave directions for its exercise: Klug v Klug [1918] 2 Ch 67.

4 In the case of a protected life interest arising under a will made before 1 January 1926 but coming into operation on or after that date, consent to the exercise of this power may give rise to a forfeiture: Re Stimpson's Trusts, Stimpson v Stimpson [1931] 2 Ch 77, as explained and distinguished in Re Rees, Lloyds Bank Ltd v Rees [1954] Ch 202, sub nom Re Rees' Will Trusts, Lloyds Bank Ltd v Rees [1954] 1 All ER 7. 5 The objects of a discretionary trust are not persons entitled to any prior life or other interest, whose consent is necessary: Re Beckett's Settlement, Re Beckett, Eden v Von Stutterheim [1940] Ch 279. Similarly, there is no need to have the consent of persons who would be interested under the discretionary trusts that may arise out of protective trusts under the Trustee Act 1925 s 33 (as amended) (see SETTLEMENTS vol 42 (Reissue) para 917): Re Harris' Settlement, Dent v Harris (1940) 162 LT 358.

Property to which the statutory power applies.

78. Property to which the statutory power applies.

The statutory power of advancement<sup>1</sup> does not apply to capital money arising under the Settled Land Act 1925<sup>2</sup>. Where, however, trustees wish to transfer property to a beneficiary by way of advancement, they may do so directly instead of advancing cash to enable him to buy the property from them<sup>3</sup>.

Variation of statutory power.

79. Variation of statutory power.

An express power of advancement should be given if it is desired to vary the statutory power<sup>1</sup>, or if the settlement is not to be governed by English law<sup>2</sup>. If the power is to advance a remainderman, its exercise is usually made dependent on obtaining the consent of the tenant for life<sup>3</sup>.

1 As to the statutory power of advancement see para 76 ante.

2 See para 58 ante. See also Re Evans' Settlement, Watkins v Whitworth-Jones [1967] 3 All ER 343, [1967] 1 WLR 1294.

3 A tenant for life who has assigned his life interest or become bankrupt cannot consent (Noel v Lord Henley, ex p Schwench and Mann (1825) M'Cle & Yo 302, Ex Ch; Nottidge v Green (1875) 33 LT 220; Oliver v Lowther (1880) 28 WR 381), except with the sanction of his assignee or trustee in bankruptcy (Re Cooper, Cooper v Slight (1884) 27 ChD 565). The committee of a tenant for life of unsound mind was authorised to consent on his behalf in Re Nevill (1885) 31 ChD 161, CA. Where the consent of a particular person is required, the court cannot dispense with it: Re Forster's Settlement, Forster v Custodian of Enemy Property for England [1942] Ch 199, [1942] 1 All ER 180.

80. Effect of advancement.

An advancement has a definite meaning distinct from an appointment; it means that a certain portion of the fund is actually taken out of the settlement altogether and paid to the object of the power<sup>1</sup>. An advancement in this sense, therefore, does not fall within the operation of the ordinary hotchpot clause which only relates to appointed shares<sup>2</sup>. The exercise of a power of appointment does not take the appointed share out of the provisions of the original settlement so as to defeat an advancement clause contained in it<sup>3</sup>.

1 Re Gosset's Settlement (1854) 19 Beav 529; Re Fox, Wodehouse v Fox [1904] 1 Ch 480. This is not the only meaning of 'advancement' in law; besides a gift for establishing a child in life, the word denotes also a gift in anticipation of an interest under a will or intestacy: see Re Hayward, Kerrod v Hayward [1957] Ch 528 at 540, [1957] 2 All ER 474 at 480, CA, per Jenkins LJ. ### C. SETTLEMENTS AND TRUSTS

81. Children's disability to be trustees or executors.

The appointment of a child to be a trustee in relation to any settlement or trust is void, but without prejudice to the power to appoint a new trustee to fill the vacancy<sup>1</sup>.

Where a child is appointed executor, the appointment does not operate to vest in him the testator's estate or any part thereof, or to constitute the child a personal representative for any purpose unless and until probate is granted to him in accordance with probate rules<sup>2</sup>. An executor under the age of 18 cannot obtain probate until he reaches that age<sup>3</sup>.

82. Child's settlement voidable at common law.

A settlement of, or covenant to settle, real or personal estate made or entered into by a child whether on marriage or not is voidable at common law<sup>1</sup>, and no validity is given to it by the consent of the parent or guardian, or by the intervention of the court<sup>2</sup>. If it is confirmed by the child after attaining full age either by deed or by conduct<sup>3</sup>, or is not repudiated by him within a reasonable time after attaining full age, it is binding<sup>4</sup>. In the case of reversionary property, time runs from the date when the child attains full age, and not from the date when the property falls into possession<sup>5</sup>.

84. Child not compellable to execute settlement.

A child cannot be compelled to execute a settlement of property on marriage<sup>1</sup>. At one time, however, if an adult married a child ward of court, the court might impose terms that a settlement be made by the adult<sup>2</sup>, but this power is no longer exercised in practice.

Former law relating to settlements with the sanction of the court.

85. Former law relating to settlements with the sanction of the court.

Before 1970<sup>1</sup>, a male child above the age of 20 years, and a female child above the age of 17 years, might, upon or in contemplation of marriage, with the sanction of the Chancery Division of the High Court, make a valid settlement, or contract for a settlement, of all or any property, real or personal, whether in possession, reversion, remainder or expectancy<sup>2</sup>, to or over which the child was entitled or had any power of appointment<sup>3</sup>, not being a power expressly declared to be incapable of being exercised during infancy<sup>4</sup>; and all conveyances, appointments of property, and contracts to make a conveyance or appointment, executed by the child with the approbation of the court in order to give effect to the settlement, were as valid as if the child had been of full age<sup>5</sup>. Where, however, the child was tenant in tail, an appointment under a power of appointment, or a disentailing assurance executed by him, was void if he died under age<sup>6</sup>.

1 The Infant Settlements Act 1855 was repealed by the Family Law Reform Act 1969 except in relation to anything done before 1 January 1970: see s 11(a). As from that date a person attains full age at 18: see para 1 ante.

2 This included a legacy bequeathed after marriage: Re Johnson, Moore v Johnson [1891] 3 Ch 48.

3 This enabled an absolute appointment to be made in favour of the child which would take effect on failure of the limitations in the settlement: Re Scott, Scott v Hanbury [1891] 1 Ch 298.

4 Infant Settlements Act 1855 s 1 (repealed: see note 1 supra).

5 Ibid s 1 (repealed: see note 1 supra). The Act only removed the disability of infancy so far as the making of the settlement was concerned, and did not remove any disability attaching to coverture (Seaton v Seaton (1888) 13 App Cas 61, HL), nor the disability of infancy in respect of any subsequent act of the child, eg execution of a power, under the provisions of the settlement (Re Armit's Trusts (1871) 5 IR Eq 352 at 360 per Sullivan MR). As to the exercise of powers by children see para 52 ante. The powers conferred by the Infant Settlements Act 1855 were not affected by the Settled Land Act 1925, provided that a legal estate in land was not vested in a child: see s 27(3) (repealed).

6 Infant Settlements Act 1855 s 2 (repealed: see note 1 supra); Re Scott, Scott v Hanbury [1891] 1 Ch 298 at 302-303 per North J. See also REAL PROPERTY vol 39(2) (Reissue) para 117 et seq.

86. Appointment of agent or attorney.

A child cannot appoint an agent to make a disposition of his property so as to bind him irrevocably<sup>1</sup>, nor give a valid power of attorney<sup>2</sup>, but whenever a child can lawfully do an act on his own behalf so as to bind himself he may instead appoint an agent to do it for him<sup>3</sup>. Thus he could appoint an agent to make an admission on his behalf in affiliation proceedings<sup>4</sup>. Where the appointment of an agent or attorney is void, any act done by him by virtue of the appointment is also void<sup>5</sup>.

87. Child agent.

A child may act as agent and may be the donee of a power of attorney<sup>1</sup>. He can bind his principal to the same extent as an agent or attorney of full age<sup>2</sup>, but he is not liable to account to his principal, nor is he liable to third parties for his dealings with them, in circumstances where an adult agent would have been personally liable to them<sup>3</sup>, except in cases of tort<sup>4</sup>. Children have no implied or presumed authority, as such, to pledge the credit of their parents, even for necessities<sup>5</sup>.

88. Child partner.

A child may be a partner in trade or business<sup>1</sup>, but he incurs no liability for the firm's debts or for his co-partners' acts<sup>2</sup>. The partnership assets are, however, applicable in payment of the liabilities of the partnership in priority to the child's share<sup>3</sup>.

89. Repudiation or dissolution of partnership.

On attaining full age, a child partner may repudiate and dissolve the partnership, but if he neglects to do so within a reasonable time he will incur full liability as a partner<sup>1</sup>. On repudiation he cannot recover money which he has paid as a premium on entering the partnership unless there has been a total failure of consideration<sup>2</sup>. On dissolution of the partnership, the minority of one partner will not prevent a sale of the partnership concern and assets<sup>3</sup>.

A child may be a member of a company regulated by the Companies Act 1985<sup>1</sup>. He may, however, repudiate his membership either during minority or when he comes of age, but he may not recover money paid by him for shares unless there has been a total failure of consideration<sup>2</sup>.

91. Membership of corporations.

A child's capacity to be a member of a corporation depends upon whether the charter or statute under which the corporation is constituted permits children to be members of it, whether expressly or by implication<sup>1</sup>. Where the charter or statute contains no express provision on the subject, a child's capacity to be a member depends upon whether the charter or statute contemplates the exercise by the members of functions which may or may not be discharged by persons of tender age<sup>1</sup>.

(3) LEGAL PARENTAGE

(i) Introduction

93. Historical background.

The traditional assumption of the law has been that a child's parents are those who provided the genetic material, that is to say the egg and sperm (or gametes) which resulted in the child's conception and birth. This assumption underlies the provisions of the Family Law Reform Act 1969 which permit the court, in any civil proceedings in which the parentage of a person is in issue, to direct the taking of samples from the child, the mother and the alleged father (or from any of those parties), for the purpose of determining whether the party alleged to be the father is excluded from being the father<sup>1</sup>. Motherhood has been said to be a biological fact which could be proved demonstrably by parturition<sup>2</sup>. Developing practices of human assisted reproduction, however, have put this assumption into doubt<sup>3</sup>, necessitating the enactment of statutory provisions for the determination of parentage<sup>4</sup>.

A. PRESUMPTION OF LEGITIMACY

94. The common law presumption of legitimacy.

At common law it is presumed<sup>1</sup> that a child born to a married woman during the subsistence of her marriage is also the child of her husband<sup>2</sup>. The presumption of legitimacy applies even if the child must have been conceived before the marriage<sup>3</sup>, or where the child is born within the possible period of gestation<sup>4</sup> after the husband's death<sup>5</sup> or a final decree of divorce<sup>6</sup>. In every case the husband and wife must have had the opportunity of access<sup>7</sup> to each other during the period in which the child could be conceived and born in the course of nature<sup>8</sup>, and the husband must not be proved to be impotent<sup>9</sup>. The presumption, however, is not a presumption juris et de jure, which cannot be rebutted<sup>10</sup>, but a presumption only<sup>11</sup>, which may be rebutted by evidence of circumstances proving the contrary<sup>12</sup>.

The presumption of legitimacy does not apply where the spouses are living apart under a decree of judicial separation<sup>13</sup>, but it has been held to apply in other circumstances notwithstanding, for example, the fact that the parties were living apart under a separation deed or agreement<sup>14</sup>. The presumption exists even where, from the date of the child's birth, it is clear that the child must have been conceived out of wedlock (as where it is born the day after the marriage<sup>15</sup>), for the act of marriage is a recognition by the husband of the child as his own<sup>16</sup>. The presumption, though not so strong as it would be if the child were conceived after the marriage, is not met merely by proving that someone else had intercourse with the woman<sup>17</sup>.

The presumption of legitimacy is not affected where the mother, living apart from her husband, is maintained by him under an order of a magistrates' court which contains no provision that the parties be no longer bound to cohabit with one another<sup>18</sup>. Where the parties are living apart by agreement, whether by deed, writing under hand, oral agreement or agreement implied by conduct, the presumption is that the child is legitimate<sup>19</sup>. The presumption is reversed, however, if the parties are separated under an order of the court, such as a decree of judicial separation, which ends the duty of the spouses to live together<sup>20</sup>.

1 In practice the availability of scientific testing (see paras 113-119 post) has much reduced the need to rely on the presumption, but it may still be important in some cases, eg where no acceptable blood samples are obtainable: see W v K (proof of paternity) [1988] 1 FLR 86 (mother having sexual intercourse with both her husband and one other man; blood tests indicated 'paternity index' for this man being the father to be 97.4%, and evidence that husband was infertile; it was held that the presumption was rebutted and the third party was the child's father); but cf T (H) v T (E) [1971] 1 All ER 590, sub nom T (HH) v T (E) [1971] 1 WLR 429 (husband denied that he was the father; blood tests did not exclude the possibility of his paternity, and they also indicated that one in nine or ten West European males could be the father; it was held that the presumption was not rebutted). See also Re F (a minor) (blood tests: parental rights) [1993] Fam 314, [1993] 3 All ER 596, CA, where the court would not order blood tests to establish the paternity of a child whose mother had had intercourse with her husband and another man, since the child had been brought up as a child of the family and it would not be in her best interests to jeopardise the presumption of legitimacy.

2 Re G (a minor) (child abuse: evidence) [1988] 1 FLR 314 at 319 per Sheldon J. For this purpose a marriage will be regarded as subsisting notwithstanding its dissolution by a decree of a foreign court if the English courts do not regard that decree as valid: see Shaw v Gould (1868) LR 3 HL 55. As to recognition of foreign decrees by English courts see Indyka v Indyka [1969] 1 AC 33, [1967] 2 All ER 689, HL; Messina v Smith [1971] P 322, [1971] 2 All ER 1046; and CONFLICT OF LAWS vol 8(3) (Reissue) paras 260, 263.

Although legitimacy as such is now of less significance than was formerly the case, it is apparent that the presumption set out in the text necessarily embodies a presumption of parentage: if a child is the legitimate child of A and B, A and B must logically be the child's parents.

8 Hargrave v Hargrave (1846) 9 Beav 552. The period of which judicial notice will be taken as being the normal period of gestation is 270-280 days: Bosville v A-G (1887) 12 PD 177 at 183 per Butt J; Burnaby v Baillie (1889) 42 ChD 282 at 296 per North J; Preston-Jones v Preston-Jones [1951] AC 391 at 401, [1951] 1 All ER 124 at 127, HL, per Lord Simonds, at 410 and 134 per Lord Oaksey, and at 419 and 139-140 per Lord MacDermott. The following periods between coitus and birth have been held possible periods of gestation: 174 days (Clark v Clark [1939] P 228, [1939] 2 All ER 59); 306 days (Jamieson v Dobie 1935 SC 415, Ct of Sess); 307 days (Bowden v Bowden (1917) 62 Sol Jo 105); 331 days (Gaskill v Gaskill [1921] P 425); 346 days (Wood v Wood [1947] P 103, [1947] 2 All ER 95); 349 days (Hadlum v Hadlum [1949] P 197, [1948] 2 All ER 412, CA). In the following cases the alleged period of gestation was not accepted by the court and the presumption of legitimacy was held to be displaced: Re S B (an infant), B v B [1949] Ch 108 (188 days); M-T v M-T and Official Solicitor [1949] P 331 (340 days); Preston-Jones v Preston-Jones supra (where the House of Lords by a majority held that they were not entitled to assume judicial knowledge that 360 days was impossible, but that on the evidence the husband had discharged the onus then applicable of proving beyond reasonable doubt that the child was illegitimate). The standard of proof required to rebut the presumption of legitimacy has been lowered (see para 95 post) and it seems likely that the court will now be less ready to accept as possible periods of gestation periods which differ substantially from what is normal.

95. Rebutting the presumption of legitimacy: standard of proof.

Any presumption of law as to the legitimacy or illegitimacy of any person<sup>1</sup> may in any civil proceedings be rebutted by evidence which shows that it is more probable than not that that person is illegitimate or legitimate, as the case may be, and it is not necessary to prove that fact beyond reasonable doubt in order to rebut the presumption<sup>2</sup>. Thus there is no longer a requirement<sup>3</sup> that, in order to rebut the presumption, it must be shown beyond reasonable doubt that the husband was not the father of the child; but the standard of proof may depend on the gravity of the particular issue to be resolved, and since parentage is a serious matter<sup>4</sup>, the standard of proof required to rebut the presumption which is implicit in the presumption of legitimacy is somewhat higher than a mere balance of probabilities<sup>5</sup>.

Contrast, however, the view expressed by Lord Reid in S v S, W v Official Solicitor [1972] AC 24 at 41, [1970] 3 All ER 107 at 109, HL, per Lord Reid, that the presumption of legitimacy merely determines the onus of proof, and any evidence against legitimacy would prevail in the absence of evidence to the contrary; the presumption has no weight in deciding the question of legitimacy unless the court is unable to decide the issue on the evidence; see further T (H) v T (E) [1971] 1 All ER 590, sub nom T (HH) v T (E) [1971] 1 WLR 429. CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(3) LEGAL PARENTAGE/(ii) Presumptions relating to Parentage/A. PRESUMPTION OF LEGITIMACY/96. Rebuttal of presumption by proof of non-access.

96. Rebuttal of presumption by proof of non-access.

The prima facie presumption of legitimacy<sup>1</sup>, which arises when a husband and wife have opportunities of access, may be rebutted by satisfactory evidence that such access did not take place between them as by the law of nature is necessary in order for the husband to be in fact the father of the child<sup>2</sup>. The non-existence of this access<sup>3</sup> is a physical fact which may be proved by means of such legal evidence as is admissible in every other case in which it is necessary to prove a physical fact<sup>4</sup>, but non-access is a fact to be proved by those denying the legitimacy<sup>5</sup>.

In the absence of evidence on one side or the other, sexual intercourse is presumed to have taken place between the husband and wife<sup>6</sup>, and the legitimacy of the child will be proved<sup>7</sup> unless there is evidence, such as evidence that the wife has committed adultery during the period of conception, which shows that it is more probable than not that the child is illegitimate<sup>8</sup>. The presumption of sexual intercourse continues until it is countered by such evidence as satisfies the court that, on a balance of probabilities<sup>9</sup>, such sexual intercourse did not take place at any time when by such intercourse the husband could, according to the laws of nature, be the father of the child<sup>10</sup>.

The fact that sexual intercourse between husband and wife took place at the period of conception only with the use of contraceptives will not normally be sufficient to discharge the burden of proof in the absence of other evidence, but that fact will be evidence which, in conjunction with other evidence, could discharge the burden, where, for example, it is proved that at the relevant time the wife committed adultery<sup>11</sup>. Such medical evidence as may be available on either side must not be ignored<sup>12</sup>.

CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(3) LEGAL PARENTAGE/(ii) Presumptions relating to Parentage/A. PRESUMPTION OF LEGITIMACY/97. Opportunity for intercourse not conclusive.

97. Opportunity for intercourse not conclusive.

In determining the question whether or not sexual intercourse at the relevant time did take place, it is not sufficient to show that opportunities for sexual intercourse existed, for opportunities of sexual intercourse are not conclusive evidence that it took place<sup>1</sup>, but the whole circumstances of the case must be considered<sup>2</sup>. When a husband and wife are shown to be sleeping together, there being no natural impediment, the evidence is irresistible that the intercourse took place<sup>3</sup> unless it is contradicted by evidence of the husband or wife that intercourse did not take place and that evidence is accepted on a balance of probabilities<sup>4</sup>, but the evidence is less strong when it is merely shown that they were living in the same town and had opportunities of meeting<sup>5</sup>, or even that they were in the same house or room<sup>6</sup>. In these circumstances a husband may in one sense be said to have access to his wife, and yet the facts may, instead of proving, tend to disprove that any sexual intercourse took place between them<sup>7</sup>.

<sup>3</sup> Morris v Davies (1837) 5 Cl & Fin 163, HL. Except where this factor exists, it is immaterial in determining the question of sexual intercourse whether the parties are living together or apart: see Banbury Peerage Case (1813), as reported in Nicolas, A Treatise on the Law of Adulterine Bastardy, with a Report of the Banbury Case, and of All Other Cases Bearing Upon the Subject (1836) 291 at 459 et seq (where the parties were living together, and yet the children were illegitimated); Morris v Davies supra; R v Mansfield Inhabitants (1841) 1 QB 444; Legge v Edmonds (1855) 25 LJCh 125.

<sup>5</sup> But where, though the parties may have met, the probabilities of the case are against the meeting, the burden of proof is on those who suggest that they did meet: Aylesford Peerage Case (1885) 11 App Cas 1 at 15, HL, per Lord Selborne.

B. PRESUMPTION FROM REGISTRATION

98. Registration and re-registration of birth of illegitimate child.

An entry in a register of births<sup>1</sup> and deaths<sup>2</sup> is prima facie evidence of all the facts required by statute to be entered in it<sup>3</sup>. In the case of a child whose father and mother<sup>4</sup> were not married to each other at the time of his birth<sup>5</sup>, no person may as father of the child be required to give information concerning the birth of the child, and the registrar<sup>6</sup> must not enter in the register the name of any person as father of the child except<sup>7</sup>:

- 5 (1) at the joint request of the mother and the person stating himself to be the father of the child (in which case that person must sign the register together with the mother)<sup>8</sup>; or
- 6 (2) at the request of the mother on production of a declaration in the prescribed form<sup>9</sup> made by her stating that that person is the father of the child, and a statutory declaration made by that person stating himself to be the father of the child<sup>10</sup>; or
- 7 (3) at the request of that person on production of a declaration in the prescribed form by him stating himself to be the father of the child, and a statutory declaration made by the mother that that person is the father of the child<sup>11</sup>; or
- 8 (4) at the request of the mother or that person on production of a copy of a parental responsibility agreement<sup>12</sup> made between them in relation to the child, and a declaration in the prescribed form by the person making the request stating that the agreement was made in compliance with the relevant statutory provision<sup>13</sup> and has not been brought to an end by an order of a court<sup>14</sup>; or
- 9 (5) at the request of the mother or that person on production of a certified copy of an order giving that person parental responsibility for the child<sup>15</sup>, and a declaration in the prescribed form by the person making the request stating that the order has not been brought to an end by an order of the court<sup>16</sup>; or
- 10 (6) at the request of the mother or that person on production of a certified copy of an order<sup>17</sup> which requires that person to make any financial provision for the child<sup>18</sup>, and a declaration in the prescribed form by the person making the request stating that the order has not been discharged by an order of the court<sup>19</sup>;
- 11 (7) at the request of the mother or that person on production of a certified copy of any of a number of specified orders<sup>20</sup> made in relation to the child, and a declaration in the prescribed form by the person making the request stating that the order has not been brought to an end or discharged by an order of a court<sup>21</sup>.

Notwithstanding the provisions described above, the registrar must not enter in the register as the father of a child the name of a man who is to be treated for that purpose as the father of a child born following fertility treatment after his death<sup>22</sup>, unless<sup>23</sup>:

- 12 (a) the mother requests the registrar to make such an entry in the register and produces the relevant documents<sup>24</sup>; or
- 13 (b) in the case of the death or inability of the mother, the relevant documents are produced by some other person who is a qualified informant<sup>25</sup>.

Where the birth of a child whose father and mother were not married to each other at the time of the birth has been registered but no person has been registered as the father of the child, the registrar must re-register the birth to show a person as the father, in the same circumstances as are described in heads (1) to (7) above in relation to a first registration<sup>26</sup>. Additionally, in the case of a man who is to be treated as the father of the child born following fertility treatment after his death, registration is required in the same circumstances as are described in heads (a) and (b) above<sup>27</sup>. Where a birth is re-registered under these provisions, the registrar must sign the register<sup>28</sup>, and the mother must also sign the register where she has been the person, or one of the persons, requesting<sup>29</sup> the re-registration<sup>30</sup>. Where the request<sup>31</sup> is made by the father, he must also sign the register<sup>32</sup>. Where a request is being made by a qualified informant<sup>33</sup> the qualified informant must also sign the register<sup>34</sup>. If the re-registration takes place more than three months after the birth, the superintendent registrar must also sign the register<sup>35</sup>.

1 'Birth' includes a live-birth and a still-birth: Births and Deaths Registration Act 1953 s 41.

2 As to the register of births and deaths see REGISTRATION CONCERNING THE INDIVIDUAL vol 39(2) (Reissue) para 504 et seq.

3 See the Births and Deaths Registration Act 1953 s 34 (as amended); and Brierley v Brierley and Williams [1918] P 257, 87 LJP 153. As to the duty to enter particulars of a birth in the register see REGISTRATION CONCERNING THE INDIVIDUAL vol 39(2) (Reissue) para 541 et seq. As to the persons qualified to give information of the particulars required to be registered see REGISTRATION CONCERNING THE INDIVIDUAL vol 39(2) (Reissue) para 547. As to changing a name after registration see Dawson v Wearmouth [1999] 2 AC 308, [1999] 1 FCR 625, HL (order for change of surname must be in the best interests of the child); Re W (a child) (illegitimate child: change of surname) [2001] Fam 1, sub nom Re W (a child) (change of name), Re A (a child) (change of name), Re B (children) (change of name) [1999] 3 FCR 337, CA; A v Y (child's surname) [1999] 2 FLR 5 (refusal to change surname of child of married parents to father's or double surname in view of delay and confusion to child); and see Re R (a child) [2001] EWCA Civ 1344, [2002] 1 FCR 170 (change of surname to that of both mother and father).

4 In relation to an adopted child, 'father' means the child's natural father; and 'mother' means the child's natural mother: Births and Deaths Registration Act 1953 s 41 (definitions added by the Children Act 1975 s 108(1), Sch 3 para 13(6)).

5 References to a child whose father and mother were not married to each other at the time of his birth must be construed in accordance with the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 1 (as amended): Births and Deaths Registration Act 1953 s 10(3) (s 10 substituted by the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 24; and amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 139(1), (3), Sch 3 para 6(c), Sch 5). For these purposes, the expression 'child whose father and mother were not married to each other at the time of his birth' means an illegitimate child: see the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 1 (as amended); and para 125 post.

6 'Registrar', in relation to any birth or death, means the registrar of births and deaths for the sub-district in which the birth or death takes place, or where any still-born child is found exposed or any dead body is found and no information as to the place of birth or death is available, for the sub-district in which the child or the dead body is found: Births and Deaths Registration Act 1953 s 41 (definition amended by the Children Act 1975 Sch 3 para 13(1)).

This is expressed to be notwithstanding anything in the Births and Deaths Registration Act 1953 ss 1-9 (as amended) (which make general provision as to the registration of births including the particulars which are to be registered, the time-limits within which information must be given to the registrar, the registration of births of abandoned children, the registrar's power to require information, and the penalties for improper or late registration or for giving information to a person other than the registrar: see REGISTRATION CONCERNING THE INDIVIDUAL vol 39(2) (Reissue) para 538 et seq).

99. Findings in other proceedings.

In any civil proceedings<sup>1</sup> the fact that a person has been found to be the father of a child in relevant proceedings<sup>2</sup> before any court<sup>3</sup> in England and Wales or Northern Ireland<sup>4</sup> is admissible in evidence for the purpose of proving, where to do so is relevant to any issue in those civil proceedings, that he is, or was, the father of that child, whether or not he offered any defence to the allegation of paternity and whether or not he is a party to the civil proceedings<sup>5</sup>. In any civil proceedings in which a person is proved by virtue of these provisions<sup>6</sup> to have been found or adjudged to be the father of a child<sup>7</sup> (1) he must be taken to be, or have been, the father of that child, unless the contrary is proved; and (2) without prejudice to the reception of any other admissible evidence for the purpose of identifying the facts on which the finding or adjudication was based, the contents of any document which was before the court, or which contains any pronouncement of the court, in the other proceedings in question are admissible in evidence for that purpose<sup>8</sup>.

Nothing in these provisions prejudices the operation of any enactment whereby a finding of fact in any affiliation or matrimonial proceedings<sup>9</sup> is for the purposes of any other proceedings made conclusive evidence of any fact<sup>10</sup>.

1 'Civil proceedings' includes, in addition to civil proceedings in any of the ordinary courts of law (1) civil proceedings before any other tribunal, being proceedings in relation to which the strict rules of evidence apply; and (2) an arbitration or reference, whether under an enactment or not, but does not include civil proceedings in relation to which the strict rules of evidence do not apply: Civil Evidence Act 1968 s 18(1).

2 'Relevant proceedings' means: (1) proceedings on a complaint under the National Assistance Act 1948 s 42 (see SOCIAL SERVICES AND COMMUNITY CARE vol 44(2) (Reissue) para 1040) or the Social Security Act 1986 s 26 (repealed) (see now the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 105 (as amended); and SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS vol 44(2) (Reissue) para 397); (2) proceedings under the Children Act 1989; (3) proceedings which would have been relevant proceedings for the purposes of the Civil Evidence Act 1968 s 12 (as amended) in the form in which it was in force before the passing of the Children Act 1989 (namely, proceedings under the Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 6, the Guardianship of Minors Act 1971, the Children Act 1975 s 34(1)(a), (b) or (c) and certain proceedings under s 35, the Child Care Act 1980 s 47, and the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 4 (all now repealed)); and (4) proceedings which are relevant proceedings as defined in the Civil Evidence Act (Northern Ireland) 1971 s 8(5): Civil Evidence Act 1968 s 12(5) (definition added by the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 29(1), (4); substituted by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 116, Sch 16 para 2(1); and amended by the Child Support Act 1991 s 27(5); the Children (Northern Ireland Consequential Amendments) Order 1995, SI 1995/756, art 6(b); and the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 85, Sch 9 Pt IX).

3 'Court' does not include a court-martial, and, in relation to an arbitration or reference, means the arbitrator or umpire and, in relation to proceedings before a tribunal (not being one of the ordinary courts of law), means the tribunal: Civil Evidence Act 1968 s 18(2). As from a day to be appointed, this definition is amended so that 'court-martial' will be replaced by 'service court' (ie the Court Martial, the Summary Appeal Court, the Service Civilian Court, the Court Martial Appeal Court or the Supreme Court on an appeal brought from the Court Martial Appeal Court): see the Civil Evidence Act 1968 s 18(2), (2A) (s 18(2) amended, and s 18(2A) added, by the Armed Forces Act 2006 s 378(1), Sch 16 para 53). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

4 Civil Evidence Act 1968 s 12(1)(b) (substituted by the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 29(2); and amended by the Children (Northern Ireland Consequential Amendments) Order 1995, SI 1995/756, art 6(a)).

5 Civil Evidence Act 1968 s 12(1). Only a subsisting finding or adjudication is so admissible: s 12(1). In any civil proceedings the fact that a person has been adjudged to be the father of a child in affiliation proceedings before any court in the United Kingdom is also admissible in evidence for the purposes of s 12(1) (as amended): s 12(1) (as amended: see note 4 supra). Affiliation proceedings were abolished by the Family Law Reform Act 1987. For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see para 102 note 7 post.

6 le for the purposes of the Civil Evidence Act 1968 s 12 (as amended).

7 le as mentioned in ibid s 12(1)(b) (as substituted and amended): see the text and note 4 supra.

8 Ibid s 12(2) (amended by the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 29(3)). Where in any civil proceedings the contents of any document are admissible in evidence by virtue of the Civil Evidence Act 1968 s 12(2) (as amended), a copy of that document, or of the material part of it, purporting to be certified or otherwise authenticated by or on behalf of the court or authority having custody of that document is admissible in evidence and must be taken to be a true copy of that document or part unless the contrary is shown: ss 11(4), 12(4).

9 Affiliation proceedings were abolished by the Family Law Reform Act 1987. As to matrimonial proceedings see further MATRIMONIAL AND CIVIL PARTNERSHIP LAW.

A child<sup>1</sup> who is adopted<sup>2</sup> by a married couple is treated in law as a child of the marriage, whether or not he was in fact born after the marriage was solemnised<sup>3</sup>. In any other case, the adopted child is treated as if he had been born to the adopter in wedlock, but not as a child of any actual marriage of the adopter<sup>4</sup>. With certain exceptions<sup>5</sup>, an adopted child is treated in law as if he were not the child of any person other than the adopters or adopter<sup>6</sup>. The effect of these rules is to prevent an adopted child from being illegitimate<sup>7</sup>.

101. Determination of parentage for children born by artificial insemination prior to 1 August 1991.

Prior to 4 April 1988<sup>1</sup>, a child born as a result of artificial insemination by third party donor was considered illegitimate and the donor, not the mother's husband, was the legal father of the child<sup>2</sup>. However, where a child was born in England and Wales after that date as the result of the artificial insemination of a woman who (1) was at the time of the insemination a party to a marriage<sup>3</sup>, being a marriage which had not at that time been dissolved or annulled<sup>4</sup>; and (2) was artificially inseminated with the semen of some person other than the other party to that marriage<sup>5</sup>, then, unless it is proved to the satisfaction of any court by which the matter has to be determined that the other party to that marriage did not consent to the insemination, the child in question is treated in law as the child of the parties to that marriage and is not to be treated as the child of any person other than the parties to the marriage<sup>6</sup>. This provision does not apply to children carried by women as the result of their artificial insemination after 1 August 1991<sup>7</sup>.

B. PARENTAGE UNDER THE HUMAN FERTILISATION AND EMBRYOLOGY ACT 1990

102. Meaning of 'mother'.

Under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990, the woman who is carrying<sup>1</sup> or has carried a child as a result of the placing in her<sup>2</sup> of an embryo<sup>3</sup> or of sperm and eggs<sup>4</sup>, and no other woman, is to be treated as the mother<sup>5</sup> of the child<sup>6</sup>. This applies whether the woman was in the United Kingdom<sup>7</sup> or elsewhere at the time of the placing in her of the embryo or the sperm and eggs<sup>8</sup>. It does not, however, apply to any child to the extent that the child is treated by virtue of adoption<sup>9</sup> as not being the woman's child<sup>10</sup>, or, in relation to parental orders, to any child to the extent that the child is treated by virtue of the making of a parental order<sup>11</sup> as not being the child of any person other than the husband and wife<sup>12</sup>.

1 A woman is not to be treated as carrying a child until the embryo has become implanted: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 2(3). See note 3 infra.

2 These provisions have effect only in relation to children carried by women as a result of the placing in them of embryos or of sperm and eggs, or of their artificial insemination, after 1 August 1991: ibid s 49(3); Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 (Commencement No 3 and Transitional Provisions) Order 1991, SI 1991/1400, art 2(2). As to the position relating to artificial insemination before that date see para 101 ante.

3 'Embryo' means a live human embryo where fertilisation is complete (ie on the appearance of a two cell zygote) except where otherwise stated; and references to an embryo include an egg in the process of fertilisation: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 1(1).

4 References to gametes, eggs or sperm are references to live human gametes, eggs or sperm except where otherwise stated, but references to gametes or eggs do not include eggs in the process of fertilisation: ibid s 1(4).

5 Where, by virtue of ibid s 27, a person is to be treated in law as being the mother of a child that person is to be treated in law as the mother of the child for all purposes (s 29(1)), and where by virtue thereof a person is not to be treated as the mother of a child that person is to be treated in law as not being the mother for any purpose (s 29(2)). Where s 29(1) or (2) has effect, references to any relationship between two people in any enactment, deed or other instrument or document, whenever passed or made, must be read accordingly: s 29(3).

6 Ibid s 27(1). It is apprehended that these provisions override the common law rules for the attribution of parentage: see para 94 et seq ante.

7 'United Kingdom' means Great Britain and Northern Ireland: Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1. 'Great Britain' means England, Scotland and Wales: Union with Scotland Act 1706 preamble art I; Interpretation Act 1978 s 22(1), Sch 2 para 5(a). Neither the Channel Islands nor the Isle of Man are within the United Kingdom. See further CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) para 3.

8 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 27(3).

9 As to the status of adopted children see paras 100 ante, 375 et seq post.

10 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 27(2) (amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 139(1), Sch 3 paras 76, 77).

11 As to parental orders see para 106 post.

12 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 27(2) (modified by the Parental Orders (Human Fertilisation and Embryology) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2767, reg 4, Sch 3). For the meanings of 'the husband' and 'the wife' see the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 30(1); and para 106 note 2 post.

102-112 Parentage under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990

For provision as to parenthood in cases involving assisted reproduction see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 Pt 2 (ss 33-58); and PARA 112A.

102 Meaning of 'mother'

TEXT AND NOTES--Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 ss 27, 29 do not have effect in relation to children carried by women as a result of the placing in them of embryos or of sperm and eggs, or their artificial insemination (as the case may be), after the commencement of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 ss 33-48 (ie after 6 April 2009: see SI 2009/479): Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 57(2). See PARA 112A.

NOTE 3--In the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 (except in the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 4A (see MEDICAL PROFESSIONS) or in the term 'human admixed embryo') (1) embryo means a live human embryo and does not include a human admixed embryo (as defined by s 4A(6)), and (2) references to an embryo include an egg that is in the process of fertilisation or is undergoing any other process capable of resulting in an embryo: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 1(1) (substituted by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 1(2)).

If it appears to the Secretary of State necessary or desirable to do so in the light of developments in science or medicine, regulations may provide that in the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 (except in s 4A) 'embryo', 'eggs', 'sperm' or 'gametes' includes things specified in the regulations which would not otherwise fall within the definition: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 1(6) (s 1(6), (7) added by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 1(5)). Regulations made by virtue of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 1(6) may not provide for anything containing any nuclear or mitochondrial DNA that is not human to be treated as an embryo or as eggs, sperm or gametes: s 1(7). 'Nuclear DNA', in relation to an embryo, includes DNA in the pronucleus of the embryo: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 2(1) (amended by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 2).

NOTE 4--In the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 (except in the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 4A (see MEDICAL PROFESSIONS)) (1) references to eggs are to live human eggs, including cells of the female germ line at any stage of maturity, but (except in s 1(1)(b) (see NOTE 3, head (2))) not including eggs that are in the process of fertilisation or are undergoing any other process capable of resulting in an embryo, (2) references to sperm are to live human sperm, including cells of the male germ line at any stage of maturity, and (3) references to gametes are to be read accordingly: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 1(4) (substituted by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 1(4)). See further NOTE 3.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/1. CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(3) LEGAL PARENTAGE/(iv) Human Assisted Reproduction/B. PARENTAGE UNDER THE HUMAN FERTILISATION AND EMBRYOLOGY ACT 1990/103. Meaning of 'father'.

103. Meaning of 'father'.

If a child is being, or has been, carried<sup>1</sup> by a woman as the result of the placing in her of an embryo<sup>2</sup> or of sperm and eggs<sup>3</sup> or her artificial insemination<sup>4</sup>, and at the time<sup>5</sup> of the placing in her of the embryo or the sperm and eggs or of her insemination, the woman was a party to a marriage<sup>6</sup>, and the creation of the embryo carried by her was not brought about with the sperm of the other party to the marriage<sup>7</sup>, the other party to the marriage is treated as the father<sup>8</sup> of the child unless it is shown that he did not consent to the placing in her of the embryo or the sperm and eggs, or to her insemination, as the case may be<sup>9</sup>. If no man is treated by virtue of the provision described above<sup>10</sup> as the father of the child, but the embryo or the sperm and eggs were placed in the woman, or she was artificially inseminated, in the course of treatment services<sup>11</sup> provided for her and a man together by a person to whom a licence<sup>12</sup> applies, and the creation of the embryo carried by her was not brought about with the sperm of that man, then that man is to be treated as the father of the child<sup>13</sup>.

Where a person is treated as the father of a child by virtue of these provisions<sup>14</sup>, no other person is to be treated as the father of the child<sup>15</sup>. The provisions relating to who is treated as the father of a child<sup>16</sup> do not apply (1) in relation to England and Wales and Northern Ireland, to any child who, by virtue of the rules of common law, is treated as the legitimate child of the parties to a marriage<sup>17</sup>; (2) to any child to the extent that the child is treated by virtue of adoption<sup>18</sup> as not being the man's child<sup>19</sup>; or (3) to any child to the extent that the child is treated by virtue of a parental order<sup>20</sup> as not being the child of any person other than the husband and wife<sup>21</sup>.

Provision has been made with respect to the following categories of deceased man<sup>22</sup>:

- 14 (a) where the deceased donor was married to the woman<sup>23</sup>;
- 15 (b) where he was not married to the woman but the treatment services<sup>24</sup> were provided to the deceased and the woman together before his death<sup>25</sup>;
- 16 (c) where the deceased and the woman were married and the embryo was not brought about with the sperm of the deceased<sup>26</sup>; and
- 17 (d) where the deceased and the woman were not married and the embryo was not brought about with the sperm of the deceased<sup>27</sup>.

A deceased donor who falls within any of heads (a) to (d) above is treated<sup>28</sup> as the father of the child if:

- 18 (i) the woman has elected in writing not later than the end of the period of 42 days from the day on which the child was born for the man to be treated as the father of the child<sup>29</sup>;
- 19 (ii) the man has consented in writing (and did not withdraw the consent) to: (A) in the case of heads (a) and (b), above, the use of his sperm after his death which brought about the creation of the embryo carried by the woman or (as the case may be) to placing in the woman after his death of the embryo which was brought about using his sperm before his death<sup>30</sup>; or (B) in the case of heads (c) and (d) above, to the placing of the embryo in the woman after his death<sup>31</sup>;

- 20 (iii) in all categories, he consented in writing (and did not withdraw his consent) to being treated<sup>32</sup> as the father of any resulting child<sup>33</sup>; and
- 21 (iv) no-one else is to be treated as the father of the child<sup>34</sup>.

In the circumstances described in heads (i) to (iv) above, the deceased man is to be treated in law as the father of the child for the purpose of enabling his particulars to be entered as the particulars of the child's father in (as the case may be) a register of live-births or still-births under the Births and Deaths Registration Act 1953, but he is not to be treated as the father of the child for any other purposes<sup>35</sup>.

All the provisions described above<sup>36</sup> apply whether the woman was in the United Kingdom or elsewhere at the time of the placing in her of the embryo or the sperm and eggs or her artificial insemination<sup>37</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'carrying' see para 102 note 1 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'embryo' see para 102 note 3 ante.

3 As to references to sperm and eggs see para 102 note 4 ante.

4 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 28(1). This provision is subject to s 28(5A)-(5I) (as added) (see the text and notes 22-35 infra): see s 28(1) (amended by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Deceased Fathers) Act 2003 s 2(1), Schedule para 13).

5 These provisions have effect only in relation to children carried by women as a result of the placing in them of embryos or of sperm and eggs, or of their artificial insemination, after 1 August 1991: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 49(3); Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 (Commencement No 3 and Transitional Provisions) Order 1991, SI 1991/1400, art 2(2). As to the position relating to artificial insemination before that date see para 101 ante.

6 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 28(2)(a). For the purposes of s 28(2) and s 28(5A)-(5D) (as added), references to the parties to a marriage at the time referred to in the text are to the parties to a marriage subsisting at that time, unless a judicial separation was then in force, but include the parties to a void marriage if either or both of them reasonably believed at that time that the marriage was valid; and for these purposes it is presumed, unless the contrary is shown, that one of them did so believe: s 28(7) (amended by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Deceased Fathers) Act 2003 Schedule para 15). 'Judicial separation' includes a legal separation obtained in a country outside the British Islands and recognised in the United Kingdom: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 28(9). 'The British Islands' means the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man: Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1. For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see para 102 note 7 ante.

7 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 28(2)(b).

8 Where, by virtue of ibid s 28, a person is to be treated in law as being the father of a child, that person is to be treated in law as the father of the child for all purposes (s 29(1)), and where by virtue thereof a person is not to be treated as the father of a child that person is to be treated in law as not being the father for any purpose (s 29(2)). Where s 29(1) or (2) has effect, references to any relationship between the two people in any enactment, deed or other instrument or document, whenever passed or made, must be read accordingly: s 29(3). In a contact dispute between a husband and wife over a child who had been born as a result of artificial insemination by a third party donor, the court held that as the legal parent the husband was entitled to contact despite not being the biological father: see Re CH (contact: parentage) [1996] 1 FCR 768, [1996] 1 FLR 569. 'For all purposes' under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 29(1) entitles a person who has no biological links with the child, but is treated as a father, to apply for orders under the Children Act 1989 s 8 (see paras 199, 251 et seq post): see Re R (contact: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990) [2001] 1 FLR 247. Where a wife's eggs are mixed in error with the sperm of another man, and the husband has not consented to the use of another man's sperm, the husband cannot be presumed to be the legal father: Leeds Teaching Hospital NHS Trust v A [2003] EWHC 259 (QB), [2003] 1 FCR 599, [2003] 1 FLR 1091.

9 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 28(2). This provision has effect only where the placing of the embryo or sperm and eggs in the carrying woman, or her artificial insemination, took place after 1 August 1991: see para 102 note 2 ante.

10 Ie by virtue of ibid s 28(2): see the text and notes 6-9 supra.

11 'Treatment services' means medical, surgical or obstetric services provided to the public or a section of the public for the purpose of assisting women to carry children: ibid s 2(1). The procedures according to which treatment services should be carried out are governed by a code of practice made under s 25: see MEDICAL PROFESSIONS vol 30(1) (Reissue) para 288.

12 Is a licence authorising activities in the course of providing treatment services granted by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority under ibid Sch 2: s 2(1). In requiring the treatment to have been undertaken by a person with a licence, s 28(3) does not infringe the Treaty establishing the European Community (Rome, 25 March 1957; TS 1 (1973); Cmnd 5179) art 59 (now renumbered art 49 by virtue of the Treaty of Amsterdam: see Treaty Citation (No 2) (Note) [1999] All ER (EC) 646, ECJ) on freedom to provide services: U v W (A-G intervening) [1998] Fam 29, [1998] 1 FCR 526, [1997] 2 FLR 282. As to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority and the grant of licences under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 see MEDICAL PROFESSIONS vol 30(1) (Reissue) para 280 et seq.

13 Ibid s 28(3). Thus, provided that the conception is brought about in the course of treatment services, an unmarried couple benefits from provisions similar to those relating to a married couple. If treatment is provided by a person who does not hold a licence, s 28(3) does not apply to confer paternity: see U v W (A-G intervening) [1998] Fam 29, [1998] 1 FCR 526, [1997] 2 FLR 282 (treatment had taken place abroad). The principle in relation to unmarried couples still applies where a stable relationship subsequently fails: Re R (a child) (IVF: paternity of child) [2005] UKHL 33, [2005] 2 AC 621, sub nom Re R (a child) [2005] 4 All ER 433. See also B v R (by her legal guardian) [2002] 2 FLR 843 (notwithstanding breakdown of relationship, applicant held to be father of child since conception brought about during 'course of treatment'); cf Re R (a child) (IVF: paternity of child) [2003] EWCA Civ 182, [2003] 2 All ER 131 (treatment following breakdown of relationship without applicant's knowledge not giving rise to paternity).

15 Ibid s 28(4). The treatment in law of a deceased man differs: see the text and notes 22-35 infra.

16 Is ibid s 28(2), (3): see the text and notes 5-13 supra.

For the meanings of 'the husband' and 'the wife' see the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 30(1); and para 106 note 2 post.

22 See ibid s 28(5A)-(5I) (added by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Deceased Fathers) Act 2003 s 1(1)).

23 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 28(5A) (as added: see note 22 supra). This refers to the situation where:

- 8 (1) a child has been carried by a woman as the result of the placing in her of an embryo or of sperm and eggs or her artificial insemination (s 28(5A)(a) (as so added));
- 9 (2) the creation of the embryo carried by her was brought about by using the sperm of a man after his death, or the creation of the embryo was brought about using the sperm of a man before his death but the embryo was placed in the woman after his death (s 28(5A)(b) (as so added));
- 10 (3) the woman was a party to a marriage with the man immediately before his death (s 28(5A)(c) (as so added)).

24 See note 11 supra. See Evans v Amicus Healthcare Ltd (Secretary of State for Health intervening) [2004] EWCA Civ 727, [2005] Fam 1, [2004] 2 FLR 766 (since the couple had separated and the man had withdrawn his consent, the treatment services which the woman required could not be said to be provided 'together'); Evans v United Kingdom (Application 6339/05) [2007] 2 FCR 5, [2007] 1 FLR 1990, ECtHR (domestic rules were clear and had been brought to the attention of the applicant and they struck a fair balance between competing interests so there was no violation of art 8 of the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969)); U v W (A-G intervening) [1998] 1 FCR 526, [1997] 2 FLR 282 (treatment services had been provided for the parties together within the meaning of the section as they attended the clinic together, received information together and both had signed a form permitting the use of donor sperm); Re R (a child) (IVF: paternity of child) [2005] UKHL 33, [2005] 2 AC 621, [2005] 2 FLR 843 (the 'joint enterprise' of fertility treatment had ended by the time the successful treatment had begun because, by that stage, the consenting couple had separated; the man was not the legal father of the resulting child).

25 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 28(5B) (as added: see note 22 supra). This refers to the situation where:

- 11 (1) a child has been carried by a woman as the result of the placing in her of an embryo or of sperm and eggs or her artificial insemination (s 28(5B)(a) (as so added));
- 12 (2) the creation of the embryo carried by her was brought about by using the sperm of a man after his death, or the creation of the embryo was brought about using the sperm of a man before his death but the embryo was placed in the woman after his death (s 28(5B)(b) (as so added));
- 13 (3) the woman was not a party to a marriage with the man immediately before his death but treatment services were being provided for the woman and the man together before his death either by a person to whom a licence applies or outside the United Kingdom (s 28(5B)(c) (as so added)).

26 Ibid s 28(5C) (as added: see note 22 supra). This refers to the situation where:

- 14 (1) a child has been carried by a woman as the result of the placing in her of an embryo (s 28(5C)(a) (as so added));
- 15 (2) the embryo was created at a time when the woman was a party to a marriage (s 28(5C)(b) (as so added));
- 16 (3) the creation of the embryo was not brought about with the sperm of the other party to the marriage (s 28(5C)(c) (as so added));
- 17 (4) the other party to the marriage died before the placing of the embryo in the woman (s 28(5C)(d) (as so added)).

27 Ibid s 28(5D) (as added: see note 22 supra). This refers to the situation where:

- 18 (1) a child has been carried by a woman as the result of the placing in her of an embryo (s 28(5D)(a) (as so added));
- 19 (2) the embryo was not created at a time when the woman was a party to a marriage but was created in the course of treatment services provided for the woman and a man together either by a person to whom a licence applies or outside the United Kingdom (s 28(5D)(b) (as so added));
- 20 (3) the creation of the embryo was not brought about with the sperm of that man (s 28(5D)(c) (as so added));
- 21 (4) the man died before the placing of the embryo in the woman (s 28(5D)(d) (as so added)).

28 See the text to note 35 infra.

29 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 28(5A)(e), (5B)(e), (5C)(f), (5D)(f) (as added: see note 22 supra). The requirement of 42 days is nevertheless to be treated as satisfied if the required election is made after the end of that period but with the consent of the General Registrar (s 28(5F) (as so added)) if, on an application made to him in accordance with such requirements as he may specify, he is satisfied that there is a compelling reason for giving his consent to the making of such an election (s 28(5G) (as so added)).

30 Ibid s 28(5A)(d)(i), (5B)(d)(i) (as added: see note 22 supra). Where the man who might be treated as the father of the child under these provisions died before 18 September 2003 (ie the date of Royal Assent), the provisions of s 28(5A), (5B) (as added) have effect as if paragraph (d) of each subsection were omitted: see the Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Deceased Fathers) Act 2003 s 3(6).

31 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 28(5C)(e)(i), (5D)(e)(i) (as added: see note 22 supra). Where the man who might be treated as the father of the child under these provisions died before 18

September 2003 (ie the date of Royal Assent), the provisions of s 28(5C), (5D) (as added) have effect as if paragraph (e) of each subsection were omitted: see the Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Deceased Fathers) Act 2003 s 3(6).

32    Ie for the purposes of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 28(5I) (as added): see note 35 infra.

33    Ibid s 28(5A)(d)(ii), (5B)(d)(ii), (5C)(e)(ii), (5D)(e)(ii) (as added: see note 22 supra). Where the man who might be treated as the father of the child under these provisions died before 18 September 2003 (ie the date of Royal Assent), the provisions of s 28(5A), (5B) (as added) have effect as if paragraph (d) of each subsection were omitted, and s 28(5C), (5D) (as added) have effect as if paragraph (e) of each subsection were omitted: see the Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Deceased Fathers) Act 2003 s 3(6).

34    Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 28(5A)(f), (5B)(f), (5C)(g), (5D)(g) (as added: see note 22 supra). Ie no-one else is to be treated as the father of the child by virtue of s 28(2) or (3) (see the text and notes 9, 13 supra) or by virtue of adoption or the child being treated as mentioned in s 28(5)(a) (presumption of legitimacy: see note 17 supra).

35    Note that ibid s 28(1)-(3) (see the text and notes 1-13 supra) does not apply in a case to which s 28(5A), (5B), (5C) or (5D) (as added) applies, and the deceased man is to be treated in law as the father of the child for the purpose referred to in that subsection but is to be treated in law as not being the father of the child for any other purpose: see s 29(3A), (3B) (s 29(3A)-(3D) added by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Deceased Fathers) Act 2003 s 1(2)). The purpose for which a deceased man is to be treated in law as the father of the child is of enabling the man's particulars to be entered as the particulars of the child's father in (as the case may be) a register of live-births or still-births under the Births and Deaths Registration Act 1953: see the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 28(5I) (as added: see note 22 supra). References to any relationship between two people in any enactment, deed or other instrument or document (whenever passed or made) are to be read accordingly; and for this purpose 'enactment' includes an enactment comprised in, or in an instrument made under, an Act of the Scottish Parliament or Northern Ireland legislation: s 29(3C), (3D) (as so added).

36    Ie ibid s 28 (as amended).

37    Ibid s 28(8).

103 Meaning of 'father'

TEXT AND NOTES--Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 ss 28, 29 do not have effect in relation to children carried by women as a result of the placing in them of embryos or of sperm and eggs, or their artificial insemination (as the case may be), after the commencement of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 ss 33-48 (ie after 6 April 2009: see SI 2009/479): Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 57(2). See PARA 112A.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/1. CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(3) LEGAL PARENTAGE/(iv) Human Assisted Reproduction/B. PARENTAGE UNDER THE HUMAN FERTILISATION AND EMBRYOLOGY ACT 1990/104. Sperm donors.

104. Sperm donors.

Where a man is treated as being the father of a child because he was a party to a marriage with the woman who carried or is carrying the child<sup>1</sup>, or because treatment services<sup>2</sup> were provided for him together with the woman<sup>3</sup>, the donor of sperm<sup>4</sup> or other genetic material will not be treated as the child's father<sup>5</sup>.

Where (1) the sperm of a man who has given consent to the use of his gametes<sup>6</sup> for treatment services<sup>7</sup> was used for a purpose for which such consent was required<sup>8</sup>; or (2) his sperm, or any embryo<sup>9</sup> the creation of which was brought about with his sperm, was used after his death<sup>10</sup>, he is not (subject to specific provisions relating to deceased donors) to be treated as the father of a child<sup>11</sup>.

1     Ie by virtue of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 28(2): see para 103 ante.

2     For the meaning of 'treatment services' see para 103 note 11 ante.

3     Ie by virtue of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 28(3): see para 103 ante.

4     As to references to sperm see para 102 note 4 ante.

5     See the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 28(4); and para 103 ante. Where by virtue of s 28 (as amended) a person is to be treated as the father of a child, that person is to be treated in law as the father for all purposes (s 29(1)), and where a person by virtue thereof is not to be treated as the father of a child that person is to be treated in law as not being the father for any purpose (s 29(2)). Where s 29(1) or (2) has effect, references to any relationship between two people in any enactment, deed or other instrument or document, whenever passed or made, are to be read accordingly: s 29(3). Note that the provisions of s 29(1), (2) do not apply in relation to the treatment in law of a deceased man in a case to which s 28(5A), (5B), (5C) or (5D) (as added) (see para 103 ante) applies: see s 29(3A) (added by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Deceased Fathers) Act 2003 s 1(2)). The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 29(3B), (3C) (as added) applies as to the treatment in law of the deceased man: see para 103 ante.

6     As to references to gametes see para 102 note 4 ante.

7     Ie under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 28, Sch 3 para 5: see MEDICAL PROFESSIONS VOL 30(1) (Reissue) para 285.

8     Ibid s 28(6)(a). A person's gametes must not be used for the purposes of treatment services unless there is an effective consent by that person to their being so used and they are used in accordance with the terms of the consent (Sch 3 para 5(1)), and a person's gametes must not be received for use for those purposes unless there is an effective consent by that person to their being so used (Sch 3 para 5(2)). Such consent must be given in writing: Sch 3 para 1. 'Effective consent' means a consent given in accordance with the provisions of Sch 3 (see MEDICAL PROFESSIONS VOL 30(1) (Reissue) para 285) which has not been withdrawn: Sch 3 para 1. However, this does not apply to the use of a person's gametes for the purpose of that person, or that person and another together, receiving treatment services: Sch 3 para 5(3).

9     For the meaning of 'embryo' see para 102 note 3 ante.

10    Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 28(6)(b).

11    Ibid s 28(6) (amended by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Deceased Fathers) Act 2003 s 2(1), Schedule para 14). The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 28(6) (as amended) is subject to s 28(5A), (5B) (as added) (see para 103 ante). The position on the use of gametes after death has been challenged in the courts: see R v Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority, ex p Blood [1999] Fam 151, [1997] 2 All ER 687, CA, where it was held that the consent of the donor is required for the storage of, and treatment with, sperm or eggs.

It is clearly possible for a child to be fatherless in law where the donor is treated as not being the father, and (1) the husband of the woman who is inseminated establishes that he did not consent to the treatment carried out on his wife (see para 103 ante); or (2) the woman did not receive treatment services with a man who falls to be treated as the father (see para 103 ante).

CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(3) LEGAL PARENTAGE/(iv) Human Assisted Reproduction/B. PARENTAGE UNDER THE HUMAN FERTILISATION AND EMBRYOLOGY ACT 1990/106. Parental orders in favour of gamete donors; surrogacy.

106. Parental orders in favour of gamete donors; surrogacy.

The court<sup>1</sup> may make an order providing for a child to be treated in law as the child of the parties to a marriage<sup>2</sup> if:

- 22 (1) the child has been carried<sup>3</sup> by a woman other than the wife as the result of the placing in her of an embryo<sup>4</sup> or sperm and eggs<sup>5</sup> or her artificial insemination<sup>6</sup>; and
- 23 (2) the gametes<sup>7</sup> of the husband or the wife, or both, were used to bring about the creation of the embryo<sup>8</sup>.

The following conditions must be satisfied for the court to have jurisdiction to make such an order:

- 24 (a) the husband and wife must apply for the order within six months of the birth of the child<sup>9</sup>;
- 25 (b) at the time of the application and of the making of the order, the child's home must be with the husband and wife, and the husband or the wife or both must be domiciled in a part of the United Kingdom or in the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man<sup>10</sup>;
- 26 (c) at the time of the making of the order both the husband and the wife must have attained the age of 18<sup>11</sup>;
- 27 (d) the court must be satisfied that both the father of the child<sup>12</sup>, where he is not the husband, and the woman who carried the child have freely, and with full understanding of what is involved, agreed unconditionally to the making of the order<sup>13</sup>;
- 28 (e) the court must be satisfied that, unless authorised by the court, no money or other benefit (other than for expenses reasonably incurred) has been given or received by the husband or wife for or in consideration of: (i) the making of the order; (ii) any agreement required by head (d) above; (iii) the handing over of the child to the husband and the wife; or (iv) the making of any arrangements with a view to the making of the order<sup>14</sup>.

Regulations<sup>15</sup> may provide (A) for any provision of the enactments about adoption<sup>16</sup> to have effect, with such modifications, if any, as may be specified in regulations, in relation to parental orders<sup>17</sup>, and applications for such orders, as it has effect in relation to adoption, and applications for adoption orders<sup>18</sup>; and (B) for references in any enactment<sup>19</sup> to adoption, an adopted child or an adoptive relationship to be read, respectively, as references to the effect of a parental order<sup>20</sup>, a child to whom such an order applies and a relationship arising by virtue of the enactments about adoption, as applied by the regulations, and for similar expressions in connection with adoption to be read accordingly<sup>21</sup>. The regulations may include such incidental supplemental provision as appears to the Secretary of State necessary or desirable in consequence of any provision made under these powers<sup>22</sup>.

Proceedings on an application for a parental order are 'family proceedings' for the purposes of the Children Act 1989<sup>23</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'court' see para 145 note 2 post; definition applied by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 30(8).

2 The parties to a marriage are referred to in ibid s 30 as 'the husband' and 'the wife': s 30(1).

3 As to the meaning of 'carrying' see para 102 note 1 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'embryo' see para 102 note 3 ante.

5 As to references to sperm and eggs see para 102 note 4 ante.

6 This applies whether the woman was in the United Kingdom or elsewhere at the time of the placing in her of the embryo or the sperm and eggs or her artificial insemination: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 30(11). For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see para 102 note 7 ante. As to surrogacy see further paras 514-527 post.

7 As to references to gametes see para 102 note 4 ante.

8 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 30(1). This provision was apparently intended to cover circumstances such as those which arose in Re W (minors) (surrogacy) [1991] FCR 419, [1991] 1 FLR 385 (eggs from the wife and sperm from the husband were implanted in another woman who agreed to hand over the child to the commissioning couple when it was born; the combined effect of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 ss 27, 28 (see paras 102-103 ante) would have been that the carrying woman would have been treated in law as the mother and her husband as the father unless he did not consent to the procedure).

9 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 30(2). In the case of a child born before the coming into force of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 the husband and wife had to apply for the parental order within six months of such coming into force: s 30(2). As to the commencement of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 see s 49(2). The Act was brought into force on a number of different dates and it is submitted that the relevant date for the purposes of s 30(2) is 1 November 1994 (ie the date on which s 30(1) was brought into force: see the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 (Commencement No 5) Order 1994, SI 1994/1776).

10 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 30(3).

11 Ibid s 30(4).

12 The reference to the father of the child includes a person who is the father by virtue of ibid s 28 (as amended) (see para 103 ante): s 30(5).

13 Ibid s 30(5). This provision does not require the agreement of a person who cannot be found or is incapable of giving agreement, and the agreement of the woman who carried the child is ineffective for the purposes of this provision if given by her less than six weeks after the child's birth: s 30(6). Where pregnancy is achieved using sperm from a donor at a licensed clinic, that donor is not the father of the child by virtue of s 28(6) (see para 103 ante) and therefore there may be no man who is treated as the father of the child and consent for the purposes of s 30 is not necessary: see Re Q (a minor) (parental order) [1996] 2 FCR 345, sub nom Re Q (parental order) [1996] 1 FLR 369 (unmarried surrogate mother carried child using an egg from the wife of the commissioning couple and sperm from a donor). Any arrangement between the woman who carried the child and the commissioning husband and wife is unenforceable: see para 519 post. As to surrogacy arrangements generally see paras 514-527 post.

14 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 30(7). 'Expenses reasonably incurred' is not defined by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990. The court has a discretion retrospectively to authorise any payment which has already been made: see Re Adoption Application (surrogacy) [1987] Fam 81, [1987] 2 All ER 826, sub nom Re Adoption Application AA212/86 (adoption: payment) [1987] 2 FLR 291; Re Q (a minor) (parental order) [1996] 2 FCR 345, sub nom Re Q (parental order) [1996] 1 FLR 369; and see also Re C (application by Mr and Mrs X under s 30 of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990) [2002] EWHC 157 (Fam), [2002] 1 FLR 909 (payment authorised retrospectively where husband and wife had acted honestly and in good faith).

15 See the Parental Orders (Human Fertilisation and Embryology) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2767; and note 18 infra. As to the making of regulations under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 see para 112 post.

16 In the Adoption and Children Act 2002, the Adoption (Scotland) Act 1978 and the Adoption (Northern Ireland) Order 1987, SI 1987/2203: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 30(10). As from a day to be appointed, a reference to the Adoption and Children (Scotland) Act 2007 is inserted: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 30(10) (amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 139(1), Sch 3 paras 76, 79; and the Adoption and Children (Scotland) Act 2007 s 120(1), (2), Sch 2 para 6, Sch 3). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to adoption see paras 100 ante, 323 et seq post.

17 In orders under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 30.

18 Ibid s 30(9)(a). As to the regulations that have been made see the Parental Orders (Human Fertilisation and Embryology) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2767, which apply specified provisions of the Adoption Act 1976 with modifications to a parental order granted under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 30(9): see the Parental Orders (Human Fertilisation and Embryology) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2767, reg 2, Sch 1 para 1 (applications by gamete donors for a parental order), Sch 1 para 2 (effect of a parental order), Sch 1 para 3 (interpretation of certain events consequent upon the making of a parental order), Sch 1 para 4 (registration of parental orders), Sch 1 para 5 (procedure), Sch 1 para 6 (orders, rules and regulations), Sch 1 para 7 (interpretation), and Sch 1 para 8 (registration of adoptions). The regulations provide for the registration of parental orders in a register to be maintained by the Registrar General at the General Register Office, and for the issue of a certified copy of an entry in the register, which may be received as evidence of the birth of the child: Sch 1 para 4. As to the parental order register see REGISTRATION CONCERNING THE INDIVIDUAL vol 39(2) (Reissue) para 510; and as to the Registrar General and the General Register Office see REGISTRATION CONCERNING THE INDIVIDUAL vol 39(2) (Reissue) para 605 et seq. For the form of entries to be made in the parental order register pursuant to a direction made by a court see the Forms of Entry for Parental Orders Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2981.

19 In the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 30(9)(b), the words 'any enactment' are to be read as including a reference to any enactment contained in s 28(5A)-(5I) (as added) (see para 103 ante): see the modification made by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Deceased Fathers) Act 2003 s 2(1), Schedule para 17.

20 In an order under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 30.

21 Ibid s 30(9)(b). As to the regulations that have been made see note 18 supra.

22 Ibid s 30(9) (as modified: see note 19 supra). As to the regulations that have been made see note 18 supra. As to the Secretary of State see para 155 post.

23 Ibid s 30(8)(a). As to the classification of proceedings as 'family proceedings' see para 199 post. For the procedure on an application under s 30 in the High Court and the county court see the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, Pt IVA (added by SI 1994/2165; and amended by SI 1994/3155; SI 2001/821; SI 2005/559); and for proceedings in the magistrates' court see the Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, Pt IIA (added by SI 1994/2166; and amended by SI 1994/3156; SI 2001/818; SI 2005/585; SI 2005/617).

On such an application, the court must consider the appointment of a parental order reporter in accordance with the Children Act 1989 s 41(1) (see para 311 post): Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4A.5 (as so added and amended); Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 21E (as so added and amended). 'Parental order reporter' means an officer of the Service (ie an officer of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS')) or a Welsh family proceedings officer appointed under the Children Act 1989 s 41 (as amended) in relation to proceedings under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 30: Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4A.1(1), (2) (as so added and amended); Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 21A(1), (2) (as so added and amended). As to CAFCASS see para 230 et seq post. As to the meaning of 'officer of the Service' see para 230 post. For the meaning of 'Welsh family proceedings officer' see para 230 note 9 post.

For transitional provisions where the Official Solicitor or someone else was appointed as guardian ad litem under the Children Act 1989 s 41 (as amended) (see para 311 post) before 1 April 2001 and the proceedings are still continuing see the Family Proceedings (Amendment) Rules 2001, SI 2001/821, r 3(1), (2); and para 230 post.

UPDATE

102-112 Parentage under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990

For provision as to parenthood in cases involving assisted reproduction see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 Pt 2 (ss 33-58); and PARA 112A.

107 The register of information

TEXT AND NOTES 1-8--Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 31 now ss 31-31ZG: see PARA 107A.

TEXT AND NOTES 3-8--'Basic partner treatment services' means treatment services that are provided for a woman and a man together without using the gametes of any other person or embryos created outside the woman's body: 1990 Act s 2(1) (amended by SI 2007/1522). For the purposes of the 1990 Act, sperm is to be treated as partner-donated sperm if the donor of the sperm and the recipient of the sperm declare that they have an intimate physical relationship: s 1(5) (added by SI 2007/1522).

The Authority must keep a register recording the grant, suspension or revocation of a licence for treatment or a licence for storage authorising activities in relation to gametes or embryos intended for use for human application, a licence for non-medical fertility services and a licence authorising activities in connection with the derivation from embryos of stem cells that are intended for human application: 1990 Act s 31A(1) (s 31A added by SI 2007/1522; and amended by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 Sch 7 para 10, Sch 8 Pt 1). The register must specify, in relation to each such licence (1) the activities authorised, (2) the address of the premises to which the licence relates, (3) the name of the person responsible and the name of the holder of the licence (if different), and (4) any variations made: 1990 Act s 31A(2). The Authority must make such of the information included in the register as it considers appropriate available to the public: s 31A(3).

The Authority must also keep a register containing information provided to it about any serious adverse event or serious adverse reaction and must make such of the information included in the register as it considers appropriate available to the public: s 31B (added by SI 2007/1522). For the meanings of 'serious adverse event' and 'serious adverse reaction' see the 1990 Act s 2(1) (definitions added by SI 2007/1522).

107A. Information.

See also Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 35A (added by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 26) (mitochondrial donation).

As to the power of the Authority to charge fees to recoup the cost of meeting various statutory requests for information from donor-conceived people see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 35B (added by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 27).

1. Register of information

The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority must keep a register which is to contain any information which falls within the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 31(2) and which (1) immediately before the coming into force of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 24 (ie 1 October 2009: SI 2009/2232), was contained in the register kept under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 31 by the Authority, or (2) is obtained by the Authority: s 31(1) (s 31 substituted by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 24). Subject to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 31(3), information falls within s 31(2) if it relates to (a) the provision for any identifiable individual of treatment services other than basic partner treatment services, (b) the procurement or distribution of any sperm, other than sperm which is partner-donated sperm and has not been stored, in the course of providing non-medical fertility services for any identifiable individual, (c) the keeping of the gametes of any identifiable individual or of an embryo taken from any identifiable woman, (d) the use of the gametes of any identifiable individual other than their use for the purpose of basic partner treatment services, or (e) the use of an embryo taken from any identifiable woman, or if it shows that any identifiable individual is a relevant individual: s 31(2). In s 31 'relevant individual' means an individual who was or may have been born in consequence of (i) treatment services, other than basic partner treatment services, or (ii) the procurement or distribution of any sperm (other than partner-donated sperm which has not been stored) in the course of providing non-medical fertility services: s 31(4). Information does not fall within s 31(2) if it is provided to the Authority for the purposes of any voluntary contact register as defined by s 31ZF(1) (see PARA 107A.4): s 31(3).

2. Request for information as to genetic parentage or intended spouse

A person who has attained the age of 16 ('the applicant') may by notice to the Authority require the Authority to comply with a request under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 31ZA(2): s 31ZA(1) (ss 31ZA-31ZC substituted by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 24). The applicant may request the Authority to give the applicant notice stating whether or not the information contained in the register shows that a person ('the donor') other than a parent of the applicant would or might, but for the relevant statutory provisions, be the parent of the applicant, and if it does show that (1) giving the applicant so much of that information as relates to the donor as the Authority is required by regulations to give (but no other information), or (2) stating whether or not that information shows that there are other persons of whom the donor is not the parent but would or might, but for the relevant statutory provisions, be the parent and if so (a) the number of those other persons, (b) the sex of each of them, and (c) the year of birth of each of them: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 31ZA(2). See further s 31ZA(3)-(7).

A person ('the applicant') may by notice to the Authority require the Authority to comply with a request under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 31ZB(2): s 31ZB(1). The applicant may request the Authority to give the applicant notice stating whether or not information contained in the register shows that, but for the relevant statutory provisions, the applicant would or might be related to a person specified in the request as (i) a person whom the applicant proposes to marry, (ii) a person with whom the applicant proposes to enter into a civil partnership, or (iii) a person with whom the applicant is in an intimate physical relationship or with whom the applicant proposes to enter into an intimate physical relationship: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 31ZB(2). See further s 31ZB(3)-(7).

The Authority has power to inform a donor of the fact that a donor-conceived person has requested information about him: see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 31ZC.

3. Provision to donor of information about resulting children and provision of information about donor-conceived genetic siblings

Donors (including past donors) may be provided with information on request about the number, sex and year of birth of children born as a result of their donations: see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 31ZD (ss 31ZD, 31ZE substituted by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 24).

Donor-conceived people may request and obtain identifying information about their genetic half-siblings who were conceived using gametes from the same donor, where neither is the donor's legal offspring: see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 31ZE.

4. Voluntary contact register

The Authority may (1) set up a voluntary contact register in such manner as it thinks fit, (2) keep a voluntary contact register in such manner as it thinks fit, (3) determine criteria for eligibility for inclusion on the register and the particulars that may be included, (4) charge a fee to persons who wish their particulars to be entered on the register, (5) arrange for samples of the DNA of such persons to be analysed at their request, (6) make such arrangements as it thinks fit for the disclosure of information on the register between persons who appear to the Authority to be genetically related, and (7) impose such conditions as it thinks fit to prevent a person ('A') from disclosing information to a person to whom A is genetically related ('B') where that information would identify any person who is genetically related to both A and B: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 31ZF(2) (ss 31ZF, 31ZG substituted by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 24). A 'voluntary contact register' means a register of persons who have expressed their wish to receive information about any person to whom they are genetically related as a consequence of the provision to any person of treatment services in the United Kingdom before 1 August 1991: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 31ZF(1). The Authority may make arrangements with any person by whom a voluntary contact register is kept before the commencement of s 31ZF (ie 1 October 2009: SI 2009/2232) for the supply by that person to the Authority of the information contained in the register maintained by that person: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 31ZF(3).

The Authority may, instead of keeping a voluntary contact register, give financial assistance to any person who sets up or keeps a voluntary contact register: see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 31ZG.

102-112 Parentage under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990

For provision as to parenthood in cases involving assisted reproduction see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 Pt 2 (ss 33-58); and PARA 112A.

CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(3) LEGAL PARENTAGE/(iv) Human Assisted Reproduction/B. PARENTAGE UNDER THE HUMAN FERTILISATION AND EMBRYOLOGY ACT 1990/108. Disclosure of information about parentage.

108. Disclosure of information about parentage.

A person who has attained the age of 18 ('the applicant') may, by notice to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority ('the Authority')<sup>1</sup>, require it to comply with a request for information<sup>2</sup>, and the Authority must do so if the information contained in the register<sup>3</sup> shows that the applicant was, or may have been, born in consequence of treatment services<sup>4</sup>, and he has been given a suitable opportunity to receive proper counselling about the implications of compliance with the request<sup>5</sup>. The applicant may request the Authority to give him notice stating whether or not the information contained in the register shows that a person other than a parent of the applicant would or might, but for the operation of certain provisions of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990<sup>6</sup>, be a parent of the applicant<sup>7</sup>. If the register does contain such information, the notice to the applicant must: (1) give him so much of that information as relates to the person concerned as the Authority is required by regulations<sup>8</sup> to give, but no other information<sup>9</sup>; or (2) state whether or not the information shows that, but for the operation of certain provisions of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990<sup>10</sup>, the applicant and the person specified in the request as a person whom the applicant proposes to marry, would or might be related<sup>11</sup>.

A person who has not attained the age of 18 ('the minor') may, by notice to the Authority specifying another person ('the intended spouse') as a person whom the minor proposes to marry, require the Authority to comply with a request<sup>12</sup> to give the minor notice stating whether or not the information contained in the register shows that, but for the operation of certain provisions of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990<sup>13</sup>, the minor and the intended spouse would or might be related<sup>14</sup>. The Authority must comply with the request if (a) the information contained in the register shows that the minor was, or may have been, born in consequence of treatment services<sup>15</sup>; and (b) the minor has been given a suitable opportunity to receive proper counselling about the implications of compliance with the request<sup>16</sup>.

Where a claim is made before the Registrar General<sup>17</sup> that a man is or is not the father of a child and it is necessary or desirable for the purpose of any function of the Registrar General to determine whether the claim is or may be well-founded<sup>18</sup>, the Authority must comply with any request made by the Registrar General by notice to the Authority to disclose whether any information on the register<sup>19</sup> tends to show that the man may be the father of the child<sup>20</sup> and, if it does, the Authority must disclose that information<sup>21</sup>.

1 As to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority see para 107 note 1 ante.

2 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 31(3). The request for information is a request under s 31(4): see the text and note 7 infra.

8 Regulations cannot require the Authority to give any information as to the identity of a person whose gametes have been used or from whom an embryo has been taken if a person to whom a licence under ibid Sch 2 applied was provided with the information at a time when the Authority could not have been required to give information of the kind in question: s 31(5). As to the making of regulations under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 generally see para 112 post.

9 Ibid s 31(4)(a). The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority (Disclosure of Donor Information) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/1511, were made under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 31(4)(a), and they provide that the following information about the donor is to be given to the applicant (Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority (Disclosure of Donor Information) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/1511, regs 1, 2(1)):

- 22 (1) the sex, height, weight, ethnic group, eye colour, hair colour, skin colour, year of birth, country of birth and marital status of the donor (reg 2(2)(a));
- 23 (2) whether the donor was adopted (reg 2(2)(b));
- 24 (3) the ethnic group of the donor's parents (reg 2(2)(c));
- 25 (4) the screening tests carried out on the donor and information on his personal and family medical history (reg 2(2)(d));
- 26 (5) whether the donor has a child, the sex of that child and where the donor has children, the number of those children and the sex of each of them (reg 2(2)(e));
- 27 (6) the donor's religion, occupation, interests and skills and why the donor provided sperm, eggs or embryos (reg 2(2)(f));
- 28 (7) matters contained in any description of himself as a person which the donor has provided (reg 2(2)(g));
- 29 (8) any additional matter which the donor has provided with the intention that it be made available to the applicant (reg 2(2)(h)).

This information is not to include information which may identify the donor, either by itself or in combination with any other information which is likely to come into the possession of the applicant: reg 2(2).

The Authority is, however, required to give information from which the donor may be identified which he provides after 31 March 2005 to a person to whom a licence applies, being information as to:

- 30 (a) any matter specified in heads (1)-(8) supra (reg 2(3)(a));
- 31 (b) the surname and each forename of the donor and, if different, the surname and each forename of the donor used for the registration of his birth (reg 2(3)(b));
- 32 (c) the date of birth of the donor and the town or district in which he was born (reg 2(3)(c));
- 33 (d) the appearance of the donor (reg 2(3)(d));
- 34 (e) the last known postal address of the donor (reg 2(3)(e)).

The information which the Authority is required to give to the applicant does not include any information which, at the time of the request, the applicant indicates he does not wish to receive: reg 2(4).

No person who is or has been a member or employee of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority ('the Authority')<sup>1</sup> may disclose any information which he holds or has held as such a member or employee<sup>2</sup> which is: (1) any information contained or required to be contained in the register<sup>3</sup>; or (2) any other information obtained by any member or employee of the Authority on terms or in circumstances requiring it to be held in confidence<sup>4</sup>.

- 36 (ii) made with the consent of the person or persons whose confidence would otherwise be protected<sup>14</sup>; or
- 37 (iii) which has been lawfully made available to the public before the disclosure is made<sup>15</sup>.

The above provisions<sup>16</sup> do not apply to the disclosure to any individual of information which: (A) relates to the provision of treatment services<sup>17</sup> for any identifiable individual, or the keeping or use of the gametes<sup>18</sup> of any identifiable individual or of an embryo<sup>19</sup> taken from any identifiable woman<sup>20</sup>; and (B) relates only to that individual or, in the case of an individual treated together with another, only to that individual and that other<sup>21</sup>.

109 Restrictions on disclosure of information by members and employees of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority

In exercise of the powers conferred on him by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 33D, the Secretary of State has made the Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Disclosure of Information for Research Purposes) Regulations 2010, SI 2010/995.

TEXT AND NOTES 22-24--Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 41(5) amended: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 29(5).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/1. CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(3) LEGAL PARENTAGE/(iv) Human Assisted Reproduction/B. PARENTAGE UNDER THE HUMAN FERTILISATION AND EMBRYOLOGY ACT 1990/110. Restrictions on disclosure of information by licence holders.

110. Restrictions on disclosure of information by licence holders.

No person who is, or has been, a person to whom a licence applies<sup>1</sup> and no person to whom directions<sup>2</sup> have been given may disclose any registrable information<sup>3</sup> which he holds or has held as such a person<sup>4</sup>. However, this does not apply to any disclosure of information made:

- 38 (1) to a person as a member or employee of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority ('the Authority')<sup>5</sup>;
- 39 (2) to a person to whom a licence applies for the purposes of his functions as such<sup>6</sup>;
- 40 (3) so far as it identifies a person who, but for the operation of certain provisions of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990<sup>7</sup>, would or might be a parent of a person who instituted proceedings relating to child disability following fertility treatment under the Congenital Disabilities (Civil Liability) Act 1976<sup>8</sup>, but only for the purpose of defending such proceedings, or instituting connected proceedings for compensation against that parent<sup>9</sup>;
- 41 (4) so that no individual to whom the information relates can be identified<sup>10</sup>;
- 42 (5) in pursuance of directions given by a licensing committee where a licence has been varied or has ceased to have effect, whether by expiry, suspension, revocation or otherwise, or given by a licensing committee proposing to suspend, revoke or vary a licence<sup>11</sup>;
- 43 (6) necessarily, for any purpose preliminary to proceedings, or for the purposes of, or in connection with, any proceedings<sup>12</sup>;
- 44 (7) for the purpose of establishing, in any proceedings relating to an application for a parental order<sup>13</sup>, whether certain conditions<sup>14</sup> are met<sup>15</sup>; or
- 45 (8) on an application for access to health records<sup>16</sup>.

In the case of information relating to the provision of treatment services<sup>17</sup> for any identifiable individual, the restriction on disclosure of information<sup>18</sup> does not apply: (a) where one individual is identifiable, to disclosure with the consent of that individual<sup>19</sup>; (b) where both a woman and a man treated together with her are identifiable, to disclosure with the consent of them both, or if disclosure is made for the purpose of disclosing information about the provision of treatment services for one of them, to disclosure with the consent of that individual<sup>20</sup>; or (c) to disclosure in an emergency, that is to say, disclosure made by a person who is satisfied that it is necessary to make the disclosure to avert an imminent danger to the health of an individual with whose consent the information could be disclosed<sup>21</sup>, and in circumstances where it is not reasonably practicable to obtain that individual's consent<sup>22</sup>.

For the purposes of head (a) and head (b) above: (i) the consent must be to disclosure to a specific person, except where disclosure is to a person who needs to know (A) in connection with the provision of treatment services, or any other description of medical, surgical or obstetric services, for the individual giving the consent; (B) in connection with the carrying out of an audit of clinical practice; or (C) in connection with the auditing of accounts<sup>23</sup>; and (ii) consent to disclosure given at the request of another must be disregarded unless, before it is given, the person requesting it takes reasonable steps to explain to the individual from whom it is requested the implications of compliance with the request<sup>24</sup>.

In the case of information which shows that any identifiable individual was, or may have been, born in consequence of treatment services, the restriction on disclosure of information<sup>25</sup> does not apply to any disclosure which is necessarily incidental to disclosure under heads (a) to (c) above<sup>26</sup>.

Regulations may provide for additional exceptions to the restriction on disclosure of information<sup>27</sup>.

These provisions<sup>28</sup> do not apply to the disclosure to any individual of information which: (aa) relates to the provision of treatment services for any identifiable individual, or the keeping or use of the gametes of any identifiable individual or of an embryo<sup>29</sup> taken from any identifiable woman<sup>30</sup>; and (bb) relates only to that individual or, in the case of an individual treated together with another, only to that individual and that other<sup>31</sup>.

Any person who discloses any information in contravention of these provisions is guilty of an offence and liable to a term of imprisonment<sup>32</sup>, or a fine<sup>33</sup>, or both<sup>34</sup>.

1    Ie (1) an individual under whose supervision the activities authorised by a licence under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 Sch 2, authorising activities in the course of providing treatment services, the storage of gametes and embryos, or activities for the purposes of a project of research, are carried on; (2) any person designated in such a licence, or in a notice given to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority by the person who holds the licence or the person described in head (1) supra, as a person to whom the licence applies; or (3) any person acting under the direction of the person described in head (1) supra or designated under head (2) supra: ss 2(1), 11(1), 17(1), (2). ### 111. Disclosure of information in the interests of justice.

Where in any proceedings before a court the question whether a person is or is not the parent of a child by virtue of certain provisions of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990<sup>1</sup> falls to be determined, the court may, on the application of any party to the proceedings, make an order requiring the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority ('the Authority')<sup>2</sup> (1) to disclose whether or not any information relevant to that question is contained in the register kept by the Authority<sup>3</sup>; and, if it is, (2) to disclose so much of it as is specified in the order<sup>4</sup>. However, such an order may not require the Authority to disclose any information which relates to the keeping or use of the gametes<sup>5</sup> of any identifiable individual or of an embryo<sup>6</sup> taken from any identifiable woman<sup>7</sup>.

The court may not make such an order unless it is satisfied that the interests of justice require it to do so, taking into account any representations made by any individual who may be affected by the disclosure, and the welfare of the child, if under the age of 18 years, and of any other person under that age who may be affected by the disclosure<sup>8</sup>.

Where, for the purpose of instituting certain proceedings under the Congenital Disabilities (Civil Liability) Act 1976<sup>9</sup>, it is necessary to identify a person who would or might be the parent of a child but for the operation of certain provisions of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990<sup>10</sup>, the court may, on the application of the child, make an order requiring the Authority to disclose any information contained in the register<sup>11</sup> identifying that person<sup>12</sup>.

TEXT AND NOTES--Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 45 further amended: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 30. The Secretary of State may by order make such provision modifying any provision made by or under any enactment as the Secretary of State considers necessary or expedient in consequence of any provision made by regulations under any of the relevant provisions of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990: see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 45A (added by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 31). For provision as to orders under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 45B (added by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 32).

NOTE 6--Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Disclosure of Information) Act 1992 repealed: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 Sch 8 Pt 1.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/1. CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(3) LEGAL PARENTAGE/(iv) Human Assisted Reproduction/B. PARENTAGE UNDER THE HUMAN FERTILISATION AND EMBRYOLOGY ACT 1990/112A. Parenthood in cases involving assisted reproduction.

112A. Parenthood in cases involving assisted reproduction.

The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 Pt 2 (ss 33-58) makes provision for parenthood in cases involving assisted reproduction. Sections 33-48 have effect only in relation to children carried by women as a result of the placing in them of embryos or of sperm and eggs, or their artificial insemination (as the case may be), after the commencement of those provisions (ie after 6 April 2009: SI 2009/479): Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 57(1).

1. Meaning of 'mother'

The woman who is carrying or has carried a child as a result of the placing in her of an embryo or of sperm and eggs, and no other woman, is to be treated as the mother of the child: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 33(1). Section 33(1) does not apply to any child to the extent that the child is treated by virtue of adoption as not being the woman's child: s 33(2). Section 33(1) applies whether the woman was in the United Kingdom or elsewhere at the time of the placing in her of the embryo or the sperm and eggs: s 33(3).

2. Meaning of 'father'

As to the application of the following provisions (ie the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 ss 35-41) see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 34.

If (1) at the time of the placing in her of the embryo or of the sperm and eggs or of her artificial insemination, a woman (referred to as 'W') was a party to a marriage, and (2) the creation of the embryo carried by her was not brought about with the sperm of the other party to the marriage, then, subject to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 38(2),(4), the other party to the marriage is to be treated as the father of the child unless it is shown that he did not consent to the placing in her of the embryo or the sperm and eggs or to her artificial insemination (as the case may be): Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 35(1). As to references to parties to a marriage see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 49. Section 35 applies whether W was in the United Kingdom or elsewhere at the time mentioned in head (1): s 35(2).

If no man is treated by virtue of s 35 as the father of the child and no woman is treated by virtue of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 42 (see PARA 112A.3) as a parent of the child but (a) the embryo or the sperm and eggs were placed in W, or W was artificially inseminated, in the course of treatment services provided in the United Kingdom by a person to whom a licence applies, (b) at the time when the embryo or the sperm and eggs were placed in W, or W was artificially inseminated, the agreed fatherhood conditions (as set out in the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 37) were satisfied in relation to a man, in relation to treatment provided to W under the licence, (c) the man remained alive at that time, and (d) the creation of the embryo carried by W was not brought about with the man's sperm, then, subject to s 38(2), (4), the man is to be treated as the father of the child: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 36.

Where a person is to be treated as the father of the child by virtue of s 35 or 36, no other person is to be treated as the father of the child: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 38(1). Sections 35 and 36 do not affect any presumption, applying by virtue of the rules of common law, that a child is the legitimate child of the parties to a marriage: s 38(2). Sections 35 and 36 do not apply to any child to the extent that the child is treated by virtue of adoption as not being the man's child: s 38(4).

If (i) the child has been carried by W as a result of the placing in her of an embryo or of sperm and eggs or her artificial insemination, (ii) the creation of the embryo carried by W was brought about by using the sperm of a man after his death, or the creation of the embryo was brought about using the sperm of a man before his death but the embryo was placed in W after his death, (iii) the man consented in writing (and did not withdraw the consent) (A) to the use of his sperm after his death which brought about the creation of the embryo carried by W or (as the case may be) to the placing in W after his death of the embryo which was brought about using his sperm before his death, and (B) to being treated for the purpose mentioned in the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 39(3) (ie the purpose of enabling the man's particulars to be entered as the particulars of the child's father in a relevant register of births) as the father of any resulting child, (iv) W has elected in writing not later than the end of the period of 42 days from the day on which the child was born for the man to be treated for the purpose mentioned in s 39(3) as the father of the child, and (v) no one else is to be treated as the father of the child by virtue of s 35 or 36 or by virtue of s 38(2), or as a parent of the child by virtue of s 42 or 43 (see PARA 112A.3) or by virtue of adoption, then the man is to be treated for the purpose mentioned in s 39(3) as the father of the child: see the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 39. For the meaning of 'relevant register of births' see the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 51. Similar provision to s 39 is made in cases where donated sperm has been used: see the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 40. The requirement under s 39 or 40 as to the making of an election is nevertheless to be treated as satisfied if the required election is made after the end of that period but with the consent of the Registrar General: see the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 52.

Where the sperm of a man who had given such consent as is required by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 Sch 3 para 5 (consent to use of gametes for purposes of treatment services or non-medical fertility services: see MEDICAL PROFESSIONS) was used for a purpose for which such consent was required, he is not to be treated as the father of the child: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 41(1). Where the sperm of a man, or an embryo the creation of which was brought about with his sperm, was used after his death, he is not, subject to s 39, to be treated as the father of the child: s 41(2). Section 41(2) applies whether W was in the United Kingdom or elsewhere at the time of the placing in her of the embryo or of the sperm and eggs or of her artificial insemination: s 41(3).

3. Cases in which woman to be other parent

As to the application of the following provisions (ie the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 ss 42-47) see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 34.

If at the time of the placing in her of the embryo or the sperm and eggs or of her artificial insemination, W was a party to a civil partnership, then subject to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 45(2), (4), the other party to the civil partnership is to be treated as a parent of the child unless it is shown that she did not consent to the placing in W of the embryo or the sperm and eggs or to her artificial insemination (as the case may be): Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 42(1). As to references to parties to a civil partnership see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 50. Section 42 applies whether W was in the United Kingdom or elsewhere at the time mentioned in s 42(1): s 42(2).

If no man is treated by virtue of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 35 (see PARA 112A.2) as the father of the child and no woman is treated by virtue of s 42 as a parent of the child but (1) the embryo or the sperm and eggs were placed in W, or W was artificially inseminated, in the course of treatment services provided in the United Kingdom by a person to whom a licence applies, (2) at the time when the embryo or the sperm and eggs were placed in W, or W was artificially inseminated, the agreed female parenthood conditions (as set out in the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 44) were met in relation to another woman, in relation to treatment provided to W under that licence, and (3) the other woman remained alive at that time, then, subject to s 45(2), (4), the other woman is to be treated as a parent of the child: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 43.

Where a woman is treated by virtue of s 42 or 43 as a parent of the child, no man is to be treated as the father of the child: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 45(1). Sections 42 and 43 do not affect any presumption, applying by virtue of the rules of common law, that a child is the legitimate child of the parties to a marriage: s 45(2). As to references to parties to a marriage see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 49. Sections 42 and 43 do not apply to any child to the extent that the child is treated by virtue of adoption as not being the woman's child: s 45(4).

Provision is made about registration of a deceased same sex partner as a child's parent in the register of births in certain circumstances: see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 46. See also Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 52.

A woman is not to be treated as the parent of a child whom she is not carrying and has not carried, except where she is so treated (a) by virtue of s 42 or 43, or (b) by virtue of s 46, or (c) by virtue of adoption: see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 47.

References to a child's father in legislation and in other documents whenever passed or made are to be read, in relevant cases, as references to a woman who is the child's parent by virtue of provision in ss 42 and 43: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 53.

4. Effect of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 ss 33 to 47

Where by virtue of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 33, 35, 36, 42 or 43 (see PARAS 112A.1-112A.3) a person is to be treated as the mother, father or parent of a child, that person is to be treated in law as the mother, father or parent (as the case may be) of the child for all purposes: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 48(1). Where by virtue of s 33, 38, 41, 45 or 47 (see PARAS 112A.1-112A.3) a person is not to be treated as a parent of the child, that person is to be treated in law as not being a parent of the child for any purpose: s 48(2). Where s 39(1) or 40(1) or (2) applies (see PARA 112A.2), the deceased man (1) is to be treated in law as the father of the child for the purpose mentioned in s 39(3) or 40(4), but (2) is to be treated in law as not being the father of the child for any other purpose: s 48(3). Where s 46(1) or (2) applies (see PARA 112A.3), the deceased woman (a) is to be treated in law as a parent of the child for the purpose mentioned in s 46(4), but (b) is to be treated in law as not being a parent of the child for any other purpose: s 48(4). Where any of s 48(1)-(4) has effect, references to any relationship between two people in any enactment, deed or other instrument or document (whenever passed or made) are to be read accordingly: s 48(5). For the meaning of 'enactment' see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 58(1). A child who (i) has a parent by virtue of s 42, or (ii) has a parent by virtue of s 43 who is at any time during the period beginning with the time mentioned in s 43(b) and ending with the time of the child's birth a party to a civil partnership with the child's mother, is the legitimate child of the child's parents: s 48(6). As to references to parties to a civil partnership see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 50. Nothing in the provisions of s 33(1) or ss 35-47, read with s 48 (A) affects the succession to any dignity or title of honour or renders any person capable of succeeding to or transmitting a right to succeed to any such dignity or title, or (B) affects the devolution of any property limited (expressly or not) to devolve (as nearly as the law permits) along with any dignity or title of honour: s 48(7).

5. Parental orders

On an application made by two people ('the applicants'), the court may make an order providing for a child to be treated in law as the child of the applicants if (1) the child has been carried by a woman who is not one of the applicants, as a result of the placing in her of an embryo or sperm and eggs or her artificial insemination, (2) the gametes of at least one of the applicants were used to bring about the creation of the embryo, and (3) the conditions in the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 54(2)-(8) are satisfied: s 54(1). Head (1) applies whether the woman was in the United Kingdom or elsewhere at the time of the placing in her of the embryo or the sperm and eggs or her artificial insemination: s 54(10). The applicants must be (a) husband and wife, (b) civil partners of each other, or (c) two persons who are living as partners in an enduring family relationship and are not within prohibited degrees of relationship in relation to each other: s 54(2). For the purposes of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 Pt 2 (ss 33-58), two persons are within prohibited degrees of relationship if one is the other's parent, grandparent, sister, brother, aunt or uncle; and in this provision references to relationships are to relationships of the full blood or half blood or, in the case of an adopted person, such of those relationships as would subsist but for adoption, and include the relationship of a child with his adoptive, or former adoptive, parents, but do not include any other adoptive relationships: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 58(2). Except in a case falling within s 54(11), the applicants must apply for the order during the period of six months beginning with the day on which the child is born: s 54(3). At the time of the application and the making of the order the child's home must be with the applicants, and either or both of the applicants must be domiciled in the United Kingdom or in the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man: s 54(4). At the time of the making of the order both the applicants must have attained the age of 18: s 54(5). The court must be satisfied that both (i) the woman who carried the child, and (ii) any other person who is a parent of the child but is not one of the applicants (including any man who is the father by virtue of s 35 or 36 (see PARA 112A.2) or any woman who is a parent by virtue of s 42 or 43 (see PARA 112A.3), have freely, and with full understanding of what is involved, agreed unconditionally to the making of the order: s 54(6). Section 54(6) does not require the agreement of a person who cannot be found or is incapable of giving agreement; and the agreement of the woman who carried the child is ineffective for the purpose of that provision if given by her less than six weeks after the child's birth: s 54(7). The court must be satisfied that no money or other benefit (other than for expenses reasonably incurred) has been given or received by either of the applicants for or in consideration of (A) the making of the order, (B) any agreement required by s 54(6), (C) the handing over of the child to the applicants, or (D) the making of arrangements with a view to the making of the order, unless authorised by the court: s 54(8). For the purposes of an application under s 54, the Children Act 1989 s 92(7)-(10), Sch 11 Pt 1 (jurisdiction of courts) apply for the purposes of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 54 to determine the meaning of 'the court' as they apply for the purposes of the Children Act 1989 and proceedings on the application are to be 'family proceedings' for the purposes of the Children Act 1989: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 54(9). An application which relates to a child born before the coming into force of s 54 (ie 6 April 2010: see SI 2010/987), and is made by two persons who, throughout the period applicable under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 30(2) (see PARA 106), were not eligible to apply for an order under s 30 in relation to the child as husband and wife, may be made within the period of six months beginning with the day on which Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 54 comes into force: s 54(11). See also Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 35A (added by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 26) (mitochondrial donation).

The Secretary of State may by regulations provide (aa) for any provision of the Adoption and Children Act 2002 to have effect, with such modifications (if any) as may be specified in the regulations, in relation to orders under s 54, and applications for such orders, as it has effect in relation to adoption, and applications for adoption orders, and (bb) for references in any enactment to adoption, an adopted child or an adoptive relationship to be read (respectively) as references to the effect of an order under s 54, a child to whom such an order applies and a relationship arising by virtue of the Adoption and Children Act 2002, as applied by the regulations, and for similar expressions in connection with adoption to be read accordingly: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 55(1), (3). For the meaning of 'enactment' see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 58(1). The regulations may include such incidental or supplemental provision as appears to the Secretary of State to be necessary or desirable in consequence of any provision made by virtue of head (aa) or (bb): s 55(2). In exercise of the power so conferred, the Secretary of State has made the Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Parental Orders) Regulations 2010, SI 2010/985. See also the Parental Orders (Prescribed Particulars and Forms of Entry) Regulations 2010, SI 2010/1205, reg 2.

102-112 Parentage under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990

For provision as to parenthood in cases involving assisted reproduction see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 Pt 2 (ss 33-58); and PARA 112A.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/1. CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(3) LEGAL PARENTAGE/(v) Proof of Parentage by means of Scientific Evidence/113. Scientific tests for determining parentage.

(v) Proof of Parentage by means of Scientific Evidence

113. Scientific tests for determining parentage.

In proceedings in which the issue of parentage arises<sup>1</sup>, any evidence relevant to the issue may properly be led<sup>2</sup>. In practice, reliance has increasingly been placed on scientific evidence<sup>3</sup>, and Part III of the Family Law Reform Act 1969<sup>4</sup> contains provisions for the use of scientific tests<sup>5</sup> in determining paternity<sup>6</sup>.

In any civil proceedings<sup>7</sup> in which the parentage of any person falls to be determined, the court may, either of its own motion or on an application<sup>8</sup> by any party to the proceedings, give a direction<sup>9</sup> (1) for the use of scientific tests to ascertain whether such tests show that a party to the proceedings is or is not the father or mother of that person<sup>10</sup>; and (2) for the taking, within a period specified in the direction, of bodily samples<sup>11</sup> from all or any of the following, namely, that person, any party alleged to be his father or mother, and any other party to the proceedings; and the court may at any time revoke or vary such a direction previously given by it<sup>12</sup>. Tests required by such a direction<sup>13</sup> may only be carried out by a body which has been accredited for these purposes<sup>14</sup>.

The individual carrying out scientific tests in pursuance of such a direction<sup>15</sup> must make to the court a report<sup>16</sup> in which he must state: (a) the results of the tests; (b) whether any party to whom the report relates is or is not excluded<sup>17</sup> by the results from being the father or mother of the person whose parentage is to be determined; and (c) in relation to any party who is not so excluded, the value, if any, of the results in determining whether that party is the father or mother of that person; and the report must be received by the court as evidence in the proceedings of the matters stated in it<sup>18</sup>.

Where such a report has been made to the court, any party may, with the permission of the court, or must if the court so directs, obtain from the tester a written statement explaining or amplifying any statement made in the report, and that statement is deemed for certain purposes<sup>19</sup> to form part of the report made to the court<sup>20</sup>.

Where such a direction<sup>21</sup> is given in any proceedings, a party to the proceedings is not entitled to call as a witness the tester, or any other person by whom any thing necessary for the purpose of enabling those tests to be carried out was done (i) unless the court otherwise directs; or (ii) unless within 14 days after receiving a copy of the report he serves notice on the other parties to the proceedings, or on such of the parties as the court directs, of his intention to call the tester or that other person; and where the tester or any such person is called as a witness the party who called him is entitled to cross-examine him<sup>22</sup>.

The party on whose application such a direction<sup>23</sup> is given must pay the cost of taking and testing bodily samples for the purpose of giving effect to the direction, including any expenses reasonably incurred by any person in taking any steps required of him for the purpose, and of making a report to the court<sup>24</sup>, but the amount paid is treated as costs incurred by him in the proceedings<sup>25</sup>.

general rule of compellability of witnesses; that exception not having been reproduced in the Matrimonial Causes Act 1973, it is apprehended that the parties are compellable witnesses on this matter. As to the competence and compellability of witnesses see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARAS 966, 969.

2 See eg C v C and C (legitimacy: photographic evidence) [1972] 3 All ER 577, [1972] 1 WLR 1335 (photographic evidence of family resemblance).

3 There was formerly a greater reliance on the common law presumption of legitimacy: see para 94 ante.

4 See the Family Law Reform Act 1969 Pt III (ss 20-25) (as amended); the text and notes 5-25 infra; and para 114 et seq post.

5 As originally enacted, the Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 20 provided for the use of blood tests to establish paternity; this was amended (as from 1 April 2001) to provide for the use of other scientific tests to take into account scientific developments (eg DNA testing). 'Blood tests' means blood tests carried out under the Family Law Reform Act 1969 Pt III (as amended), including any test made with the object of ascertaining the inheritable characteristics of blood: s 25 (definition as originally enacted). This definition has been replaced with a definition of 'bodily sample' by the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 23(2)(a), as from 1 April 2001: see note 11 infra. 'Scientific tests' means scientific tests carried out under the Family Law Reform Act 1969 Pt III (as amended) and made with the object of ascertaining the inheritable characteristics of bodily fluids or bodily tissue: s 25 (definition added by the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 23(2)(b)).

9 As to the procedure on making a direction see the Magistrates' Courts (Blood Tests) Rules 1971, SI 1971/1991, rr 5-7, 9, 10 (amended by SI 2001/776; SI 2005/617). As to the court's discretion in making a direction see para 115 post.

10 Where a mother cast doubt on the paternity of the child and did not oppose the taking of blood tests, the court was entitled to grant the husband's application for an order for the taking of such tests, if it was in the child's best interests: Re T (a minor) (blood tests) [1992] 2 FCR 663, [1993] 1 FLR 901, CA; cf Re F (a minor) (blood tests: parental rights) [1993] Fam 314, [1993] 3 All ER 596, CA.

11 'Bodily sample' means a sample of bodily fluid or bodily tissue taken for the purposes of scientific tests: Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 25 (definition added by the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 23(2)(a)).

12 Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 20(1) (substituted by the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 23(1)). The amendment made by the Family Law Reform Act 1987 did not have effect in relation to any application made under any enactment repealed or amended by the Family Law Reform Act 1987 if that application was pending on 1 April 2001: see Sch 3 para 1; Family Law Reform Act 1987 (Commencement No 3) Order 2001, SI 2001/777.

Where the proceedings in which the parentage of any person falls to be determined are proceedings on an application for a declaration of parentage, legitimacy or legitimation under the Family Law Act 1986 s 55A (as added) (see para 121 post) or s 56 (as substituted and amended) (see para 122 post), any reference in the Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 20(1) (as substituted) or s 20(2) (as substituted) (see the text and note 18 infra) to any party to the proceedings includes a reference to any person named in the application: s 20(2A) (added by the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 23(1); and amended by the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 83(5), Sch 8 para 9(b)).

It is apprehended that a direction may be made whether the child was born before or after the coming into force of the Family Law Reform Act 1987: Hager v Osborne [1992] Fam 94, [1992] 2 All ER 494. The fact that an application made under the Affiliation Proceedings Act 1957 (now repealed) was unsuccessful does not prevent the court from entertaining an application under the legislation now in force: Hager v Osborne supra.

13 Ie a direction under the Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 20 (as amended).

14 See ibid s 20(1A) (added by the Children Act 1989 s 89; and substituted by the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 82(1), (2)(a)). The amendments made by the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 did not have effect in relation to any proceedings which were pending on 1 April 2001: s 82(5); Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 (Commencement No 7) Order 2001, SI 2001/774.

15 It is a direction under the Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 20(1) (as substituted and amended): see the text and note 12 supra. In Re H (paternity: blood test) [1996] 4 All ER 28 at 45, [1996] 2 FLR 65 at 83, CA, Ward LJ proposed the form of words for the direction as follows: 'It is directed pursuant to s 20(1) of the Family Law Reform Act 1969: (1) that blood tests (including DNA tests) be used to ascertain whether such tests show that [Mr A] is or is not excluded from being the father of [child B] born on [date]; and (2) that for that purpose blood samples be taken on or before [date] from the following persons: [Mr A], [Mrs C, mother of child B]] and [child B]; and (3) that the person appearing to the court to have care and control of [child B], who is under the age of 16, is [Mrs C]; and (4) that such tests be carried out by [Name of expert]'.

16 The report must be in the form prescribed by regulations made under the Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 22 (as amended) (see para 118 post): s 20(3). For the relevant form see the Blood Tests (Evidence of Paternity) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1861, reg 10, Sch 1 Form 2 (amended by SI 1989/776; SI 2001/773; SI 2005/617). #### 114. Consent to the taking of samples.

A bodily sample<sup>1</sup> which is required to be taken from any person for the purpose of giving effect to a direction made by the court for the use of scientific tests<sup>2</sup> must not be taken from that person except with his consent<sup>3</sup>. The consent of a minor who has attained the age of 16 years to the taking from himself of a bodily sample is as effective as it would be if he were of full age, and where a minor has so given effective consent to the taking of a bodily sample, it is not necessary to obtain any consent for it from any other person<sup>4</sup>. A bodily sample may be taken from a person under the age of 16 years (not being a person suffering from a mental disorder<sup>5</sup> and incapable of understanding the nature of scientific tests) (1) if the person who has the care and control of him consents; or (2) where that person does not consent, if the court considers that it would be in the minor's best interests for the sample to be taken<sup>6</sup>.

The above provisions are without prejudice to the court's discretion to draw inferences from the failure to comply with a direction for scientific tests<sup>7</sup>.

CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(3) LEGAL PARENTAGE/(v) Proof of Parentage by means of Scientific Evidence/115. The court's discretion to make a direction for tests.

115. The court's discretion to make a direction for tests.

The court has a discretion as to whether or not to make a direction for carrying out scientific tests and taking bodily samples<sup>1</sup>. It appears that a court called upon to exercise that discretion should allow a test to be administered on a child unless satisfied that such a course would be against the child's interests<sup>2</sup>, although the child's welfare is not paramount when considering whether to make a direction for tests<sup>3</sup>. However, it will not be considered to be for the child's benefit to grant an application which is designed for some ulterior motive to call in question the legitimacy, otherwise unimpeached, of a child who had previously enjoyed a legitimate status<sup>4</sup>. Further, it would generally be unwise to subject a child who is able to understand the purpose and implications of such tests to the procedure against the child's will<sup>5</sup>. A test will not be directed merely to satisfy curiosity, if it would make no difference to the outcome of the proceedings<sup>6</sup>. Furthermore, although it is generally in the child's interests to know his true parentage, the court is entitled to consider the danger to the child's welfare of disrupting an established family unit by ordering a test as to the child's paternity<sup>7</sup>.

1 See the Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 20(1) (as substituted); and para 113 ante. A party's refusal to consent to undergo testing, the welfare of the child and the prospects of success in the proceedings in which the paternity issue has arisen are all factors to be taken into account in determining whether to exercise discretion under the Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 20(1) (as substituted): Re H (a minor) (blood tests: parental rights) [1997] Fam 89, [1996] 4 All ER 28, CA. An adverse inference may be drawn from the refusal to consent to tests: Re CB (a minor) (blood tests) [1994] 2 FCR 925, [1994] 2 FLR 762; cf Re R (a minor) (blood tests: constraint) [1998] 1 FCR 41, [1998] 1 FLR 745 (see para 114 ante). As to the inference which may be drawn see para 116 post.

Before the enactment of the Family Law Reform Act 1969 there was some difference of judicial opinion as to how this discretion should be exercised in cases where the question of submitting a child to blood testing (which might have the effect of bastardising him) arose: see W v W [1970] 1 All ER 1157, [1970] 1 WLR 682n, CA; S v McC (formerly S) and M (S intervening) [1970] 1 All ER 1162, [1970] 1 WLR 672, CA (affd sub nom S v S, W v Official Solicitor [1972] AC 24, [1970] 3 All ER 107, HL).

2 S v S, W v Official Solicitor [1972] AC 24, [1970] 3 All ER 107, HL. Where the mother of a child, who had been brought up as a child of the family, had had intercourse with her husband and another man at about the time of conception, but the relationship with the latter had ceased well before the birth, it was not in the child's best interests to put the presumption of legitimacy at risk, and the court would not, therefore, make a direction for blood tests to be carried out: Re F (a minor) (blood tests: parental rights) [1993] Fam 314, [1993] 3 All ER 596, CA; followed in Re CG (a minor) (blood tests) [1994] 2 FCR 889, sub nom Re G (a minor) (blood tests) [1994] 1 FLR 495. to have the child living with her. Where the parties' rights under the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) conflict, the best interests of the child are to be given particular consideration: Re T (a child) (DNA tests: paternity) [2001] 3 FCR 577, [2001] 2 FLR 1190 (child's right to know true parentage was weightiest consideration). ### 116. Failure to comply with direction for tests.

Where a court gives a direction for the use of tests to determine parentage<sup>1</sup> and any person fails to take any step required of him for the purpose of giving effect to that direction, the court may draw such inferences, if any, from that fact as appear proper in the circumstances<sup>2</sup>. Where in any proceedings in which the parentage of any person falls to be determined by the court hearing the proceedings there is a presumption of law that that person is legitimate<sup>3</sup>, then if (1) a direction<sup>4</sup> is given in those proceedings; and (2) any party who is claiming any relief in the proceedings and who for the purpose of obtaining that relief is entitled to rely on the presumption fails to take any step required of him for the purpose of giving effect to the direction, the court may adjourn the hearing for such a period as it thinks fit to enable that party to take that step<sup>5</sup>. If at the end of that period the party has failed without reasonable cause to take the step the court may, without prejudice to its discretion to draw inferences<sup>6</sup>, dismiss his claim for relief notwithstanding the absence of evidence to rebut the presumption<sup>7</sup>.

Where any person named in a direction for the use of tests to determine parentage<sup>8</sup> fails to consent to the taking of a bodily sample<sup>9</sup> from himself or from any person named in the direction of whom he has the care and control, he is deemed for these purposes to have failed to take a step required of him for the purpose of giving effect to the direction<sup>10</sup>.

The court is entitled to draw the inference that a putative father is the father of a child by his refusal to submit to tests even where there exists a presumption that the child is the legitimate child of another man: F v Child Support Agency [1999] 2 FCR 385, [1999] 2 FLR 244 (refusal of putative father to undergo tests added weight to the mother's evidence that he was the father). See also Secretary of State for Work and Pensions v Jones [2003] EWHC 2163 (Fam), [2004] 1 FLR 282 (inference of paternity drawn in case where respondent refused to undergo DNA test after having affair with married woman). To avoid an adverse inference being drawn the putative father would have to advance very clear reasons, which it would be just and reasonable to allow him to maintain, for refusing to undergo tests: Re GW (blood tests) [1994] 2 FCR 908, sub nom Re A (a minor) (paternity: refusal of blood test) [1994] 2 FLR 463 at 473, CA, per Waite LJ. 118. Power to provide for manner of giving effect to a direction for use of scientific tests.

Regulations<sup>1</sup> may make provision as to the manner of giving effect to directions made by a court for the use of tests to determine parentage<sup>2</sup> and, in particular, any such regulations may<sup>3</sup>:

- 46 (1) provide that bodily samples<sup>4</sup> must not be taken except by registered medical practitioners or members of such professional bodies as may be prescribed by the regulations<sup>5</sup>;
- 47 (2) prescribe the bodily samples to be taken<sup>6</sup>;
- 48 (3) regulate the taking, identification and transport of bodily samples<sup>7</sup>;
- 49 (4) require the production at the time when a bodily sample is to be taken of such evidence of the identity of the person from whom it is to be taken as may be prescribed by the regulations<sup>8</sup>;
- 50 (5) require any person from whom a bodily sample is to be taken, or, in such cases as may be prescribed by the regulations, such other person as may be so prescribed, to state in writing whether he or the person from whom the sample is to be taken, as the case may be, has during such period as may be specified in the regulations suffered from any such illness or condition or undergone any such treatment as may be so specified or received a transfusion of blood<sup>9</sup>;
- 51 (6) prescribe conditions which a body must meet in order to be eligible for accreditation for the purposes of giving effect to a direction made by the court for the use of tests to determine parentage<sup>10</sup>;
- 52 (7) prescribe the scientific tests to be carried out and the manner in which they are to be carried out<sup>11</sup>;
- 53 (8) regulate the charges that may be made for the taking and testing of bodily samples and for the making of a report to a court concerning any tests which have been carried out in pursuance of a direction made by the court for the use of tests to determine parentage<sup>12</sup>;
- 54 (9) make provision for securing that so far as practicable the bodily samples to be tested for the purpose of giving effect to a direction made by the court for the use of tests to determine parentage are tested by the same person<sup>13</sup>;
- 55 (10) prescribe the form of the report to be made to a court for the purposes of giving effect to a direction made by the court for the use of tests to determine parentage<sup>14</sup>;
- 56 (11) make different provision for different cases or descriptions of case<sup>15</sup>.

The power to make regulations is exercisable by statutory instrument<sup>16</sup> which is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament<sup>17</sup>.

119. Procedure for sampling and testing.

A sampler<sup>1</sup> may not take a sample<sup>2</sup> from a subject<sup>3</sup> unless Parts I and II of a direction form<sup>4</sup> have been completed, and the direction form purports to be signed by the proper officer of the court<sup>5</sup> or some person on his behalf<sup>6</sup>. Without prejudice to the provisions of rules of court, the sampler may make arrangements for the taking of samples from the subjects or may change any such arrangements already made and make other arrangements<sup>7</sup>.

Where a subject attends a sampler in accordance with arrangements made under a direction<sup>8</sup> the sampler must take a sample from him on that occasion<sup>9</sup> unless (1) in the case of a blood sample, the sampler has reason to believe that the subject has been transfused with blood within the three months immediately preceding the day on which the sample is to be taken<sup>10</sup>; (2) in the sampler's opinion tests on a sample taken at that time from the subject could not effectively be carried out for the purposes of and in accordance with the direction<sup>11</sup>; or (3) in the sampler's opinion the taking of a sample might have an adverse effect on the health of the subject<sup>12</sup>.

A subject who attends a sampler for the taking of a sample may be accompanied by a legal representative<sup>13</sup>. A subject who is under a disability<sup>14</sup> who attends a sampler for the taking of a sample must be accompanied by a person of full age, who must identify him to the sampler<sup>15</sup>. Where a sampler does not take a sample from a subject in accordance with arrangements made for the taking of that sample, and no other arrangements are made, the sampler must return the direction form relating to that subject to the court, having stated on the form his reason for not taking a sample and any reason given by the subject, or the person having the care and control of the subject, for any failure to attend in accordance with those arrangements<sup>16</sup>.

Before a sample is taken from any subject who has attained the age of 12 months by the date of the direction, the sampler must ensure that a photograph<sup>17</sup> of that subject is affixed to the direction form relating to that subject<sup>18</sup>. Before a sample is taken from a subject, he, or where he is under a disability, the person of full age accompanying him, must complete a declaration<sup>19</sup> that the subject is the subject to whom the direction form relates and, where a photograph is affixed to the direction form, that the photograph is a photograph of that subject, which must be signed in the presence of, and witnessed by, the sampler<sup>20</sup>. A sample must not be taken from any subject unless (a) he or, where he is under a disability, the person having the care and control of him, has signed a statement on the direction form that he consents to the sample being taken<sup>21</sup>; (b) where he is under a disability and is not accompanied by the person having the care and control of him, the sampler is in possession of a statement in writing, purporting to be signed by that person that he consents to the sample being taken<sup>22</sup>; or (c) where he is under the age of 16 years, and the person with care and control of him does not consent, the court has nevertheless ordered that a sample be taken<sup>23</sup>. If a subject or, where he is under a disability, the person having the care and control of him does not consent to the taking of a sample, he may record on the direction form his reasons for withholding his consent<sup>24</sup>.

When the sampler has taken a sample he must place it in a suitable container, and must affix to the container a label giving the full name, age and sex of the subject from whom it was taken and signed by the sampler<sup>25</sup>. The sampler must state on the direction form that he has taken the sample and the date on which he did so<sup>26</sup>. When a sampler has taken samples, he must, where he is not himself the tester, pack the containers together with the relevant direction forms and despatch them forthwith to the tester by post by recorded delivery or deliver them or cause them to be delivered to the tester by some person other than a subject or a person who has accompanied a subject to the sampler<sup>27</sup>.

Samples taken for the purpose of giving effect to a direction must, so far as practicable, all be tested by the same tester<sup>28</sup>. A tester must not make tests on any samples for the purpose of a direction unless he will, in his opinion, be able to show from the results of those tests (whether alone or together with the results of tests on any samples which he has received and tested or expects to receive subsequently) that a subject is or is not excluded from being the father or mother of the person whose parentage falls to be determined<sup>29</sup>. On completion of the tests in compliance with the direction, the tester must forward to the court a report<sup>30</sup> together with the appropriate direction forms<sup>31</sup>. If at any time it appears to a tester that he will be unable to make tests in accordance with the direction, he must inform the court, giving his reasons, and return the direction forms in his possession to the court<sup>32</sup>.

1 'Sampler' means a registered medical practitioner, or a person who is under the supervision of such a practitioner and is either a registered nurse or a registered biomedical scientist, or a tester: Blood Tests (Evidence of Paternity) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1861, regs 1, 2(1) (definition substituted by SI 2001/773; and amended by SI 2004/2033). For the meaning of 'registered medical practitioner' see MEDICAL PROFESSIONS vol 30(1) (Reissue) para 4.

'Tester' means an individual employed to carry out tests by a body which has been accredited for the purposes of the Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 20 (as amended) (see para 113 ante) and which has been nominated in a direction to carry out tests: Blood Tests (Evidence of Paternity) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1861, reg 2(1) (definition substituted by SI 2001/773). A body is not eligible for accreditation for the purposes of the Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 20 (as amended) unless it is accredited to ISO/IEC/17025 (General Requirements for the Competence of Testing and Calibration Laboratories) by an accreditation body which complies with the requirements of ISO Guide 58 (Calibration and Testing Laboratory Accreditation Systems - General Requirements in Operation and Recognition): Blood Tests (Evidence of Paternity) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1861, reg 8A(1) (reg 8A added by SI 2001/773). However, a body which employed a person who, on 1 April 2001, was a tester appointed by the Lord Chancellor was, for three years after that date, eligible for accreditation for the purposes of the Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 20 (as amended) notwithstanding that it did not comply with the Blood Tests (Evidence of Paternity) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1861, reg 8A(1) (as added): reg 8A(2) (as so added).

'Direction' means a direction under the Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 20(1) (as substituted) (see para 113 ante): Blood Tests (Evidence of Paternity) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1861, reg 2(1). 'Direction form' means Form 1 set out in the Blood Tests (Evidence of Paternity) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1861, Sch 1 (amended by SI 2001/773): Blood Tests (Evidence of Paternity) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1861, reg 2(1).

2 'Sample' means bodily fluid or bodily tissue taken for the purpose of scientific tests: ibid reg 2(1) (definition substituted by SI 2001/773). ## (vi) Procedures for Judicial Determination of Parentage

120. In general.

In many cases, the issue of parentage will arise in the course of proceedings and will be dealt with, sometimes as a separate issue, in those proceedings. In particular, if jurisdiction is dependent on the applicant's being able to establish that he is the child's parent, that issue must be decided first, since the court will have no jurisdiction to make an order unless and until parentage has been established<sup>1</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> Re O (a minor: access) [1985] FLR 716, [1985] Fam Law 135, CA; Re W (a minor) (interim custody) [1990] FCR 540, [1990] 2 FLR 86, CA. The jurisdiction in wardship is not limited in this way: see A v B and Hereford and Worcester County Council [1986] 1 FLR 289, [1986] Fam Law 133.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/1. CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(3) LEGAL PARENTAGE/ (vi) Procedures for Judicial Determination of Parentage/121. Declarations of parentage.

121. Declarations of parentage.

Any person may apply to the High Court, a county court or a magistrates' court for a declaration as to whether or not a person named in the application is or was the parent of another person so named<sup>1</sup>. A court has jurisdiction to entertain such an application only if either of the persons so named in it:

- 57 (1) is domiciled<sup>2</sup> in England and Wales on the date of the application<sup>3</sup>; or
- 58 (2) has been habitually resident<sup>4</sup> in England and Wales throughout the period of one year ending with that date<sup>5</sup>; or
- 59 (3) died before that date and either (a) was at death domiciled in England and Wales<sup>6</sup>; or (b) had been habitually resident in England and Wales throughout the period of one year ending with the date of death<sup>7</sup>.

Except in cases where the declaration sought is as to whether or not (i) the applicant is the parent of a named person; (ii) a named person is the parent of the applicant; or (iii) a named person is the other parent of a named child of the applicant<sup>8</sup>, the court must refuse to hear an application unless it considers that the applicant has a sufficient personal interest in the determination of it<sup>9</sup>. Where an application for a declaration of parentage is made and one of the persons named in it is a child, the court may refuse to hear the application if it considers that the determination of the application would not be in the best interests of the child<sup>10</sup>. Where the court refuses to hear an application it may order that the applicant may not apply again for the same declaration without leave of the court<sup>11</sup>.

Where a declaration of parentage is made by a court on an application, the prescribed officer of the court must notify the Registrar General, in such a manner and within such period as may be prescribed<sup>12</sup>, of the making of that declaration<sup>13</sup>.

An appeal lies to the High Court against:

- 60 (A) the making by a magistrates' court of a declaration of parentage<sup>14</sup>;
- 61 (B) any refusal by a magistrates' court to make such a declaration; or
- 62 (C) any order<sup>15</sup> that the applicant may not apply again for the same declaration without leave of the court<sup>16</sup>.

123. The making and effect of declarations of status.

The court hearing an application for a declaration of parentage<sup>1</sup>, legitimacy or legitimation<sup>2</sup> may direct that the whole or any part of the proceedings are to be heard in private, and an application for such a direction must be heard in private unless the court otherwise directs<sup>3</sup>.

Any such declaration made, and any application for such a declaration, must be in the form prescribed by rules of court<sup>4</sup>, which may make provision:

- 63 (1) as to the information required to be given by any applicant for a declaration of parentage or legitimacy;
- 64 (2) as to the persons who are to be parties to proceedings on such an application; and
- 65 (3) requiring notice of such an application to be served on the Attorney-General and on persons who may be affected by any declaration applied for<sup>5</sup>.

No proceedings relating to declarations of status<sup>6</sup> affect any final judgment or decree already pronounced or made by any court of competent jurisdiction<sup>7</sup>.

Where on an application to a court for such a declaration<sup>8</sup>, the truth of the proposition to be declared is proved to the satisfaction of the court, the court must make that declaration unless to do so would manifestly be contrary to public policy<sup>9</sup>. Any such declaration made is binding on Her Majesty and all other persons<sup>10</sup>.

On the dismissal of an application for such a declaration, a court does not have any power to make any declaration for which an application has not been made<sup>11</sup>.

On an application to a court for a declaration of parentage<sup>1</sup>, legitimacy or legitimation<sup>2</sup>, the court may at any stage of the proceedings, of its own motion or on the application of any party to the proceedings, direct that all necessary papers in the matter be sent to the Attorney General<sup>3</sup>. The Attorney General, whether or not he is sent papers in relation to an application to a court for such a declaration, may intervene in the proceedings on that application in such manner as he thinks necessary or expedient, and may argue before the court any question in relation to the application which the court considers it necessary to have fully argued<sup>4</sup>.

(4) THE STATUS OF CHILDREN

125. Legitimacy, illegitimacy, etc.

The Family Law Reform Act 1987<sup>1</sup> provides that in that Act and in enactments passed and instruments made after 4 April 1988<sup>2</sup> references (however expressed) to any relationship between two persons are to be construed, unless the contrary intention appears, without regard to whether or not the father and mother of either of them, or the father and mother of any person through whom the relationship is deduced, have or had been married to each other at any time<sup>3</sup>.

The Family Law Reform Act 1987 also provides that in that Act and in enactments passed after 4 April 1988, unless the contrary intention appears, references to a person whose father and mother were married to each other at the time of his birth<sup>4</sup> include<sup>5</sup> references<sup>6</sup> to any person who is<sup>7</sup>:

- 66 (1) treated as legitimate by virtue of the Legitimacy Act 1976<sup>8</sup>;
- 67 (2) a legitimated person<sup>9</sup> within the meaning of the Legitimacy Act 1976<sup>10</sup>;
- 68 (3) an adopted person within the meaning of Chapter 4 of Part 1 of the Adoption and Children Act 2002<sup>11</sup>; or
- 69 (4) a person who is otherwise treated in law as legitimate<sup>12</sup>.

The Family Law Reform Act 1987 did not remove distinctions between the legitimate and the illegitimate in a number of areas<sup>13</sup>, notably in relation to entitlement to British citizenship<sup>14</sup>, and succession to the throne of the United Kingdom<sup>15</sup>. Moreover, that Act does not seek to inhibit Parliament from enacting legislation which treats those whose parents were married differently from those whose parents were not<sup>16</sup>.

1 The Family Law Reform Act 1987 is the latest in a series of statutes removing the legal disadvantages of illegitimacy so far as the child was concerned, and giving effect to recommendations made by the Law Commission in its Reports on Illegitimacy (Law Com no 118 (1982); Law Com no 157 (1986)). The Family Law Reform Act 1987 reverses the common law rule that a child was legitimate if, and only if, he was either born or conceived at a time when his parents were validly married to one another: see Birtwhistle v Vardill (1840) 7 Cl & Fin 895, HL. The common law did not accept the doctrine of legitimation by subsequent marriage; thus if the child's father was domiciled both at the time of the child's birth and at the time of the subsequent marriage in a country whose law recognised legitimation, English law would recognise the status thereby conferred (see Re Grove, Vaucher v Treasury Solicitor (1888) 40 ChD 216, CA), but a person legitimated in this way could not inherit English land (see Birtwhistle v Vardill supra; Re Don's Estate (1857) 27 LJCh 98; Re Hurl, Angelini v Dick [1952] Ch 722, [1952] 2 All ER 322; cf Bamgbose v Daniel [1955] AC 107, [1954] 3 All ER 263, PC). Illegitimacy involved many legal disadvantages at common law (see the survey in the Law Commission's Report on Illegitimacy (Law Com no 118 (1982)), and the general rule of construction was that in the absence of a contrary intention, express or implied, all statutory provisions in respect of children referred exclusively to legitimate children: R v Wyke (1746) Burr SC 264 at 265; R v Maude (1842) 6 Jur 646; R v Totley Inhabitants (1845) 7 QB 596 at 598 per Lord Denman CJ; R v Birmingham Inhabitants (1846) 8 QB 410 at 426 per Lord Denman CJ; Dickinson v North Eastern Rly Co (1863) 2 H & C 735 at 736 per Pollock CB; Re Makein, Makein v Makein [1955] Ch 194, [1955] 1 All ER 57 (a decision under the statutory provisions as to intestate succession); Re M (an infant) [1955] 2 QB 479, [1955] 2 All ER 911, CA.

2 The date of the coming into force of the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 1: see s 34(2); and the Family Law Reform Act 1987 (Commencement No 1) Order 1988, SI 1988/425. The Family Law Reform Act 1987 is only prospective in effect but made many amendments to the law in force before 4 April 1988 in order to minimise the distinctions between children which depended on legitimacy, and much of that legislation has now been subsumed in the provisions of the Children Act 1989. In particular, the Family Law Reform Act 1987 amends the Administration of Estates Act 1925 and the Trustee Act 1925 in order to give effect to the policy that the marriage of two people is generally irrelevant in determining their relationships with their children.

3 Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 1(1). In particular, the Children Act 1989 provides that references in that Act to a child whose father and mother were, or (as the case may be) were not, married to each other at the time of his birth must be read with the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 1 (which extends their meaning): see the Children Act 1989 s 2(3). Hence, in Re C (minors) [1994] Fam 1, sub nom M v C and Calderdale Metropolitan Borough Council [1993] 1 FLR 505, CA, it was held that the word 'parent' in the Children Act 1989 extended to the father of an illegitimate child (but note also J v J (Property Transfer Application) [1993] 1 FCR 471, [1993] 2 FLR 56). For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

4 For this purpose, the time of a person's birth is taken to include any time during the period beginning with: (1) the insemination resulting in his birth; or (2) where there was no such insemination, his conception, and (in either case) ending with his birth: Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 1(4).

5 Ibid s 1(3) (see the text to notes 8-12 infra) does not include references to a person whose father and mother were not married to each other at the time of his birth: s 1(2)(b).

6 Cognate references are to be construed accordingly: ibid s 1(2).

7 Ibid s 1(2). It appears to have been the draughtsman's intention that persons who were legitimate, or entitled to be treated as legitimate, under the law previously in force must be treated as persons whose 'father and mother were married to each other at the time of his birth' even though this was not in fact the case.

8 Ibid s 1(3)(a). The relevant provision of the Legitimacy Act 1976 is s 1 (as amended): see para 127 post.

9 'Legitimated person' means a person legitimated or recognised as legitimated: (1) under ibid s 2 or s 3; or (2) under the Legitimacy Act 1926 s 1 or s 8 (both repealed); or (3) except in the Legitimacy Act 1976 s 8 (see para 126 post), by a legitimation (whether or not by virtue of the subsequent marriage of his parents) recognised by the law of England and Wales and effected under the law of any other country: s 10(1). Cognate expressions are to be construed accordingly: s 10(1). For the purposes of the Legitimacy Act 1976, 'legitimated person' includes, where the context admits, a person legitimated, or recognised as legitimated, before the passing of the Children Act 1975: Legitimacy Act 1976 s 10(2).

12 Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 1(3)(d). See also para 130 post.

13 Provision may be made by order for the construction in accordance with the provisions of the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 1 (as amended) of such enactments passed before 4 April 1988 (see note 2 supra) as may be specified in the order; and such an order must so amend the enactments to which it relates as to secure that, so far as practicable, they continue to have the same effect notwithstanding the making of the order: s 30(1), (2). An order under s 30 must be made by statutory instrument subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 30(3).

NOTE 9--Definition of 'legitimated person' amended: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 Sch 6 para 19.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/1. CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(4) THE STATUS OF CHILDREN/126. Rights and obligations of legitimated persons.

126. Rights and obligations of legitimated persons.

A legitimated person<sup>1</sup> has the same rights, and is under the same obligations in respect of the maintenance and support of himself or of any other person, as if he had been born legitimate<sup>2</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'legitimated person' see para 125 note 9 ante. Note that the definition there given is qualified for this purpose.

2 Legitimacy Act 1976 s 8. Subject to the provisions of that Act, the provisions of any Act relating to claims for damages, compensation, allowance, benefit or otherwise by or in respect of a legitimate child apply in like manner in the case of a legitimated person: s 8.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/1. CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(4) THE STATUS OF CHILDREN/127. Persons treated as legitimate under the Legitimacy Act 1976.

127. Persons treated as legitimate under the Legitimacy Act 1976.

The child of a void marriage<sup>1</sup>, whenever born<sup>2</sup>, is to be treated as the legitimate child of his parents if at the time of: (1) the insemination resulting in the birth; (2) where there was no such insemination, the child's conception or; (3) if later, the celebration of the marriage, both or either of the parties reasonably believed that the marriage was valid<sup>3</sup>. This provision applies notwithstanding that the belief that the marriage was valid was due to a mistake as to law<sup>4</sup>. Moreover, in relation to a child born after 4 April 1988<sup>5</sup> it is presumed, unless the contrary is shown, that one of the parties to the void marriage reasonably believed at the time mentioned in head (1), head (2) or head (3) above that the marriage was valid<sup>6</sup>.

The above provisions<sup>7</sup> only apply where the father of the child was domiciled in England or Wales at the time of the birth or, if he died before the birth, was so domiciled immediately before his death<sup>8</sup>.

A person treated as legitimate by virtue of the above provisions<sup>9</sup> is included in any statutory reference after 4 April 1988<sup>10</sup> to a person whose father and mother were married at the time of his birth<sup>11</sup>.

1 'Void marriage' means a marriage, not being voidable only, in respect of which the High Court has or had jurisdiction to grant a decree of nullity, or would have or would have had such jurisdiction if the parties were domiciled in England or Wales: Legitimacy Act 1976 s 10(1). This expression applies only to a person whose parents had entered into the void marriage before the date of his birth; and it does not apply to a person whose parents only entered into the void marriage after he had been born (notwithstanding the fact that, had the marriage been valid, it would have legitimated him under s 2 or s 3 or otherwise): Re Spence, Spence v Dennis [1990] Ch 652, [1990] 2 All ER 827, CA. See also MATRIMONIAL AND CIVIL PARTNERSHIP LAW.

2 These words denote that the provisions of the Legitimacy Act 1976 are to have retrospective effect as regards children born after a void marriage had taken place rather than applying to all children of a void marriage regardless of whether they were born before or after the void marriage: Re Spence, Spence v Dennis [1990] Ch 652, [1990] 2 All ER 827, CA.

128. Persons who are legitimated persons under the Legitimacy Act 1976.

Where the parents of an illegitimate person marry one another then, if the father of the illegitimate person is at the date of the marriage domiciled in England or Wales, the marriage renders that person, if living, legitimate from the date of the marriage<sup>1</sup>. Similarly<sup>2</sup>, where the parents of an illegitimate person marry one another and the father is not at the time of the marriage domiciled in England or Wales but is domiciled in a country by the law of which the illegitimate person became legitimated by virtue of such subsequent marriage, that person, if living, must in England and Wales be recognised as having been so legitimated from the date of the marriage notwithstanding that, at the time of his birth, his father was domiciled in a country the law of which did not permit legitimation by subsequent marriage<sup>3</sup>.

A person legitimated or recognised as legitimated under the provisions of the Legitimacy Act 1926<sup>4</sup> is a legitimated person for the purposes of the Legitimacy Act 1976<sup>5</sup>. A person legitimated or recognised as legitimated by a legitimation (whether or not by virtue of the subsequent marriage of his parents<sup>6</sup>) recognised by the law of England and Wales and effected under the law of any other country, is also a legitimated person for the purposes of that Act<sup>7</sup>.

Where the parents of an illegitimate child marry or have married one another and the father was or is, at the time of the marriage and at the time of the birth of the illegitimate person, domiciled in a country other than England and Wales, by the law of which the illegitimate person became legitimated by virtue of such subsequent marriage, the illegitimate person is recognised in English law, by international comity, as legitimate<sup>8</sup>.

A person who is a legitimated person by virtue of any of the above provisions is included in any statutory reference after 4 April 1988<sup>9</sup> to a person whose father and mother were married at the time of his birth<sup>10</sup>.

A person legitimated under s 2 is a legitimated person for the purposes of the Legitimacy Act 1976. As to domicile see CONFLICT OF LAWS vol 8(3) (Reissue) para 35 et seq. The provisions of the Adoption Act 1976<sup>1</sup> prevent an adopted child from being illegitimate<sup>2</sup>. A person who is an adopted child within the meaning of that Act<sup>3</sup> is included in any statutory reference after 4 April 1988<sup>4</sup> to a person whose father and mother were married at the time of his birth<sup>5</sup>.

The provisions of the Adoption and Children Act 2002<sup>6</sup> provide that an adopted person is the legitimate child of the adopters or adopter and, if adopted by a couple, or by one of a couple<sup>7</sup>, is to be treated as the child of the relationship of the couple in question<sup>8</sup>.

An adopted person is to be treated in law as if born as the child of the adopters or adopter<sup>9</sup>.

The provisions of the Adoption Act 1976<sup>10</sup> and the Adoption and Children Act 2002<sup>11</sup> do not prevent an adopted child being legitimated<sup>12</sup> if either natural parent is the sole adoptive parent<sup>13</sup>.

A person who is treated in law as legitimate, otherwise than by virtue of the Legitimacy Act 1976<sup>1</sup>, the Adoption Act 1976 or the Adoption and Children Act 2002<sup>2</sup> is included in any statutory reference after 4 April 1988<sup>3</sup> to a person whose father and mother were married at the time of his birth<sup>4</sup>.

131. Distinctions between children of a void marriage and children legitimated by parents' subsequent valid marriage.

If the distinction between legitimate and illegitimate is of any significance in a particular case, it may also be necessary to consider whether there is any significant difference in the legal position of children of a void marriage treated as legitimate by virtue of the Legitimacy Act 1976<sup>1</sup> and those who are legitimated by the subsequent valid marriage of their parents<sup>2</sup>. It appears that there are the following differences<sup>3</sup>:

- 70 (1) the child of a void marriage is 'treated as legitimate', whereas the child of a subsequent valid marriage is 'legitimated'<sup>4</sup>;
- 71 (2) the child of a void marriage is treated as legitimate from birth, whereas the child legitimated by a subsequent valid marriage is legitimated only as from the date of the marriage<sup>5</sup>;
- 72 (3) the child of a void marriage has rights of succession and other rights by virtue of being treated as legitimate, whereas the child legitimated by a subsequent valid marriage has limited property and other rights<sup>6</sup>;
- 73 (4) the child of a void marriage can succeed to a title of honour, whereas the child legitimated by a subsequent valid marriage cannot<sup>7</sup>;
- 74 (5) trustees and personal representatives are not excused from making inquiries about the children of void marriages<sup>8</sup> but are so excused in the case of children who may have been legitimated by subsequent valid marriage<sup>9</sup>;
- 75 (6) there is no obligation to re-register the birth of a child of a void marriage, whereas there is such an obligation in relation to children born before valid marriage<sup>10</sup>.

It has been suggested that Parliament must therefore have intended to put the child 'born in wedlock' of a void marriage in the same position as he would have been in had the marriage been valid<sup>10</sup>.

132. Re-registration of birth of legitimated persons.

It is the duty of the parents of a legitimated person (or, in cases where re-registration can be effected on information furnished by one parent and one of the parents is dead, of the surviving parent) to furnish to the Registrar General information with a view to obtaining the re-registration of the birth of that person within three months after the date of the marriage by virtue of which he was legitimated<sup>1</sup>. Any parent who fails to give the required information commits an offence<sup>2</sup>. However, the failure of the parents or either of them to furnish such information in respect of any legitimated person does not affect the legitimation of that person<sup>3</sup>.

These requirements<sup>4</sup> do not apply in relation to a person who was legitimated otherwise than by virtue of the subsequent marriage of his parents<sup>5</sup>.

A person who is guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 1 on the standard scale: s 9(4) (amended by virtue of the Criminal Justice Act 1982 ss 37, 38, 46). 'Standard scale' means the standard scale of maximum fines for summary offences as set out in the Criminal Justice Act 1982 s 37 (as amended): see the Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1 (definition added by the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 170(1), Sch 15 para 58); and SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142. At the date at which this volume states the law, the standard scale is as follows: level 1, £200; level 2, £500; level 3, £1,000; level 4, £2,500; level 5, £5,000: Criminal Justice Act 1982 s 37(2) (substituted by the Criminal Justice Act 1991 s 17(1)). As to the determination of the amount of the fine actually imposed, as distinct from the level on the standard scale which it may not exceed, see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 164 (as amended); and SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 144.

(5) PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY IN RELATION TO CHILDREN

(i) Parental Responsibility

133. 'Custody' and other terms formerly used.

The term 'custody' was formerly widely used in the context of a relationship between a child and others<sup>1</sup>, notwithstanding uncertainty as to its meaning<sup>2</sup>. The Matrimonial Causes Act 1973 used the expression 'custody and education'<sup>3</sup>, custody being defined, in relation to a child, as including access to the child, and 'education' as including training<sup>4</sup>. The Children Act 1975 adopted the expression 'parental rights and duties'<sup>5</sup>, meaning all the rights and duties which by law the mother and father had in relation to a legitimate child and his property<sup>6</sup>. In particular, 'legal custody' was defined as meaning so much of the parental rights and duties as related to the person of the child including the place and manner in which his time was spent<sup>7</sup>. The court was given power in certain proceedings<sup>8</sup> to make orders dealing with legal custody. The Children Act 1975 also defined 'actual custody' as meaning actual possession of the child's person<sup>9</sup>.

These provisions were all replaced by the concept of 'parental responsibility' introduced by the Children Act 1989<sup>10</sup>.

2 See Hewer v Bryant [1970] 1 QB 357 at 373, [1969] 3 All ER 578 at 585-586, CA, per Sachs LJ, distinguishing between the wider meaning of 'custody', ie embracing a bundle of rights or powers including both the personal power physically to control the child until the years of discretion and the right to apply to the courts to exercise the powers of the Crown, and the limited meaning of 'custody', ie such personal power of physical control as a parent or guardian may have. See also para 4 ante.

4 See ibid s 52 (repealed). See also Dipper v Dipper [1981] Fam 31, [1980] 2 All ER 722, CA.

6 See the Children Act 1975 s 85(1) (repealed). The Children Act 1975 also provided that references to a parental right or duty must include the right of access and any other element included in a right or duty: s 85(1) (repealed).

7 See ibid s 86 (repealed). It was, however, specifically provided that a person was not entitled by virtue of having legal custody of a child to effect or arrange for his emigration from the United Kingdom unless he was a parent or guardian of the child: s 86 (repealed). CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(5) PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY IN RELATION TO CHILDREN/(i) Parental Responsibility/134. Parental responsibility under the Children Act 1989.

134. Parental responsibility under the Children Act 1989.

'Parental responsibility'<sup>1</sup> means all the rights, duties, powers, responsibilities<sup>2</sup> and authority which by law a parent of a child has in relation to the child and his property<sup>3</sup>. However, with one exception<sup>4</sup>, the Children Act 1989 does not set out what rights or responsibilities are comprised in that definition, and in order to determine the scope of the powers normally included within parental responsibility reference must be made to case law<sup>5</sup>. Moreover, it does not seem necessarily to follow from the fact that a person has parental responsibility that he is under any enforceable legal responsibility, such as the responsibility to support a child. A guardian, for example, has 'parental responsibility' for a child, but there would seem to be no procedure whereby a guardian can, as such, be made liable to provide financially for the child<sup>6</sup>.

It has been held that the court, in the exercise of its wardship jurisdiction<sup>7</sup>, is not limited to the powers which a parent has to act on a child's behalf<sup>8</sup>.

Orders may be made by the court limiting the exercising of parental responsibility by one party upon issues such as: (1) changing the child's name<sup>9</sup>; (2) where one parent wishes to emigrate with the child<sup>10</sup>; or (3) circumcision<sup>11</sup>. In situations such as those in heads (1) to (3) above, the welfare of the child is paramount and the court must consider the prescribed factors<sup>12</sup>. The court may consider restrictions on the use of parental responsibility in general terms if the child's welfare demands it<sup>13</sup>. In disputes involving medical treatment, there may be a rebuttable presumption that the united appraisal of both parents is correct in identifying where the welfare of the child lies<sup>14</sup>. There is further scope for restrictions on parental responsibility under the Crime and Disorder Act 1998<sup>15</sup>.

The court has jurisdiction to entertain an application for parental responsibility where the child is permanently out of the jurisdiction, even if that child was born outside the jurisdiction<sup>16</sup>.

1 It has been said that the value of this term is twofold: first, that it unifies the many references in legislation to parental rights, powers and the rest; and secondly, that it more accurately reflects the fact that the true nature of most parental rights is of limited powers to carry out parental duties: see the Department of Health publication An Introduction to the Children Act 1989 (HMSO, 1989) para 2.3.

2 Hewer v Bryant [1970] 1 QB 357, [1969] 3 All ER 578, CA.

3 Children Act 1989 s 3(1). However, parental responsibility also includes all the rights, powers and duties which a guardian of the child's estate would have had before the coming into force of s 5 (as amended) (court appointment of a child's guardian): see para 135 post. Where the court makes a residence order in favour of the father of a child it must, if the father would not otherwise have parental responsibility for the child, also make an order under s 4 (see para 139 post) giving him that responsibility: s 12(1). For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante. As to residence orders see para 262 post.

135. Right to administer property.

Parental responsibility<sup>1</sup> includes the rights, powers and duties which a guardian of the child's estate<sup>2</sup> would have had in relation to the child and his property<sup>3</sup>. These rights include in particular the right of the guardian to receive or recover in his own name, for the benefit of the child, property of whatever description and wherever situated which the child is entitled to receive or recover<sup>4</sup>. Thus it appears that persons with parental responsibility are entitled to administer the child's property and give valid receipts on the child's behalf<sup>5</sup>.

CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(5) PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY IN RELATION TO CHILDREN/(i) Parental Responsibility/136. Responsibility distinguished from liability.

136. Responsibility distinguished from liability.

The fact that a person has, or does not have, parental responsibility<sup>1</sup> for a child<sup>2</sup> does not affect:

- 76 (1) any obligation which he may have in relation to the child, such as a statutory duty to maintain the child<sup>3</sup>; or
- 77 (2) any rights which, in the event of the child's death, he or any other person may have in relation to the child's property<sup>4</sup>.

Liability to support a child is in fact imposed by a number of statutes<sup>5</sup>. In particular, a person who does not have parental responsibility<sup>6</sup> may be ordered to provide for the child, but will not, in the absence of an order of the court dealing with the matter, have parental responsibility for the child<sup>7</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'parental responsibility' see para 134 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

3 Children Act 1989 s 3(4)(a).

4 Ibid s 3(4)(b). As to the devolution of the estate of a child on intestacy see the Administration of Estates Act 1925 s 46(1)(iii), (iv) (as amended); the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 18; and EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS vol 17(2) (Reissue) para 583 et seq. The combined effect of the Administration of Estates Act 1925 and the Children Act 1989 is to make it clear beyond any doubt that, for example, a local authority which has parental responsibility for a child by virtue of a care order in its favour under the Children Act 1989 s 33 (see para 276 post) is not entitled to succeed to the child's property. As to care orders see para 270 et seq post.

5 See eg the Child Support Act 1991, the Child Support Act 1995 and the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000. The Children Act 1989 itself contains provisions (see para 528 et seq post) enabling the court to make orders for the support of a child, and empowering the court to make contribution orders in respect of a child who is being looked after or is in the care of a local authority: see para 537 post.

6 Eg a step-parent in relation to whom a child is 'a child of the family': see para 134 ante.

7 See para 137 post. However, anyone who has responsibility for a child may be liable criminally if the child is neglected: see the Children and Young Persons Act 1933 s 1 (as amended); and para 611 post.

136 Responsibility distinguished from liability

NOTES--Certain functions under provisions mentioned in this paragraph are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/1. CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(5) PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY IN RELATION TO CHILDREN/(i) Parental Responsibility/137. Powers of persons without parental responsibility.

137. Powers of persons without parental responsibility.

A person who does not have parental responsibility<sup>1</sup> for a particular child<sup>2</sup>, but has care of the child, may do what is reasonable in all the circumstances of the case for the purpose of safeguarding or promoting the child's welfare<sup>3</sup>.

2 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

3 Children Act 1989 s 3(5). This provision is subject to the provisions of the Children Act 1989: s 3(5). This means, for example, that a person with care would not be entitled to act contrary to the terms of a prohibited steps order made under that Act: see para 261 post. See also B v B (minor) (residence order) [1992] 2 FLR 32.

The question of what is reasonable may give rise to difficulties: see the discussion in Family Law Review of Child Law Guardianship and Custody (Law Com no 172) (1988) para 2.16.

A parent has no cause of action in damages for interference with parental authority: F v Wirral Metropolitan Borough Council [1991] Fam 69, [1991] 2 All ER 648, CA.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/1. CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(5) PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY IN RELATION TO CHILDREN/(ii) Persons Entitled to Exercise Parental Responsibility/138. Persons exercising parental responsibilities.

(ii) Persons Entitled to Exercise Parental Responsibility

138. Persons exercising parental responsibilities.

Where a child's mother and father were married to each other at the time of his birth<sup>1</sup> they each have parental responsibility<sup>2</sup> for the child<sup>3</sup>. Where the child's father and mother were not married to each other at the time of his birth, the mother has parental responsibility for the child, and the father does not have parental responsibility for the child unless he acquires it (and has not ceased to have it) in accordance with the provisions of the Children Act 1989<sup>4</sup>. The rule of law that a father is the natural guardian of his legitimate children is abolished<sup>5</sup>.

A person who has been appointed guardian of a child<sup>6</sup> has parental responsibility for that child<sup>7</sup>.

Where the court makes a residence order<sup>8</sup> in favour of any person who is not the parent or guardian of the child concerned that person has parental responsibility for the child while the residence order remains in force<sup>9</sup>. Such persons do not, however, have the right to agree or refuse to agree to the making of an adoption order or an order under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 giving parental responsibility prior to adoption abroad<sup>10</sup> with respect to the child, nor the right to appoint a guardian<sup>11</sup>.

While a care order<sup>12</sup> is in force with respect to a child, the local authority<sup>13</sup> designated by the order has parental responsibility for the child<sup>14</sup>. A local authority does not, however, have the right to agree or refuse to agree to the making of an adoption order or an order under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 giving parental responsibility prior to adoption abroad<sup>15</sup>, nor the right to appoint a guardian<sup>16</sup>. A local authority is not by virtue of a care order entitled to cause the child to be brought up in any religious persuasion other than that in which he would have been brought up had the order not been made<sup>17</sup>. While a child is subject to a care order, the local authority may determine the extent to which the child's parent, guardian, special guardian, or step-parent who has parental responsibility by virtue of an order under the Children Act 1989<sup>18</sup>, may meet his parental responsibility<sup>19</sup>.

While an emergency protection order<sup>20</sup> is in force it gives the applicant parental responsibility for the child<sup>21</sup>. However, the applicant may take, and may only take, such action in meeting his parental responsibility for the child as is reasonably required to safeguard or promote the welfare of the child (having regard in particular to the duration of the order)<sup>22</sup>.

1 References in the Children Act 1989 to a child whose father and mother were, or (as the case may be) were not, married to each other at the time of his birth must be read with the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 1 (which extends their meaning): see the Children Act 1989 s 2(3); and para 125 note 3 ante. In effect, a child whose father and mother were married to each other is a child who, prior to the enactment of the Family Law Reform Act 1987, would have been described as legitimate (or entitled to be treated as legitimate by English law); references to a child whose father and mother were not married to each other are references to a child who would not have been entitled to be so treated.

3 Children Act 1989 s 2(1). The fact that an order was made prior to 14 October 1991 (ie the date on which the relevant provisions of the Children Act 1989 came into force), giving custody to one parent, does not affect the fact that both parents are now to be regarded as having parental responsibility: see s 108(6), Sch 14 para 6(1). For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

4 Ibid s 2(2) (amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 111(5)). The three methods by which an unmarried father may acquire parental responsibility are: (1) by being registered as the child's father under the Births and Deaths Registration Act 1953; (2) by the making of a parental responsibility order; or (3) by the making and filing of a parental responsibility agreement in the prescribed form: see para 139 post.

138 Persons exercising parental responsibilities

TEXT AND NOTES 3, 4--See further Children Act 1989 s 2(1A), (2A) (added by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 Sch 6 para 26) which enables a second female parent to have parental responsibility for a child.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/1. CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(5) PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY IN RELATION TO CHILDREN/(ii) Persons Entitled to Exercise Parental Responsibility/139. Acquisition of parental responsibility by father; parental responsibility orders and agreements.

139. Acquisition of parental responsibility by father; parental responsibility orders and agreements.

Where a child's father and mother were not married to each other at the time of his birth<sup>1</sup> the father may acquire parental responsibility for the child<sup>2</sup> if:

- 78 (1) he becomes registered as the child's father under specified enactments relating to births and deaths registration<sup>3</sup>;
- 79 (2) he and the child's mother make an agreement (a 'parental responsibility agreement') providing for him to have parental responsibility for the child<sup>4</sup>; or
- 80 (3) the court, on his application, orders that he is to have parental responsibility for the child by making a 'parental responsibility order'<sup>5</sup>.

If there is any dispute about paternity, this must be resolved before the application for a parental responsibility order proceeds<sup>6</sup>. In deciding such an application, the court must be guided by the principle that the child's welfare is the paramount consideration<sup>7</sup>.

Where the court makes a residence order<sup>8</sup> in favour of the father of a child, it must also, if he would not otherwise have parental responsibility, make a parental responsibility order in favour of the father<sup>9</sup>.

No parental responsibility agreement may have effect for the purposes of the Children Act 1989 unless: (a) it is made in the prescribed form<sup>10</sup>; and (b) where regulations are made prescribing the manner in which such agreements must be recorded, it is recorded in the prescribed manner<sup>11</sup>. The record of the agreement must be made available, during office hours, for inspection<sup>12</sup> by any person upon written request to an officer of the Principal Registry<sup>13</sup>.

A parental responsibility agreement may only be brought to an end by an order of the court made on the application of any person who has parental responsibility for the child or, with permission of the court, on the application of the child himself<sup>14</sup>. The court may only grant permission for the child's application<sup>15</sup> if it is satisfied that the child has sufficient understanding to make the proposed application<sup>16</sup>. A parental responsibility agreement<sup>17</sup> continues in force until the child reaches the age of 18, unless it is brought to an end earlier<sup>18</sup>.

1 See para 138 note 1 ante. The issue as to whether an unmarried father was discriminated against in comparison with a married father was considered in B v United Kingdom (Application 39067/97) [2000] 1 FCR 289, [2000] 1 FLR 1, ECtHR (complaint judged inadmissible as there was an objective and reasonable justification for the difference in treatment between married and unmarried fathers with regard to the automatic acquisition of parental rights).

2 For the meaning of 'parental responsibility' see para 134 ante. For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

3 Children Act 1989 s 4(1)(a) (s 4(1) amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 111(1), (2)). The enactments in question are the Births and Deaths Registration Act 1953 s 10(1)(a)-(c) (as substituted), s 10A(1) (as added), the Registration of Births, Deaths and Marriages (Scotland) Act 1965 s 18(1)(a), (b)(i), (c), (2)(b), s 20(1)(a) and the Births and Deaths Registration (Northern Ireland) Order 1976, SI 1976/1041, art 14(3)(a), (b), (c): see the Children Act 1989 s 4(1A) (s 4(1A), (1B) added by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 111(1), (3)). Further enactments may be added by order to this list: see the Children Act 1989 s 4(1B) (as so added; and amended by the Transfer of Functions (Children, Young People and Families) Order 2003, SI 2003/3191, arts 3(a), 6, Schedule para 1).

Note that this registration will need the consent of the mother: see the Births and Deaths Registration Act 1953 s 10 (substituted); and REGISTRATION CONCERNING THE INDIVIDUAL vol 39(2) (Reissue) paras 547-548. Where the unmarried father has not signed the Birth Register but wants to be acknowledged as the father of the child, he can apply by himself or jointly with the mother to have the birth re-registered under the Births and Deaths Registration Act 1953 s 10A (as added, substituted and amended) by applying for a statutory declaration of parentage: see the Family Law Act 1986 s 55A (as substituted); and para 98 ante.

4 Children Act 1989 ss 4(1)(b), 105(1) (s 4(1) as amended: see note 3 supra). For a case in which such an agreement was made see Re W (a minor) (1992) Times, 22 May, CA. More than one person may have parental responsibility; the making of a parental responsibility order or agreement in favour of the father does not involve the loss of responsibility by the mother: see the Children Act 1989 s 2(6); and para 141 post. The existence of a care order does not preclude the parents of the child concerned from entering into a parental responsibility agreement: Re X (minors) (care proceedings: parental responsibility) [2000] Fam 156, [2000] 2 All ER 66. As to acquisition of parental responsibility by a step-parent see the Children Act 1989 s 4A (as added); and para 140 post.

5 Ibid s 4(1)(c) (as amended: see note 3 supra). See also s 91(14); and para 223 note 13 post. The court had jurisdiction to entertain an application for parental responsibility in relation to a child who was permanently out of the jurisdiction, even if that child had been born out of the jurisdiction: Re S (a minor) (parental responsibility: jurisdiction) [1998] 1 WLR 1701, [1998] 2 FLR 921, CA. On a father's application, where the mother has sole parental responsibility for the child who, she asserts, has lost his habitual residence in England, the mother must prove such loss: Re V P (loss of child's habitual residence) [2001] 1 FCR 712. An order will not be made where the father is incapable of exercising parental responsibility: M v M (parental responsibility) [1999] 2 FLR 737, [1999] Fam Law 538; but see also Re D (contact and parental responsibility: lesbian mothers and known father) [2006] EWHC 2 (Fam), [2006] 1 FCR 556, sub nom B v A (parental responsibility) [2006] All ER (D) 25 (Jan) (father granted parental responsibility where mother in same sex relationship, so that his status as father could be recognised).

In deciding whether to make the order, the court will consider the degree of commitment the father has shown to child, the degree of attachment between him and the child and the reasons he is applying for the order (see Re R H (a minor) (parental responsibility) [1998] 2 FCR 89, sub nom Re H (parental responsibility) [1998] 1 FLR 855, CA), but this not an exhaustive list so the court will apply the Children Act 1989 s 1 (see para 300 post) as the child's welfare is always the court's paramount consideration.

Where a parental responsibility order is made on grounds unrelated to paternity, it satisfies the requirement of a finding, or a judgment, of paternity for the purposes of making a maintenance assessment (see para 553 et seq post): R v Secretary of State for Social Security, ex p W [1999] 3 FCR 693, [1999] 2 FLR 604.

Since an application for a parental responsibility order is within the definition of 'family proceedings' (see the Children Act 1989 s 8(3); and para 199 post), the court may make a contact order, a residence order, a prohibited steps order or a specific issue order under s 8 (as amended; prospectively further amended) (see para 251 et seq post) if it considers that an order must be made even though no application has been made for an order under s 8 (as amended; prospectively further amended): s 10(1)(b). Before making an order under s 8 (as amended; prospectively further amended), where such order is opposed, the court must have regard to the matters listed in s 1(3) (see para 303 post): see s 1(4) (as amended); and para 303 post. Where a father makes concurrent applications for a contact order and a parental responsibility order, the court must consider each application separately: Re C and V (minors) (parental responsibility order) [1998] 1 FCR 52, [1998] 1 FLR 392, CA. As to contact orders see para 251 et seq post. As to residence orders see para 262 post. As to prohibited steps orders see para 261 post. As to specific issue orders see para 263 post.

6 See Re O (a minor: access) [1985] FLR 716, [1985] Fam Law 135, CA; cf Re W (a minor) (interim custody) [1990] FCR 540, [1990] 2 FLR 86, CA.

7 See the Children Act 1989 s 1(1); and para 300 post. In considering whether or not to make an order with respect to the child, the court must not make the order unless it considers that doing so would be better for the child than making no order at all: s 1(5). See also para 302 post. For factors which the court will take into account see eg D v Hereford and Worcester County Council [1991] Fam 14, [1991] 2 All ER 177; Re H (minors) (local authority: parental rights) (No 3) [1991] Fam 151, sub nom Re H (minors) (adoption: putative father's rights) [1991] 2 All ER 185, CA; Re C (minors) (parental rights) [1992] 2 All ER 86, [1992] 1 FLR 1, CA (all these cases were decided under comparable provisions of the Family Law Reform Act 1987). 8 As to residence orders see para 262 post.

9 Children Act 1989 s 12(1). Where s 12(1) requires the court to make a parental responsibility order in respect of the father of a child, the court must not bring that order to an end at any time while the residence order concerned remains in force: s 12(4).

12 Ie on payment of the prescribed fee: Parental Responsibility Agreement Regulations 1991, SI 1991/1478, reg 3(3) (amended by SI 2004/3123). As to that fee see the Family Proceedings Fees Order 2004, SI 2004/3114, Sch 1 (substituted by SI 2007/2175; and amended by SI 2007/2800).

CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(5) PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY IN RELATION TO CHILDREN/(ii) Persons Entitled to Exercise Parental Responsibility/140. Acquisition of parental responsibility by step-parent.

140. Acquisition of parental responsibility by step-parent.

Where a child's parent ('parent A') who has parental responsibility for the child<sup>1</sup> is married to, or is a civil partner of, a person who is not the child's parent ('the step-parent'):

- 81 (1) parent A or, if the other parent of the child also has parental responsibility for the child, both parents may by agreement with the step-parent provide for the step-parent to have parental responsibility for the child<sup>2</sup>; or
- 82 (2) the court may, on the application of the step-parent, order that the step-parent have parental responsibility for the child<sup>3</sup>.

A parental responsibility agreement under head (1) above, or an order under head (2) above, may only be brought to an end by an order of the court made either: (a) on the application of any person who has parental responsibility for the child; or (b) with the leave of the court, on the application of the child himself<sup>4</sup>.

If partners in a same sex couple are not registered as civil partners, the court could consider the grant of a shared residence order to confer parental responsibility on the non-parent<sup>5</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'parental responsibility' see para 134 ante. For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

2 Children Act 1989 s 4A(1)(a) (s 4A added by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 112; and the Children Act 1989 s 4A(1)(a) amended by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 75(1), (2)). Such an agreement is also a 'parental responsibility agreement', and the Children Act 1989 s 4(2) (see para 139 ante) applies in relation to such agreements as it applies in relation to parental responsibility agreements under s 4 (as amended) (see para 139 ante); s 4A(2) (as so added).

3 Ibid s 4A(1)(b) (as added: see note 2 supra).

4 Ibid s 4A(3) (as added: see note 2 supra). The court may only grant leave to the child if it is satisfied that he has sufficient understanding to make the proposed application: s 4A(4) (as so added).

CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(5) PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY IN RELATION TO CHILDREN/(ii) Persons Entitled to Exercise Parental Responsibility/141. Parental responsibility exercised by more than one person.

141. Parental responsibility exercised by more than one person.

More than one person may have parental responsibility<sup>1</sup> for the same child<sup>2</sup> at the same time<sup>3</sup>. A person who has parental responsibility for a child at any time does not cease to have that responsibility solely because some other person subsequently acquires parental responsibility for the child<sup>4</sup>.

Thus, at any one time, there may be a number of persons who have parental responsibility in respect of the same child, and the interests of those persons may not be identical. Where more than one person has parental responsibility for a child, each of them may act alone and without the other (or others) in meeting that responsibility<sup>5</sup>. However, nothing in Part I of the Children Act 1989<sup>6</sup> affects the operation of any enactment<sup>7</sup> which requires the consent of more than one person in a matter affecting the child<sup>8</sup>.

As to the duty to consult a person who has parental responsibility but who does not live with the child see Re G (parental responsibility: education) [1995] 2 FCR 53, [1994] 2 FLR 964, CA. Where two or more persons have parental responsibility for a child, the child's surname may lawfully be changed only if all those with parental responsibility agree, or an appropriate order of the court is obtained: Re C (minors) (change of surname) [1997] 3 FCR 310, sub nom Re P C (change of name) [1997] 2 FLR 730. See also Re J (child's religious upbringing and circumcision) [2000] 1 FCR 307, [2000] 1 FLR 571, CA (after the mother of a 5-year-old child objected to the father making arrangements for the child's circumcision for religious purposes, a prohibited steps order was made against the father). CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(5) PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY IN RELATION TO CHILDREN/(ii) Persons Entitled to Exercise Parental Responsibility/142. Acts inconsistent with orders under the Children Act 1989.

The fact that a person has parental responsibility<sup>1</sup> for a child<sup>2</sup> does not entitle him to act in any way which would be incompatible with any order made with respect to the child under the Children Act 1989<sup>3</sup>. Moreover, the fact that a person has parental responsibility cannot override restrictions placed on parents and others by specific statutory provision<sup>4</sup>.

2 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

3 Children Act 1989 s 2(8). Thus a parent entitled to contact with a child by virtue of a residence order made under s 8 (as amended) would not be entitled to remove the child from the home of the person in whose favour a residence order had been made inconsistently with the terms of that order: see para 262 post. As to residence orders see para 262 post.

4 See eg the Child Abduction Act 1984 Pt I (ss 1-5) (as amended), under which a parent commits an offence if he takes or sends a child out of the United Kingdom without the appropriate consent as defined in that Act: see para 781 post.

CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(5) PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY IN RELATION TO CHILDREN/(ii) Persons Entitled to Exercise Parental Responsibility/143. Surrender or transfer of parental responsibility.

143. Surrender or transfer of parental responsibility.

A person with parental responsibility<sup>1</sup> for a child<sup>2</sup> may not surrender or transfer any part of that responsibility to another<sup>3</sup>. However, a person who has parental responsibility may arrange for some or all of it to be met by one or more persons acting on his behalf<sup>4</sup>. The person with whom any such arrangement is made may himself be a person who already has parental responsibility for the child concerned<sup>5</sup>. The making of any such arrangement does not affect any liability of the person making it which may arise from any failure to meet any part of his parental responsibility for the child concerned<sup>6</sup>.

2 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

4 Ibid s 2(9).

5 Ibid s 2(10).

6 Ibid s 2(11). Hence, a parent or other person might be liable to criminal sanctions under the Children and Young Persons Act 1933, or in certain circumstances in tort to the child or others: see para 611 et seq post. A parent or foster parent is under a duty to take such care as is reasonable in all the circumstances of the case to ensure that a child is not exposed to unnecessary risk of injury, and the relevant standard of care is that of a careful parent in the prevailing circumstances: see Surtees v Kingston-upon-Thames Borough Council [1991] 2 FLR 559 at 570, CA, per Stocker LJ. However, the court must be wary in its approach to holding parents in breach of a duty of care owed to their children: Surtees v Kingston-upon-Thames Borough Council supra at 583 per Sir Nicholas Browne-Wilkinson V-C. See also Stubbings v Webb [1992] QB 197, [1991] 3 All ER 949, CA (action against adoptive father and brother in respect of physical and sexual abuse); revsd on the ground that the cause of action was statute-barred [1993] AC 498, [1993] 1 All ER 322, HL.

(6) GUARDIANS AND GUARDIANSHIP

144. Introduction.

The law formerly recognised two forms of parental guardianship, by nature and by nurture<sup>1</sup>. Guardians could be appointed under a variety of statutory provisions<sup>2</sup>, and it was also assumed that the court had an inherent power to appoint a guardian for any child<sup>3</sup>.

However, the rule of law that a father was the natural guardian of his legitimate child has been abolished<sup>4</sup>, and it is now provided that a guardian of a child<sup>5</sup> may only be appointed in accordance with the provisions of the Children Act 1989, which envisage appointments by the court or by a parent or guardian of a child<sup>6</sup>. Special guardianship orders now provide for children who are unable to live with their birth parents and for whom adoption is not appropriate but who may nevertheless benefit from a legally secure placement<sup>7</sup>.

1 See Co Litt 88b; and Guardianship (Law Com Working Paper no 91) (1985) para 2.6.

2 The law was to some extent rationalised by the Guardianship of Minors Act 1971 and the Guardianship Act 1973, although both of these Acts have now been repealed.

3 Re McGrath (infants) [1893] 1 Ch 143, CA; Re N (infants) [1967] Ch 512, [1967] 1 All ER 161. However, in Re C (minors) (wardship: adoption) [1989] 1 All ER 395, sub nom Re C (minors) (adoption by relative) [1989] 1 WLR 61, CA, it was doubted whether the court had an inherent jurisdiction to appoint a guardian in respect of a ward of court.

4 See the Children Act 1989 s 2(4); and para 138 ante.

5 'Guardian of a child' means a guardian (other than a guardian of the estate of a child) appointed in accordance with the provisions of ibid s 5 (see para 145 et seq post): s 105(1).

6 See ibid s 5(1), (3), (4), (13); and para 145 et seq post.

7 See ibid ss 14A-14F (as added); and para 151 et seq post.

145. Appointment of guardian by the court.

Where an application with respect to a child<sup>1</sup> is made to the court<sup>2</sup> by any individual, the court may by order appoint that individual<sup>3</sup> to be the child's guardian if:

- 83 (1) the child has no parent with parental responsibility for him<sup>4</sup>; or
- 84 (2) a residence order<sup>5</sup> has been made with respect to the child in favour of a parent, guardian or special guardian of his who has died while the order was in force<sup>6</sup>; or
- 85 (3) head (2) above does not apply, and the child's only or last surviving special guardian dies<sup>7</sup>.

This power to appoint an individual to be the child's guardian may<sup>8</sup> also be exercised in any family proceedings<sup>9</sup> if the court considers that the order should be made, even though no application has been made for it<sup>10</sup>. A guardian of a child may only be appointed in accordance with statutory provisions<sup>11</sup>.

There are no specific statutory restrictions as to the eligibility of individuals to be appointed as guardians<sup>12</sup>. However, the court must regard the child's welfare as the paramount consideration<sup>13</sup>, and it must not make an order unless it considers that doing so would be better for the child than making no order at all<sup>14</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

2 'Court' means the High Court, a county court or a magistrates' court: see the Children Act 1989 s 92(7); and para 208 post.

3 The Children Act 1989 empowers the court only to appoint an 'individual' to be a guardian: see s 5(1); and the text to notes 10-12 infra. It would seem to follow, therefore, that a local authority or voluntary agency could not be appointed as a guardian, or even an 'artificial individual' such as the director of social services: see Re S H (care order: orphan) [1996] 1 FCR 1, [1995] 1 FLR 746. However, the Interpretation Act 1978 provides that, unless the contrary intention appears, words in the singular include the plural, and it is submitted that the court could therefore appoint more than one person to act as a guardian: see s 6(c).

4 Children Act 1989 s 5(1)(a).

5 I.e a residence order made under ibid s 8 (as amended): see para 262 post.

6 Ibid s 5(1)(b) (amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 115(2), (4)). The Children Act 1989 s 5(1)-(7) (as amended) does not apply if the residence order was also made in favour of a surviving parent of the child: s 5(9). See also s 91(14); and para 223 post. As to special guardianship see para 151 et seq post.

7 Ibid s 5(1)(c) (amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 115(2), (4)).

8 I.e provided that the conditions set out in the Children Act 1989 s 5(1) (as amended) are satisfied: see the text and notes 1-7 supra.

9 For the meaning of 'family proceedings' see para 199 post.

11 Ibid s 5(13). The text refers to appointment in accordance with s 5 (as amended): see the text and notes 1-10 supra; and paras 147-148 post.

12 See, however, note 3 supra.

13 See the Children Act 1989 s 1(1); and para 300 post. There is authority for the view that where the father or mother has expressed wishes but has not actually appointed a guardian, the court will pay attention to those wishes: Re Duke of Newcastle (1795), cited in Ex p Mountfort (1809) 15 Ves 445; Hall v Storer (1835) 1 Y & C Ex 556; Re Kaye (1866) 1 Ch App 387 at 390 per Turner LJ; Ward v Lavery [1925] AC 101, HL. The court would not pay such attention where it would not serve the minor's general welfare: Hartley v Smith (1862) 6 LT 734; Re Wood (minors) (1876) 16 WR 164 at 165. Where neither mother nor father is living, the court may have regard to the wishes of the nearest surviving relatives, one of whom it will preferably select as guardian: Beattie v Johnstone (1841) 1 Ph 17 at 34-35 per Lord Lyndhurst LC. In general the court would not appoint as guardian a firm (De Mazar v Pybus (1799) 4 Ves 644 at 649 per Lord Thurlow LC), or the solicitor to any of the parties concerned (Re Johnstons (minors), ex p Yeates (1845) 2 Jo & Lat 222). A person living out of the jurisdiction would not usually be appointed sole guardian: Logan v Fairlee (1821) Jac 193. The selection of a guardian is a question for the discretion of the court of first instance and the Court of Appeal will only interfere with the appointment in exceptional circumstances: Re Kaye (1866) 1 Ch App 387 at 389 per Bruce LJ; and see G v G (minors: custody appeal) [1985] 2 All ER 225, [1985] 1 WLR 647, HL.

UPDATE

145 Appointment of guardian by the court

TEXT AND NOTES--An order made in the county court joining a child as a party in private law Children Act proceedings and directing the appointment of a guardian under SI 1991/1247 r 9.5 may be made by any appropriately nominated judge or district judge: see President's Guidance (appointment of guardians in accordance with r 9.5: President's Guidance dated 25 February 2005: revocation) [2008] All ER (D) 224 (Apr).

146. Power to make other orders on guardianship application.

An application for appointment as a guardian falls within the definition of 'family proceedings'<sup>1</sup>, and it accordingly follows that on such an application the court<sup>2</sup> has power to make a contact order, a prohibited steps order, a residence order or a specific issue order, or an order varying or revoking such an order<sup>3</sup>, even though no application has been made for the order in question, if a question arises with respect to the welfare of any child, provided that the court considers such order should be made<sup>4</sup>. Additionally, in proceedings on a guardianship application, the court may make such an order as is mentioned above<sup>5</sup> on the application, made with the leave of the court<sup>6</sup>, of a person entitled to apply for the order<sup>7</sup>. This power is subject to the general restrictions on the making of such orders<sup>8</sup>.

1 An application for appointment as a guardian is an application under the Children Act 1989 Pt I (ss 1-7) (as amended), and thus within the definition of 'family proceedings' contained in s 8(4)(a): see para 199 post.

2 For the meaning of 'court' see para 145 note 2 ante.

3 I.e. an order under the Children Act 1989 s 8(1), (2). As to contact orders see para 251 et seq post. As to prohibited steps orders see para 261 post. As to residence orders see para 262 post. As to specific issue orders see para 263 post.

4 Ibid s 10(1)(b).

5 See note 3 supra.

6 As to the matters to which the court must have regard in considering whether or not to grant such leave see the Children Act 1989 s 10(8), (9); and para 249 post.

7 Ibid s 10(1)(a). As to the persons entitled to apply for an order under s 8 (as amended) see s 10(4)-(7), (10); and para 248 post.

8 Ibid s 10(3). Those restrictions are set out in s 9 (as amended): see para 264 post.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/1. CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(6) GUARDIANS AND GUARDIANSHIP/147. Appointment of guardian of child's estate.

147. Appointment of guardian of child's estate.

No court<sup>1</sup> may exercise the High Court's inherent jurisdiction to appoint a guardian of the estate of any child<sup>2</sup>, except as provided by any rules of court<sup>3</sup>. Rules provide that where the persons with parental responsibility<sup>4</sup> agree, or the court considers that their agreement may be dispensed with, the court may appoint the Official Solicitor to be a guardian of a child's estate<sup>5</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'court' see para 145 note 2 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

3 Children Act 1989 s 5(11). Where rules of court are made under the provisions of s 5(11), they may prescribe the circumstances in which, and conditions subject to which, an appointment of such a guardian may be made: s 5(12).

4 For the meaning of 'parental responsibility' see para 134 ante.

5 See CPR 21.13; and para 1425 post. As to the CPR see para 1409 et seq post.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/1. CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(6) GUARDIANS AND GUARDIANSHIP/148. Appointment of guardian by individuals.

148. Appointment of guardian by individuals.

A parent<sup>1</sup> who has parental responsibility<sup>2</sup> for the child<sup>3</sup> may appoint another individual to be the child's guardian in the event of his death<sup>4</sup>. There is nothing<sup>5</sup> to prevent such an appointment being made by two or more persons acting jointly<sup>6</sup>. Such an appointment<sup>7</sup> does not have effect unless it is made in writing, dated and signed by the person making the appointment<sup>8</sup>.

Where (1) on the death of any person making an appointment<sup>9</sup>, the child concerned has no parent with parental responsibility for him<sup>10</sup>; or (2) immediately before the death of any person making such an appointment, a residence order<sup>11</sup> in his favour was in force with respect to the child<sup>12</sup>, or he was the child's only (or last surviving) special guardian, the appointment takes effect on the death of that person<sup>13</sup>. Where, on the death of any person making an appointment<sup>14</sup> the child concerned has a parent with parental responsibility for him, and head (2) above does not apply<sup>15</sup>, then the appointment takes effect when the child no longer has a parent who has parental responsibility for him<sup>16</sup>.

Any appointment of a person to be a guardian of a child<sup>17</sup> which had taken effect before 14 October 1991<sup>18</sup> is deemed to be an appointment made and having effect under these provisions<sup>19</sup>.

1 This includes the unmarried father: see the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 1; and para 125 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'parental responsibility' see para 134 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

4 Children Act 1989 s 5(3). A guardian of a child may appoint another individual to take his place as the child's guardian in the event of his death, and a special guardian of a child may appoint another individual to be the child's guardian in the event of his death: s 5(4) (amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 115(2), (4)). As to special guardianship see para 151 et seq post.

5 Ie in the Children Act 1989 s 5 (as amended): see the text and notes 1-4 supra, 6-19 infra; and para 145 ante.

7 Ie under ibid s 5(3) or (4): see the text and note 4 supra.

8 Ibid s 5(5). However, an appointment may have effect: (1) in the case of an appointment made by a will which is not signed by the testator, if it is signed at the direction of the testator in accordance with the requirements of the Wills Act 1837 s 9 (as substituted) (see WILLS vol 50 (2005 Reissue) para 353 et seq); or (2) in any other case, if it is signed at the direction of the person making the appointment, in his presence and in the presence of two witnesses who each attest the signature: Children Act 1989 s 5(5).

9 See note 7 supra.

10 Children Act 1989 s 5(7)(a). An appointment by an unmarried mother will take effect on her death under this provision unless the father has acquired parental responsibility: see para 139 ante.

11 As to residence orders see para 262 post.

12 Children Act 1989 s 5(7)(b) (amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 115(2), (4)). The Children Act 1989 s 5 (as amended) does not apply if the residence order was also made in favour of a surviving parent of the child: s 5(9).

13 Ibid s 5(7) (as amended: see note 12 supra). Before the enactment of the Children Act 1989, the appointment of a guardian would always take effect immediately upon the death of the appointing parent; the surviving parent had a right to object to the appointment: see the Guardianship of Minors Act 1971 s 4 (repealed). The Children Act 1989 seeks to avoid the possibility of conflict between a surviving parent and a guardian appointed by the deceased parent: see Family Law Review of Child Law Guardianship and Custody (Law Com no 172) (1988) para 2.27.

14 See note 7 supra.

15 Ie the provisions of the Children Act 1989 s 5(7)(b) (as amended) do not apply: see the text to note 12 supra.

16 Ibid s 5(8).

17 Ie any appointment made under the Guardianship of Minors Act 1971 ss 3-5 (repealed), or the Sexual Offences Act 1956 s 38(3) (repealed), or under the High Court's inherent jurisdiction with respect to children: see note 19 infra.

18 Ie the date upon which most of the provisions of the Children Act 1989 s 5 came into force: see the Children Act 1989 (Commencement and Transitional Provisions) Order 1991, SI 1991/828 (amended by SI 1991/1990). As to the commencement of the remainder of the provisions of the Children Act 1989 see the Children Act 1989 (Commencement No 2--Amendment and Transitional Provisions) Order 1991, SI 1991/1990. As regards the appointment by the court of a guardian of the child's estate (see the Children Act 1989 s 5(11), (12)), the date is 1 February 1992: see para 147 ante.

19 Ibid s 108(6), Sch 14 para 12(1). Where the appointment has effect by virtue of an order made under the Sexual Offences Act 1956 s 38(3) (repealed), the appointment does not have effect for a period which is longer than any period specified in the order: Children Act 1989 Sch 14 para 12(2). Any appointment of a person to be a child's guardian made under the Guardianship of Minors Act 1971 ss 3-5 (repealed) (eg by deed) which had not taken effect immediately before 14 October 1991 will take effect in accordance with the Children Act 1989 s 5 (as amended) subject to certain modifications: see Sch 14 paras 8(2), 13. For the purposes of the Wills Act 1837 and of the Children Act 1989, any disposition by will and testament or devise of the custody and tuition of any child made before 14 October 1991 is deemed to be an appointment by will of a guardian of the child: Children Act 1989 Sch 14 para 14. As to dispositions by wills generally see WILLS.

149. Effect of appointment as guardian.

A person appointed guardian of a child<sup>1</sup> has parental responsibility<sup>2</sup> for the child concerned<sup>3</sup>, and this will, for many purposes, equate the guardian's position with that of a parent. Thus a guardian has the right to consent or withhold consent to an application for a placement order<sup>4</sup>, to agree or withhold agreement to the child's adoption<sup>5</sup>, or to appoint a guardian to succeed him on his death<sup>6</sup>. The consent of a guardian is required for the marriage of a child under the age of 18<sup>7</sup>. However, there is no statutory procedure whereby a guardian may be subject to orders for financial provision or property adjustment<sup>8</sup>.

It has been said that guardianship is an office of trust<sup>9</sup>. It is therefore submitted that it follows that a guardian is under a duty to account to the child for the profits and income of his property: a guardian is, in equity, in the position of a trustee<sup>10</sup>.

2    For the meaning of 'parental responsibility' see para 134 ante.

3    Children Act 1989 s 5(6).

4    I.e. under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 21 (as amended): see para 335 post.

5    Note that this power is not given to a person who has parental responsibility by virtue of a residence order in his favour: see the Children Act 1989 s 12(3); and para 138 ante. As to residence orders see para 262 post.

6    See para 148 ante.

7    See the Marriage Act 1949 s 3(1A), (1B) (added by the Children Act 1989 s 108(4), Sch 12 para 5(2); and substituted by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 139(1), Sch 3 paras 1, 3, 4). As to provisions where a guardianship or care order was in force immediately before 14 October 1991 see the Children Act 1989 s 108(6), Sch 14 para 37.

8    A guardian was under no obligation to expend his own money on the child's maintenance or to advance sums from the guardian's own capital: Carmichael v Wilson (1830) 3 Mol 79 at 86 per Lord Hart LC. A guardian is not a liable relative for the purposes of the Child Support Act 1991 or the Social Security Administration Act 1992 ss 78(6), 105(3) (both as amended): see para 531 post; and SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS vol 44(2) (Reissue) para 397.

150. Revocation, termination or disclaimer of appointment.

An appointment of a guardian by a parent or guardian<sup>1</sup> revokes an earlier such appointment, including one made in an unrevoked will or codicil, made by the same person in respect of the same child<sup>2</sup>, unless it is clear<sup>3</sup> that the purpose of the later appointment is to appoint an additional guardian<sup>4</sup>. Similarly, an appointment by a parent or guardian, including one made in an unrevoked will or codicil, is revoked if the person who made the appointment revokes it by a written and dated instrument which is signed by him, or at his direction, in his presence and in the presence of two witnesses who each attest the signature<sup>5</sup>. Such an appointment, including one made in an unrevoked will or codicil, is also revoked if the person appointed is the spouse or civil partner of the person who made the appointment and either:

- 86 (1) a decree of a court of civil jurisdiction in England and Wales dissolves or annuls the marriage or civil partnership; or
- 87 (2) the marriage or civil partnership is dissolved or annulled and the divorce, dissolution or annulment is entitled to recognition in England and Wales<sup>6</sup>, unless a contrary intention appears by the appointment<sup>7</sup>.

An appointment by a parent or guardian made in a will or codicil is revoked if the will or codicil is revoked<sup>8</sup>. An appointment by a parent or guardian, other than one made in a will or codicil, is revoked if, with the intention of revoking the appointment, the person who made it destroys the instrument by which it was made, or has some other person destroy that instrument in his presence<sup>9</sup>.

Any appointment of a guardian<sup>10</sup> may be brought to an end at any time by order of the court: (a) on the application of any person who has parental responsibility<sup>11</sup> for the child; (b) on the application of the child concerned with leave of the court; or (c) in any family proceedings<sup>12</sup> if the court considers that it should be brought to an end even though no application has been made<sup>13</sup>.

A person who is appointed as a guardian by a parent or guardian<sup>14</sup> may disclaim his appointment by an instrument in writing signed by him and made within a reasonable time of his first knowing that the appointment has taken effect<sup>15</sup>. The Lord Chancellor may make regulations prescribing the manner in which such disclaimers must be recorded and if such regulations are made no such disclaimer has effect unless recorded in the prescribed manner<sup>16</sup>.

An appointment of a person as guardian of a child<sup>17</sup>, whether by the court or by an individual, continues in force until the child reaches the age of 18, unless the appointment is brought to an end earlier<sup>18</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/1. CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(6) GUARDIANS AND GUARDIANSHIP/151. Special guardianship orders.

151. Special guardianship orders.

A special guardianship order is an order appointing one or more individuals to be a child's special guardian (or special guardians)<sup>1</sup>. Special guardianship was introduced in order to offer an alternative to adoption or residence orders<sup>2</sup>. It bestows parental responsibility for the child on the special guardian and places limits on the parental responsibility of the children's natural parents, but unlike adoption, they remain legally the child's parents<sup>3</sup>.

A special guardian must be aged 18 or over, and must not be a parent of the child in question, and the following provisions are to be read in that light<sup>4</sup>.

The court may make a special guardianship order with respect to any child on the application<sup>5</sup> of an individual who:

- 88 (1) is entitled to make such an application with respect to the child; or
- 89 (2) has obtained the leave of the court to make the application, or on the joint application of more than one such individual<sup>6</sup>. The individuals who are entitled to apply for a special guardianship order with respect to a child are:

- 90 (a) any guardian of the child<sup>7</sup>;
- 91 (b) any individual in whose favour a residence order is in force with respect to the child<sup>8</sup>;
- 92 (c) any person with whom the child has lived for a period of at least three years<sup>9</sup>;
- 93 (d) any person who:

- 1. (i) in any case where a residence order is in force with respect to the child, has the consent of each of the persons in whose favour the order was made<sup>10</sup>;
- 2. (ii) in any case where the child is in the care of a local authority, has the consent of that authority<sup>11</sup>; or
- 3. (iii) in any other case, has the consent of each of those (if any) who have parental responsibility for the child<sup>12</sup>,

- 94 (e) a local authority foster parent with whom the child has lived for a period of at least one year immediately preceding the application<sup>13</sup>.

The court may also make a special guardianship order with respect to a child in any family proceedings in which a question arises with respect to the welfare of the child if an application for the order has been made by an individual who is entitled to make an application with respect to the child or who has obtained the leave of the court to make such an application (or more than one such individual jointly)<sup>14</sup>. The court may also make an order if it considers that a special guardianship order should be made even though no such application has been made<sup>15</sup>.

No individual may make an application<sup>16</sup> unless, before the beginning of the period of three months ending with the date of the application, he has given written notice of his intention to make the application: (A) if the child in question is being looked after by a local authority, to that local authority; or (B) otherwise, to the local authority in whose area the individual is ordinarily resident<sup>17</sup>. On receipt of such a notice, the local authority must investigate the matter and prepare a report for the court dealing with the suitability of the applicant to be a special guardian, and such matters (if any) as may be prescribed, together with any other matter which the local authority considers to be relevant<sup>18</sup>. The court may not make a special guardianship order unless it has received such a report<sup>19</sup>.

Where a placement order is in force, no special guardianship order may be made in respect of the child unless an application has been made for an adoption order, and the person applying for the special guardianship order has obtained the court's leave<sup>20</sup>.

2 See Adoption: a new approach (Cm 5017) (December 2000). As to adoption see para 323 et seq post. As to residence orders see para 262 post.

The decision whether a special guardianship order is appropriate, as opposed to an adoption order, depends entirely upon the facts of the particular case: see Re S (a child) (adoption order or special guardianship order) [2007] EWCA Civ 54, [2007] 1 FCR 271, [2007] 1 FLR 819; Re S (a child) (adoption order or special guardianship order) (No 2) [2007] EWCA Civ 90, [2007] 1 FCR 340, [2007] 1 FLR 855; Re J (a child) (adoption order or special guardianship order) [2007] EWCA Civ 55, sub nom Re A J [2007] 1 FCR 308; Re M-J (a child) (adoption order or special guardianship order) [2007] EWCA Civ 56, [2007] 1 FCR 329, [2007] 1 FLR 691.

The court may itself ask a local authority to conduct an investigation and prepare a report, and the local authority must do so: Children Act 1989 s 14A(9) (as so added). However, a judge should not invoke s 14A(9) (as added) to compel a local authority to perform its obligations under s 14A(8) (as added) at the instance of a person who needed but had not obtained permission to apply for a special guardianship order unless s 14A(6) (b) (as added) (see the text and note 15 supra) applies: Re R (a child) (special guardianship order) supra.

The Children Act 1989 s 10(8), (9) (see para 247 post) applies in relation to special guardianship orders as it applies in relation to section 8 orders: s 14A(12) (as so added). The local authority may make such arrangements as it sees fit for any person to act on its behalf in connection with conducting an investigation or preparing such a report: s 14A(10) (as so added). In proceedings for a special guardianship order, the local authority must file the report within the timetable fixed by the court and the court will consider the issues of disclosure: see the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.17A (added by SI 2005/2922); and the Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 17A (added by SI 2005/2930).

The Children Act 1989 s 14A(7) (as added) (see the text to note 17 supra) applies in respect of an application for a special guardianship order for which leave has been given as mentioned in the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 29(5) with the omission of the words 'the beginning of the period of three months ending with': s 29(6).

151 Special guardianship orders

TEXT AND NOTE 13--Head (f) a relative with whom the child has lived for a period of at least one year immediately preceding the application: Children Act 1989 s 14A(5)(e) (added by Children and Young Persons Act 2008 s 38).

152. Making and effect of special guardianship orders.

Before making a special guardianship order<sup>1</sup>, the court must consider whether, if the order were made:

- 95 (1) a contact order<sup>2</sup> should also be made with respect to the child<sup>3</sup>; and
- 96 (2) any section 8 order in force with respect to the child should be varied or discharged<sup>4</sup>.

As from a day to be appointed, before making a special guardianship order, where a contact order made with respect to the child is not discharged, there will also be a requirement for the court to consider whether any enforcement order relating to that contact order should be revoked<sup>5</sup>; and, where a contact activity direction has been made as regards contact with the child and is in force, the court will be required to consider whether that contact activity direction should be discharged<sup>6</sup>.

On making a special guardianship order, the court may give leave for the child to be known by a new surname<sup>7</sup>, or grant the leave required<sup>8</sup> for the child's removal from the United Kingdom, either generally or for specified purposes<sup>9</sup>. A special guardianship order may contain provisions which are to have effect for a specified period<sup>10</sup>. It may also contain directions about how it is to be carried into effect<sup>11</sup>, impose conditions which must be complied with<sup>12</sup>, and make such incidental, supplemental or consequential provision as the court thinks fit<sup>13</sup>.

The effect of a special guardianship order is that while the order remains in force: (a) a special guardian appointed by the order has parental responsibility for the child in respect of whom it is made<sup>14</sup>; and (b) subject to any other order in force with respect to the child under the Children Act 1989, a special guardian is entitled to exercise parental responsibility to the exclusion of any other person with parental responsibility for the child (apart from another special guardian)<sup>15</sup>.

While a special guardianship order is in force with respect to a child, no person may cause the child to be known by a new surname, or remove him from the United Kingdom<sup>16</sup>, without either the written consent of every person who has parental responsibility for the child or the leave of the court as mentioned above<sup>17</sup>.

If the child with respect to whom a special guardianship order is in force dies, his special guardian must take reasonable steps to give notice of that fact to each parent of the child with parental responsibility and each guardian of the child, but if the child has more than one special guardian, and one of them has taken such steps in relation to a particular parent or guardian, any other special guardian need not do so as respects that parent or guardian<sup>18</sup>.

In proceedings in which any question of making, varying or discharging<sup>19</sup> a special guardianship order arises, the court must (in the light of any rules of court<sup>20</sup>) draw up a timetable with a view to determining the question without delay, and give such directions as it considers appropriate for the purpose of ensuring, so far as is reasonably practicable, that the timetable is adhered to<sup>21</sup>.

1 See para 151 ante. See Local Authority v Y, Z [2006] 2 FLR 41, [2006] Fam Law 448, where it was considered that children should remain in their family placements subject to special guardianship orders with a defined contact order to their mother.

152 Making and effect of special guardianship orders

NOTE 5--Children Act 1989 s 14B(1)(c), (d) in force on 8 December 2008: SI 2008/2870.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/1. CHILDHOOD AND LEGAL RELATIONSHIPS/(6) GUARDIANS AND GUARDIANSHIP/153. Variation and discharge of special guardianship orders.

153. Variation and discharge of special guardianship orders.

The court may vary or discharge a special guardianship order<sup>1</sup> on the application of:

- 97 (1) the special guardian (or any of them, if there are more than one)<sup>2</sup>;
- 98 (2) any parent or guardian of the child concerned<sup>3</sup>;
- 99 (3) any individual in whose favour a residence order is in force with respect to the child<sup>4</sup>;
- 100 (4) any individual not falling within any of heads (1) to (3) above who has, or immediately before the making of the special guardianship order had, parental responsibility for the child<sup>5</sup>;
- 101 (5) the child himself<sup>6</sup>; or
- 102 (6) a local authority designated in a care order with respect to the child<sup>7</sup>.

In any family proceedings in which a question arises with respect to the welfare of a child with respect to whom a special guardianship order is in force, the court may also vary or discharge the special guardianship order if it considers that the order should be varied or discharged, even though no application has been made<sup>8</sup>.

The following must obtain the leave of the court before making an application under heads (1) to (6) above: (a) the child<sup>9</sup>; (b) any parent or guardian of his<sup>10</sup>; (c) any step-parent of his who has acquired, and has not lost, parental responsibility for him<sup>11</sup>; (d) any individual falling within head (4) above who immediately before the making of the special guardianship order had, but no longer has, parental responsibility for him<sup>12</sup>. The court may not grant leave to a person falling within head (b), (c) or (d) above unless it is satisfied that there has been a significant change in circumstances since the making of the special guardianship order<sup>13</sup>.

An order varying a special guardianship order may contain provisions which are to have effect for a specified period<sup>14</sup>. In proceedings in which any question of varying or discharging a special guardianship order arises, the court must (in the light of any rules of court<sup>15</sup>) draw up a timetable with a view to determining the question without delay, and give such directions as it considers appropriate for the purpose of ensuring, so far as is reasonably practicable, that the timetable is adhered to<sup>16</sup>.

154. Special guardianship support services.

Each local authority must make arrangements for the provision within its area of special guardianship support services, which means counselling, advice and information, and such other services as are prescribed, in relation to special guardianship<sup>1</sup>. The power to make regulations to prescribe services is to be exercised so as to secure that local authorities provide financial support<sup>2</sup>.

At the request of any of: (1) a child with respect to whom a special guardianship order<sup>3</sup> is in force; (2) a special guardian; (3) a parent; (4) any other person who falls within a prescribed description, a local authority may carry out an assessment of that person's needs for special guardianship support services (but, if the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers<sup>4</sup> so provide in regulations, it must do so if he is a person of a prescribed description, or if his case falls within a prescribed description, or if both he and his case fall within prescribed descriptions)<sup>5</sup>. A local authority may, at the request of any other person, carry out an assessment of that person's needs for special guardianship support services<sup>6</sup>. Where, as a result of an assessment, a local authority decides that a person has needs for special guardianship support services, it must then decide whether to provide any such services to that person<sup>7</sup>.

If a local authority decides to provide any special guardianship support services to a person, and the circumstances fall within a prescribed description, the local authority must prepare a plan in accordance with which special guardianship support services are to be provided to him, and keep the plan under review<sup>8</sup>.

The Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers may by regulations make provision about assessments, preparing and reviewing plans, the provision of special guardianship support services in accordance with plans and reviewing the provision of special guardianship support services<sup>9</sup>.

A local authority may provide special guardianship support services (or any part of them) by securing their provision by another local authority, or by a person within a prescribed description of persons who may provide special guardianship support services<sup>10</sup>, and may also arrange with any such authority or person for that other authority or that person to carry out the local authority's functions in relation to assessments under these provisions<sup>11</sup>.

A local authority may carry out an assessment of the needs of any person for these purposes at the same time as an assessment of his needs is made under any other provision of the Children Act 1989 or under any other enactment<sup>12</sup>.

1 Children Act 1989 s 14F(1) (s 14F added by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 115(1)). As to special guardianship see para 151 ante. The services prescribed by regulations include: financial support; services to enable discussion groups; mediation services; services in relation to the child's therapeutic needs; assistance to ensure the continuance of the relationship between the child and special guardian; and giving assistance in cash: see the Special Guardianship Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1109, reg 3; and the Special Guardianship (Wales) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1513, reg 3(1). ## 2. CENTRAL GOVERNMENT ADMINISTRATION

(1) THE SECRETARY OF STATE AND THE WELSH MINISTERS

155. The Secretary of State and the Welsh Ministers.

Ministerial powers and functions under the legislation relating to children and young persons are exercised in England by the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> and in Wales by the Welsh Ministers<sup>2</sup>. Certain functions relating to England and Wales are exercised jointly by the Secretary of State and the Welsh Ministers<sup>3</sup>.

1 Most modern legislation refers simply to 'the Secretary of State' without reference to a particular department or ministry. In any enactment 'Secretary of State' means one of Her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State: Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1. The office of Secretary of State is a unified office, and in law each Secretary of State is generally capable of performing the functions of all or any of them. As to the office of Secretary of State generally see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) para 355. In practice many of the statutory functions relating to children are exercised by the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, who has assumed responsibility for many of the functions of the former Secretary of State for Education and Skills (see the Secretaries of State for Children, Schools and Families, for Innovation, Universities and Skills and for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform Order 2007, SI 2007/3224, arts 3, 6) as well as being charged with the other responsibilities listed in the Prime Minister's written statement to Parliament (see 462 HC Official Report (6th series), 28 June 2007, col 36WS).

2 Functions of Ministers of the Crown under certain legislation relating to children and young persons, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales by the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, 3, Sch 1. The functions transferred by that order were those under the Children and Young Persons Act 1933 (except s 53 (repealed), s 58 (as amended; prospectively repealed), ss 79-81 (prospectively repealed), Sch 4 (as amended; prospectively repealed)), the Children and Young Persons Act 1963, the Children and Young Persons Act 1969 (except s 7 (as amended), s 19 (repealed), s 23(12) (as substituted and amended), s 30 (as amended), s 46 (as amended), s 65 (as amended), Sch 3 (as amended)), the Adoption Act 1976 ss 3-5, 8, 28, 51A, 57A, 58A, 65A (all now repealed), the Children Act 1989 and the Activity Centres (Young Persons' Safety) Act 1995: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, Sch 1. Pursuant to the establishment of the Welsh Assembly Government under the Government of Wales Act 2006 Pt 2 (ss 45-92) (see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS), such functions, including functions under subordinate legislation, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, are now almost exclusively the responsibility of Welsh Ministers (ie the First Minister and the Welsh Ministers established under ss 46, 48: see s 45(2); and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS). Further transfers of ministerial functions to the Welsh Ministers may be effected by Order in Council pursuant to s 58, Sch 3 paras 1-8. For provisions as to the exercise of the transferred functions see Sch 11 paras 33-35 (as amended) (in the case of functions originally transferred to the Assembly by Order in Council under the Government of Wales Act 1998 s 22) or the Government of Wales Act 2006 Sch 3 para 9 (in the case of functions subsequently transferred to the Welsh Ministers by Order in Council under Sch 3 paras 1-8).

3 See the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 4. For example, in the Adoption and Children Act 2002 'appropriate minister' means, in relation to England and Wales, the Secretary of State and the Welsh Ministers acting jointly: see s 144(1); and para 921 post.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/2. CENTRAL GOVERNMENT ADMINISTRATION/(1) THE SECRETARY OF STATE AND THE WELSH MINISTERS/162. Effect of orders as between England and Wales and Northern Ireland, the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man.

162. Effect of orders as between England and Wales and Northern Ireland, the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> may make regulations providing:

- 123 (1) for prescribed orders which: (a) are made by a court in Northern Ireland<sup>2</sup>; and (b) appear to the Secretary of State to correspond in their effect to orders which may be made under any provision of the Children Act 1989<sup>3</sup>, to have effect in prescribed circumstances, for prescribed purposes of the Children Act 1989, as if they were orders of a prescribed kind made under that Act<sup>4</sup>;
- 124 (2) for prescribed orders which: (a) are made by a court<sup>5</sup> in England and Wales<sup>6</sup>; and (b) appear to the Secretary of State to correspond in their effect to orders which may be made under any provision in force in Northern Ireland<sup>7</sup>, to have effect in prescribed circumstances, for prescribed purposes of the law of Northern Ireland, as if they were orders of a prescribed kind made in Northern Ireland<sup>8</sup>.

Such regulations may provide for the order concerned to cease to have effect for the purposes of the law of Northern Ireland, or, as the case may be, the law of England and Wales, if prescribed conditions are satisfied<sup>9</sup>.

The Secretary of State may make regulations providing for prescribed orders which: (i) are made by a court in the Isle of Man or in any of the Channel Islands<sup>10</sup>; and (ii) appear to the Secretary of State to correspond in their effect to orders which may be made under the Children Act 1989<sup>11</sup>, to have effect in prescribed circumstances, for prescribed purposes of the Children Act 1989, as if they were orders of a prescribed kind made under that Act<sup>12</sup>.

Where a child<sup>13</sup>, who is in the care of a local authority<sup>14</sup>, is lawfully taken to live in Northern Ireland, the Isle of Man or any of the Channel Islands, the care order in question ceases to have effect if the conditions prescribed in regulations made by the Secretary of State are satisfied<sup>15</sup>.

The Secretary of State may by order arrange for the transfer of a person committed into care by a relevant order<sup>16</sup> between the managers of a training school in Northern Ireland<sup>17</sup> and the care of a local authority in England or Wales (and vice versa) in order to have the person committed in the area in which his parent or guardian resides or will reside: when a person is received into the care of the managers or the local authority the relevant order in consequence of which the transfer is made ceases to have effect; and the new order will function in the case of person committed to the managers of a training school and transferred to the care of a local authority as if it were a supervision order, and where the circumstances are reversed, as a training school order<sup>18</sup>.

The Secretary of State may authorise a local authority in England or Wales to receive into its care any person named in the authorisation who is the subject of a relevant order<sup>19</sup> made in the Isle of Man or any of the Channel Islands. While such an authorisation is in force in respect of any person he is deemed to be the subject of a care order<sup>20</sup> placing the child in the care of a named local authority or, where the relevant order was made as a criminal disposal in criminal proceedings, a supervision order<sup>21</sup> imposing a local authority residence requirement<sup>22</sup> with a requirement that the child be accommodated by a designated local authority<sup>23</sup>.

(i) Functions of the Children's Commissioner

164. Establishment and function.

There is established an office of Children's Commissioner<sup>1</sup> which has the function of promoting awareness of the views and interests of children<sup>2</sup> in England<sup>3</sup>.

The Commissioner may in particular: (1) encourage persons exercising functions or engaged in activities affecting children to take account of their views and interests; (2) advise the Secretary of State on the views and interests of children; (3) consider or research the operation of complaints procedures so far as relating to children; (4) consider or research any other matter relating to the interests of children; and (5) publish a report on any matter considered or researched by him<sup>4</sup>.

The Commissioner is concerned in particular with the views and interests of children so far as relating to the following aspects of their well-being: (a) physical and mental health and emotional well-being; (b) protection from harm and neglect; (c) education, training and recreation; (d) the contribution made by them to society; (e) social and economic well-being<sup>5</sup>.

The Commissioner must take reasonable steps to involve children in the discharge of his function under these provisions, and in particular to ensure that children are made aware of his function and how they may communicate with him, and to consult children, and organisations working with children, on the matters he proposes to consider or research under head (3) or head (4) above<sup>6</sup>.

The Commissioner must not conduct an investigation of the case of an individual child under these provisions<sup>7</sup>.

The Commissioner or a person authorised by him may for the purposes of his function under these provisions at any reasonable time enter any premises, other than a private dwelling, for the purposes of interviewing any child accommodated or cared for there, and, if the child consents, interview the child in private<sup>8</sup>.

Any person exercising functions under any enactment must supply the Commissioner with such information in that person's possession relating to those functions as the Commissioner may reasonably request for the purposes of his function under these provisions, provided that the information is information which that person may lawfully disclose to him<sup>9</sup>.

Where the Commissioner has published a report containing recommendations in respect of any person exercising functions under any enactment, he may require that person to state in writing, within such period as the Commissioner may reasonably require, what action the person has taken or proposes to take in response to the recommendations<sup>10</sup>.

2 For these purposes, 'child' means a person under the age of 18: ibid s 65(1). See also para 3 ante. Any reference to a child in Pt 1 (ss 1-9) (apart from a reference in s 2(11), (12)) includes, in addition to a person under the age of 18, a person aged 18, 19 or 20 who has been looked after by a local authority in England and Wales at any time after attaining the age of 16, or has a learning disability: s 9(1), (2). A person is 'looked after by a local authority' if for the purposes of the Children Act 1989 he is looked after by a local authority in England and Wales (see s 22(1); and para 867 post): Children Act 2004 s 9(3). 'Learning disability' means a state of arrested or incomplete development of mind which induces significant impairment of intelligence and social functioning: s 9(3).

In considering what constitutes the interests of children, generally or so far as relating to a particular matter, the Children's Commissioner must have regard to the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (20 November 1989; TS 44 (1992); Cm 1976), subject to any reservations, objections or interpretative declarations by the United Kingdom for the time being in force: Children Act 2004 s 2(11), (12).

3 Ibid s 2(1).

4 Ibid s 2(2). Where the Children's Commissioner publishes such a report he must, if and to the extent that he considers it appropriate, also publish the report in a version which is suitable for children, or, if the report relates to a particular group of children, for those children: s 2(5). For the purposes of the law of defamation any statement made by the Children's Commissioner in a report published under Pt 1 has absolute privilege, and any other statement made by him or a member of his staff for the purposes of Pt 1 has qualified privilege: s 1, Sch 1 para 10.

5 Ibid s 2(3).

6 Ibid s 2(4). For this purpose, the Children's Commissioner must have particular regard to groups of children who do not have other adequate means by which they can make their views known: s 2(6).

CENTRAL GOVERNMENT ADMINISTRATION/(2) THE CHILDREN'S COMMISSIONER AND THE CHILDREN'S COMMISSIONER FOR WALES/(i) Functions of the Children's Commissioner/165. Inquiries.

165. Inquiries.

Where the Children's Commissioner considers that the case of an individual child<sup>1</sup> in England raises issues of public policy of relevance to other children, he may hold an inquiry into that case for the purpose of investigating and making recommendations about those issues<sup>2</sup>. The Commissioner may only conduct such an inquiry if he is satisfied that the inquiry would not duplicate work that is the function of another person (having consulted such persons as he considers appropriate)<sup>3</sup> and before holding such an inquiry he must consult the Secretary of State<sup>4</sup>. The Commissioner may, if he thinks fit, hold an inquiry, or any part of it, in private<sup>5</sup>. As soon as possible after completing an inquiry the Commissioner must publish a report containing his recommendations, and send a copy to the Secretary of State<sup>6</sup>. The report need not identify any individual child if the Commissioner considers that it would be undesirable for the identity of the child to be made public<sup>7</sup>. Where the Commissioner has published a report containing recommendations in respect of any person exercising functions under any enactment, he may require that person to state in writing, within such period as the Commissioner may reasonably require, what action the person has taken or proposes to take in response to the recommendations<sup>8</sup>.

Where the Secretary of State considers that the case of an individual child in England raises issues of relevance to other children, he may direct the Commissioner to hold an inquiry into that case<sup>9</sup>. The Commissioner may, if he thinks fit, hold such an inquiry, or any part of it, in private<sup>10</sup>. The Commissioner must, as soon as possible after the completion of such an inquiry, make a report in relation to the inquiry and send a copy to the Secretary of State<sup>11</sup>. The Secretary of State must publish each report received by him as soon as possible<sup>12</sup> and lay a copy of each report so published before each House of Parliament<sup>13</sup>.

As soon as possible after the end of each financial year the Commissioner must make a report on:

- 125 (1) the way in which he has discharged his functions<sup>14</sup>, other than functions of holding inquiries, and in particular an account of the steps taken by him to involve the children in relation to whom those functions are exercised<sup>15</sup>;
- 126 (2) what he has found in the course of exercising those functions during the year<sup>16</sup>; and
- 127 (3) the matters he intends to consider or research in the next financial year<sup>17</sup>.

- 139 (b) such children are encouraged to communicate with the Commissioner and his staff<sup>21</sup>;
- 140 (c) the content of any material issued by the Commissioner or his staff, whether printed or in electronic form, which is intended to be read by any one or more of such children, takes account, so far as practicable, of the age, level of understanding and usual language of the intended recipient<sup>22</sup>;
- 141 (d) the views of such children are sought as to how the Commissioner should exercise his functions and as to the content of the Commissioner's annual work programme<sup>23</sup>; and

142 (e) the Commissioner and his staff make themselves available to such children in the children's locality<sup>24</sup>,

CENTRAL GOVERNMENT ADMINISTRATION/(2) THE CHILDREN'S COMMISSIONER AND THE CHILDREN'S COMMISSIONER FOR WALES/(ii) Functions of the Children's Commissioner for Wales/170. Power to examine cases.

170. Power to examine cases.

Regulations<sup>1</sup> may make provision for the examination by the Children's Commissioner for Wales of the cases of particular children<sup>2</sup> to whom Part V of the Care Standards Act 2000<sup>3</sup> applies<sup>4</sup>. Such regulations may include provision about:

- 171 (1) the types of case which may be examined<sup>5</sup>;
- 172 (2) the circumstances in which an examination may be made<sup>6</sup>;
- 173 (3) the procedure for conducting an examination, including provision about the representation of parties<sup>7</sup>; and
- 174 (4) the publication of reports following an examination<sup>8</sup>.

The regulations may make provision for requiring persons to provide the Commissioner with information<sup>9</sup>, or requiring persons who hold or are accountable for information to provide the Commissioner with explanations or other assistance, for the purposes of an examination or for the purposes of determining whether any recommendation made in a report following an examination has been complied with<sup>10</sup>. The regulations may make provision for the payment by the Commissioner of sums in respect of expenses or allowances to persons who attend or provide information for those purposes<sup>11</sup>.

1 The regulations made by the Welsh Ministers: Care Standards Act 2000 s 78(7) (amended by the Government of Wales Act 2006 (Consequential Modifications and Transitional Provisions) Order 2007, SI 2007/1388, art 3, Sch 1 paras 69, 73). As to the Welsh Ministers see para 155 ante.

3 The Care Standards Act 2000 Pt V (ss 72-78) (as amended).

4 Ibid s 74(1). As to the functions of the English Children's Commissioner in relation to Wales see para 166 ante. As to the children to whom Pt V (as amended) applies see para 167 ante. The power to make regulations under s 74 is exercisable only in connection with the Commissioner's functions under Pt V (as amended) not including the power to consider and make representations about any matter affecting the rights or welfare of children in Wales under s 75A (as added) (see para 171 post): s 74(1) (amended by the Children's Commissioner for Wales Act 2001 s 5(2)(a)); Care Standards Act 2000 s 74(1A) (added by the Children's Commissioner for Wales Act 2001 s 5(2)(b)).

5 Care Standards Act 2000 s 74(2)(a). The Commissioner may examine cases of particular children: (1) to or in respect of whom regulated children's services in Wales are being or have been provided; (2) to or in respect of whom services are being or have been provided by any of the persons mentioned in Sch 2B (as added and amended) (see para 167 ante) or persons providing such services on behalf of or under arrangements with any of those persons; or (3) who are ordinarily resident in Wales and who are being or have been affected by the exercise or proposed exercise of any function of the Welsh Ministers, the First Minister for Wales or the Counsel General to the Welsh Assembly Government or a person mentioned in Sch 2A (as added) (see para 168 ante), where these cases relate to issues concerning the provision of such services or the effect on the children of the exercise of such functions: Children's Commissioner for Wales Regulations 2001, SI 2001/2787, reg 5 (amended by virtue of the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30). As to the First Minister for Wales and the Counsel General to the Welsh Assembly Government see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

6 Care Standards Act 2000 s 74(2)(b). The Commissioner may only examine the case of a particular child in circumstances where: (1) a representation is made to the Commissioner by the child concerned or, if the child is unable for any reason to make such a representation, where a representation is made to the Commissioner on behalf of the child by a person who, in the reasonable opinion of the Commissioner, is suitable to make such a representation; (2) the Commissioner considers that the representation raises a question of principle which has a more general application or relevance to the rights or welfare of relevant children than in the particular case concerned; and (3) the Commissioner has taken into account whether the issues involved in the case have been or are being formally considered in any way and if they have not or are not whether, in the Commissioner's opinion, they are more suitable for consideration by other persons: Children's Commissioner for Wales Regulations 2001, SI 2001/2787, reg 6.

7 Care Standards Act 2000 s 74(2)(c). Where the Commissioner decides to conduct an examination he must: (1) produce terms of reference for the examination; (2) send the terms of reference to the person who made the representations giving rise to the examination; (3) send written notice of the proposed examination and copies of the terms of reference to the person being examined (in respect of whose provision of services or the exercise of whose functions there is to be an examination); and (4) afford the person being examined and, if he so desires, his representative an opportunity to make representations in writing or in person in relation to the matters being examined: Children's Commissioner for Wales Regulations 2001, SI 2001/2787, reg 7.

8 Care Standards Act 2000 s 74(2)(d). Following the conclusion of an examination undertaken pursuant to the Children's Commissioner for Wales Regulations 2001, SI 2001/2787, Pt III (regs 4-9), the Commissioner must make a report: reg 13(1). As to reports see further para 172 note 14 post.

9 For the meaning of 'information' see para 169 note 20 ante.

10 Care Standards Act 2000 s 74(3). For the purposes mentioned in s 74(3), the Commissioner has the same powers as the High Court in respect of the attendance and examination of witnesses (including the administration of oaths and affirmations and the examination of witnesses abroad), and the provision of information: s 74(4). No person may be compelled for the purposes mentioned in s 74(3) to give any evidence or provide any information which he could not be compelled to give or provide in civil proceedings before the High Court: s 74(5).

In conducting an examination the Commissioner may require certain designated persons to provide any information which appears to the Commissioner to be necessary for the purposes of the examination in question; and require such a person (or such other person as may be accountable for the said information) to provide the Commissioner with an explanation of, or assistance in relation to, any matters which are the subject of the examination, or any information provided: Children's Commissioner for Wales Regulations 2001, SI 2001/2787, reg 8(1). As to the persons designated see reg 8(2).

The Commissioner may, if it is considered necessary for the purposes of an examination, require a person who is required to provide information under reg 8 to attend before the Commissioner in person to provide information, explanations or assistance: reg 9(1), (2). However, he may only require a person to attend in person at any place if reasonable written notice of the proposed date of attendance and the information, explanations or assistance required by the Commissioner has been given to that person: reg 9(3). In connection with such attendance in person, the Commissioner may, subject to the Care Standards Act 2000 s 74(4), issue witness summonses and administer oaths or affirmations and may permit a person to be represented before the Commissioner: Children's Commissioner for Wales Regulations 2001, SI 2001/2787, reg 9(4).

Where a person provides information to the Commissioner pursuant to reg 8 or attends before the Commissioner pursuant to reg 9, the Commissioner may, if he thinks fit, pay to that person sums in respect of expenses properly incurred by the person, and allowances by way of compensation for the loss of his time, in accordance with such scales, and subject to such conditions, as may be determined by the Commissioner: reg 20.

171. Additional power of consideration and representation.

The Children's Commissioner for Wales may consider, and make representations to the Welsh Ministers, the First Minister for Wales or the Counsel General to the Welsh Assembly Government<sup>1</sup> about, any matter affecting the rights or welfare of children<sup>2</sup> in Wales<sup>3</sup>.

1 As to the Welsh Ministers see para 155 ante. As to the First Minister for Wales or the Counsel General to the Welsh Assembly Government see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

172. Further functions of the Commissioner.

Regulations may, in connection with the Commissioner's functions under Part V, confer further functions<sup>12</sup> on him<sup>13</sup>. The regulations may, in particular, include provision about the making of reports on any matter connected with any of his functions<sup>14</sup>; and provide that the Commissioner may make a joint report with the Commissioner for Older People in Wales where they have discharged their respective functions under this Act and the Commissioner for Older People (Wales) Act 2006 in relation to the same matters<sup>15</sup>. Apart from identifying any person investigated, a report by the Commissioner must not mention the name of any person, or include any particulars which, in the opinion of the Commissioner, are likely to identify any person and can be omitted without impairing the effectiveness of the report, unless, after taking account of the public interest (as well as the interests of any person who made a complaint and other persons), the Commissioner considers it necessary for the report to mention his name or include such particulars<sup>16</sup>. For the purposes of the law of defamation, the publication of any matter by the Commissioner in a report is absolutely privileged<sup>17</sup>.

The Commissioner or a person authorised by him may for the purposes of specified functions<sup>18</sup> of the Commissioner, at any reasonable time, enter any premises (other than a private dwelling) for the purpose of interviewing any child accommodated or cared for there and, if the child consents, interview the child in private<sup>19</sup>.

2    For the purposes of the Care Standards Act 2000 s 76(1), assistance includes financial assistance, and arranging for representation, or the giving of advice or assistance, by any person; and the regulations may provide for assistance to be given on conditions, including (in the case of financial assistance) conditions requiring repayment in circumstances specified in the regulations: s 76(2).

8    'Prescribed' means prescribed by regulations: ibid s 121(1).

9 Ibid s 76(1)(b). For the purposes of s 76(1), 'proceedings' includes a procedure of any kind and any prospective proceedings: s 76(1). The proceedings which may be prescribed by virtue of s 76(1)(b) are proceedings relating to the exercise or proposed exercise of a function as mentioned in s 72B(1) (as added) (see para 168 ante); and the provision of services as mentioned in s 78(1)(b) or (c) (as substituted) (see para 167 ante): s 76(1A) (added by the Children's Commissioner for Wales Act 2001 s 6(b)).

The Children's Commissioner for Wales Regulations 2001, SI 2001/2787, reg 10(1), (2) (amended by virtue of the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30) provides that the Commissioner may, subject to reg 10(3), (5), provide relevant assistance to a relevant child:

- 72 (1) in relation to proceedings concerning:
  1. (a) the provision to or in respect of a relevant child of regulated children's services in Wales;
  2. (b) the provision of services to or in respect of such a child by any person mentioned in the Care Standards Act 2000 Sch 2B (as added) (see para 167 ante) or any person providing services on behalf of or under arrangements with that person; or
  3. (c) the effect on such a child of the exercise or proposed exercise of any function of the Welsh Ministers, the First Minister for Wales or the Counsel General to the Welsh Assembly Government or a person mentioned in Sch 2A (as added and amended) (see para 168 ante),
- 73 where, in the reasonable opinion of the Commissioner, the proceedings relate to matters which have a more general application or relevance to the rights and welfare of children in Wales than in the particular proceedings concerned; and
- 74 (2) in making a complaint or representation to or in respect of a provider of regulated children's services in Wales; and
- 75 (3) in making a complaint or representation to or in respect of a person mentioned in s 73(2B) (as added) (see para 169 ante) or Sch 2B (as added) (see para 167 ante).

In deciding whether to provide relevant assistance the Commissioner may take account of the financial and other assistance available to the relevant child in relation to the proceedings, complaint or representation concerned, including assistance under the Access to Justice Act 1999. For the purposes of this regulation 'relevant assistance', without affecting the law and practice as to who may represent a person in relation to any proceedings, means providing or arranging for the provision of advice to and representation of the child; and providing or arranging for the provision of any other assistance which the Commissioner considers appropriate: Children's Commissioner for Wales Regulations 2001, SI 2001/2787, reg 10(3)-(5).

Where the Commissioner decides to provide financial assistance to a relevant child pursuant to the above provisions the assistance may be provided subject to either or both of the following conditions: (i) the Commissioner may recover the reasonable cost of providing the assistance from any sums paid by other parties for this purpose in the proceedings concerned (for which purpose it is immaterial whether the sums paid by other parties are payable by virtue of a decision of a court or tribunal, an agreement reached to avoid proceedings or to bring them to an end, or otherwise); (ii) the assistance provided does not duplicate assistance which has been or may be provided under any enactment: Children's Commissioner for Wales Regulations 2001, SI 2001/2787, reg 11.

12 The reference in ibid s 76(4), (5) to functions of the Commissioner does not include a reference to his power to consider and make representations by virtue of s 75A(1) (as added) (see para 171 ante): s 76(5A) (added by the Children's Commissioner for Wales Act 2001 s 6(c)).

14 Ibid s 76(5)(a) (renumbered by the Commissioner for Older People (Wales) Act 2006 s 22, Sch 4 para 1(1), (3)). See also note 12 supra.

A report made under the Children's Commissioner for Wales Regulations 2001, SI 2001/2787, reg 13(1) (see para 170 note 8 ante), reg 13(2) (see para 169 notes 3, 30 ante) or reg 13(2A) (as added) (see note 15 infra) must set out the findings and conclusions of the Commissioner; and any recommendations made by him (reg 13(3) (amended by SI 2007/316)); and must send a copy of such a report to the First Minister, and the libraries of the National Assembly for Wales and of the Houses of Parliament (reg 13(4)).

In the case of a report made under reg 13(1) the Commissioner must send a copy to the child or person, as the case may be, who made a representation to the Commissioner in accordance with reg 6 (see para 170 note 6 ante) and in the case of a report made under reg 13(1) or (2) he must send a copy to the person or persons: (1) whose provision of services or the exercise of whose functions has been examined; (2) whose arrangements in relation to complaints, whistle-blowing or advocacy have been reviewed or monitored; (3) in respect of whom an assessment pursuant to the Care Standards Act 2000 s 73(1A) (as added) (see para 169 ante) has been carried out; or (4) who are mentioned in the report: Children's Commissioner for Wales Regulations 2001, SI 2001/2787, reg 13(5).

Where the Commissioner has made a report under reg 13(1) which contains a recommendation in respect of a provider of regulated children's services in Wales, the Welsh Ministers, the First Minister for Wales or the Counsel General to the Welsh Assembly Government or a person mentioned in the Care Standards Act 2000 Sch 2A (as added) (see para 168 ante), the Commissioner may require in writing the person in respect of whom the recommendation is made to provide the Commissioner with the relevant information within three months of the date on which the person is sent a copy of the report: reg 14(1) (amended by virtue of the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30). Where the Commissioner has made a report under the Children's Commissioner for Wales Regulations 2001, SI 2001/2787, reg 13(2) which contains a recommendation in respect of such a person, the Commissioner may request in writing the person in respect of whom the recommendation is made to provide the Commissioner with the relevant information within three months of the date on which the person is sent a copy of the report: reg 14(2). Where such a requirement or request is made it must include a statement that failure to respond within the three months concerned may be published in such manner as the Commissioner considers appropriate: reg 14(4).

If the Commissioner reasonably considers, upon receipt of the relevant information, that the action taken or proposed to be taken to comply with the recommendation or that the reason for no such action being taken or not being proposed to be taken is inadequate, the Commissioner may send to the person concerned a written notice setting out the inadequacies which requires a response within one month of the date of sending: reg 14(5). Where the Commissioner receives no response in accordance with that written notice within one month or is dissatisfied with the response, he may send a supplementary notice which requires a supplementary response within one month of the date of sending: reg 14(6). The supplementary notice must include a statement that failure to provide what the Commissioner reasonably considers to be a satisfactory supplementary response, or a response at all, may be published in such manner as the Commissioner considers appropriate: reg 14(7).

The Commissioner must maintain a register containing details of recommendations contained in reports made under reg 13(1), (2), and the results of further action taken in accordance with reg 14(1), (2), (5), (6) (reg 14(1) as amended): reg 14(8). Any register so maintained must be open to inspection by any person at all reasonable times at the offices of the Commissioner and the Commissioner may make arrangements for copies of the register to be available for inspection in such other place or places or by such other means as he considers appropriate: reg 14(9). The Commissioner must publish the arrangements in such a way as to bring them to the attention of persons who are, in the reasonable opinion of the Commissioner, likely to be interested: reg 14(10).

The 'relevant information' means such information, explanations or assistance as to enable the Commissioner to determine whether the person concerned has complied with the recommendation or will be so complying, or an explanation of the reason for no such action having been taken or not being intended to be taken: reg 14(3).

Beginning in 2002, the Commissioner must make an annual report to the First Minister for Wales containing: (a) a summary of the action taken in the exercise of the Commissioner's functions under the Care Standards Act 2000 during the previous financial year including a summary of the reports issued during that period and of such representations as the Commissioner may have made during that period pursuant to s 75A (as added), including any representations made as to the range or effectiveness of the Commissioner's powers; (b) a review of issues relevant to the rights and welfare of children in Wales; and (c) a summary of the Commissioner's work programme for the financial year in which the report is made and of the Commissioner's proposals for a work programme for the financial year following that year: Children's Commissioner for Wales Regulations 2001 SI 2001/2787 reg 15(1), (3).

The Commissioner must also produce a version of the annual report which is, so far as reasonably practicable, suitable for children (reg 15(2)); and, no later than 1 October in each year, the Commissioner must send a copy of both of the annual reports to the First Minister and the libraries of the National Assembly for Wales and of the Houses of Parliament (reg 15(4)).

The Commissioner must arrange for copies of reports made under of reg 13(1), (2) and under reg 15 to be available for inspection at the Commissioner's office at all reasonable times and at such other places or by such other means, including by electronic means, as the Commissioner considers appropriate (reg 16(1)); and he must publish the arrangements in such a way as to bring them to the attention of persons who are, in the reasonable opinion of the Commissioner, likely to be interested (reg 16(2)).

- 176 (2) a person is guilty of any act or omission in relation to an examination under regulations<sup>2</sup> which, if that examination were proceedings in the High Court, would constitute contempt of court<sup>3</sup>.

Where an offence is so certified the High Court may inquire into the matter and after hearing any witnesses who may be produced against or on behalf of the person charged with the offence and any statement that may be offered in defence, the High Court may deal with the person charged with the offence in any manner in which it could deal with him if he had committed the same offence in relation to the High Court<sup>4</sup>.

174. Working with the Commission for Older People in Wales.

Where it appears to the Children's Commissioner for Wales that a case which he is examining<sup>1</sup>, or considering whether to examine, relates to or raises a matter which could be the subject of an examination by the Commissioner for Older People in Wales<sup>2</sup>, and he considers it appropriate, he must inform the Commissioner for Older People in Wales about that matter<sup>3</sup>. Where the Children's Commissioner for Wales considers that the case also relates to or raises a matter which he is entitled to examine himself, he must also, if he considers it appropriate, inform and consult with the Commissioner for Older People in Wales about his proposals for the examination of the case<sup>4</sup>.

Where the Children's Commissioner for Wales and the Commissioner for Older People in Wales consider that they are both entitled to examine matters relating to the case they may<sup>5</sup>:

- 177 (1) co-operate with each other in the separate examination of each of those matters<sup>6</sup>;
- 178 (2) act together in the examination of those matters<sup>7</sup>; and
- 179 (3) prepare and publish a joint report containing their respective conclusions in relation to the matters they have each examined<sup>8</sup>.

Where the Children's Commissioner for Wales considers that the case is not one which relates to or raises a matter that he is entitled to examine himself, and that it is appropriate to do so, he must inform the person whose case it is, or another person interested in it that he thinks fit, about how to secure the referral to the Commissioner for Older People in Wales of the connected matter<sup>9</sup>.

188A. Children's trust boards.

Arrangements made by a children's services authority in England under the Children Act 2004 s 10 for improving the well-being of children in its area (see PARA 187) must include arrangements for the establishment of a children's trust board ('CTB') for its area: see Children Act 2004 s 12A (ss 12A-12D added by Apprenticeships, Skills, Children and Learning Act 2009 s 194(2)). The functions of a CTB are those of preparing, publishing and reviewing a children and young people's plan conferred by Children Act 2004 ss 17, 17A (see PARA 190) and any further functions conferred by regulations made by the Secretary of State: Children Act 2004 s 12B. Provision is made for the funding of CTBs (Children Act 2004 s 12C) and members of a CTB are required to supply information to it if requested to do so for the purpose of enabling or assisting it to perform its functions (Children Act 2004 s 12D).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/2. CENTRAL GOVERNMENT ADMINISTRATION/(3) CHILDREN'S SERVICES AUTHORITIES/(i) Children's Services in England/189. Local safeguarding children boards.

189. Local safeguarding children boards.

Each children's services authority in England<sup>1</sup> must establish a local safeguarding children board for its area<sup>2</sup>. A board so established must include such representative or representatives of the authority by which it is established, and each board partner<sup>3</sup> of that authority, as the Secretary of State<sup>4</sup> may by regulations prescribe<sup>5</sup>. A children's services authority in England must take reasonable steps to ensure that the board established by it includes representatives of relevant persons and bodies<sup>6</sup> of such descriptions as may be prescribed by the Secretary of State in regulations<sup>7</sup>. A board may also include representatives of such other relevant persons or bodies as the authority by which it is established considers, after consulting its board partners, should be represented on it<sup>8</sup>. In the establishment and operation of a board, the authority establishing it must co-operate with each of its board partners and each board partner must co-operate with the authority<sup>9</sup>.

The objective of a local safeguarding children board is to co-ordinate what is done by each person or body represented on the board for the purposes of safeguarding and promoting the welfare of children<sup>10</sup> in the area of the authority by which it is established, and to ensure the effectiveness of what is done by each such person or body for those purposes<sup>11</sup>. A board is to have such functions in relation to its objective as the Secretary of State may by regulations prescribe, which may in particular include functions of review or investigation<sup>12</sup>. The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision as to the procedures to be followed by a board<sup>13</sup>.

There are specified persons or bodies<sup>14</sup> who may make payments towards expenditure incurred by, or for purposes connected with, a local safeguarding children board by making the payments directly, or by contributing to a fund out of which the payments may be made<sup>15</sup>. Any specified person or body may provide staff, goods, services, accommodation or other resources for purposes connected with a board<sup>16</sup>.

The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision as to the functions of children's services authorities in England relating to local safeguarding children boards established by them<sup>17</sup>. A children's services authority in England and each of its board partners must, in exercising its functions relating to a local safeguarding children board, have regard to any guidance given to it for the purpose by the Secretary of State<sup>18</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'children's service authority in England' see para 187 note 1 ante.

2 Children Act 2004 s 13(1). Two or more children's services authorities in England may discharge their respective duties by establishing a local safeguarding children board for their combined area: s 13(8).

190. Local authority administration.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> may by regulations<sup>2</sup> require a children's services authority in England<sup>3</sup> from time to time to prepare and publish a plan<sup>4</sup> setting out the authority's strategy for discharging its functions in relation to children<sup>5</sup> and relevant young persons<sup>6</sup>. Such regulations may in particular make provision as to: (1) the matters to be dealt with in a plan<sup>7</sup>; (2) the period to which a plan is to relate<sup>8</sup>; (3) when and how a plan must be published<sup>9</sup>; (4) keeping a plan under review<sup>10</sup>; (5) consultation to be carried out during preparation of a plan<sup>11</sup>.

A children's services authority in England may, and from 1 January 2008 must, appoint an officer for the purposes of certain functions conferred on or exercisable by the authority<sup>12</sup>, and such other functions conferred on or exercisable by the authority as may be prescribed by the Secretary of State by regulations<sup>13</sup>. An officer so appointed is to be known as its 'director of children's services'<sup>14</sup>. The director of children's services may also have responsibilities relating to such functions conferred on or exercisable by the authority, in addition to those mentioned above, as the authority considers appropriate<sup>15</sup>. A children's services authority in England must have regard to any guidance given to it by the Secretary of State in connection with its director of children's services<sup>16</sup>. Two or more children's services authorities in England may, if they consider that the same person can efficiently discharge, for both or all of them, the responsibilities of director of children's services, concur in the appointment of a person as director of children's services for both or all of them<sup>17</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see para 155 ante.

2 The power to make regulations is, for the purposes of the Local Government Act 2003 s 100(1), to be regarded as included among the powers mentioned in s 100(2) (as amended) (see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 789): Children Act 2004 s 17(4).

3 For the meaning of 'children's service authority in England' see para 187 note 1 ante.

4 Each children's services authority in England must prepare and publish such a plan: Children and Young People's Plan (England) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/2149, reg 3. However, this requirement (together with regs 4-8 (see notes 7-11 infra)) does not apply to any children's services authority if, at the time when it would otherwise be required to publish a plan, it is categorised as four stars by reason of an order made by the Secretary of State under the Local Government Act 2003 s 99(4) (see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 789): Children and Young People's Plan (England) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/2149, reg 9(1) (amended by SI 2007/57). Where a children's services authority ceases to be categorised as four stars the first plan to be prepared and published after the authority ceased to be so categorised as four stars is to be published on or before 1 April in the second year after the authority ceased to be so categorised: Children and Young People's Plan (England) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/2149, reg 9(2), (3) (amended by SI 2007/57). Where a children's services authority was categorised as excellent by reason of the Local Authorities (Categorisation) (England) (No 2) Order 2005, SI 2005/2416 (repealed), and is not categorised as four stars by reason of the Local Authorities (Categorisation) (England) Order 2006, SI 2006/3096 (see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 789), the Children and Young People's Plan (England) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/2149, regs 3-8 apply to the authority so as to require the authority to publish a plan on or before 1 May 2007: reg 9(4) (added by SI 2007/57).

5 For the meaning of 'children' see para 164 note 2 ante.

6 Children Act 2004 s 17(1). 'Relevant young persons' means persons, other than children, in relation to whom arrangements under s 10 (as amended) may be made (see para 187 ante): s 17(5).

7 Ibid s 17(2)(a). The matters for which such provision may be made include in particular the arrangements made or to be made under the Children Act 2004 s 10 (as amended) (see para 187 ante) by a children's services authority in England, and the strategy or proposals in relation to children and relevant young persons of any person or body with whom a children's services authority in England makes or proposes to make such arrangements: s 17(3).

Each plan must set out the improvements (the 'outcomes') which the authority intends to make during the plan period to the well-being of children and relevant young persons so far as relating to: (1) physical and mental health and emotional well-being; (2) protection from harm and neglect; (3) education, training and recreation; (4) the contribution made by them to society; and (5) social and economic well-being: Children and Young People's Plan (England) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/2149, reg 4(1). Each plan must in particular include: (a) a statement as to how the authority intends to achieve the improvements referred to in heads (1)-(5) supra, with specific reference to: (i) the integration of services provided by the authority and its relevant partners to improve the well-being of children and relevant young persons; (ii) arrangements made by the authority under the Children Act 2004 s 11(2) (see para 187 ante); and (iii) arrangements for early intervention and preventative action; (b) a needs assessment against the outcomes; (c) an outline of the key actions planned to achieve the improvements so far as relating to the outcomes; (d) a statement as to how the authority's budget will be used to contribute to those improvements; and (e) a statement as to how the plan relates to the authority's performance management and review of services for children and relevant young persons: Children and Young People's Plan (England) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/2149, reg 4(2) (amended by SI 2007/57). Each plan must set out the arrangements which the authority proposes (pursuant to the Children Act 2004 s 10 (as amended): see para 187 ante) to make for working during the plan period with the authority's relevant partners and such other bodies as the authority considers appropriate: Children and Young People's Plan (England) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/2149, reg 4(3). 'Plan' means a children and young people's plan setting out the authority's strategy for discharging its functions in relation to children and relevant young persons (reg 2); 'plan period' in relation to any plan means the period (determined by the authority) to which any plan relates (reg 2). See also note 4 supra.

8 Children Act 2004 s 17(2)(b). Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/2. CENTRAL GOVERNMENT ADMINISTRATION/(3) CHILDREN'S SERVICES AUTHORITIES/(i) Children's Services in England/191. Inspection of children's services in England.

191. Inspection of children's services in England.

Any two or more of certain persons and bodies<sup>1</sup> must, at the request of the Secretary of State<sup>2</sup>: (1) conduct, in accordance with a timetable drawn up by them and approved by the Secretary of State, a review of children's services<sup>3</sup> provided in the area of every children's services authority in England<sup>4</sup>, or the areas of such children's services authorities in England as may be specified in the request<sup>5</sup>; and (2) conduct a review of such children's services provided in the area of such children's services authority in England as may be specified in the request<sup>6</sup>. Any two or more of such persons and bodies may conduct a review of any children's services provided in the area of a particular children's services authority in England<sup>7</sup>. The purpose of such a review is to evaluate the extent to which, taken together, the children's services being reviewed improve the well-being of children and relevant young persons, and in particular to evaluate how those services work together to improve their well-being<sup>8</sup>.

Reviews are to be conducted in accordance with arrangements made by the Chief Inspector of Education, Children's Services and Skills (the 'Chief Inspector')<sup>9</sup>. Before making arrangements for the purposes of those reviews he must consult such of the other relevant persons and bodies<sup>10</sup> as he considers appropriate<sup>11</sup>.

The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision for the purposes of reviews<sup>12</sup> and, in particular, provision for: (a) requiring or facilitating the sharing or production of information for the purposes of a review (including provision for the creation of criminal offences)<sup>13</sup>; (b) authorising any person or body conducting a review to enter any premises for the purposes of the review (including provision for the creation of criminal offences)<sup>14</sup>; (c) imposing requirements as to the making of a report on each review<sup>15</sup>; (d) for the making by such persons as may be specified in or under the regulations of written statements of proposed action in the light of the report and the period within which any such action must or may be taken<sup>16</sup>; (e) for the provision to members of the public of copies of reports and statements made under heads (c) and (d) above, and for charging in respect of any such provision<sup>17</sup>; (f) for the disapplication, in consequence of a requirement, of any requirement under any other enactment<sup>18</sup> to conduct an assessment or to do anything in connection with an assessment<sup>19</sup>.

The Chief Inspector must devise a Framework for Inspection of Children's Services ('the Framework')<sup>20</sup> which must, in order to ensure that relevant assessments<sup>21</sup> properly evaluate and report on the extent to which children's services improve the well-being of children and relevant young persons<sup>22</sup>, set out principles to be applied by any person or body conducting a relevant assessment<sup>23</sup>. The principles in the Framework may include principles relating to the organisation of the results of any relevant assessment, and make different provision for different cases<sup>24</sup>. The Chief Inspector must publish the Framework, but before doing so must consult such persons and bodies<sup>25</sup> as he thinks fit, and obtain the consent of the Secretary of State<sup>26</sup>.

1 They are: (1) the Chief Inspector of Education, Children's Services and Skills; (2) the Commission for Healthcare Audit and Inspection; (3) the Audit Commission for Local Authorities and the National Health Service in England and Wales; (4) the chief inspector of constabulary; (5) Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of the National Probation Service for England and Wales; (6) Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Court Administration; and (7) the Chief Inspector of Prisons: Children Act 2004 s 20(4) (amended by the Education and Inspections Act 2006 ss 157, 184, Sch 14 paras 95, 96(1), (2), Sch 18 Pt 5). ## (ii) Children's Services in Wales

192. Improvement of well-being and promotion of welfare.

Each children's services authority in Wales<sup>1</sup> must make arrangements<sup>2</sup> to promote co-operation between the authority, each of the authority's relevant partners<sup>3</sup>, and such other persons or bodies as the authority considers appropriate, being persons or bodies of any nature who exercise functions or are engaged in activities in relation to children<sup>4</sup> in the authority's area<sup>5</sup>. The arrangements are to be made with a view to improving the well-being of children in the authority's area so far as relating to:

- 204 (1) physical and mental health and emotional well-being<sup>6</sup>;
- 205 (2) protection from harm and neglect<sup>7</sup>;
- 206 (3) education, training and recreation<sup>8</sup>;
- 207 (4) the contribution made by them to society<sup>9</sup>;
- 208 (5) social and economic well-being<sup>10</sup>.

In making arrangements a children's services authority in Wales must have regard to the importance of parents and other persons caring for children in improving the well-being of children<sup>11</sup>. The relevant partners of a children's services authority in Wales must co-operate with the authority in the making of arrangements<sup>12</sup>. A children's services authority in Wales and any of its relevant partners may for the purposes of arrangements provide staff, goods, services, accommodation or other resources, and establish and maintain a pooled fund<sup>13</sup>. A children's services authority in Wales and each of its relevant partners must in exercising the above functions have regard to any guidance given to it for the purpose by the Welsh Ministers<sup>14</sup>.

The Welsh Ministers may by regulations require a children's services authority in Wales from time to time to prepare and publish a plan setting out the authority's strategy for discharging its functions in relation to children and relevant young persons<sup>15</sup>. Regulations may in particular make provision as to:

- 209 (a) the matters to be dealt with in a plan<sup>16</sup>;
- 210 (b) the period to which a plan is to relate<sup>17</sup>;
- 211 (c) when and how a plan must be published<sup>18</sup>;
- 212 (d) keeping a plan under review<sup>19</sup>;
- 213 (e) consultation to be carried out before a plan is published<sup>20</sup>;
- 214 (f) implementation of a plan<sup>21</sup>.

They may also require a children's services authority in Wales to obtain the approval of the Welsh Ministers before publishing a plan; and may provide that the Welsh Ministers may modify a plan before approving it<sup>22</sup>.

A children's services authority in Wales must have regard to any guidance given to it by the Welsh Ministers in relation to how it is to discharge its functions under such regulations<sup>23</sup>.

A children's services authority in Wales must appoint an officer, to be known as the 'lead director for children and young people's services', for the purposes of co-ordinating and overseeing arrangements made as described above; and it must designate one of its members, to be known as the 'lead member for children and young people's services', to have as his special care the discharge of the authority's functions<sup>24</sup>.

Certain persons and bodies<sup>25</sup> must make arrangements for ensuring that their functions are discharged having regard to the need to safeguard and promote the welfare of children, and that any services provided by another person pursuant to arrangements made by the person or body in the discharge of his or its functions<sup>26</sup> are provided having regard to that need<sup>27</sup>.

1 'Children's services authority in Wales' means a county council or county borough council in Wales: Children Act 2004 s 65(1). As to local government areas and authorities in Wales see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 37 et seq.

194. Local safeguarding children boards.

Each children's services authority in Wales<sup>1</sup> must establish a local safeguarding children board for its area<sup>2</sup>. A board so established must include such representative or representatives of the authority by which it is established, and each board partner<sup>3</sup> of that authority, as the Welsh Ministers<sup>4</sup> may by regulations prescribe<sup>5</sup>. A children's services authority in Wales must take reasonable steps to ensure that the board established by it includes representatives of relevant persons and bodies<sup>6</sup> of such descriptions as may be prescribed by the Welsh Ministers in regulations<sup>7</sup>. A board may also include representatives of such other relevant persons or bodies as the authority by which it is established considers, after consulting its board partners, should be represented on it<sup>8</sup>. In the establishment and operation of a board the authority establishing it must co-operate with each of its board partners, and each board partner must co-operate with the authority<sup>9</sup>.

The objective of a local safeguarding children board is to co-ordinate what is done by each person or body represented on the board for the purposes of safeguarding and promoting the welfare of children<sup>10</sup> in the area of the authority by which it is established, and to ensure the effectiveness of what is done by each such person or body for those purposes<sup>11</sup>. A local safeguarding children board is to have such functions in relation to its objective as the Welsh Ministers may by regulations prescribe, which may in particular include functions of review or investigation<sup>12</sup>. The Welsh Ministers may by regulations make provision as to the procedures to be followed by a board<sup>13</sup>.

There are specified persons or bodies<sup>14</sup> who may make payments towards expenditure incurred by, or for purposes connected with, a local safeguarding children board by making the payments directly, or by contributing to a fund out of which the payments may be made<sup>15</sup>. Any specified person or body may provide staff, goods, services, accommodation or other resources for purposes connected with a local safeguarding children board<sup>16</sup>.

The Welsh Ministers may by regulations make provision as to the functions of children's services authorities in Wales relating to local safeguarding children boards established by them<sup>17</sup>. A children's services authority in Wales and each of its board partners must, in exercising its functions relating to a local safeguarding children board, have regard to any guidance given to it for the purpose by the Welsh Ministers<sup>18</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'children's services authority in Wales' see para 192 note 1 ante.

2 Children Act 2004 s 31(1). Two or more children's services authorities in Wales may discharge their respective duties by establishing a local safeguarding children board for their combined area (and where they do so, any reference in these provisions and ss 32-34 (see notes 10-18 infra) to the authority establishing the board must be read as a reference to the authorities establishing it): s 31(9).

3 Each of the following is a board partner of a children's services authority in Wales: (1) the chief officer of police for a police area any part of which falls within the area of the authority; (2) a local probation board for an area any part of which falls within the area of the authority; (3) a youth offending team for an area any part of which falls within the area of the authority; (4) a local health board for an area any part of which falls within the area of the authority; (5) a national health service trust providing services in the area of the authority; (6) the governor of any secure training centre within the area of the authority, or, in the case of a contracted out secure training centre, its director; (7) the governor of any prison in the area of the authority which ordinarily detains children, or, in the case of a contracted out prison, its director: ibid s 31(3).

As to prisons and secure training centres see PRISONS. For the meaning of 'contracted out secure training centre' and 'contracted out prison' and as to the meaning of 'prison' see para 189 note 3 ante.

As from a day to be appointed the following are also board partners: (a) the Secretary of State in relation to his functions under the Offender Management Act 2007 ss 2, 3 (not yet in force) (functions relating to the provision of probation services), so far as they are exercisable in relation to Wales; (b) any provider of probation services that is required by arrangements under s 3(2) (not yet in force) to act as a board partner of the authority: Children Act 2004 s 31(3)(ba), (bb) (prospectively added by the Offender Management Act 2007 s 39, Sch 3 para 4(1), (7)). 'Area' ('ardal') means the area for which a board is established; 'board' ('bwrdd') means either a local safeguarding children board established for the area of a children's services authority in Wales or a local safeguarding children board established for the area of two or more children's services authorities in Wales; 'chief education officer' ('prif swyddog addysg') means an officer appointed under the Education Act 1996 s 532 (see EDUCATION vol 15(1) (2006 Reissue) para 51); 'children's services authority' ('awdurdod gwasanaethau plant'), in relation to a board, means the authority or authorities by whom the board is established; 'director of social services' ('cyfarwyddwr gwasanaethau cymdeithasol') has the same meaning as in the Local Authority Social Services Act 1970 (see SOCIAL SERVICES AND COMMUNITY CARE vol 44(2) (Reissue) para 1007); 'registered nurse' ('nyrs gofrestredig') means a nurse or midwife registered with the Nursing and Midwifery Council; 'representative body' ('corff cynrychioliadol') means a body who has appointed a person to act as its representative on the board: Local Safeguarding Children Boards (Wales) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/1705, reg 2(1). As to the Nursing and Midwifery Council see MEDICAL PROFESSIONS vol 30(1) (Reissue) para 691 et seq; and as to the registration of nurses and midwives see MEDICAL PROFESSIONS vol 30(1) (Reissue) para 716 et seq.

6 'Relevant persons and bodies' are persons and bodies of any nature exercising functions or engaged in activities relating to children in the area of the authority in question: Children Act 2004 s 31(7).

7 Ibid s 31(5) (amended by virtue of the Government of Wales Act 2006 Sch 11 para 30).

8 Children Act 2004 s 31(6).

9 Ibid s 31(8).

10 For the meaning of 'children' see para 164 note 2 ante.

11 Children Act 2004 s 32(1).

12 Ibid s 32(2) (amended by virtue of the Government of Wales Act 2006 Sch 11 para 30). A board is to have the following functions in relation to safeguarding and promoting the welfare of children within the area of the board:

122 (1) to take steps to foster a relationship of mutual trust and understanding amongst the persons or bodies represented on the board (Local Safeguarding Children Boards (Wales) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/1705, reg 3(1)(a));

123 (2) to take steps to raise awareness throughout the board's area of the need to safeguard and promote the welfare of children and to provide information on how this might be achieved (reg 3(1)(b));

124 (3) to develop policies and procedures whose purpose is to co-ordinate what is done by each representative body, including procedures in relation to: (a) information sharing; (b) actions, including thresholds for intervention, to be taken where there are concerns about a child's safety or welfare; (c) the recruitment and supervision of persons who work with or have regular access to children; and (d) the safety and welfare of children who are privately fostered (reg 3(1)(c));

125 (4) to review the efficacy of measures taken by each person or body represented on the board to co-ordinate what they do and to make whatever recommendations it sees fit to those persons or bodies in the light of such a review (reg 3(1)(d));

126 (5) to undertake serious case reviews (reg 3(1)(e));

127 (6) to monitor the extent to which any recommendations made under head (4) or head (5) supra are being or have been met (reg 3(1)(f));

128 (7) to develop criteria for measuring the performance of the children's services authority against a plan under the Children Act 2004 s 26 (see para 192 ante) (Local Safeguarding Children Boards (Wales) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/1705, reg 3(1)(g));

- 129 (8) to disseminate information about best practice amongst the representative bodies and such other persons as the board sees fit (reg 3(1)(h));
- 130 (9) to undertake research (reg 3(1)(i));
- 131 (10) to review training needs with a view to identifying training activities (reg 3(1)(j));
- 132 (11) to provide training (reg 3(1)(k));
- 133 (12) to co-operate with other boards (whether in England or Wales) and any similar such bodies in Scotland and Northern Ireland where the board considers that would be of mutual benefit (reg 3(1)(l));
- 134 (13) to seek advice or information where the board considers that to be desirable (reg 3(1)(m)).

A board must undertake a serious case review where, within the area of the board, abuse or neglect of a child is known or suspected, and a child has died, sustained a potentially life-threatening injury, or sustained a serious and permanent impairment of health or development: reg 4(1). A board may undertake such a review where a child suffers harm which does not fall within the types of harm described above: reg 4(2). The purpose of the review is to identify steps that might be taken to prevent a similar death or harm occurring: reg 4(3). For these purposes, 'harm' ('niwed') has the meaning given in the Children Act 1989 s 31(9) (see para 274 post): Local Safeguarding Children Boards (Wales) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/1705, reg 2(1). In carrying out a serious case review a board must: (i) ask each representative body to provide a written report of its involvement with the child who is the subject of the review, unless the board is of the opinion that such a report is unnecessary in the circumstances; (ii) following receipt of each report, produce a written overview report that identifies steps to be taken to reduce the risk of a similar death or harm occurring and recommends the time by which, and the persons by whom, those steps should be performed; (iii) produce an anonymised summary of each overview report and make it available for inspection: reg 4(4). The board must provide the Welsh Ministers with a copy of each report provided by a representative body, each anonymised summary and each overview report (reg 4(5)), and provide each representative body with a copy of each anonymised report and, unless the board considers it inappropriate, each overview report (reg 4(6)).

13 Children Act 2004 s 32(3) (amended by virtue of the Government of Wales Act 2006 Sch 11 para 30). Subject to the following provisions, a board is to decide on its own procedures: Local Safeguarding Children Boards (Wales) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/1705, reg 6(8).

A board must maintain a list of those persons who hold a current appointment to represent a person or body on the board (the 'members'): reg 6(1). It must take decisions by majority vote of its members unless the decision falls to be taken in connection with a function of developing procedures to co-ordinate the activities of representative bodies (see note 12 head (3) supra), and the chair has a casting vote: reg 6(2). A board may decide that a particular function may to any specified extent (including in its totality), and subject to any specified conditions, be discharged on its behalf by any one or more of its members, unless the function is one of developing procedures to co-ordinate the activities of representative bodies (see note 12 head (3) supra): reg 6(3). Where the function is one of developing procedures to co-ordinate the activities of representative bodies (see note 12 head (3) supra), a decision in connection with that function may only be taken by unanimous vote of the members: reg 6(5). A board must by majority decision appoint one of its members to be its chair; and in making that decision the members must have regard to the need to appoint a chair who has sufficient expertise and standing to command the respect of the representative bodies: reg 6(6). The chair's appointment comes to an end if: (1) he was appointed for a fixed term and that term expires; (2) he resigns; (3) he is no longer a member of the board; (4) the members by majority decision so decide: reg 6(7). A children's services authority must provide a member of its staff to provide administrative services to the board, and the records of a board (in whatever form) are to be treated as if they were records of the children's services authority: reg 7.

14 (1) the children's services authority in Wales by which the board is established; (2) any person mentioned in note 3 heads (1)-(5) supra; (3) in a case where the governor of a secure training centre or prison is a board partner of the authority, the Secretary of State; and (4) in a case where the director of a contracted out secure training centre or prison is a board partner of the authority, the contractor: Children Act 2004 s 33(3).

17 Ibid s 34(1) (amended by virtue of the Government of Wales Act 2006 Sch 11 para 30).

18 Children Act 2004 s 34(2) (amended by virtue of the Government of Wales Act 2006 Sch 11 para 30). The Welsh Ministers must obtain the consent of the Secretary of State before giving such guidance at any time after the coming into force of any of the Children Act 2004 s 31(3)(a)-(c), (f) or (g) (see note 3 heads (1)-(3), (6), (7) supra): s 34(3).

A 'related activity', in relation to a function listed in heads (1)-(6) supra, means anything done in any place by, or pursuant to arrangements made by, the authority under the Local Government Act 2000 s 2(1)(a) or (b) (promotion of economic and social well-being) which is similar in nature to anything which could be done by the authority in the performance of the function in question: Education and Inspections Act 2006 s 135(2). However, in relation to a function within head (3), (4) or (5) supra, anything done as mentioned in s 135(2) is a 'related activity' only if it is done in relation to or for the benefit of:

- 141 (a) persons aged under 18 (s 135(3)(a));
- 142 (b) persons aged 18 or over in relation to whom the authority has functions under any of the Children Act 1989 ss 23C-24D (as added) (see para 923 et seq post) (Education and Inspections Act 2006 s 135(3)(b)); or
- 143 (c) persons not within head (a) or head (b) supra in connection with adoption or special guardianship (s 135(3)(c)).

As to adoption see para 323 et seq post. As to special guardianship see para 151 et seq ante.

On completing the inspection, the Chief Inspector must make and publish a report: see s 137; the Education and Inspections Act 2006 (Inspection of Local Authorities) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/462; and EDUCATION.

11 'Relevant adoption functions' means functions under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 of making or participating in arrangements for the adoption of children or the provision of adoption support services; and 'relevant fostering functions' means functions under the Children Act 1989 s 23(2)(a) or regulations under any of Sch 2 para 12(a), (b) or (d)-(f): Care Standards Act 2000 s 43(2), (3) (amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 139(1), Sch 3 paras 103, 112); definition applied by the Education and Inspections Act 2006 s 147(3).

12 Ibid s 147(1). As to the frequency of inspections see the Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Education, Children's Services and Skills (Fees and Frequency of Inspections) (Children's Homes etc) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/694; and EDUCATION. An inspection under the Education and Inspections Act 2006 s 147 is to be regarded for all purposes as undertaken under s 136 (see note 10 supra): s 147(2). As to the security and inspection of premises see further paras 455, 459, 461, 467 post.

13 See ibid ss 143-145; and para 244 post.

199. Meaning of 'family proceedings'.

For the purposes of the Children Act 1989, the term 'family proceedings' means: (1) any proceedings under the inherent jurisdiction of the High Court in relation to children<sup>1</sup>; and (2) any proceedings under a number of specified enactments<sup>2</sup>.

- 144 (1) the Children Act 1989 Pt I (ss 1-7) (as amended) (see para 134 et seq ante), Pt II (ss 8-16A) (as amended) (see para 247 et seq post), Pt IV (ss 31-42) (as amended) (see para 271 et seq post) (s 8(4)(a));

As from a day to be appointed the Children Act 1989 s 8(5) is added by the Family Law Act 1996 s 66(1), Sch 8 para 37. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed and this amendment is unlikely to be brought into force: see para 150 note 7 ante.

200. Proceedings under the inherent jurisdiction of the High Court.

The inherent jurisdiction of the High Court with respect to children derives from the Royal Prerogative, as parens patriae, to take care of those who are not able to take care of themselves<sup>1</sup>. Prior to the implementation of the Children Act 1989 the most frequently seen example of the exercise of the High Court's inherent jurisdiction over children was in wardship, that is to say children who have been made wards of court by virtue of an order to that effect made by the High Court<sup>2</sup>. The Children Act 1989 reduces the need for those concerned with the upbringing of a child to have recourse to the High Court. This has been done by putting many of the beneficial aspects of wardship, such as the so-called 'open door policy'<sup>3</sup> and a variety of orders<sup>4</sup> on a statutory footing<sup>5</sup>. In addition, the Children Act 1989 imposes specific prohibitions against using the inherent jurisdiction and wardship in particular in cases involving a public law element<sup>6</sup>. These limitations upon local authorities have led to a significant reduction of cases coming before the court by way of wardship and a development of the use of the residual inherent jurisdiction of the High Court. For all practical purposes the jurisdiction in wardship and the inherent jurisdiction of the High Court are the same<sup>7</sup> and the inherent jurisdiction is now frequently invoked without wardship. There is, however, one major difference. Where an application is made for a wardship order in respect of a child, the child becomes a ward of court on the making of the application<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to the Royal Prerogative see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) paras 367-372.

2 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 41(1); and para 218 post. As from a day to be appointed, the Supreme Court Act 1981 is renamed the Senior Courts Act 1981: see the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 ss 59(5), 148(1), Sch 11 Pt 1 para 1. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

It has been held that the wardship jurisdiction is not exercisable in respect of a foetus: Re F (in utero) [1988] Fam 122, [1988] 2 All ER 193, CA. Nor does it extend to a minor who is subject to the statutory jurisdiction established in relation to the armed forces: Re J S (a minor) (wardship: boy soldier) [1990] Fam 182, [1990] 2 All ER 861.

5 See the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 3.98. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante.

6 See para 201 post. Without this prohibition, the 'threshold criteria' (ie the provisions of the Children Act 1989 s 31(2): see para 274 post), which have been designed as the minimum circumstances justifying state intervention, would be undermined, as too would any directions attached to these orders (such as to their duration or other effects): Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 3.98. As to the imposition of directions and conditions see the Children Act 1989 s 11(7); and para 250 post. No order may be made with the effect of placing or keeping a minor in secure accommodation within the meaning of the Children Act 1989 s 25(1) (see para 1037 post) unless the minor has been made a party to the summons: Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 5.5 (added by SI 1991/2113; and amended by SI 1992/456).

UPDATE

200 Proceedings under the inherent jurisdiction of the High Court

NOTE 2--Appointed day is 1 October 2009: SI 2009/1604.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/3. FAMILY PROCEEDINGS/(1) IN GENERAL/(i) Nature of Family Proceedings/201. Limitations on wardship imposed by the Children Act 1989.

201. Limitations on wardship imposed by the Children Act 1989.

The Children Act 1989 restricts the circumstances in which a local authority may apply for the exercise of the court's inherent jurisdiction with respect to children<sup>1</sup>, and provides that no court may exercise the High Court's inherent jurisdiction with respect to children:

- 232 (1) so as to require a child to be placed in the care, or put under the supervision, of a local authority<sup>2</sup>;
- 233 (2) so as to require a child to be accommodated by or on behalf of a local authority<sup>3</sup>;
- 234 (3) so as to make a child who is the subject of a care order a ward of court<sup>4</sup>; or
- 235 (4) for the purpose of conferring on any local authority power to determine any question which has arisen, or which may arise, in connection with any aspect of parental responsibility for a child<sup>5</sup>.

Further, a local authority may not apply for any exercise of the court's inherent jurisdiction with respect to children unless it has obtained the leave of the court<sup>6</sup>. Proceedings on an application for such leave are not family proceedings<sup>7</sup>. Whilst the wardship court may not place the child in the care of a local authority<sup>8</sup> in wardship as in other family proceedings<sup>9</sup>, if a question arises with respect to the welfare of any child, and it appears to the court that it may be appropriate for a care order or supervision order<sup>10</sup> to be made with respect to the child, the court may direct the appropriate authority to undertake an investigation of the child's circumstances<sup>11</sup>, and the authority concerned may in the light of such investigation decide to apply for a care order or supervision order<sup>12</sup>.

The making of a care order with respect to a child who is a ward of court brings that wardship to an end<sup>13</sup>.

2 Ibid s 100(2)(a). As to care orders and supervision orders generally see para 270 et seq post.

3 Ibid s 100(2)(b). As to the accommodation of children by local authorities see paras 863-866 post. The effect of s 100 is that when a care order is made, the court has no inherent jurisdiction to impose conditions on the order, nor can it require a local authority to place the child in a particular place of residence: Re K D T (a minor) (care order: conditions) [1994] 2 FCR 721, sub nom Re T (a minor) (care order: conditions) [1994] 2 FLR 423, CA.

The inherent jurisdiction of the wardship court exists to ensure compliance with its directions; the use of this jurisdiction should be moderate and appropriate: Re B (minors) (wardship: power to detain) [1994] 2 FCR 1142, [1994] 2 FLR 479, CA.

UPDATE

201 Limitations on wardship imposed by the Children Act 1989

NOTES--Certain functions under provisions mentioned in this paragraph are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/3. FAMILY PROCEEDINGS/(1) IN GENERAL/(i) Nature of Family Proceedings/202. Scope and use of wardship.

202. Scope and use of wardship.

Once a child has become a ward of court, the court exercises an extensive and special jurisdiction<sup>1</sup> exercised in a parental and administrative manner<sup>2</sup>. No important step in the life of a ward may be taken without the consent of the court<sup>3</sup>. However, the relevant rules governing the jurisdiction of the court must be satisfied<sup>4</sup>.

Although the courts, when exercising the parental power of the Crown, have theoretically an unrestricted jurisdiction to do whatever is considered necessary for the welfare of a ward, there are significant limitations on the exercise of this jurisdiction<sup>5</sup>.

Thus, the jurisdiction will not be exercised over a minor who has lawfully been refused admission to the country<sup>6</sup>, or whose parent maintains a claim to diplomatic immunity<sup>7</sup>. It is an abuse of process to exercise the inherent jurisdiction to keep within the jurisdiction a child who has overstayed his leave to enter<sup>8</sup>.

In deciding whether (and how) to exercise its powers over a ward the court may need to consider not only the child's interest but also the rights of outsiders and indeed the public interest<sup>9</sup>. The wardship jurisdiction will not be exercised so as to interfere with the criminal process<sup>10</sup>. More generally, the wardship jurisdiction will not be exercised to interfere with action properly taken under a comprehensive legislative code<sup>11</sup>, or under statutory or inherent powers<sup>12</sup>. It follows that the court will be hesitant to make orders which could not be made in other circumstances<sup>13</sup>.

1 The wardship jurisdiction may only be exercised in respect of a child, ie a person under the age of 18: see Re B (a minor) (wardship: sterilisation) [1988] AC 199, [1987] 2 All ER 206, HL; Re F (mental patient: sterilisation) [1990] 2 AC 1, sub nom F v West Berkshire Health Authority (Mental Health Act Commission intervening) [1989] 2 All ER 545, HL. 4 The inherent jurisdiction of the High Court in relation to children was based on the Crown's obligation to protect those who owed allegiance to it: Re P (G E) (an infant) [1965] Ch 568, [1964] 3 All ER 977, CA. Accordingly, jurisdiction was exercisable over a British subject, whether within or without the jurisdiction, or a person who was physically present in England and Wales, or a person who was resident in England and Wales. (However, the jurisdiction in these matters has been restricted by the provisions of the Family Law Act 1986 and the Child Abduction and Custody Act 1985: see para 780 et seq post). The English court should refrain from exorbitant jurisdictional claims founded on nationality: Al-Habtoor v Fotheringham [2001] EWCA Civ 186, [2001] 1 FCR 385, [2001] 1 FLR 951. Even if those restrictions do not apply, it has been held that the court should not assume jurisdiction over a child present in England and Wales before first deciding that the child should not be returned to the country from which he had been brought: G v G [1991] FCR 12, [1991] 2 FLR 506, CA. See also Re B M (a minor) (wardship: jurisdiction) [1993] 2 FCR 388, [1993] 1 FLR 979.

It may be that the court will now express its orders in terms of the statutory powers conferred by the Children Act 1989; but cf Re W (an infant) [1964] Ch 202 at 210, sub nom Re W (J C) (infant) [1963] 3 All ER 459 at 462,

UPDATE

202 Scope and use of wardship

NOTE 12--While the pendency of wardship proceedings in respect of a child liable to removal cannot prevent his removal, the fact that it will tend to persuade Secretary of State to stay her powers requires the Family Division to exercise its wardship powers with care so as to avoid its processes being used in a way that impermissibly impacts on the Secretary of State's proper exercise of her powers: S v S [2008] EWHC 2288 (Fam), [2009] 2 FCR 415.

204. Proceedings under the Children Act 1989.

- 242 (1) applications by the father of an illegitimate child for parental responsibility<sup>2</sup>;
- 243 (2) applications concerning the termination of a parental responsibility order or a parental responsibility agreement<sup>3</sup>;
- 244 (3) applications by an individual to be appointed the guardian of a child<sup>4</sup>; and
- 245 (4) applications to terminate the appointment of a guardian<sup>5</sup>.

Family proceedings under Part II of the Children Act 1989<sup>6</sup> include:

- 246 (a) applications for contact orders<sup>7</sup>, prohibited steps orders<sup>8</sup>, residence orders<sup>9</sup> or specific issues orders<sup>10</sup> ('section 8 orders') by persons who are entitled to apply for the order in question, or have obtained leave of the court to make the application<sup>11</sup>; and
- 247 (b) applications for special guardianship orders<sup>12</sup>;
- 248 (c) applications for financial relief with respect to children<sup>13</sup>.

Family proceedings under Part IV of the Children Act 1989<sup>14</sup> include:

- 249 (i) applications for the grant, variation, discharge or substitution of care orders and supervision orders<sup>15</sup>;
- 250 (ii) applications regarding contact between children in care and specified persons<sup>16</sup>; and
- 251 (iii) applications for education supervision orders<sup>17</sup>.

Proceedings concerned with child assessment orders<sup>18</sup>, emergency protection orders<sup>19</sup>, and other measures for the protection of children<sup>20</sup>, are not family proceedings for the purposes of the Act, unless in the family proceedings court, wherein all proceedings under the Children Act 1989 are treated as family proceedings<sup>21</sup>.

205. Family proceedings under other statutory provisions.

The following proceedings under the Matrimonial Causes Act 1973 are 'family proceedings' for the purposes of the Children Act 1989:

- 252 (1) petitions for divorce, nullity and judicial separation<sup>1</sup>;
- 253 (2) applications for orders on the ground that either party to the marriage has failed to provide reasonable maintenance for the applicant or for any child of the family<sup>2</sup>;
- 254 (3) applications for the alteration by the court of a maintenance agreement during the lives of the parties or after the death of one party<sup>3</sup>;
- 255 (4) applications to avoid transactions intended to prevent or reduce financial relief<sup>4</sup>.

Proceedings in the High Court under the Civil Partnership Act 2004 for financial provision in connection with dissolution, nullity or separation<sup>5</sup> are family proceedings<sup>6</sup>.

Proceedings in the magistrates' courts under the Civil Partnership Act 2004 for financial provision following failure to maintain, for agreed financial provision and for orders when civil partners are living apart by agreement<sup>7</sup> are family proceedings<sup>8</sup>.

Proceedings under the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 for child safety orders<sup>9</sup> are family proceedings<sup>10</sup>.

Proceedings under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 for adoption orders and placement orders are family proceedings<sup>16</sup>.

Applications under the Domestic Proceedings and Magistrates' Courts Act 1978 are often for financial provision on the ground that the respondent, a party to the marriage, has failed to provide reasonable maintenance for the applicant or any child of the family, or has behaved in such a way that the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to live with the respondent, or that the respondent has deserted the applicant<sup>17</sup>. Jurisdiction is conferred on the court to make orders for payments which have been agreed by the parties, and to make an order where the parties are living apart by agreement for periodical payments at a level approximating to the level of payments voluntarily made in the previous three months<sup>18</sup>.

Under Part III of the Matrimonial and Family Proceedings Act 1984<sup>19</sup>, either party to a marriage which has been dissolved or annulled by means of judicial or other proceedings in an overseas country where the divorce or annulment is entitled to be recognised as valid in England and Wales may apply to the court for an order for financial relief<sup>20</sup>. No application for such an order may be made unless the leave of the court has been first obtained in accordance with rules of court. It would appear that applications for the order and for such leave are both within the definition of family proceedings<sup>21</sup>.

The court may make an order providing for a child to be treated in law as the child of the parties to a marriage in certain circumstances in which the child has been carried by a woman other than the wife as the result of the placing in her of an embryo or sperm and eggs or her artificial insemination<sup>22</sup>. Proceedings on an application for such an order are family proceedings<sup>23</sup>.

(ii) Rules of Court

206. Introduction.

Procedural matters in relation to family proceedings in the High Court and county court are governed by the Family Proceedings Rules 1991<sup>1</sup>, and in the family proceedings court<sup>2</sup> by the Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991<sup>3</sup>. Adoption proceedings<sup>4</sup> in the High Court, county court and the family proceedings court are governed by the Family Procedure (Adoption) Rules 2005<sup>5</sup>.

<sup>4</sup> Family Procedure Rules may make provision in respect of any matter to be prescribed by rules made by virtue of the Adoption and Children Act 2002 and dealing generally with all matters of procedure: s 141(1) (amended by the Courts Act 2003 s 109, Sch 8 para 413(1), (2)). In the case of an application for a placement order, for the variation or revocation of such an order, or for an adoption order, the rules must require any person mentioned below to be notified of the date and place where the application will be heard, and of the fact that, unless the person wishes or the court requires, the person need not attend: Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 141(3). The persons referred to in s 141(3) are:

153 (1) in the case of a placement order, every person who can be found whose consent to the making of the order is required under s 21(3)(a) (see para 336 post) (or would be required but for s 141(3)(b)) or, if no such person can be found, any relative prescribed by rules who can be found;

154 (2) in the case of a variation or revocation of a placement order, every person who can be found whose consent to the making of the placement order was required under s 21(3)(a) (see para 336 post) (or would have been required but for s 21(3)(b));

155 (3) in the case of an adoption order:

13. (a) every person who can be found whose consent to the making of the order is required under s 47(2)(a) (see para 360 post) (or would be required but for s 47(2)(c)) or, if no such person can be found, any relative prescribed by rules who can be found;
13

14. (b) every person who has consented to the making of the order under s 20 (and has not withdrawn the consent) unless he has given a notice under s 20(4)(a) which has effect;
14

15. (c) every person who, if leave were given under section 47(5), would be entitled to oppose the making of the order (s 141(4)).
15

Rules made in respect of magistrates' courts may provide for enabling any fact tending to establish the identity of a child with a child to whom a document relates to be proved by affidavit and for excluding or restricting in relation to any facts that may be so proved the power of a justice of the peace to compel the attendance of witnesses: s 141(5). Rules may, for the purposes of the law relating to contempt of court, authorise the publication in such circumstances as may be specified of information relating to proceedings held in private involving children: s 141(6) (added by the Children Act 2004 s 62(6)).

5     le the Family Procedure (Adoption) Rules 2005, SI 2005/2795. As to adoption generally see para 323 et seq post.

6     See para 1409 et seq post.

7     The CPR do not apply to family proceedings or adoption proceedings, except to the extent that they are applied to those proceedings by another enactment: see CPR 2.1(2). As to the CPR see para 1409 post.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/3. FAMILY PROCEEDINGS/(1) IN GENERAL/(ii) Rules of Court/207. What may be provided by rules of court.

207. What may be provided by rules of court.

An authority having power to make rules of court<sup>1</sup> may make such provision for giving effect to:

- 256 (1) the Children Act 1989<sup>2</sup>;
- 257 (2) the provisions of any statutory instrument made under that Act<sup>3</sup>; or
- 258 (3) any amendment made by it in any other enactment<sup>4</sup>, as appears to that authority to be necessary or expedient<sup>5</sup>.

The rules may, in particular, make provision:

- 259 (a) with respect to the procedure to be followed in any relevant proceedings<sup>6</sup>, including the manner in which any application is to be made or other proceedings commenced<sup>7</sup>;
- 260 (b) as to the persons entitled to participate in any relevant proceedings, whether as parties to the proceedings or by being given the opportunity to make representations to the court<sup>8</sup>;
- 261 (c) for children to be separately represented in relevant proceedings<sup>9</sup>;
- 262 (d) with respect to the documents and information to be furnished, and notices to be given, in connection with any relevant proceedings<sup>10</sup>;
- 263 (e) applying, with or without modification, enactments which govern the procedure to be followed with respect to proceedings brought on a complaint made to a magistrates' court to relevant proceedings in such a court brought otherwise than on a complaint<sup>11</sup>;
- 264 (f) with respect to preliminary hearings<sup>12</sup>;
- 265 (g) for the service outside England and Wales, in prescribed<sup>13</sup> circumstances and manner, of any notice of proceedings in a magistrates' court<sup>14</sup>;
- 266 (h) for the exercise by magistrates' courts in prescribed circumstances of prescribed powers, even though a party to the proceedings in question is or resides outside England and Wales<sup>15</sup>;
- 267 (i) enabling the court, in prescribed circumstances, to proceed on any application even though the respondent has not been given notice of the proceedings<sup>16</sup>;
- 268 (j) authorising a single justice to discharge the functions of a magistrates' court with respect to prescribed relevant proceedings<sup>17</sup>;
- 269 (k) authorising a magistrates' court to order any of the parties to such prescribed relevant proceedings, in prescribed circumstances, to pay the whole or part of the costs of all or any of the other parties<sup>18</sup>.

When making such rules, an authority is subject to the same requirements as to consultation (if any) as apply when the authority makes rules under its general rule-making power<sup>19</sup>. The power under the Children Act 1989 to make rules of court in no way limits any other power of the authority to make rules of court<sup>20</sup>. In addition, rules of court make provision as to attendance at the directions appointments and hearings<sup>21</sup>, as to the procedure at the hearing<sup>22</sup>, and as to expert evidence arising from the examination of the child<sup>23</sup> and oral evidence given at the hearing or directions appointment<sup>24</sup>. Provision is also made in respect of the amendment of any document filed or served in the proceedings<sup>25</sup>, the setting aside of an order on failure of service<sup>26</sup> and as to the disclosure of addresses<sup>27</sup>.

Subject to the provisions of the Family Proceedings Rules 1991<sup>28</sup>, the County Court Rules 1981 (CCR) and the Rules of the Supreme Court 1965 (RSC) continue to apply, with the necessary modifications, to family proceedings in a county court and the High Court<sup>29</sup>.

Family Procedure Rules may make provision in respect of any matter to be prescribed by rules made by virtue of the Adoption and Children Act 2002 and dealing generally with all matters of procedure<sup>30</sup>.

1 The power to make rules of court in magistrates' courts is exercisable by the magistrates' courts rule committee. The Lord Chancellor has the power to appoint a rule committee for magistrates' courts: Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 144(A1) (added by the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 15(1), Sch 4 paras 99, 102(1), (2)). The Lord Chief Justice may, on the advice of or after consultation with the rule committee, and with the concurrence of the Lord Chancellor, make rules for regulating and prescribing (except in relation to any criminal cause or matter or any family proceedings) the procedure and practice to be followed in magistrates' courts and by justices' clerks and designated officers for magistrates' courts: see the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 144(1) (amended by the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 4 paras 99, 102(1), (2), (3)(a)). The rule committee consists of the Lord Chief Justice, the President of the Family Division of the High Court, the Senior District Judge (Chief Magistrate) and such number of other persons appointed by the Lord Chancellor as he may, after consulting the Lord Chief Justice, determine: see the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 144(2) (amended by the Access to Justice Act 1999 s 78(2), Sch 11 paras 26, 29; the Courts Act 2003 s 109(1), (3), Sch 8 para 245(1), (3), Sch 10; and the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 4 paras 99, 102(1), (5)). See further MAGISTRATES. As to magistrates' courts as family proceedings courts see para 208 post.

The power to make rules of court for the purposes of family proceedings in the High Court or county courts is exercisable by a committee known as the Family Proceedings Rule Committee, which consists of the following persons: (1) the President of the Family Division; (2) one puisne judge attached to the Family Division; (3) one district judge of the principal registry of the Family Division; (4) two circuit judges; (5) one district judge appointed under the County Courts Act 1984 (see COUNTY COURTS); (6) two persons who have a Supreme Court (Senior Court) qualification (within the meaning of the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 71 (as amended) (see COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) para 575); and (7) two persons who have been granted by an authorised body, under Pt II (ss 17-70) (as amended) (see COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) para 575), the right to conduct litigation in relation to all proceedings in the Supreme Court (Senior Courts): Matrimonial and Family Proceedings Act 1984 s 40(1) (amended by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 125(3), Sch 18 para 50; and the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 15(1), Sch 4 paras 379, 380). However, the Matrimonial and Family Proceedings Act 1984 s 40(1) (as amended) is without prejudice to the powers of the following authorities to make rules in respect of the following matters and rules in respect of those matters continue to be made by those authorities and not by the authority constituted by s 40(1) (as amended). The rules and rule-making authorities are: (a) adoption rules made under the Adoption Act 1958 s 9(3) (repealed), the Adoption Act 1968 s 12(1) (repealed) or the Adoption Act 1976 s 66(1) or the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 141(1) (see the text and note 30 infra); (b) probate rules made under the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 127 (see EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS vol 17(2) (Reissue) para 81); and (c) rules made by the Family Procedure Rule Committee in respect of (i) all causes and matters (whether at first instance or appeal) relating to adoption including the exercise of the inherent jurisdiction of the High Court with respect to minors; and (ii) all proceedings for the purpose of enforcing an order made in proceedings described in para (i) supra: see the Matrimonial and Family Proceedings Act 1984 s 40(2) (amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 139(1), Sch 3 para 44; the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 ss 12(2), 146, Sch 1 para 18(a), (b), Sch 18 Pt 1; and the Courts Act 2003 (Commencement No 11 and Transitional Provision) Order 2005, SI 2005/2744, art 3.). Note that the Matrimonial and Family Proceedings Act 1984 s 40 (as amended) is prospectively repealed by the Courts Act 2003 s 109(1), (3), Sch 8 para 278(a), Sch 10 as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

For these purposes, 'family proceedings' means family business; and 'family business' means business of any description which in the High Court is for the time being assigned to the Family Division and to no other division by or under the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 61, Sch 1 (as amended); Matrimonial and Family Proceedings Act 1984 s 32; and see MATRIMONIAL AND CIVIL PARTNERSHIP LAW vol 73 (2009) PARA 737; COURTS. As to the Lord Chancellor see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) paras 477-497. As to the President of the Family Division see COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) para 515; CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) para 303; COURTS. As from a day to be appointed, the Supreme Court Act 1981 is renamed the Senior Courts Act 1981: see the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 ss 59(5), 148(1), Sch 11 Pt 1 para 1. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

FAMILY PROCEEDINGS/(1) IN GENERAL/(iii) The Courts with Jurisdiction in Family Proceedings/A. ALLOCATION OF PROCEEDINGS/208. Jurisdiction generally: allocation and transfer of proceedings.

(iii) The Courts with Jurisdiction in Family Proceedings

A. ALLOCATION OF PROCEEDINGS

208. Jurisdiction generally: allocation and transfer of proceedings.

The jurisdiction of the various courts in relation to proceedings under the Children Act 1989 is concurrent<sup>1</sup>, and 'court' is accordingly defined as the High Court, a county court or a magistrates' court<sup>2</sup>. However, the concurrent jurisdiction of courts is not generally extended to permit them to entertain applications other than those made in proceedings under the Children Act 1989. Thus, in proceedings under Part I of the Domestic Proceedings and Magistrates' Courts Act 1978<sup>3</sup> the court with jurisdiction is a magistrates' court<sup>4</sup>, and under Part III of the Matrimonial and Family Proceedings Act 1984<sup>5</sup> 'the court' means the High Court or, where a county court has jurisdiction by virtue of Part V of the Matrimonial and Family Proceedings Act 1984<sup>6</sup>, a county court<sup>7</sup>. In addition, every matrimonial cause must still be commenced in a divorce county court<sup>8</sup>, and an order making a child a ward of court can only be made by the High Court<sup>9</sup>.

The Children Act 1989 imposes certain restrictions on the powers of the courts. In particular, a magistrates' court<sup>10</sup> is not competent to entertain any application or make any order involving the administration or application of any property belonging to or held in trust for a child<sup>11</sup> or the income of any such property<sup>12</sup>; and a magistrates' court's powers are restricted to periodical payments and lump sums in the case of an application for an order of financial relief<sup>13</sup>.

The Lord Chancellor<sup>14</sup>, after consulting the Lord Chief Justice, may by order specify proceedings under the Children Act 1989 or the Adoption and Children Act 2002 which may only be commenced in a specified level of court<sup>15</sup> or a court which falls within a specified class of court<sup>16</sup> or a particular court determined in accordance with or specified in the order<sup>17</sup>. The Lord Chancellor, after consulting the Lord Chief Justice, may also by order specify circumstances in which specified proceedings under the Children Act 1989 or the Adoption and Children Act 2002 (which might otherwise be commenced elsewhere) may only be commenced in a specified level of court or a court which falls within a specified class of court or a particular court determined in accordance with, or specified in, the order<sup>18</sup>.

Certain proceedings within the jurisdiction of county courts may be allocated to specific judges or descriptions of judge<sup>19</sup>.

The Lord Chancellor, after consulting the Lord Chief Justice, may by order provide that in specified circumstances the whole, or any specified part of, specified proceedings<sup>20</sup> be transferred to a specified level of court, a court which falls within a specified class of court, or a particular court determined in accordance with, or specified in, the order<sup>21</sup>.

1 See An Introduction to the Children Act 1989 (HMSO, 1989) para 3.8. The Children (Allocation of Proceedings) Order 1991, SI 1991/1677 (as amended) governs the allocation and transfer of cases either vertically between the various tiers, or horizontally within tiers, in order to ensure that cases are directed to the most appropriate court. See further the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 1.13. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante.

It is intended that all proceedings relating to the same child and his family should be capable of being consolidated and heard together, and that, moreover, the case should, depending upon its complexity or weight, be matched to the right level of court and judge: see Lord Mackay of Clashfern LC 'Joseph Jackson Memorial Lecture 1989' (1989) 139 NLJ 505. Proceedings relating to siblings ought to be heard by the same tribunal and consolidated at the earliest possible stage if started separately: W v Wakefield City Council [1994] 2 FCR 564, [1995] 1 FLR 170. In addition, it is intended that in the county courts and the High Court, work relating to children should be concentrated in the hands of judges who have made a special study of children's matters: An Introduction to the Children Act 1989 (HMSO, 1989) para 1.50.

2 Children Act 1989 s 92(7). This is subject to the provisions of s 92(6), Sch 11 Pt I (see the text and notes 13-21 infra) and to any other provision of the Children Act 1989 which makes express provision as to jurisdiction: s 92(8). It is vital that the allocation of cases to the appropriate level of court operate effectively, so that a case which proves more complex than it originally appeared should be swiftly transferred to the appropriate level: Re H (a minor) (care proceedings: child's wishes) [1992] 2 FCR 330, [1993] 1 FLR 440. As to magistrates' courts as family proceedings courts see note 10 infra.

8 Ibid s 33(3). Note, however, that a matrimonial cause may be transferred to the High Court under s 39 (as amended) (see MATRIMONIAL AND CIVIL PARTNERSHIP LAW vol 73 (2009) PARA 746) or under the County Courts Act 1984 s 41 (as amended) (see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 69): Matrimonial and Family Proceedings Act 1984 s 33(3).

9 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 41(1); and para 218 post. As from a day to be appointed, the Supreme Court Act 1981 is renamed the Senior Courts Act 1981: see the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 ss 59(5), 148(1), Sch 11 Pt 1 para 1. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

As to the practice to be adopted for the time being with regard to applications under the Children Act 1989 directed at the question whether there should be HIV tests for children see Re X (a minor) (HIV test) [1994] 2 FCR 1110, sub nom Note: Re HIV Tests [1994] 2 FLR 116 (it is better that an application for a child to be tested for HIV be heard by a High Court judge regardless of the court in which proceedings are commenced, with the possibility of a downward transfer of the substantive issue in the light of the decision on the HIV test).

10 Under the Children Act 1989 the name 'domestic proceedings' given to certain proceedings in the magistrates' court was changed to 'family proceedings', and the names 'domestic court' and 'domestic court panel' were changed to 'family proceedings court' and 'family panel' respectively: see s 92(1); Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 67(1) (amended by the Courts Act 2003 s 49(1); and the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 15(1), Sch 4 paras 99, 101). As to the constitution of family proceedings courts see the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 66 (as substituted), s 67 (as amended); and MAGISTRATES vol 29(2) (Reissue) para 603.

The Family Proceedings Courts (Constitution and Right to Preside) Rules 2007, SI 2007/1610 (amended by SI 2007/2621) provide for the appointment of family panels. They provide for the formation of a Committee, to be known as a family panel, for each local justice area: Family Proceedings Courts (Constitution and Right to Preside) Rules 2007, SI 2007/1610, r 3. The family panel consists of the family justices for the local justice area and any Designated Judge (Magistrates' Courts) who is nominated to hear family proceedings and who acts as a justice of the peace in the local justice area concerned: r 3. The family panel will advise the appropriate body in relation to the number of justices required to sit and preside in family proceedings courts in its local justice area and will liaise with other bodies to share information and represent the views of family justices: r 9. The Rules also make provision for there to be combined family panels: see r 5. The Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395 (amended by SI 1991/1247; SI 1991/1991; SI 1991/2051; SI 1992/2068; SI 1994/2166; SI 1994/2767; SI 1994/3156; SI 1997/1895; SI 2001/615; SI 2001/818; SI 2001/821; SI 2003/3367; SI 2004/3375; SI 2005/617; SI 2005/2922; SI 2005/2930) govern procedure in the family proceedings court. 15 Children Act 1989 s 92(6), Sch 11 para 1(1)(a) (Sch 11 para 1(1) amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 139(1), Sch 3 paras 54, 75; and the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 15(1), Sch 4 paras 203, 210). In the exercise of this power, the Lord Chancellor has made the Children (Allocation of Proceedings) Order 1991, SI 1991/1677 (as amended): see para 209 post. For these purposes, 'specified' means specified by an order made under the Children Act 1989 Sch 11 (as amended): Sch 11 para 4(2).

Any order under Sch 11 para 1 (as amended) (see the text and notes 16-18 infra) may make provision as to the effect of commencing proceedings in contravention of any of the provisions of the order: Sch 11 para 4(3). For the purposes of Sch 11 (as amended), the commencement of proceedings under the Children Act 1989 includes the making of any application under that Act in the course of proceedings (whether or not those proceedings are proceedings under that Act); and there are three levels of court, that is to say the High Court, any county court and any magistrates' court: Sch 11 para 4(1).

An order under Sch 11 (as amended) may make such consequential, incidental or transitional provision as the Lord Chancellor considers expedient, including provision amending any other enactment so far as it concerns the jurisdiction of any court or justice of the peace: Sch 11 para 4(5)(a).

16 Ibid Sch 11 para 1(1)(b). See also note 15 supra. A class of court may be described by reference to a description of proceedings, and may include different levels of court: Sch 11 para 1(4). In the exercise of this power, the Lord Chancellor has made the Children (Allocation of Proceedings) Order 1991, SI 1991/1677 (as amended): see para 209 post.

17 Children Act 1989 Sch 11 para 1(1)(c). See also note 15 supra. In the exercise of this power, the Lord Chancellor has made the Children (Allocation of Proceedings) Order 1991, SI 1991/1677 (as amended): see para 209 post. The Lord Chancellor may, after consulting the Lord Chief Justice, also make provision that where proceedings under the Children Act 1989, the Adoption and Children Act 2002, the Child Support Act 1991 s 20 (appeals), or under the inherent jurisdiction of the High Court (see para 200 ante) with respect to a child, have been commenced in or transferred to any court (whether or not by an order under the Children Act 1989 Sch 11 (as amended)), any other specified family proceedings which may affect, or are otherwise connected with, the child may, in specified circumstances, only be commenced in that court: Sch 11 para 1(3) (amended by the Child Support Act 1991 s 45(5); and the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 85, Sch 9 Pt IX; the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 139(1), Sch 3 paras 54, 75; and the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 4 paras 203, 210(1), (2)).

18 Children Act 1989 Sch 11 para 1(2) (amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 Sch 3 paras 54, 75; and the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 4 paras 203, 210(1), (2))). See also note 15 supra. In the exercise of this power, the Lord Chancellor has made the Children (Allocation of Proceedings) Order 1991, SI 1991/1677 (as amended): see para 209 post. The Children Act 1989 Sch 11 para 1(1), (2) (as amended) also applies in relation to proceedings under the Family Law Act 1986 s 55A (as added) (declarations of parentage) (see para 121 ante) or which are to be dealt with in accordance with an order made under the Child Support Act 1991 s 45 (as amended): Children Act 1989 Sch 11 para 1(2A) (added by the Child Support Act 1991 s 45(3), (4); amended by the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 83, Sch 8 para 10)).

19 See the Family Proceedings (Allocation to Judiciary) Directions 1999 [1999] 2 FLR 799 (amended by the Family Proceedings (Allocation to Judiciary)(Amendment) Directions [2002] 2 FLR 692; the Family Proceedings (Allocation to Judiciary)(Amendment) Directions [2003] 2 FLR 373; the Family Proceedings (Allocation to Judiciary)(Amendment No 1) Directions [2006] 1 FLR 1147; and the Family Proceedings (Allocation to Judiciary) (Amendment No 2) Directions [2006] 1 FLR 1150); and para 210 post.

20 (1) any proceedings under the Children Act 1989; (2) any proceedings under the Adoption and Children Act 2002; (3) any proceedings under the Family Law Act 1986 s 55A (as added); (4) any proceedings under the Child Support Act 1991 s 20 (appeals); (5) and any other proceedings which: (a) are family proceedings for the purposes of the Children Act 1989 (see para 199 et seq ante), other than proceedings under the inherent jurisdiction of the High Court (see para 200 ante); and (b) may affect, or are otherwise connected with, the child concerned, may be 'specified proceedings' for this purpose: Sch 11 para 2(3) (amended by the Child Support Act 1991 s 45(3), (4); the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 83, Sch 8 para 10, Sch 9 Pt IX; and the Adoption and Children Act 2002 Sch 3 paras 54, 75). However, proceedings under heads (a) and (b) supra may only be transferred in accordance with the provisions of an order made under the Children Act 1989 Sch 11 para 2 (as amended) for the purpose of consolidating them with proceedings under the Children Act 1989, the Adoption and Children Act 2002 or the High Court's inherent jurisdiction with respect to children: Children Act 1989 Sch 11 para 2(4) (amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 Sch 3 paras 54, 75).

21 Children Act 1989 Sch 11 para 2(1) (amended by the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 4 paras 203, 210(1), (3)(a)). See also note 15 supra. Any such order may provide for the transfer to be made at any stage, or specified stage, of the proceedings, and whether or not the proceedings, or any part of them, have already been transferred: Sch 11 para 2(2). An order under Sch 11 para 2 (as amended) may make such provision as the Lord Chancellor, after consulting the Lord Chief Justice, thinks appropriate for excluding proceedings to which Sch 11 para 2 (as amended) applies from the operation of any enactment which would otherwise govern the transfer of those proceedings, or any part of them: Sch 11 para 2(5) (amended by the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 4 paras 203, 210(1), (3)(b)). As to the transfer of proceedings see the Children (Allocation of Proceedings) Order 1991, SI 1991/1677, arts 5-13 (as amended); and paras 212-217 post. Any order under the Children Act 1989 Sch 11 para 2 (as amended) may make provision as to the effect of a failure to comply with any of the provisions of the order: Sch 11 para 4(4). Any order under Sch 11 (as amended) may make provision for treating proceedings which are: (1) in part proceedings of a kind mentioned in note 20 heads (1)-(2) supra; and (2) in part proceedings of a kind mentioned in note 20 head (5) supra, as consisting entirely of proceedings of one or other of those kinds, for the purposes of the application of any order made under Sch 11 para 2 (as amended): Sch 11 para 4(5)(b).

In such circumstances as the Lord Chancellor, after consulting the Lord Chief Justice, may by order specify: (a) the jurisdiction of a magistrates' court to make an emergency protection order (see para 583 et seq post); or (b) any specified question with respect to the transfer of specified proceedings to or from a magistrates' court in accordance with the provisions of an order under Sch 11 para 2 (as amended), may be exercised by a single justice: Sch 11 para 3(1). Any provision made under Sch 11 para 3 is without prejudice to any other enactment or rule of law relating to the functions which may be performed by a single justice of the peace: Sch 11 para 3(2).

Notwithstanding the above provisions<sup>23</sup>, in relation to proceedings of a kind set out in heads (2), (5), (6), (7), (9) and (10) above<sup>24</sup>, if the application arises out of an investigation directed by the High Court or county court<sup>25</sup>, the proceedings must be commenced<sup>26</sup>: (a) in the court which directed the investigation, where that court is the High Court or a care centre<sup>27</sup>; or (b) in such care centre as the court which directed the investigation may order<sup>28</sup>. Notwithstanding the above provisions<sup>29</sup> proceedings of a kind set out in heads (1) to (11), (14) or (15) above<sup>30</sup> must be commenced in a court in which are pending other proceedings<sup>31</sup> in respect of the same child<sup>32</sup>.

Proceedings under the Children Act 1989 to extend, vary or discharge an order, or the determination of which would have the effect of varying or discharging an order, must be commenced in the court which made the order<sup>33</sup>. ## 210. Proceedings which are within the jurisdiction of county courts.

The President of the Family Division may, after consulting the Lord Chancellor<sup>1</sup>, give directions that in such circumstances as may be specified any family proceedings<sup>2</sup> which are within the jurisdiction of county courts<sup>3</sup> or any specified description of such proceedings<sup>4</sup> are to be allocated to specified judges<sup>5</sup> or to specified descriptions of judge<sup>6</sup>. However, where such directions have been given allocating any proceedings to specified judges, the validity of anything done by a judge in, or in relation to, the proceedings may not be called into question by reason only of the fact that he was not a specified judge<sup>7</sup>.

The following directions (made in 1999 and subsequently amended) take effect regardless of any rules of court<sup>8</sup>. Proceedings in respect of non-contentious or common form probate business<sup>9</sup> are in all circumstances allocated to a judge<sup>10</sup>.

Proceedings under any provisions of Part IV of the Family Law Act 1996<sup>11</sup> can in all circumstances be allocated to a circuit judge or deputy circuit judge nominated for private or public family law proceedings, or a recorder nominated for public family law proceedings, a district judge of the principal registry of the Family Division of the High Court or a district judge; and, except where the proceedings are to enforce an order under Part IV, to a recorder nominated for private family law proceedings, a recorder or a deputy district judge<sup>12</sup>.

The hearing of a contested petition for a decree of divorce, nullity of marriage or judicial separation is allocated to a circuit judge, deputy circuit judge or a recorder nominated<sup>13</sup> for private or public family law proceedings<sup>14</sup>. The hearing of a contested petition for an order of dissolution, nullity of civil partnership or separation is allocated to a circuit judge, deputy circuit judge or a recorder nominated for private or public family law proceedings<sup>15</sup>.

Proceedings under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 in relation to the following matters can in all circumstances be allocated to a circuit judge, deputy circuit judge or recorder nominated for adoption proceedings or to a district judge of the Principal Registry of the Family Division<sup>16</sup>: (1) applications for placement orders<sup>17</sup>; (2) revocation of a placement order<sup>18</sup>; (3) applications for contact<sup>19</sup>; (4) variation or revocation of a contact order<sup>20</sup>; (5) change of child's surname or removal from the United Kingdom<sup>21</sup>; (6) leave to apply for a placement order<sup>22</sup>; (7) restrictions on the removal of a child<sup>23</sup>; (8) recovery orders<sup>24</sup>; (9) leave to make an application for an adoption order<sup>25</sup>; (10) leave to oppose the making of an adoption order<sup>26</sup>; (11) adoption by a couple<sup>27</sup>; (12) adoption by one person<sup>28</sup>; (13) revocation of adoption on legitimation<sup>29</sup>; (14) disclosure of information kept by the Registrar General<sup>30</sup>; (15) application for a residence order in specified circumstances<sup>31</sup>; (16) application for a special guardianship order in specified circumstances<sup>32</sup>.

Proceedings under heads (1) to (16) above can also be allocated to a circuit judge nominated for public family law proceedings where proceedings for a placement order<sup>33</sup> are heard in conjunction with an application for a care order<sup>34</sup> and relate to the same child<sup>35</sup>.

Interlocutory matters in relation to heads (1) to (16) above can also be dealt with by a district judge or deputy district judge nominated for adoption proceedings<sup>36</sup>. Interlocutory matters in relation to heads (1) to (16) above where proceedings for a placement order are heard in conjunction with an application for a care order and relate to the same child can also be dealt with by a district judge nominated for public family law proceedings<sup>37</sup>.

Interlocutory matters or unopposed hearings in relation to heads (a) to (e) above can also be dealt with by a district judge or deputy district judge<sup>44</sup>.

Proceedings in relation to: (i) the change of a child's name or the removal of a child from the jurisdiction<sup>45</sup>; (ii) special guardianship orders<sup>46</sup>; (iii) the change of a child's name or removal from the jurisdiction<sup>47</sup>; (iv) variation and discharge of special guardianship orders<sup>48</sup>; (v) the reference of a question of the variation or discharge of a contact, residence, specific issue or prohibited steps order<sup>49</sup>; and (vi) applications for a contact, residence, specific issue or prohibited steps order<sup>50</sup>, can in all circumstances, including final hearings, be allocated to a circuit judge nominated for private or public family law proceedings or a deputy circuit judge or recorder nominated for private or public family law proceedings, or a district judge of the principal registry of the Family Division of the High Court, or a district judge nominated for private or public family law proceedings<sup>51</sup>. Interlocutory matters, unopposed hearings or opposed hearings<sup>52</sup> where the application is for a contact order and the principle of contact with the applicant is unopposed or the order is (or is one of a series of orders which is) to be limited in time until the next hearing or order, and the substantive application is returnable before a judge<sup>53</sup> who has full jurisdiction in all circumstances, may be allocated to a district judge<sup>54</sup>. Where the matter is unopposed or it is an interlocutory matter it may also be allocated to a deputy district judge<sup>55</sup>.

Proceedings in relation to: (A) secure accommodation<sup>56</sup>; (B) care orders and supervision orders<sup>57</sup>; (C) the change of a child's name or the removal of the child from the jurisdiction where a care order is in force<sup>58</sup>; (D) the discharge and variation of care orders and supervision orders<sup>59</sup>; (E) supervision orders<sup>60</sup>; (F) parental contact with a child in care<sup>61</sup>; and (G) arrangements to assist a child to live abroad<sup>62</sup>, can in all circumstances, including final hearings, be allocated to a circuit judge nominated for public family law proceedings, a district judge of the principal registry of the Family Division of the High Court, a district judge nominated for public family law proceedings and who is also nominated to hear and determine all proceedings described in heads (A) to (G) above, or a recorder nominated for public family law proceedings<sup>63</sup>. Interlocutory matters, unopposed hearings or opposed hearings in relation to heads (A) to (G) above where the application is for a contact order and the principle of contact is unopposed can also be allocated to a district judge nominated for public family law proceedings<sup>64</sup>.

Proceedings in relation to interim care orders or supervision orders<sup>65</sup> can, in all circumstances, including final hearings, be allocated to a circuit judge nominated for public family law proceedings or a district judge of the principal registry of the Family Division of the High Court, a district judge nominated for public family law proceedings or a recorder nominated for public family law proceedings<sup>66</sup>.

Proceedings in relation to the variation of a supervision order<sup>67</sup>, the extension and discharge of an education supervision order<sup>68</sup>, child assessment orders<sup>69</sup>, an order for emergency protection of a child<sup>70</sup>, recovery orders<sup>71</sup>, applications for leave to issue further applications<sup>72</sup>, applications to vary placement orders<sup>73</sup>, can in all circumstances be allocated to a circuit judge nominated for public family law proceedings, a district judge of the principal registry of the Family Division of the High Court, a district judge nominated for public family law proceedings or a recorder nominated for public law family proceedings<sup>74</sup>.

Proceedings in relation to child support appeals<sup>75</sup> can in all circumstances be allocated to a circuit judge nominated for private or public family law proceedings, or a district judge of the principal registry of the Family Division of the High Court<sup>76</sup>.

Where, under these directions relating to the allocation of proceedings a person capable of sitting as a judge of a county court district and nominated for private or public family law proceedings would have been able to hear the matter at first instance, then that person may hear appeals under the Family Proceedings Rules 1991<sup>77</sup>, the County Court Rules 1981<sup>78</sup> and the Children (Allocation of Proceedings) (Appeals) Order 1991<sup>79</sup>.

Proceedings in relation to parental orders in favour of gamete donors<sup>80</sup> can be allocated to a circuit judge nominated for private or public family law proceedings in all circumstances and, in relation to interlocutory matters, can also be allocated to a district judge of the principal registry of the Family Division of the High Court or a district judge<sup>81</sup>.

Proceedings in relation to the power to order disclosure of a child's whereabouts<sup>82</sup>, the recovery of a child<sup>83</sup>, and the surrender of passports<sup>84</sup> can in all circumstances be allocated to a circuit judge nominated for private or public family law proceedings, or a district judge of the principal registry of the Family Division of the High Court, or a district judge nominated for private or public family law proceedings<sup>85</sup>.

Proceedings in relation to a declaration of marital status<sup>86</sup>, declarations of parentage<sup>87</sup>, declarations of legitimacy or legitimation<sup>88</sup> and declarations as to adoptions effected overseas<sup>89</sup> can in all circumstances be allocated to a circuit judge nominated for private or public family law proceedings and, in relation to interlocutory matters, can also be allocated to a district judge of the principal registry of the Family Division of the High Court or a district judge<sup>90</sup>.

- 290 (aa) a judge of the Family Division of the High Court<sup>97</sup>;
- 291 (bb) a person acting as a judge of the Family Division of the High Court in pursuance of a request<sup>98</sup> other than a former judge of the Court of Appeal or a former puisne judge of the High Court, but public family law proceedings must only be allocated to a judge or recorder who has been nominated for them<sup>99</sup>;
- 292 (cc) a person sitting as a recorder who has been authorised to act as a judge of the Family Division of the High Court<sup>100</sup>;

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/3. FAMILY PROCEEDINGS/(1) IN GENERAL/(iii) The Courts with Jurisdiction in Family Proceedings/A. ALLOCATION OF PROCEEDINGS/211. Classification of county courts as designated county courts, family hearing centres and care centres.

211. Classification of county courts as designated county courts, family hearing centres and care centres.

For the purposes of the provisions governing the allocation and transfer<sup>1</sup> of proceedings<sup>2</sup>, county courts are classified as: (1) designated county courts<sup>3</sup>; (2) family hearing centres<sup>4</sup>; (3) care centres<sup>5</sup>; (4) adoption centres<sup>6</sup>; and (5) intercountry adoption centres<sup>7</sup>. Certain proceedings started in, or transferred to, a county court, are allocated to a designated county court, family hearing centre, care centre, adoption centre or intercountry adoption centre<sup>8</sup>.

For the purposes of the provisions governing the allocation and transfer of proceedings<sup>9</sup>, the principal registry of the Family Division of the High Court is treated as if it were a designated county court, a family hearing centre, a care centre, an adoption centre and an intercountry adoption centre<sup>10</sup>.

Applications under the Children Act 1989<sup>11</sup> which are to be made to a county court, must be made to a designated county court, save that:

- 295 (a) where an application has been made for an adoption order<sup>12</sup> and has not been disposed of, an application for (i) a residence order<sup>13</sup> where leave to make an application is required<sup>14</sup> or (ii) a special guardianship order<sup>15</sup> where leave to make an application is required<sup>16</sup>, must be made in the court in which the adoption proceedings are pending<sup>17</sup>;
- 296 (b) applications under Parts III, IV and V of the Children Act 1989<sup>18</sup> must be made to a care centre<sup>19</sup>;
- 297 (c) where a cause is pending, an application by a party to the cause or by any other person for an order under Part I or II of the Children Act 1989 in relation to a child of the family must be made in the cause<sup>20</sup>.

Applications under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 which are to be made to a county court must be commenced in an adoption centre<sup>21</sup> save that an application for a Convention adoption order<sup>22</sup> or an application for an adoption order made where restrictions on bringing a child into the United Kingdom apply<sup>23</sup> must be commenced in the High Court<sup>24</sup> or an intercountry adoption centre<sup>25</sup>.

Where an application has been made for an adoption order<sup>26</sup> and has not been disposed of, an application for (A) leave to apply for a residence order<sup>27</sup>; (B) leave to apply for a special guardianship order<sup>28</sup>; (C) leave to remove a child<sup>29</sup>; or (D) leave to oppose the making of an adoption order<sup>30</sup>, must be commenced in the court in which the proceedings are pending<sup>31</sup>. Where an application has been made for a placement order<sup>32</sup> and has not been disposed of, an application for leave to remove a child from accommodation provided by the local authority<sup>33</sup> must be commenced in the court where the proceedings for the placement order are pending<sup>34</sup>. Where an application has been made by adopters for leave in relation to the period that the child has lived with them<sup>35</sup> and has not been disposed of, an application for leave to remove the child must be commenced in the court in which the proceedings for leave are pending<sup>36</sup>.

Where a special guardianship order<sup>37</sup> is in force in respect of a child, an application for leave to change the child's name or to remove him from the United Kingdom must be commenced in the court which made the special guardianship order<sup>38</sup>. Where a placement order<sup>39</sup> is in force in respect of a child, an application for (aa) leave to revoke the placement order<sup>40</sup>; (bb) leave to place the child for adoption<sup>41</sup>; (cc) leave to apply for a contact order<sup>42</sup>; (dd) leave to apply to change the child's name or remove him from the United Kingdom<sup>43</sup>; or (ee) a contact order<sup>44</sup>, must be commenced in the court which made the placement order<sup>45</sup>.

UPDATE

208-217 Allocation and Transfer of Proceedings

SI 1991/1677 replaced by Allocation and Transfer of Proceedings Order 2008, SI 2008/2836: see PARA 211A.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/3. FAMILY PROCEEDINGS/(1) IN GENERAL/(iii) The Courts with Jurisdiction in Family Proceedings/A. ALLOCATION OF PROCEEDINGS/211A. Allocation and transfer of proceedings.

211A. Allocation and transfer of proceedings.

The Allocation and Transfer of Proceedings Order 2008, SI 2008/2836 (amended by SI 2009/871, SI 2009/3319, SI 2010/986), provides for the allocation and transfer of certain proceedings concerning children and proceedings under the Family Law Act 1996 Pts IV (ss 30-63) and IVA (ss 63A-63S). For the purposes of the provisions governing the allocation and transfer of proceedings, county courts are now classified as (1) family hearing centres; (2) care centres; (3) adoption centres; (4) intercountry adoption centres; and (5) forced marriage county courts (art 2), and the principal registry of the Family Division is treated as if it were one of these classes of county court: art 3(1) (renumbered by SI 2009/871). The principle registry of the Family Division of the High Court is also treated as if it were a county court for the purposes of appeals from decisions of a magistrates' court under the Children Act 1989 s 94 and the 1996 Act s 61: SI 2008/2836 art 3(2) (added by SI 2009/871). As to forced marriage protection proceedings see MATRIMONIAL AND CIVIL PARTNERSHIP LAW vol 73 (2009) PARA 723 et seq.

When making a decision about the transfer of proceedings the court must have regard to the need to avoid delay, and a transfer may be made at any stage and whether or not the proceedings have already been transferred: SI 2008/2836 art 13. As to the transfer of proceedings to specified levels of court see arts 14-19 (see also MATRIMONIAL AND CIVIL PARTNERSHIP LAW vol 73 (2009) PARA 964A). A county court may transfer proceedings to the High Court only if they are exceptionally complex, the outcome is important to the public in general, or there is another substantial reason (art 18), and the High Court must transfer proceedings to a county court or a magistrates' court if none of these criteria apply (art 19). As to the transfer of proceedings under the Children Act 1989 and the Adoption and Children Act 2002 to a specified class of county court see arts 20, 21; and as to applications following a refusal to order the transfer of proceedings from a magistrates' court to a county court see art 25. Where a county court orders the transfer of proceedings to a magistrates' court, an appeal may be made against that decision where (a) the decision was made by a district judge or deputy district judge of a county court, to a circuit judge, or (b) the decision was made by a district judge or deputy district judge of the principal registry of the Family Division, to a judge of the Family Division: art 26. ### 212. Transfer of proceedings from one magistrates' court to another.

A magistrates' court must transfer certain proceedings<sup>1</sup> to another magistrates' court<sup>2</sup> where: (1) having regard to the general principle that any delay in determining the question is likely to prejudice the welfare of the child<sup>3</sup> (and, in adoption cases, to the principle that the court or adoption agency must at all times in mind that, in general, any delay in coming to a decision is likely to prejudice the child's welfare<sup>4</sup>), the transferring court considers that the transfer is in the interest of the child because it is likely significantly to accelerate the determination of the proceedings<sup>5</sup>, or because it would be appropriate for those proceedings to be heard together with other family proceedings which are pending in the receiving court<sup>6</sup>, or for some other reason<sup>7</sup>; and (2) the receiving court by its justices' clerk<sup>8</sup> consents to the transfer<sup>9</sup>.

FAMILY PROCEEDINGS/(1) IN GENERAL/(iii) The Courts with Jurisdiction in Family Proceedings/B. TRANSFER OF PROCEEDINGS/213. Transfer from magistrates' court to county court; refusal of magistrates' court to transfer.

213. Transfer from magistrates' court to county court; refusal of magistrates' court to transfer.

Subject to certain restrictions, a magistrates' court may, upon application by a party or of its own motion, transfer proceedings of a specified kind<sup>1</sup> or certain proceedings under the Family Law Act 1986<sup>2</sup> to a county court<sup>3</sup>. This discretion is exercisable where the court considers it in the interest of the child to do so, having regard first to the general principle that any delay in determining the question is likely to prejudice the welfare of the child<sup>4</sup> (and, in adoption cases, to the principle that the court or adoption agency should bear in mind that, in general, any delay in coming to a decision is likely to prejudice the child's welfare<sup>5</sup>) and secondly to the following questions<sup>6</sup>:

- 298 (1) whether the proceedings are exceptionally grave, important or complex<sup>7</sup>, in particular: (a) because of complicated or conflicting evidence about the risks involved to the child's physical or moral well-being or about other matters relating to the welfare of the child<sup>8</sup>; (b) because of the number of parties<sup>9</sup>; (c) because of a conflict with the law of another jurisdiction<sup>10</sup>; (d) because of some novel and difficult point of law<sup>11</sup>; or (e) because of some question of general public interest<sup>12</sup>;
- 299 (2) whether it would be appropriate for those proceedings to be heard together with other family proceedings which are pending in another court<sup>13</sup>; and
- 300 (3) whether transfer is likely significantly to accelerate the determination of the proceedings, where no other method of doing so, including transfer to another magistrates' court, is appropriate<sup>14</sup>, and delay would seriously prejudice the interests of the child who is the subject of the proceedings<sup>15</sup>.

A magistrates' court may transfer to a county court other proceedings<sup>16</sup> under the Children Act 1989 or the Adoption and Children Act 2002 where, having regard to the delay principle<sup>17</sup>, it considers that in the interests of the child the proceedings could be more appropriately heard in that county court<sup>18</sup>.

Where a magistrates' court refuses to transfer proceedings<sup>19</sup>, a party to the proceedings may apply to the relevant care centre for an order that the proceedings be transferred to itself<sup>20</sup>. Upon hearing such an application the court may transfer the proceedings to itself where, having regard to the delay principle and to the questions set out in heads (1) to (3) above, it considers that it is in the interests of the child to do so<sup>21</sup>, or the court may transfer the proceedings to the High Court where, having regard to the delay principle, it considers that the proceedings are appropriate for determination in the High Court and that such determination would be in the interests of the child<sup>22</sup>.

1 The proceedings of a kind mentioned in the Children (Allocation of Proceedings) Order 1991, SI 1991/1677, art 3(1)(a)-(f), (k), (n), (o), (r), (t)-(u) (see para 209 ante): art 7(1), (2). In addition, proceedings under art 3(1)(a), (n) (see para 209 ante) may only be transferred in order to be heard together with other family proceedings which arise out of the same circumstances and which are pending in another court (art 7(3)); and proceedings under art 3(1)(a) (see para 209 ante) may not be transferred from a magistrates' court which is not a family proceedings court: art 7(4). ## 215. Transfer from one county court to another: transfer to High Court.

A county court must transfer certain proceedings<sup>1</sup> to another county court<sup>2</sup> where it considers, having regard to the principle that any delay in determining the question is likely to prejudice the welfare of the child<sup>3</sup> (and, in adoption cases, to the principle that the court or adoption agency should bear in mind that, in general, any delay in coming to a decision is likely to prejudice the child's welfare<sup>4</sup>), that such a transfer is in the interests of the child<sup>5</sup>. A county court may transfer proceedings of the same kinds<sup>10</sup> to the High Court if it considers, having regard to the delay principle<sup>11</sup>, that the proceedings are appropriate for determination in the High Court, and that such determination would be in the interests of the child<sup>12</sup>.

A. THE INHERENT JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT AND WARDSHIP

218. In general.

The inherent jurisdiction of the High Court with respect to children may be invoked with or without making the child a ward of court<sup>1</sup>; the wardship jurisdiction is merely one manifestation of that jurisdiction<sup>2</sup>.

No minor can become a ward of court except by virtue of an order of the High Court to that effect<sup>3</sup>, but where an application is made for such an order in respect of a minor<sup>4</sup>, the minor becomes a ward of court on the making of the application<sup>5</sup>, unless he is the subject of a care order<sup>6</sup>.

Any person used to be able to issue a summons for this purpose<sup>7</sup> but now the applicant must state his interest in or relationship to the minor<sup>8</sup> and of each party to the proceedings<sup>9</sup>. If there is any doubt about the propriety of the application, the matter will be referred to the district judge, who may dismiss the summons forthwith if he considers that it is an abuse of the process of the court<sup>10</sup>.

No application for any exercise of the court's inherent jurisdiction with respect to children may be made by a local authority unless the authority has obtained the leave of the court<sup>11</sup>. The court may only grant such leave if it is satisfied that:

- 304 (1) the result which the authority wishes to achieve could not be achieved through the making of any order<sup>12</sup> made otherwise than in the exercise of the court's inherent jurisdiction and for which the authority is entitled to apply for (assuming, in the case of an application which may only be made with leave of the court, that leave is granted)<sup>13</sup>; and
- 305 (2) there is reasonable cause to believe that if the court's inherent jurisdiction is not exercised with respect to the child he is likely to suffer significant harm<sup>14</sup>.

Where it is necessary, an injunction may be granted<sup>15</sup> before the institution of wardship proceedings under the court's inherent jurisdiction to make an order for the protection of a minor<sup>16</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/3. FAMILY PROCEEDINGS/(1) IN GENERAL/(iv) Initiating, and Participation in, Family Proceedings/A. THE INHERENT JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT AND WARDSHIP/219. Procedure: originating summons.

219. Procedure: originating summons.

The procedure in wardship is set out in Part V of the Family Proceedings Rules 1991<sup>1</sup>.

An application to make a minor<sup>2</sup> a ward of court must be made by originating summons<sup>3</sup>. Unless the court otherwise directs, the originating summons must state the date of the minor's birth<sup>4</sup> and the minor's whereabouts, or that the plaintiff is unaware of his whereabouts<sup>5</sup>.

Upon being served with the summons, every defendant other than the minor must forthwith lodge in the registry out of which the summons issued a notice stating the address of the defendant and the whereabouts of the minor, or as the case may be, that the defendant is unaware of his whereabouts and, unless the court otherwise directs, serve a copy of the same upon the plaintiff<sup>6</sup>. Where any party other than the minor changes his address or becomes aware of any change in the whereabouts of the minor after the issue or, as the case may be, service of the summons, he must, unless the court otherwise directs, forthwith lodge notice of the change in the registry out of which the summons issued and serve a copy of the notice on every other party<sup>7</sup>.

Proceedings under the residual inherent jurisdiction of the High Court are assigned to the Family Division of the High Court<sup>8</sup> and must be commenced by the issue of an originating summons<sup>9</sup>.

1 See the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 5.1 (application to make a minor a ward of court), r 5.2 (enforcement of order), r 5.3 (where the minor ceases to be a ward of court), r 5.4 (amended by SI 2005/2922) (adoption of minor who is a ward of court), Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 5.5 (added by SI 1991/2113; amended by SI 1992/456) (orders of use of secure accommodation), Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 5.6 (added by SI 1991/2113) (notice to provider of refuge).

2 As to the term 'minor' see paras 1-3 ante.

3 Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 5.1(1). The plaintiff must file an affidavit in support of the application when the originating summons is issued: r 5.1(1). See further para 220 post.

4 Ibid r 5.1(5). The plaintiff must: (1) on issuing the summons, or before or at the first hearing, lodge in the registry out of which the summons issued a certified copy of the entry in the Register of Births or, as the case may be, in the Adopted Children Register, relating to the minor (r 5.1(5)(a)); or (2) at the first hearing of the summons, apply for directions as to proof of birth of the minor in some other manner (r 5.1(5)(b)). As to the Register of Births see REGISTRATION CONCERNING THE INDIVIDUAL vol 39(2) (Reissue) paras 504-505. As to the Adopted Children Register see para 383 et seq post.

5 Ibid r 5.1(7). Any reference to the whereabouts of a minor is a reference to the address at which and the person with whom he is living and any other information relevant to the question where he may be found: r 5.1(11). The summons must also contain a notice to the defendant informing him of the requirements of r 5.1(8), (9) to notify the court of his and the minor's whereabouts (see the text and notes 6-7 infra); r 5.1(10).

6 Ibid r 5.1(8). The power of the High Court to secure, through an officer attending upon the court, compliance with any direction relating to a ward of court may be exercised by an order addressed to the tipstaff: r 5.2. As to the powers of the tipstaff see CONTEMPT OF COURT vol 9(1) (Reissue) para 518.

7 Ibid r 5.1(9).

8 Supreme Court Act 1981 Sch 1 para 3(b)(ii) (substituted by the Children Act 1989 s 108(5), (6), Sch 13 para 45(3), Sch 14 para 1). As from a day to be appointed, the Supreme Court Act 1981 is renamed the Senior

NOTE 8--Appointed day is 1 October 2009: SI 2009/1604.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/3. FAMILY PROCEEDINGS/(1) IN GENERAL/(iv) Initiating, and Participation in, Family Proceedings/A. THE INHERENT JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT AND WARDSHIP/220. Parties to the application.

220. Parties to the application.

The name of each party to wardship proceedings must be qualified by a brief description in the body of the summons<sup>1</sup> of his interest in, or relation to, the minor<sup>2</sup>. In an appropriate case, a minor may apply for an order making himself a ward of court<sup>3</sup>.

Where the purpose of the application is to resolve a dispute, the persons who are parties to that dispute should be joined as defendants on the summons. However, a person with whom a minor has formed, or is seeking to form, an undesirable association should not be made a party to the proceedings, but only a defendant to the application for an injunction or committal within the wardship proceedings<sup>4</sup>.

Where there is no other person other than the minor who is a suitable defendant, an application may be made ex parte to a district judge for leave to issue either an ex parte originating summons or an originating summons with the minor as defendant, and except where such leave is granted, the minor must not be made a defendant to an originating summons in the first instance<sup>5</sup>. Although there are circumstances in which an ex parte application may be justified<sup>6</sup> the guiding rule is that such applications should only be allowed where there is an urgent necessity for them<sup>7</sup>.

The minor should only be joined in special circumstances<sup>8</sup>. If a minor is joined as a defendant he must have a guardian ad litem to conduct proceedings on his behalf<sup>9</sup> but in certain circumstances he may act without a guardian with the leave of the court<sup>10</sup>. The Official Solicitor may be authorised to act for the minor<sup>11</sup>.

It is not clear whether the Crown may be made a defendant in wardship proceedings<sup>12</sup>. Any person who has not been joined as a party to the proceedings may apply to be joined by way of summons with an affidavit in support setting out the reasons why he wishes to be involved in the proceedings<sup>13</sup>.

In certain circumstances documents lodged in wardship proceedings may be used in other proceedings by or on behalf of the ward<sup>14</sup>.

2 Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 5.1(6). However, in a case in which it is desired that the Crown be represented, the appropriate course of action would seem to be to make a third party (eg the father of the ward) the defendant, and then invite the Attorney General to represent the interests of the Crown: see Re J S (a minor) (wardship: boy soldier) supra at 185, 863 per Hollis J.

FAMILY PROCEEDINGS/(1) IN GENERAL/(iv) Initiating, and Participation in, Family Proceedings/A. THE INHERENT JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT AND WARDSHIP/221. Adoption of wards of court.

221. Adoption of wards of court.

The consent of the court is required to place a minor<sup>1</sup> who is a ward of court for adoption, to start proceedings to adopt such a minor, or to free him for adoption<sup>2</sup>. An application for leave to commence proceedings<sup>3</sup> to adopt, place or free for adoption, a minor who is a ward may be made ex parte to a district judge<sup>4</sup>. Where, however, a local authority has been granted leave to place a minor who is a ward with foster parents with a view to adoption it is not necessary for an application to be made for leave under these provisions unless the court otherwise directs<sup>5</sup>. If the applicant for leave<sup>6</sup>, or a local authority which has applied for leave<sup>7</sup>, or a foster parent so requests, the district judge may direct that any subsequent proceedings must be conducted with a view to securing that the proposed adopter is not seen by or made known to any respondent or prospective respondent who is not already aware of his identity, except with his consent<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to the terms 'infant', 'minor' and 'child' see paras 1-3 ante.

2 See F v S [1973] Fam 203, [1973] 1 All ER 722, CA. The test to be applied in this, as in other applications, is whether the application is in the best interests of the ward. See also Re W (a minor) (adoption agency: wardship) [1990] Fam 156, [1990] 2 All ER 463. As to adoption see generally para 323 et seq post.

222. Termination of wardship.

A minor<sup>1</sup> who has become a ward of court<sup>2</sup> on the issue of a summons ceases to be a ward of court:

- 306 (1) if an application for an appointment for the hearing of the summons is not made within the period of 21 days after the issue of the summons, at the expiration of that period<sup>3</sup>;
- 307 (2) if an application for such an appointment is made within that period, on the determination of the application made by the summons unless the court hearing it orders that the minor be made a ward of court<sup>4</sup>.

The court may, at any time, either upon an application in that behalf or without such an application, order that a minor who is for the time being a ward of court is to cease to be a ward<sup>5</sup>. This, in common with other issues relating to wards, will be decided by reference to the welfare principle<sup>6</sup>.

Once a ward has attained full age, the court's wardship jurisdiction ceases and it cannot thereafter interfere with the ward's marriage or require a settlement of the ward's property, unless the marriage involves a contempt of court<sup>7</sup>. Undertakings given to the court and intended to apply to a court order while the court had jurisdiction to make the order lapse when the ward attains full age<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to the terms 'infant', 'minor' and 'child' see paras 1-3 ante.

3 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 41(2); Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 5.3(1)(a) (r 5.3(1) prospectively amended by the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 Pt 1 para 1).

4 Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 5.3(1)(b). This does not affect the general power of the court under the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 41(3) to order that any minor who is for the time being a ward of court ceases to be a ward of court (see the text and note 5 infra): Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 5.3(2). If no application for an appointment for the hearing of a summons under r 5.1 (see paras 218-219 ante) is made within the period of 21 days after the issue of the summons, a notice stating whether the applicant intends to proceed with the application made by the summons must be left at the registry in which the matter is proceeding immediately after the expiration of that period: r 5.3(3).

6 I.e. under the Children Act 1989 s 1(1) (which provides that when a court determines any question with respect to the upbringing of a child or the administration of a child's property or any income arising from it, the child's welfare must be the court's paramount consideration); see para 300 post.

- 313 (6) proceedings under Part III of the Matrimonial and Family Proceedings Act 1984<sup>9</sup> may be started by either party to a marriage which has been dissolved or annulled by means of judicial or other proceedings in an overseas country (or parties to the marriage who have been legally separated), where the divorce, annulment or legal separation is entitled to be recognised as valid in England and Wales<sup>10</sup>;
- 314 (7) an application for a child safety order is made by a local authority<sup>11</sup>; and
- 315 (8) applications for parental orders under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 must be made by both parties to a marriage<sup>12</sup>.

Entitlement to initiate proceedings under the Children Act 1989 depends on the nature of the order being sought, and on the applicants satisfying various conditions<sup>13</sup>.

When any application for an order under the Children Act 1989 is disposed of, the court may order that no further application for any order under the Act of any specified kind be made by the person named in the order without the leave of the court: s 91(14); and see para 266 post. This power should be used sparingly, after giving the person concerned an opportunity of being heard: Re F [1992] 2 FCR 433, sub nom F v Kent County Council [1993] 1 FLR 432. In general, the power should only be exercised where there have been repeated applications, but may in exceptional circumstances be exercised in the absence of repeated applications if the welfare of the child makes it necessary: see Re M (care orders: restricting applications) [1999] 3 FCR 400, sub nom Re M (section 91(14) order) [1999] 2 FLR 553, CA; Re P (a child) (residence order: restriction order) [2000] Fam 15, [1999] 3 All ER 734, sub nom Re P (section 91(14) guidelines) (residence and religious heritage) [1999] 2 FLR 573, CA; Re P (Children Act 1989, sections 22 and 26: local authority compliance) [2000] 2 FLR 910; Re F (children) (restriction on applications) [2005] EWCA Civ 499, [2005] 2 FCR 176, [2005] 2 FLR 950. In making an order under the Children Act 1989 s 91(14), the court must balance the interests of the child with the fundamental right of freedom of access to the courts: Re R (a minor) (leave to make applications) [1998] 2 FCR 129, sub nom Re R (residence: contact: restricting applications) [1998] 1 FLR 749, CA. An order under the Children Act 1989 s 91(14) may be imposed even when the applicant's conduct cannot be criticised, if it is in the best interests of the child to do so: Re M (care orders: restricting applications) supra. However, the prohibition made needs to be compatible with the primary objective of the court to restore the relationship between parent and child: Re B (section 91(14) order: duration) [2003] EWCA Civ 1966, [2004] 1 FLR 871, sub nom Re B (a child) (order restricting applications) [2003] All ER (D) 149 (Nov). FAMILY PROCEEDINGS/(1) IN GENERAL/(iv) Initiating, and Participation in, Family Proceedings/B. PROCEEDINGS INSTITUTED UNDER STATUTE/224. The right to participate in family proceedings.

224. The right to participate in family proceedings.

Rules of court<sup>1</sup> make provision as to entitlement to party status in family proceedings, entitlement to notice of such proceedings and intervention, and also for the circumstances in which an application may be made ex parte<sup>2</sup>.

Where a matrimonial cause is pending, an application by a party to the cause or by any other person for an order under any provision of Part I or Part II of the Children Act 1989<sup>3</sup> in relation to a child of the family must be made in the cause; and where the applicant is not a party to the cause and has obtained such leave as is required<sup>4</sup> to make the application, no leave to intervene in the cause is necessary<sup>5</sup>.

In the case of proceedings in the High Court and county court under the Children Act 1989<sup>6</sup> rules prescribe those persons who must be made respondents to proceedings, or must be given notice of them<sup>7</sup>.

In the case of proceedings in the family proceedings court under the Children Act 1989, further rules prescribe those persons who must be made respondents to proceedings, or must be given notice of them<sup>8</sup>.

The rules permit a person to file a request in Form C2 that he or another person be joined as a party or cease to be a party<sup>9</sup>. On considering such a request the court must:

- 316 (1) grant it without a hearing or representations, but only where the request is to be joined as a party<sup>10</sup>;
- 317 (2) order that a date be fixed for the consideration of the request<sup>11</sup>; or
- 318 (3) invite the parties or any of them to make written representations, within a specified period, as to whether the request should be granted<sup>12</sup>.

However, where a person with parental responsibility requests that he be joined, the court must grant his request<sup>13</sup>.

The court also has a general power to direct that a person who would not otherwise be a respondent under the rules<sup>14</sup> is to be joined as a party to the proceedings, or that a party to the proceedings is to cease to be a party<sup>15</sup>.

(v) Involvement of Children in Certain Proceedings

225. The child as a party to family proceedings.

A child may begin and prosecute any family proceedings only by his next friend, and defend any such proceedings only by his guardian ad litem<sup>1</sup>. No person's name may be used in any proceedings as a next friend unless he is the Official Solicitor or some other person whose consent has been filed, along with a statement by the child's solicitor that the person has no interest adverse to the child's and is a fit and proper person to act as next friend<sup>2</sup>. However, these provisions do not apply to specified proceedings<sup>3</sup>.

In respect of proceedings under the Children Act 1989 in the High Court or county court or under the inherent jurisdiction of the High Court in relation to children, where a person entitled to begin, prosecute or defend any proceedings is a child, he may begin, prosecute or defend as the case may be without a next friend or guardian ad litem (1) where he has obtained the leave of the court<sup>4</sup>; or (2) where a solicitor considers that the child is able, having regard to his understanding, to give instructions in relation to the proceedings, and has accepted instructions from the child to act for him in the proceedings, and, where the proceedings have begun, is so acting<sup>5</sup>. A child is entitled to apply for such leave from the court without a next friend or guardian ad litem by filing a written request for leave setting out the reasons for the application, or by making an oral request for leave at any hearing in the proceedings<sup>6</sup>. Where a child has a next friend or guardian ad litem in proceedings and the child wishes to prosecute or defend the remaining stages of the proceedings without a next friend or guardian ad litem, the child may apply to the court for leave for that purpose and for the removal of the next friend or guardian ad litem<sup>7</sup>.

Where a court is considering whether to grant leave<sup>8</sup> and remove the next friend or guardian ad litem it must grant the leave sought and, as the case may be, remove the next friend or guardian ad litem if it considers that the child concerned has sufficient understanding to participate as a party in the proceedings concerned or proposed without a next friend or guardian ad litem<sup>9</sup>. Possession of sufficient understanding does not, however, compel a child to act without a next friend or guardian ad litem<sup>10</sup>.

The court may revoke any leave granted where it considers that the child does not have sufficient understanding to participate as a party to the proceedings without a next friend or guardian ad litem<sup>11</sup>. Where a solicitor is acting for a child in proceedings which the child is prosecuting or defending without a next friend or guardian ad litem by virtue of head (2) above and either of the conditions specified in head (2) above ceases to be fulfilled, he must forthwith inform the court<sup>12</sup>. Where the court revokes leave<sup>13</sup> or either of the conditions in head (2) above is no longer fulfilled the court may, if it considers it necessary in order to protect the interests of the child concerned, order that some proper person be appointed his next friend or guardian ad litem<sup>14</sup>.

TEXT AND NOTE 4--SI 1991/1247 r 9.1(3) amended: SI 2008/2446.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/3. FAMILY PROCEEDINGS/(1) IN GENERAL/(v) Involvement of Children in Certain Proceedings/226. Attendance of child at certain proceedings.

226. Attendance of child at certain proceedings.

In any proceedings in which a court is hearing an application for an order relating to the care and supervision of a child<sup>1</sup>, or to the protection of children<sup>2</sup>, or is considering whether to make any such order, it may order the child concerned to attend such stage or stages of the proceedings as may be specified in the order<sup>3</sup>. Where such an order has not been complied with or the court has reasonable cause to believe that it will not be complied with, the court may make an order authorising a constable or such person as may be specified in the order to take charge of the child and bring him to court, and to enter and search any premises specified in the order if he has reasonable cause to believe that the child may be found on the premises<sup>4</sup>. The court may also order any person who is in a position to do so to bring the child to court<sup>5</sup>, and where the court has reason to believe that a person has information about the whereabouts of the child it may order him to disclose it to the court<sup>6</sup>.

1    Ie an order under the Children Act 1989 Pt IV (ss 31-42) (as amended): see para 271 et seq post. For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

2    Ie an order under ibid Pt V (ss 43-52) (as amended): see para 577 et seq post.

3    Ibid s 95(1). This power must be exercised in accordance with rules of court: s 95(2). As to rules of court see para 206 ante. Proceedings must take place in the absence of any party, including the child if the court considers it is in the interests of the child (having regard to the matters to be discussed and the evidence likely to be given) and the party is represented by a children's guardian or solicitor; and when considering the interests of the child the court must give the children's guardian, the solicitor for the child and, if he is of sufficient understanding, the child an opportunity to make representations: Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.16 (amended by SI 2001/821), Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 16(2). It has been held that guardians should consider carefully whether it is appropriate for children to be present in High Court proceedings: Re G (a minor) (appeal) [1993] 1 FCR 810, sub nom Re C (a minor: care: child's wishes) [1993] 1 FLR 832. A court will only allow a child to attend if satisfied that it is in his interests: Re W (secure accommodation order: attendance at court) [1994] 3 FCR 248, [1994] 2 FLR 1092 (child's welfare prevails above all other considerations).

NOTE 3--SI 1991/1247 r 4.16 further amended: SI 2008/2861.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/3. FAMILY PROCEEDINGS/(1) IN GENERAL/(v) Involvement of Children in Certain Proceedings/227. Privacy for children in proceedings.

227. Privacy for children in proceedings.

Rules<sup>1</sup> may provide for a magistrates' court to sit in private in proceedings in which any powers of the court under the Children Act 1989 or the Adoption and Children Act 2002 may be exercised with respect to a child<sup>2</sup>.

No person may publish<sup>3</sup> to the public at large or any section of the public any material<sup>4</sup> intended or likely to identify: (1) any child as being involved in any proceedings before the High Court, a county court or a magistrates' court in which any power under the Children Act 1989 or the Adoption and Children Act 2002 may be exercised by the court with respect to that or any other child; or (2) an address or school as being that of a child so involved<sup>5</sup>.

Anyone who contravenes this prohibition is guilty of an offence<sup>6</sup>. It is a defence for the accused to prove that he did not know and had no reason to suspect that the published material was intended or likely to identify the child<sup>7</sup>. However, the court or the Lord Chancellor (if the Lord Chief Justice agrees) may, if satisfied that the welfare of the child so requires it, dispense by order with these requirements<sup>8</sup> to such extent as may be specified<sup>9</sup>.

1 The rules made under the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 144 (as amended) (see MAGISTRATES vol 29(2) (Reissue) para 588). At the date at which this volume states the law, no rules had been made for the purposes of the Children Act 1989 s 97(1). As from a day to be appointed, references in s 97 to rules made under the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 144 are repealed, and in s 97(1) are replaced by the words 'Family Procedure Rules' by the Courts Act 2003 s 109(1), Sch 8 para 337(1), (2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

2 Children Act 1989 s 97(1) (amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 101(3)). This is without prejudice to the generality of the rule-making power for proceedings in magistrates' courts in the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 144 (as amended) (see para 207 ante), or to any other power of a magistrates' court to sit in private: Children Act 1989 s 97(7) (prospectively amended: see note 1 supra). The Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 69 (as amended) (sittings of magistrates' courts for family proceedings) and s 71 (as amended) (newspaper reports of certain proceedings) apply in relation to any proceedings before a magistrates' court to which the Children Act 1989 s 97 (as amended) applies, subject to the provisions of s 97 (as amended): s 97(8) (amended by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 116, Sch 16 para 24; and the Access to Justice Act 1999 s 72(b)). See MAGISTRATES. For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

3 'Publish' includes: (1) include in a programme service within the meaning of the Broadcasting Act 1990 (see TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND BROADCASTING vol 45(1) (2005 Reissue) para 352); or (2) cause to be published: Children Act 1989 s 97(5) (amended by the Broadcasting Act 1990 s 203(1), Sch 20 para 53). A children and family reporter does not publish material by reporting to the social services his concerns about a child's welfare: Re M (a child) (children and family reporter: disclosure) [2002] EWCA Civ 1199, [2003] Fam 26, [2002] 4 All ER 401. There is no objection in principle to disclosure of court documents to a public authority with a proper interest in the subject matter of the disclosure, such as the local government ombudsman or the police: Re O (children) (hearing in private: assistance) [2005] EWCA Civ 759, [2006] Fam 1, [2005] 2 FCR 563.

5 Ibid s 97(2) (amended by the Access to Justice Act 1999 s 72(a); the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 101(3); and the Children Act 2004 s 62(1)). The Children Act 1989 s 97(2) (as amended) is compatible with the European Convention on Human Rights: P v B W [2003] EWHC 1541 (Fam), [2004] Fam 22, [2003] 3 FCR 523; affd Pelling v Bruce-Williams [2004] EWCA Civ 845, [2004] Fam 155, [2004] 2 FLR 823. No contempt of court is committed by the media interviewing a child who is known to be a ward of court, or the broadcasting of such an interview, provided there is no breach of the restraints imposed by the Administration of Justice Act 1960 s 12 (as amended) (see CONTEMPT OF COURT vol 9(1) (Reissue) para 431) and the Children Act 1989 s 97(2) (as amended): see Kelly v BBC [2001] Fam 59, [2001] 1 All ER 323, [2000] 3 FCR 509; Re X (a child) (injunctions restraining publication) [2001] 1 FCR 541. While the prohibition on publication contained in the Children Act

1989 s 97 (as amended) prevents identification of children involved in proceedings while those proceedings are continuing, such prohibition ends when the proceedings are concluded (although this does not preclude other measures being taken): Clayton v Clayton [2006] EWCA Civ 878, [2006] Fam 83, [2007] 1 All ER 1197. See also Re L M (a child) (reporting restrictions: coroner's inquest) [2007] EWHC 1902 (Fam), [2007] 3 FCR 44 (applying Re S (a child) (identification: restriction on publication) [2004] UKHL 47, [2005] 1 AC 593, [2004] 4 All ER 683; and Local Authority v W [2005] EWHC 1564 (Fam), [2006] 1 FLR 1, sub nom Re W (children) (identification: restriction on publication) [2005] All ER (D) 206 (Jul)).

6 Children Act 1989 s 97(6). The offence is punishable on summary conviction by a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale: s 97(6). As to the standard scale see para 132 note 2 ante.

8 Ie the requirements of ibid s 97(2): see the text and note 5 supra.

9 Ibid s 97(4) (amended by the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 15(1), Sch 4 paras 203, 208(1)-(3)). The welfare of the child is one of a non-exhaustive list of circumstances in which the discretion can be exercised: Norfolk County Council v Webster [2006] EWHC 2733 (Fam), [2007] 1 FLR 1146, [2006] All ER (D) 32 (Nov). See also Re K (child) (adoption: permission to advertise) [2007] EWHC 544 (Fam), [2007] 2 FLR 326, [2007] Fam Law 681 (it was not open to a local authority to place an advertisement advertising a particular child as being available for adoption, or to apply to a court for permission to do so, until the authority had obtained the necessary recommendation from its adoption panel).

The Lord Chief Justice may nominate a judicial office holder to exercise his functions under the Children Act 1989 s 97(4) (as amended): s 97(9) (added by the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 4 paras 203, 208(1)-(3)). As to the Lord Chancellor see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) paras 477-497.

(vi) Evidence

228. Evidence by or with respect to children.

Where a child<sup>1</sup> who is called as a witness in any civil proceedings<sup>2</sup> does not, in the opinion of the court, understand the nature of an oath, the child's evidence may be heard by the court if, in its opinion, he understands that it is his duty to speak the truth and he has sufficient understanding to justify his evidence being heard<sup>3</sup>.

The Lord Chancellor, with the concurrence of the Lord Chief Justice, may by order make provision for the admissibility of evidence which would otherwise be inadmissible as hearsay under any rule of law relating to hearsay<sup>4</sup>. Such an order may only be made with respect to:

- 319 (1) civil proceedings in general, or such civil proceedings or proceedings, or class of civil proceedings, as may be prescribed; and
- 320 (2) evidence in connection with the upbringing, maintenance or welfare of a child<sup>5</sup>.

Such an order may (a) in particular, provide for the admissibility of statements which are made orally or in a prescribed form<sup>6</sup> or which are recorded by any prescribed method of recording<sup>7</sup>; (b) make different provision for different purposes and in relation to different descriptions of court<sup>8</sup>; and (c) make such amendments and repeals in any enactment relating to evidence, other than in the Children Act 1989, as the Lord Chancellor considers necessary or expedient in consequence of the provision made by the order<sup>9</sup>.

Experts may be called to give evidence in the usual way on matters requiring expert analysis or opinion<sup>10</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'civil proceedings' means civil proceedings, before any tribunal, in relation to which the strict rules of evidence apply, whether as a matter of law or by agreement of the parties, and references to 'the court' are to be construed accordingly: Children Act 1989 s 96(7) (definition substituted by the Civil Evidence Act 1995 s 15(1), Sch 1 para 16). As to evidence given by children in criminal proceedings see paras 1277-1281 post. 3 Children Act 1989 s 96(1), (2). It is generally not desirable for children to be called as witnesses in family cases: R v B County Council, ex p P [1991] 2 All ER 65, [1991] 1 WLR 221, CA; Re M (a child) (care proceedings: witness summons) [2007] EWCA Civ 9, [2007] 1 FCR 253. As to the Lord Chancellor see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) paras 477-497.

5 Children Act 1989 s 96(4). As to the civil proceedings which have been prescribed by order see the Children (Admissibility of Hearsay Evidence) Order 1993, SI 1993/621, art 2. However, see Re D (sexual abuse allegations: evidence of adult victim) [2002] 1 FLR 723 (social worker's opinion evidence as to alleged victim's credibility should not have been accepted). ## (2) THE CHILDREN AND FAMILY COURT ADVISORY AND SUPPORT SERVICE

(i) Introduction

230. CAFCASS: a unified advisory and support service for family courts.

The Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS') is a non-departmental public body, and was set up under the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000<sup>1</sup> to incorporate the work of the family court welfare services, the guardian ad litem and reporting officer service and the children's work of the Official Solicitor's Department<sup>2</sup>.

Consequently, various changes were made to the terminology used in the legislation. The family proceedings rules<sup>3</sup> were revised to make the necessary amendments arising from the establishment of CAFCASS and to clarify the powers and duties of officers of the Service when appointed in any family or related proceedings<sup>4</sup>. The Official Solicitor still retains certain functions<sup>5</sup>. 'Officer of the Service'<sup>6</sup> is the collective term used by the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 in place of the terms 'guardian ad litem', 'reporting officer' and 'court welfare officer'<sup>7</sup>. Under the revised family proceedings rules and the adoption rules<sup>8</sup>, guardians ad litem have become 'children's guardians'<sup>9</sup> in respect of care and secure accommodation order proceedings and adoption and placement order proceedings<sup>10</sup>. Guardians ad litem under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 were re-named 'parental order reporters'<sup>11</sup>. However, the term 'reporting officer' in adoption proceedings remains unchanged<sup>12</sup>. 'Welfare officers' were renamed 'children and family reporters'<sup>13</sup> except where they are local authority officers reporting under the Children Act 1989<sup>14</sup>.

On 1 April 2005 CAFCASS functions in Wales were transferred to a division of the National Assembly for Wales known as CAFCASS CYMRU<sup>15</sup>. CAFCASS is now only responsible for proceedings in England; the Welsh Ministers and Welsh family proceedings officers are responsible for proceedings in Wales<sup>16</sup>. In respect of family proceedings in which the welfare of children ordinarily resident in Wales is or may be in question, it is a function of the Welsh Ministers to: (1) safeguard and promote the welfare of the children; (2) give advice to any court about any application made to it in such proceedings; (3) make provision for the children to be represented in such proceedings; (4) provide information, advice and other support for the children and their families<sup>17</sup>. They must also make provision for the performance of the functions conferred on Welsh family proceedings officers by virtue of any enactment (whether or not they are exercisable for the purposes heads (1) to (4) above<sup>18</sup>. The Welsh Ministers and CAFCASS may provide any information to each other for the purposes of their respective functions<sup>19</sup>. Similarly, a Welsh family proceedings officer and an officer of the Service may provide any information to each other for the purposes of their respective functions<sup>20</sup>.

1 It was set up on 1 April 2001 under the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 11 (see para 233 post): see the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 (Commencement No 4) Order 2001, SI 2001/919, art 2. The Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 ss 19-22 came into force on 30 November 2000: see s 80(3). ### 231. Children as parties to proceedings.

The proper conduct and disposal of proceedings concerning a child which are not specified proceedings<sup>1</sup> may require the child to be made a party<sup>2</sup>. The Family Proceedings Rules 1991<sup>3</sup> provide for the appointment of a guardian ad litem (a guardian) for a child party unless the child is of sufficient understanding and can participate as a party in the proceedings as a party without a guardian<sup>4</sup>. Making the child a party is a step that will be taken only in cases which involve an issue of significant difficulty and consequently will occur only in a minority of cases<sup>5</sup>. The decision to make the child a party will be exclusively that of the judge, made in the light of the facts and circumstances of the case<sup>6</sup>. In cases proceeding in a county court, the court may, at the same time as deciding whether to join a child as a party, consider whether the nature of the case or the complexity or importance of the issues require transfer of the case to the High Court<sup>7</sup>.

Where the court has decided to appoint a guardian, the court should endeavour to send the order on the day of the hearing<sup>8</sup>. In cases proceeding in the county court, the order making the appointment should be sent to the CAFCASS or CAFCASS CYMRU<sup>9</sup> office responsible for private law cases in the area in which the child is currently living<sup>10</sup>.

In private law cases proceeding in the High Court where a guardian is appointed, the case will be referred either to the CAFCASS High Court Team<sup>11</sup> (where the child is resident in England), the Assembly lawyers<sup>12</sup> (where the child is resident in Wales) or to the relevant local CAFCASS office<sup>13</sup>. In proceedings brought under the Child Abduction and Custody Act 1985<sup>14</sup> referrals should be made to the CAFCASS team based at the Principal Registry (where the child is usually resident in England) and to the relevant regional office of CAFCASS CYMRU (where the child is usually resident in Wales)<sup>15</sup>. CAFCASS Legal<sup>16</sup> or Assembly lawyers may be invited to act or instruct counsel as advocate to the court in family proceedings in which the welfare of children is or may be in question<sup>17</sup>.

1 As to the specified proceedings see the Children Act 1989 s 41 (as amended); and para 311 note 4 post.

3 le the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 9.5 (amended by SI 2001/821; SI 2005/2922).

4 President's Direction (Representation of Children in Family Proceedings pursuant to Family Proceedings Rules 1991, rule 9.5) [2004] 1 FLR 1188 para 1. A guardian need not be appointed if the child is of sufficient understanding and can participate as a party to the proceedings without a guardian, as permitted by the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 9.2A (as added): see para 225 ante.

5 President's Direction (Representation of Children in Family Proceedings pursuant to Family Proceedings Rules 1991, rule 9.5) [2004] 1 FLR 1188 para 2. Before taking the decision to make the child a party, consideration should be given to whether an alternative route might be preferable, such as asking an officer of CAFCASS (see para 230 ante) to carry out further work or by making a referral to social services or possibly, by obtaining expert evidence: President's Direction (Representation of Children in Family Proceedings pursuant to Family Proceedings Rules 1991, rule 9.5) [2004] 1 FLR 1188 para 2. Separate representation of the child may result in delay. When deciding whether to direct that a child be made a party, the court must take into account the risk of delay or other factors adverse to the welfare of the child. The court's primary consideration will be the best interests of the child: President's Direction (Representation of Children in Family Proceedings pursuant to Family Proceedings Rules 1991, rule 9.5) [2004] 1 FLR 1188 para 4.

6 President's Direction (Representation of Children in Family Proceedings pursuant to Family Proceedings Rules 1991, rule 9.5) [2004] 1 FLR 1188 para 3. By way of guidance, the following circumstances may justify making an order:

- 166 (1) where a CAFCASS officer has notified the court that in his opinion the child should be made a party (see the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.11B(6) (as added) (President's Direction (Representation of Children in Family Proceedings pursuant to Family Proceedings Rules 1991, rule 9.5) [2004] 1 FLR 1188 para 3.1);
- 167 (2) where the child has a standpoint or interests which are inconsistent with or incapable of being represented by any of the adult parties (President's Direction (Representation of Children in Family Proceedings pursuant to Family Proceedings Rules 1991, rule 9.5) [2004] 1 FLR 1188 para 3.2);
- 168 (3) where there is an intractable dispute over residence or contact, including where all contact has ceased, or where there is irrational but implacable hostility to contact or where the child may be suffering harm associated with the contact dispute (President's Direction (Representation of Children in Family Proceedings pursuant to Family Proceedings Rules 1991, rule 9.5) [2004] 1 FLR 1188 para 3.3). It is highly desirable for a guardian ad litem to be appointed in private family law proceedings where there is a conflict of interest between the parents and the child: Re A (a child) (separate representation in contact proceedings) [2001] 2 FCR 55, sub nom Re A (contact: separate representation) [2001] 1 FLR 715, CA;
- 169 (4) where the views and wishes of the child cannot be adequately met by a report to the court (President's Direction (Representation of Children in Family Proceedings pursuant to Family Proceedings Rules 1991, rule 9.5) [2004] 1 FLR 1188 para 3.4);
- 170 (5) where an older child is opposing a course of action (President's Direction (Representation of Children in Family Proceedings pursuant to Family Proceedings Rules 1991, rule 9.5) [2004] 1 FLR 1188 para 3.5);
- 171 (6) where there are complex medical or mental health issues to be determined or there are other unusually complex issues that necessitate separate representation of the child (President's Direction (Representation of Children in Family Proceedings pursuant to Family Proceedings Rules 1991, rule 9.5) [2004] 1 FLR 1188 para 3.6);
- 172 (7) where there are international complications outside child abduction, in particular where it may be necessary for there to be discussions with overseas authorities or a foreign court (President's Direction (Representation of Children in Family Proceedings pursuant to Family Proceedings Rules 1991, rule 9.5) [2004] 1 FLR 1188 para 3.7);
- 173 (8) where there are serious allegations of physical, sexual or other abuse in relation to the child or there are other allegations of domestic violence not capable of being resolved with the help of a CAFCASS officer (President's Direction (Representation of Children in Family Proceedings pursuant to Family Proceedings Rules 1991, rule 9.5) [2004] 1 FLR 1188 para 3.8);
- 174 (9) where the proceedings concern more than one child and the welfare of the children is in conflict or one child is in a particularly disadvantaged position (President's Direction (Representation of Children in Family Proceedings pursuant to Family Proceedings Rules 1991, rule 9.5) [2004] 1 FLR 1188 para 3.9);
- 175 (10) where there is a contested issue about blood testing (President's Direction (Representation of Children in Family Proceedings pursuant to Family Proceedings Rules 1991, rule 9.5) [2004] 1 FLR 1188 para 3.10).

7 President's Direction (Representation of Children in Family Proceedings pursuant to Family Proceedings Rules 1991, rule 9.5) [2004] 1 FLR 1188 para 6.

8 CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 4. The order should simply state that: '[name of child] is made party to the proceedings and pursuant to the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 9.5 an officer of CAFCASS/a Welsh family proceedings officer be appointed as his/her guardian': CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 3. The decision about which particular officer to allocate is a matter for CAFCASS or CAFCASS CYMRU (see note 9 infra) as appropriate. However, it is helpful if the court records whether there is any reason why and officer who has dealt with the matter so far should not continue to deal with it in the role of guardian: CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 5.

9 The Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS'). 'CAFCASS CYMRU' refers to the division of the National Assembly for Wales to whom the functions of the Assembly under the Children Act 2004 Pt 4 (ss 35-43) (as amended) have been delegated: CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 2; and see para 230 ante. As to the National Assembly for Wales and the Welsh Ministers see para 155 ante.

10 CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 6. For county court cases proceeding in the Principal Registry, the order and the court file should be sent to the CAFCASS office and the Principal Registry for referral to the relevant local office or directly to CAFCASS CYMRU: CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 6.

11 'The CAFCASS High Court Team' refers to the team of CAFCASS practitioners known by that name at the offices of the High Court team, London: CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 paras 2, 8, 11. The CAFCASS High Court Team does not undertake work proceeding in the county court: CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 7. If the officer appointed as guardian is a member of the CAFCASS High Court Team there may be no need for a solicitor for the child also to be appointed as the litigation may be conducted in house pursuant to the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 15: CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 15.

12 'The Assembly Lawyers' refers to lawyers employed by the National Assembly for Wales to provide legal advice, support and representation to Welsh family proceedings officers; CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 2.

13 CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 8. The following categories of case should be referred to the CAFCASS High Court Team or Assembly lawyers as appropriate:

- 176 (1) reporting restriction orders arising in a children's case (CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 10.1);
- 177 (2) exceptionally complex adoption cases including exceptionally complex cases involving inter-country adoption (CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 10.2);
- 178 (3) all medical treatment cases where the child is old enough to have views which need to be taken into account, or where there are particularly difficult ethical issues such as the withdrawal of treatment, unless the issue arises in existing proceedings already being handled locally when the preferred arrangement will usually be for the matter to continue to be dealt with locally but with additional advice provided by CAFCASS Legal or Assembly lawyers if necessary (CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 10.3);
- 179 (4) any free-standing human rights applications pursuant to the Human Rights Act 1998 s 7(1) (a) (see JUDICIAL REVIEW vol 61 (2010) PARA 650) in which it is thought that it may be possible and appropriate for any part to be played by CAFCASS or CAFCASS CYMRU or its officers (CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 10.4);
- 180 (5) exceptionally complex international cases particularly where there is a dispute as to which country's courts should have jurisdiction over the child's affairs (CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 10.5);
- 181 (6) applications in wardship and applications made under the court's inherent jurisdiction (CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 10.6).

If CAFCASS feels unable to represent a child, it is appropriate to consider whether it is necessary for him to be represented by a local guardian and a local solicitor: Re W (contact proceedings: joinder of child) [2001] EWCA Civ 1830, [2003] 2 FCR 175.

14 See para 799 et seq post.

15 CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 9.

16 'CAFCASS Legal' refers to the CAFCASS in-house lawyers: CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 2. CAFCASS Legal operate a duty system so that they can be contacted any day of the year by the High Court out of hours duty judge if their help is needed, for instance in relation to a medical treatment emergency: see CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 18. Guidance as to practice in urgent and out-of-hours applications in medical treatment and welfare cases is set out in Practice Note (Official Solicitor, CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales: Urgent and Out of Hours Cases in the Family Division of the High Court) [2006] 2 FLR 354.

17 CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 16. CAFCASS Legal and Assembly lawyers are available to offer advice to judges and other professionals engaged in family proceedings in which the welfare of children is or may be in question without necessarily being appointed as advocate to the court: CAFCASS and the National Assembly for Wales Practice Note (Appointment of Guardians in Private Law Proceedings) [2006] 2 FLR 143 para 17.

UPDATE

231 Children as parties to proceedings

TEXT AND NOTES--An order made in the county court joining a child as a party in private law Children Act proceedings and directing the appointment of a guardian under SI 1991/1247 r 9.5 may be made by any appropriately nominated judge or district judge: see President's Guidance (appointment of guardians in accordance with r 9.5: President's Guidance dated 25 February 2005: revocation) [2008] 2 FCR 184.

NOTE 6--See Re C (children) (abduction: separate representation of children) [2008] EWHC 517 (Fam), [2009] 1 FCR 194 (father sought return of four children under age of 16 under Hague Convention and 16-year old child under court's inherent jurisdiction; older child's case separate representation would be extended to his siblings because their cases so interrelated).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/3. FAMILY PROCEEDINGS/(2) THE CHILDREN AND FAMILY COURT ADVISORY AND SUPPORT SERVICE/(i) Introduction/232. The role of the Official Solicitor in children's proceedings.

232. The role of the Official Solicitor in children's proceedings.

The Official Solicitor no longer represents children who are the subject of family proceedings (other than in very exceptional circumstances and after liaison with the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS'))<sup>1</sup>. The Official Solicitor will, in the absence of any other willing and suitable person, act as next friend or guardian ad litem of a child party whose welfare is not the subject of family proceedings<sup>2</sup>. The most common examples will be:

- 321 (1) a child<sup>3</sup> who is also the parent of a child, and who is a respondent to a Children Act 1989 or an adoption application<sup>4</sup>;
- 322 (2) a child who wishes to make an application for an order under the Children Act 1989 naming another child (typically a contact order naming a sibling)<sup>5</sup>;
- 323 (3) a child witness to some disputed factual issue in a children case and who may require intervener status<sup>6</sup>;
- 324 (4) a child party to a petition for a declaration of status under Part III of the Family Law Act 1986<sup>7</sup>;
- 325 (5) a child intervener in divorce or ancillary relief proceedings<sup>8</sup>;
- 326 (6) a child applicant for, or respondent to, an application for an order under Part IV of the Family Law Act 1996<sup>9</sup>.

Officers of CAFCASS will not be able to represent anyone over the age of 18 and the Official Solicitor may therefore be the more appropriate next friend or guardian ad litem of a child who is also a patient and whose disability will persist beyond his or her eighteenth birthday, especially in non-emergency cases where the substantive hearing is unlikely to take place before the child's eighteenth birthday<sup>10</sup>. The Official Solicitor may also be the more appropriate next friend or guardian ad litem in medical treatment cases such as sterilisation or vegetative state cases, in which his staff have particular expertise deriving from their continuing role for adult patients<sup>11</sup>.

The Official Solicitor may be invited to act or instruct counsel as a friend of the court if it appears to the court that such an invitation is more appropriately addressed to him rather than (or in addition to) CAFCASS Legal<sup>12</sup>.

In cases of doubt or difficulty, staff of the Official Solicitor's office will liaise with staff of CAFCASS Legal to avoid duplication and ensure the most suitable arrangements are made<sup>13</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> This change took effect from 1 April 2001: see The Official Solicitor: Appointment in Family Proceedings Practice Note [2001] 2 FLR 155 para 2. As to CAFCASS see para 230 et seq ante. As to the exercise of CAFCASS functions in Wales see para 230 ante. Since there are no provisions for parties under disability in the Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1365, the Official Solicitor can only act in the High Court or county court, pursuant to the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, Pt IX (rr 9.1-9.5) (as amended) (see MENTAL HEALTH vol 30(2) (Reissue) para 703); The Official Solicitor: Appointment in Family Proceedings Practice Note [2001] 2 FLR 155 para 3. The Official Solicitor will continue to act as next friend or guardian ad litem of an adult party under disability, 'a patient', in the absence of any other willing and suitable person: The Official Solicitor: Appointment in Family Proceedings Practice Note [2001] 2 FLR 155 para 4; Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 9.2; and MENTAL HEALTH vol 30(2) (Reissue) para 703.

3 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

4 The Official Solicitor: Appointment in Family Proceedings Practice Note [2001] 2 FLR 155 para 5(a). If a child respondent is already represented by a CAFCASS officer in pending proceedings of which he or she is the subject, then the Official Solicitor will liaise with CAFCASS to agree the most appropriate arrangements: The Official Solicitor: Appointment in Family Proceedings Practice Note [2001] 2 FLR 155 para 5(a). As to adoption see para 323 et seq post.

5 The Official Solicitor: Appointment in Family Proceedings Practice Note [2001] 2 FLR 155 para 5(b). The Official Solicitor will need to satisfy himself that the proposed proceedings would benefit the child applicant before proceeding: The Official Solicitor: Appointment in Family Proceedings Practice Note [2001] 2 FLR 155 para 5(b).

239. Functions relating to family proceedings.

In respect of family proceedings<sup>1</sup> in which the welfare of children<sup>2</sup> is or may be in question, it is a function of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS')<sup>3</sup> or, as the case may be, CAFCASS CYMRU<sup>4</sup>, to:

- 329 (1) safeguard and promote the welfare of the children<sup>5</sup>;
- 330 (2) give advice to any court about any application made to it in such proceedings<sup>6</sup>;
- 331 (3) make provision for the children to be represented in such proceedings<sup>7</sup>;
- 332 (4) provide information, advice and other support for the children and their families<sup>8</sup>.

CAFCASS must also make provision for the performance of any functions conferred on officers of the Service<sup>9</sup> by virtue of the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 or any other enactment<sup>10</sup>. Similarly, CAFCASS CYMRU must make provision for the performance of any functions conferred on Welsh family proceedings officers<sup>11</sup> by virtue of the Children Act 2004 or any other enactment<sup>12</sup>.

Regulations may provide for grants to be paid by CAFCASS to any person for the purpose of furthering the performance of any function of CAFCASS<sup>13</sup>. The regulations may provide for the grants to be paid on conditions, including conditions regulating the purposes for which the grant or any part of it may be used, requiring repayment to CAFCASS in specified circumstances<sup>14</sup>.

Subject to any directions given by the Secretary of State<sup>15</sup>, CAFCASS may do anything which appears to it to be necessary or expedient for the purpose of, or in connection with, the exercise of its functions<sup>16</sup>. That includes, in particular: (a) holding land and other property; (b) entering into contracts; (c) investing sums not immediately required for the purpose of performing its functions; and (d) accepting gifts<sup>17</sup>. However, CAFCASS may not borrow money, whether by way of overdraft or otherwise, without the approval of the Secretary of State<sup>18</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'family proceedings' has the same meaning as in the Matrimonial and Family Proceedings Act 1984 (see para 207 note 1 ante) and also includes any other proceedings which are family proceedings for the purposes of the Children Act 1989 (see para 199 ante), but references to family proceedings include (where the context allows) family proceedings which are proposed or have been concluded: Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 12(5) (amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 139(1), (3), Sch 3 para 118, Sch 5), Children Act 2004 s 35(3).

2 In the case of children ordinarily resident in Wales, the functions of CAFCASS are carried out by CAFCASS CYMRU, a division of the National Assembly for Wales: see para 230 ante. As to the National Assembly for Wales and the Welsh Ministers see para 155 ante.

240. Extension of functions in respect of referred cases.

The functions of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS')<sup>1</sup> and of CAFCASS CYMRU<sup>2</sup> in respect of family proceedings<sup>3</sup> are extended so that they can be exercised in respect of any:

- 333 (1) proceedings under the Human Rights Act 1998<sup>4</sup> against a public authority claiming that it has acted unlawfully in contravention of a Convention right<sup>5</sup>;
- 334 (2) claim for judicial review<sup>6</sup>; and
- 335 (3) other proceedings<sup>7</sup>, in connection with a referral by an independent reviewing officer<sup>8</sup>. On referral of a case by an independent reviewing officer, the functions of an officer of the Service<sup>9</sup> or a Welsh family proceedings officer<sup>10</sup> must be performed in the manner prescribed by regulations<sup>11</sup>. Following receipt of a referral by an independent reviewing officer, CAFCASS or CAFCASS CYMRU must appoint an officer to assess the case and who must then decide on a course of action and submit a written report to the prescribed persons<sup>12</sup>. Proceedings may be brought as a result of this decision<sup>13</sup>. Notwithstanding whether proceedings have been issued or not, the officer of the Service or the Welsh family proceedings officer may seek to settle the case by alternative dispute resolution or other means<sup>14</sup>. On the conclusion of every case, whether following judgment of the court or settlement before or after proceedings were brought, the officer of the Service or the Welsh family proceedings officer must provide a written report to the persons prescribed by regulations<sup>15</sup>.

241. Delegation of functions.

The Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS')<sup>1</sup> and CAFCASS CYMRU<sup>2</sup> may make arrangements with organisations<sup>3</sup> under which the organisations perform functions of CAFCASS or CAFCASS CYMRU on their behalf<sup>4</sup>. Such arrangements may provide for the organisations to designate individuals who may perform functions of officers of the Service or of Welsh family proceedings officers<sup>5</sup>, but they may only make such an arrangement if they are of the opinion that the functions in question will be performed efficiently and to the required standard, and, that the arrangement represents good value for money<sup>6</sup>. They also have power to make similar arrangements with individuals<sup>7</sup>.

CAFCASS may commission, or assist the conduct of, research by any person into matters concerned with the exercise of its functions<sup>8</sup>.

243. Right to conduct litigation; right of audience.

- 336 (1) to conduct litigation in relation to any proceedings in any court<sup>5</sup>;
- 337 (2) to exercise a right of audience<sup>6</sup> in any proceedings before any court<sup>7</sup>, in the exercise of his functions<sup>8</sup>.

An officer of the Service and a Welsh family proceedings officer may, subject to rules of court, be cross-examined in any proceedings to the same extent as any witness<sup>9</sup>, but he may not be cross-examined merely because he is exercising a right to conduct litigation or a right of audience granted in accordance with heads (1) and (2) above<sup>10</sup>.

1 As to CAFCASS see para 230 et seq ante. In the case of children ordinarily resident in Wales the functions of CAFCASS are carried out by CAFCASS CYMRU, a division of the National Assembly for Wales: see para 230 ante. As to the National Assembly for Wales and the Welsh Ministers see para 155 ante.

2 See note 1 supra.

3 For the meaning of 'officer of the Service' see para 230 ante. For the meaning of 'Welsh family proceedings officer' see para 230 note 9 ante.

4 'Prescribed' means prescribed by regulations: Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 25; Children Act 2004 s 37(1). The prescribed description of an officer of the Service is one who is: (1) a barrister or solicitor of the Supreme Court; or (2) employed (whether wholly or in part), or is otherwise engaged to conduct litigation and is doing so in conjunction with an officer of the Service described in head (1) supra: see the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service (Conduct of Litigation and Exercise of Rights of Audience) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/698, regs 1, 2; National Assembly for Wales (Conduct of Litigation and Exercise of Rights of Audience) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/607, regs 1, 2.

5 Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 15(1)(a); Children Act 2004 s 37(1)(a). An officer of the Service or Welsh family proceedings officer exercising a right to conduct litigation by virtue of the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 15(1)(a) or the Children Act 2004 s 37(1)(a) who would otherwise have such a right by virtue of the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 28(2)(a) (see LEGAL PROFESSIONS vol 65 (2008) PARA 498) is to be treated as having acquired that right solely by virtue of the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 15 (in the case of an officer of the service) or the Children Act 2004 s 37(1)(a) (in the case of a Welsh family proceedings officer): Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 15(2); Children Act 2004 s 37(2). In the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 ss 15, 16 and the Children Act 2004 s 37(2), (5), 'right to conduct litigation' has the same meaning as in the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 119 (see LEGAL PROFESSIONS vol 65 (2008) PARA 495): Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 15(4); Children Act 2004 s 37(6).

6 For the purposes of the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 ss 15, 16 and the Children Act 2004 s 37(3), (5), 'right of audience' has the same meaning as in the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 119 (see LEGAL PROFESSIONS vol 65 (2008) PARA 495): Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 15(4); Children Act 2004 s 37(6).

7 Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 15(1)(b); Children Act 2004 s 37(1)(b). An officer of the Service or Welsh family proceedings officer exercising a right of audience by virtue of the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 15(1)(b) or the Children Act 2004 s 37(1)(b) who would otherwise have such a right by virtue of the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 27(2)(a) (see LEGAL PROFESSIONS vol 65 (2008) PARA 495) is to be treated as having acquired that right solely by virtue of the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 15 (in the case of an officer of the service) or the Children Act 2004 s 37(1)(b) (in the case of a Welsh family proceedings officer): Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 15(3); Children Act 2004 s 37(3).

Inspection by Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Education, Children's Services and Skills.

244. Inspection by Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Education, Children's Services and Skills.

Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Education, Children's Services and Skills ('the Chief Inspector')<sup>1</sup> must inspect the performance of CAFCASS functions (meaning functions of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service and its officers)<sup>2</sup>. On completing an inspection, the Chief Inspector must make a written report on it<sup>3</sup> and send copies of the report to the Secretary of State and CAFCASS<sup>4</sup>.

Where such an inspection is conducted by the Chief Inspector, he may, at any reasonable time, enter for the purposes of the inspection: (1) any premises occupied by CAFCASS<sup>5</sup>; (2) any premises occupied by any organisation with whom arrangements have been made<sup>6</sup> in respect of the performance of any CAFCASS functions, and so occupied in connection with the performance of any such functions<sup>7</sup>; or (3) any premises occupied by any individual in connection with the performance of functions of an officer of the Service in accordance with such arrangements<sup>8</sup>. However, this does not confer a power of entry to any part of any domestic premises<sup>9</sup>.

If the Chief Inspector considers it necessary or expedient for the purposes of the inspection<sup>10</sup>, he may inspect, take copies of, or take away any documents kept by CAFCASS, or otherwise relating to the performance of CAFCASS functions, which are on any premises in relation to which he exercises his power of entry, or which are kept by an officer of the Service on domestic premises<sup>11</sup>. In connection with inspecting any such documents the Chief Inspector may obtain access to, and inspect and check the operation of, any computer<sup>12</sup> which he considers is or has been in use in connection with the documents<sup>13</sup>. He may require the person by whom (or on whose behalf) the computer is or has been used, or the person having charge of, or otherwise concerned with the operation of, the computer<sup>14</sup> to afford him such reasonable assistance as he may require for the purpose of inspection<sup>15</sup>. Where any such computer<sup>16</sup> is kept on domestic premises the Chief Inspector does not have power to obtain access to, and inspect and check the operation of, a computer, but he may require the person mentioned above to give him possession of it for the purpose of inspecting it and checking its operation<sup>17</sup>. The power to inspect documents and computers<sup>18</sup> may be exercised by the Chief Inspector at reasonable times only, and a person may not be required to do anything otherwise than at a reasonable time<sup>19</sup>.

FAMILY PROCEEDINGS/(2) THE CHILDREN AND FAMILY COURT ADVISORY AND SUPPORT SERVICE/(iii) Property and Staff Transfer Schemes/245. Power to make property transfer schemes.

(iii) Property and Staff Transfer Schemes

245. Power to make property transfer schemes.

- 338 (1) for the transfer to the Secretary of State or the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS')<sup>3</sup> of any property<sup>4</sup> belonging to the old employer<sup>5</sup>;
- 339 (2) for the transfer to the Secretary of State or CAFCASS of any liabilities to which the old employer is subject<sup>6</sup>;
- 340 (3) for the transfer of property or liabilities to a new employer<sup>7</sup> after an initial transfer to the Secretary of State under head (1) or head (2) above<sup>8</sup>;
- 341 (4) for CAFCASS to have any rights or interests which the Secretary of State considers appropriate in relation to any property transferred to the Secretary of State under the scheme<sup>9</sup>.

Stamp duty is not chargeable in respect of any transfer or grant to CAFCASS effected by virtue of heads (1) to (4) above<sup>10</sup>.

A scheme may, in particular: (a) provide for the creation of rights or interests, or the imposition of liabilities or conditions, in relation to property transferred, or rights or interests acquired, by virtue of<sup>11</sup> the scheme<sup>12</sup>; (b) provide for any property, liabilities or conditions to be determined under the scheme<sup>13</sup>. A scheme is to have effect in relation to any property or liabilities to which it applies despite any provision (of whatever nature) which would otherwise prevent, penalise or restrict the transfer of the property or liabilities<sup>14</sup>. A right of pre-emption, right of reverter or other similar right is not to operate or become exercisable as a result of any transfer of property by virtue of the scheme<sup>15</sup>. In the case of such a transfer, any such right is to have effect as if the transferee were the same person in law as the transferor and as if no transfer of the property had taken place<sup>16</sup>.

A certificate issued by the Secretary of State that any property or liability has, or has not, been transferred by virtue of a scheme is conclusive evidence of the transfer or (as the case may be) the fact that there has not been a transfer<sup>17</sup>.

Arrangements for similar schemes for the transfer of property, rights and liabilities from CAFCASS to CAFCASS CYMRU may be made by order jointly by the Secretary of State and the Welsh Ministers<sup>18</sup>. Such a scheme may specify the property, rights and liabilities to be transferred by the scheme, or provide for the determination of them<sup>19</sup>. It may include provision for the creation of rights, or the imposition of liabilities, in relation to property transferred by the scheme<sup>20</sup> and it has effect in relation to any property, rights and liabilities to which it applies despite any provision (of whatever nature) which would otherwise prevent, penalise or restrict their transfer<sup>21</sup>. A right of pre-emption or reverter or other similar right does not operate or become exercisable as a result of any transfer under a scheme<sup>22</sup>. Compensation is payable in certain circumstances<sup>23</sup> and a scheme may provide for the determination of any disputes relating to such compensation<sup>24</sup>. A certificate issued by the Secretary of State and the Welsh Ministers jointly that any property, rights or liabilities have or have not been transferred by such a scheme is conclusive evidence as to whether they have or have not been so transferred<sup>25</sup>.

10 Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 19(2). No instrument made or executed under or in pursuance of the scheme for the purposes of such a transfer or grant is to be treated as duly stamped unless it is stamped with the duty to which it would, but for s 19 (as amended), be liable, or it has, in accordance with the provisions of the Stamp Act 1891 s 12 (as substituted) (see STAMP DUTIES AND STAMP DUTY RESERVE TAX vol 44(1) (Reissue) para 1111), been stamped with a particular stamp denoting that it is not chargeable with any duty or that it has been duly stamped: s 19(3). The provisions of the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 19, Sch 3 (contents of schemes) (see the text and notes 12-17 infra) apply in relation to a scheme under s 19: s 19(4). For the purposes of stamp duty land tax, a land transaction effected by virtue of s 19, under which the purchaser is CAFCASS, is exempt from charge and relief must be claimed in a land transaction return or an amendment of such a return: see s 19(5)-(7) (added by the Stamp Duty Land Tax (Consequential Amendment of Enactments) Regulations 2003, SI 2003/2867, reg 2, Schedule para 30).

Any compensation payable by virtue of Sch 3 para 3(1) is to be paid by the transferor or by the transferee or by both: Sch 3 para 3(2). A scheme may provide for the determination of any disputes as to whether and, if so, how much, compensation is payable by virtue of Sch 3(1) and as to the person to whom or by whom it is to be paid: Sch 3 para 3(3). The provisions of Sch 3 paras 2, 3 apply in relation to the creation of rights or interests, or the doing of anything else, in relation to property as they apply in relation to a transfer of property; and references to the transferor and transferee are to be read accordingly: Sch 3 para 4.

22 Ibid s 42(6), (9). In the case of such a transfer, any such right has effect as if CAFCASS CYMRU were the same person in law as CAFCASS and as if the transfer had not taken place: s 42(6).

23 The Welsh Ministers must pay such compensation as is just to any person in respect of any right which would, apart from ibid s 42(5), (6), have operated in favour of, or become exercisable by, that person but which, in consequence of the operation of those subsections, cannot subsequently operate in his favour or become exercisable by him: s 42(7), (9).

246. Transfer of staff.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> may by order make a scheme for the transfer to a new employer<sup>2</sup> of any eligible employee<sup>3</sup>. A scheme may apply to all, or any description of, eligible employees or persons so employed, or to any individual eligible employee or person so employed<sup>4</sup>. A scheme may be made only if any directions about consultation given by the Secretary of State have been complied with in relation to each of the eligible employees to be transferred or appointed in pursuance of the scheme<sup>5</sup>.

The contract of employment of an employee transferred under a scheme<sup>6</sup> is not terminated by the transfer, and has effect from the date of transfer<sup>7</sup> as if originally made between the employee and the transferee<sup>8</sup>. Where an employee is transferred under a scheme all the rights, powers, duties and liabilities of the old employer<sup>9</sup> under or in connection with the contract of employment are transferred<sup>10</sup> to the transferee on the date of transfer, and anything done before that date by or in relation to the old employer in respect of that contract or the employee is to be treated from that date as having been done by or in relation to the transferee<sup>11</sup>.

Where, by reason of the implementation or termination of any arrangements<sup>12</sup>, any functions exercisable by any person (the 'old employer') become exercisable by another person (whether on behalf, or instead, of the old employer), the Secretary of State may by order make a scheme for the transfer to the other person (the 'transferee') of any person (an 'eligible employee') employed under a contract of employment with the transferor on work which would have continued but for the implementation or termination of the arrangements<sup>13</sup>. A scheme may apply to all, or any description of, eligible employees, or to any individual eligible employee<sup>14</sup>. A scheme may be made only if any directions about consultation given by the Secretary of State have been complied with in relation to each of the eligible employees to be transferred in pursuance of the scheme<sup>15</sup>.

Arrangements for similar schemes for the transfer of employees from CAFCASS to CAFCASS CYMRU may be made by order jointly by the Secretary of State and the Welsh Ministers<sup>16</sup>. Such a scheme may apply to any description of employees of CAFCASS or to any individual employee of CAFCASS<sup>17</sup>. A contract of employment of an employee transferred under a scheme is not terminated by the transfer, and has effect from the date of the transfer as if originally made between the employee and CAFCASS CYMRU<sup>18</sup>. Where an employee is so transferred, all the rights, powers, duties and liabilities of CAFCASS under or in connection with the contract of employment are thereby transferred to CAFCASS CYMRU on the transfer date, and anything done before that date by or in relation to CAFCASS in respect of that contract or the employee is to be treated from that date as having been done by or in relation to CAFCASS CYMRU<sup>19</sup>. These provisions do not prejudice any right of an employee to terminate his contract of employment if (apart from the change of employer) a substantial change is made to his detriment in his working conditions<sup>20</sup>. A scheme may be made only if any requirements about consultation prescribed in regulations made by the Secretary of State and the Welsh Ministers jointly have been complied with in relation to each of the employees of CAFCASS to be transferred under the scheme<sup>21</sup>.

'Eligible employee' means, in relation to a local authority or the Official Solicitor or the Receiver for the Metropolitan Police District, a person who is employed under a contract of employment with the authority, the solicitor or the receiver on work which would have continued but for the operation of the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 Pt I (ss 1-25): see s 18(2).

5 Ibid s 20(4) (amended by the Transfer of Functions (Children, Young People and Families) Order 2003, SI 2003/3191, Schedule para 4).

6 'Scheme' means a scheme made by virtue of the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 20 (as amended) (see the text and notes 1-5 supra): s 21(7).

7 'Date of transfer' means the date of transfer determined under the scheme in relation to the employee: ibid s 21(7).

8 Ibid s 21(1). 'Transferee' means the new employer to whom the employee is or would be transferred under the scheme: s 21(7).

9 For the meaning of 'old employer' see para 245 note 6 ante.

10 Ie by virtue of the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 21(2): see the text and note 11 infra.

11 Ibid s 21(2). But if the employee informs the old employer or the transferee that he objects to the transfer, s 21(1), (2) does not transfer his contract of employment, or the rights, powers, duties and liabilities under or in connection with it, and the contract of employment is terminated immediately before the date of transfer: s 21(3). An employee is not to be treated, for the purposes of the Employment Rights Act 1996 (see EMPLOYMENT), as having been dismissed by the old employer by reason of the transfer of his contract of employment under a scheme, or the termination of his contract of employment by virtue of the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 21(3): s 21(4).

Section 21 does not prejudice any right of an employee to terminate his contract of employment if a substantial change is made to his detriment in his working conditions: s 21(6). But no such right arises by reason only that, by virtue of s 21, the identity of his employer changes unless the employee shows that, in all the circumstances, the change is a significant change and is to his detriment: s 21(6).

12 Ie under ibid s 5, s 8 or s 13 (see para 241 ante).

(1) ORDERS UNDER

(i) Introduction to Section 8 Orders

247. Power of the court to make section 8 orders.

In any family proceedings<sup>1</sup> in which a question arises with respect to the welfare of any child<sup>2</sup>, the court<sup>3</sup> may make orders<sup>4</sup> with respect to the child if: (1) an application for the order has been made by a person who is entitled to apply for such an order, or who has obtained the leave of the court<sup>5</sup> to make the application<sup>6</sup>; or (2) the court considers that the order should be made even though no such application has been made<sup>7</sup>. In any other circumstance, the court may also make such an order with respect to any child on the application of a person who is entitled to apply for an order with respect to the child or who has obtained the leave of the court<sup>8</sup> to make the application<sup>9</sup>.

Child cases should generally be held in private<sup>10</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'family proceedings' see para 199 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'the court' see para 145 note 2 ante.

4 The orders under the Children Act 1989 s 8 (as amended) with respect to the child. These are often called 'section 8 orders' and are defined as any of the orders mentioned in s 8(1), namely, contact orders, prohibited steps orders, residence orders or specific issue orders (see para 251 et seq post), or any order varying or discharging such an order: see s 8(2). The general power of a magistrates' court under the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 63(2) to suspend or rescind orders does not apply in relation to orders under the Children Act 1989: s 92(5). For the circumstances in which the court may make care orders or supervision orders under the Children Act 1989 see para 274 post.

5 As to the matters to be considered by the court before granting leave see para 249 post.

9 Children Act 1989 s 10(2). It is thus not necessary for the application to be made in the course of other family proceedings: Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 2.37. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante. An application for leave to apply for a residence order does not raise a question as to the child's upbringing, so the child's welfare is not the paramount consideration: Re A (minors) (residence orders: leave to apply) [1992] Fam 182, [1992] 3 All ER 872, CA. PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(1) ORDERS UNDER PART II OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PRIVATE LAW PROCEEDINGS/(i) Introduction to Section 8 Orders/248. Persons entitled to apply for section 8 orders.

248. Persons entitled to apply for section 8 orders.

Any parent<sup>1</sup> or guardian, or special guardian of a child<sup>2</sup>, or any person who has parental responsibility by virtue of the provision of the Children Act 1989 bestowing such responsibility upon step-parents<sup>3</sup>, or any person in whose favour there is a residence order<sup>4</sup> in force with respect to a child, may apply to the court for a contact order<sup>5</sup>, a prohibited steps order<sup>6</sup>, a residence order or a specific issue order<sup>7</sup>, or an order varying or discharging any of those orders, in respect of that child<sup>8</sup>.

The following persons are entitled to apply for a residence or contact order with respect to a child (but not for a prohibited steps or specific issue order)<sup>9</sup>:

- 342 (1) any party to a marriage (whether or not subsisting) in relation to whom the child is a child of the family<sup>10</sup>;
- 343 (2) any civil partner in a civil partnership (whether or not subsisting) in relation to whom the child is a child of the family<sup>11</sup>;
- 344 (3) any person with whom the child has lived for a period of at least three years<sup>12</sup>;
- 345 (4) any person who has the consent: (a) in any case where a residence order is in force with respect to the child, of each of the persons in whose favour the order was made, (b) in any case where the child is in the care of a local authority, of that authority, or (c) in any other case, of each of those (if any) who have parental responsibility for the child<sup>13</sup>.
- 346 A local authority foster parent is entitled to apply for a residence order with respect to a child if the child has lived with him for a period of at least one year immediately preceding the application<sup>14</sup>.

Any person who falls within a category of person prescribed by rules of court is entitled to apply for such of the above orders as may be prescribed in relation to that category of person<sup>15</sup>.

A person who would not otherwise be entitled under the foregoing provisions to apply for the variation or discharge of an order is entitled to do so if the order was made on his application, or in the case of a contact order, he is named in the order<sup>16</sup>.

An application for a contact order or a residence order must be referred for conciliation, but an application for a prohibited steps order or a specific issue order may be so referred at the request of the applicant<sup>17</sup>.

1 The word 'parent' must be interpreted in accordance with the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 1 (see para 125 ante): see the Children Act 1989 ss 2(2), 105(2). Accordingly an unmarried father is within the definition of 'parent' whether or not he has parental responsibility for the child: see Re C (minors) (adoption: residence order) [1994] Fam 1, sub nom M v C and Calderdale Metropolitan Borough Council [1993] 1 FLR 505, CA; cf J v J (property transfer application) [1993] 1 FCR 471, [1993] 2 FLR 56. The term also generally includes the adoptive father and mother, and excludes the natural parents, of an adopted child: see para 376 post. As to illegitimacy see para 125 ante. For the meaning of 'parental responsibility' see para 134 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'guardian of a child' see para 144 note 5 ante. For the meaning of 'special guardian' see para 151 ante. For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

3 le by virtue of the Children Act 1989 s 4A (as added): see para 140 ante.

4 As to residence orders see para 262 post.

5 As to contact orders see para 251 et seq post.

6 As to prohibited steps orders see para 261 post.

7 As to specific issue orders see para 263 post.

8 Children Act 1989 s 10(4) (amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 139(1), Sch 3 paras 54, 56). This applies in respect both of applications made in the course of family proceedings and of free-standing applications: see para 247 ante. The provisions of the Children Act 1989 Pt II (ss 8-16A) (as amended), by defining the persons entitled to apply for orders thereunder, seek to define the category of persons who are thought to have an interest in the child's upbringing sufficient to justify their bringing the matter before the court. The right of any person to apply for a section 8 order with the leave of the court is known as the 'open door' policy: see the Department of Health publication An Introduction to The Children Act 1989 (HMSO, 1989) para 3.41.

9 Children Act 1989 s 10(5).

10 Ibid s 10(5)(a). 'Child of the family', in relation to the parties to a marriage, or to two people who are civil partners of each other, means a child of both of them or any other child (not being a child placed with those parties as foster parents by a local authority or voluntary organisation) who has been treated by both of them as a child of their family: s 105(1) (definition substituted by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 75(1), (3)). Step-parents would be able to apply for contact or residence orders under the Children Act 1989 s 10(5)(a) (see head (1) in the text). 'Local authority' means in relation to England the council of a county, a metropolitan district, a London Borough or the Common Council of the City of London, and in relation to Wales means the council of a county or county borough: s 105(1) (definition amended by the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 ss 22(4), 66(8), Sch 10 para 13, Sch 18). 'Voluntary organisation' means a body (other than a public or local authority) whose activities are not carried on for profit: Children Act 1989 s 105(1).

11 Ibid s 10(5)(aa) (added by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 77). The fact that one parent is both biological and psychological parent to a child has significance which must be assessed and considered in the circumstances of the case: Re G (children) (residence: same-sex parent) [2006] UKHL 43, [2006] 4 All ER 241, [2006] 3 FCR 1.

12 Children Act 1989 s 10(5)(b). The period of three years need not be continuous but must not have begun more than five years before, or ended more than three months before, the making of the application: s 10(10).

14 Ibid s 10(5A) (added by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 Sch 3 paras 54, 56).

15 Children Act 1989 s 10(7). It appears that this provision was included to facilitate the making of applications by such persons as grandparents if it were found that the need to apply for leave served no useful purpose: see the Department of Health Publication An Introduction to The Children Act 1989 (HMSO, 1989) para 3.40. At the date at which this volume states the law no such categories of person had been prescribed by order.

248 Persons entitled to apply for section 8 orders

TEXT AND NOTE 14--A relative of a child is entitled to apply for a residence order with respect to the child if the child has lived with the relative for a period of at least one year immediately preceding the application: Children Act 1989 s 10(5B) (added by Children and Young Persons Act 2008 s 36).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/4. PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(1) ORDERS UNDER PART II OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PRIVATE LAW PROCEEDINGS/(i) Introduction to Section 8 Orders/249. Applications for leave to apply for section 8 orders.

249. Applications for leave to apply for section 8 orders.

Where the person applying for leave to make an application for a contact order<sup>1</sup>, a prohibited steps order<sup>2</sup>, a residence order<sup>3</sup> or a specific issue order<sup>4</sup>, or an order varying or discharging any of those orders, is the child concerned<sup>5</sup>, the court<sup>6</sup> may only grant leave if it is satisfied that he has sufficient understanding to make the proposed application for the order<sup>7</sup>. Where the person applying for leave is not the child concerned, the court in deciding whether or not to grant such leave must have particular regard to:

- 347 (1) the nature of the proposed application<sup>8</sup>;
- 348 (2) the applicant's connection with the child<sup>9</sup>;
- 349 (3) any risk there might be of the proposed application disrupting the child's life to such an extent that he would be harmed by it<sup>10</sup>; and
- 350 (4) where the child is being looked after by a local authority<sup>11</sup>, the authority's plans for the child's future and the wishes and feelings of the child's parents<sup>12</sup>.

A person who is, or was, at any time within the last six months, a local authority foster-parent<sup>13</sup> of a child may not apply for leave to apply for such an order<sup>14</sup> with respect to the child unless he has the consent of the local authority, or he is a relative<sup>15</sup> of the child, or the child has lived with him for at least one year preceding the application<sup>16</sup>. If a special guardianship order is in force with respect to a child, leave will be required before an application can be made for a residence order<sup>17</sup>.

A person seeking leave must file a written request for leave<sup>18</sup> setting out the reasons for the application, and a draft of the application<sup>19</sup> for the making of which leave is sought together with sufficient copies for one to be served on each respondent<sup>20</sup>. On considering a request for leave, the court may either grant the request (whereupon the proper officer must inform the person making the request and any local authority that is preparing a report, of this decision) or direct that a date be fixed for the hearing of the request (whereupon the proper officer must fix such a date and give such notice as the court directs to the person making the request, any local authority preparing a report and to such other persons as the court requires to be notified, of the date so fixed)<sup>21</sup>.

A person who is not a party to proceedings for a residence or contact order, against whom allegations of abuse have been made may, in certain circumstances and to a limited extent, intervene in the proceedings<sup>22</sup>.

1 As to contact orders see para 251 et seq post.

2 As to prohibited steps orders see para 261 post.

3 As to residence orders see para 262 post.

4 As to specific issue orders see para 263 post.

5 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante. On an application by one adopted sibling for contact with another sibling, who has been adopted by a different family, the 'child concerned' is the child who would be the subject of any order granted: Re S (a minor) (adopted child: contact) [1999] Fam 283, [1999] 1 All ER 648. As to the application by a child for a residence order see Re H (residence order: child's application for leave) [2000] 1 FLR 780.

6 For the meaning of 'the court' see para 145 note 2 ante. Applications for leave by a child should be made in the High Court: Practice Direction (family proceedings orders: applications by children) [1993] 1 All ER 820, [1993] 1 WLR 313.

7 Children Act 1989 s 10(8). The court will have discretion as to whether to grant leave and the best interests of the child will be considered: Re C (residence: child's application for leave) [1996] 1 FCR 461, [1995] 1 FLR 927, [1996] 1 FCR 461. The court will also consider the likelihood of success of the proposed application: Re S C (a minor) (leave to seek residence order) [1994] 1 FLR 96, [1994] 1 FCR 837. For guidance on test for prospects of success see Re M (care: contact: grandmother's application for leave) [1995] 2 FLR 86, sub nom Re M (a minor) (contact: leave to apply) [1995] 3 FCR 550. As to the child as party to family proceedings see para 225 ante. See also Re H (a minor) (guardian ad litem: requirement) [1994] Fam 11, [1994] 4 All ER 762, sub nom Re H (a minor) (independent representation) [1993] 2 FCR 437 (removal of Official Solicitor as guardian ad litem and appointment as amicus curiae). As to principles on an application by a child for leave to apply for a residence order to live away from parents, and a specific issue order to go abroad with a friend and family see Re C (minor: leave to apply for order) [1994] 1 FCR 837, sub nom Re C (a minor) (leave to seek section 8 orders) [1994] 1 FLR 26.

11 For the meaning of 'local authority' see para 248 note 10 ante.

12 Children Act 1989 s 10(9)(d). As to the meaning of 'parent' see para 248 note 1 ante. On such an application the court is not determining a question with regard to the upbringing of the child concerned, and the child's welfare is not the court's paramount consideration: Re A (minors) (residence orders: leave to apply) [1992] Fam 182, [1992] 3 All ER 872, CA; Re A (a minor) (residence order: leave to apply) [1993] Fam Law 193; Re S (a minor) (adopted child: contact) [1999] Fam 283, sub nom Re S (contact: application by a sibling) [1998] 2 FLR 897. As to the application of the criteria in the Children Act 1989 s 10(9) (see heads (1)-(4) in the text) see Re P (a minor) (leave to apply: foster-parents) [1994] 2 FCR 1093, sub nom C v Salford City Council [1994] 2 FLR 926, CA; G v F (shared residence: parental responsibility) [1998] 3 FCR 1, [1998] 2 FLR 799 (application for leave to apply for shared residence order after breakdown of lesbian relationship). See also Re A (section 8 order: grandparent application) [1996] 1 FCR 467, [1995] 2 FLR 153, CA (after leave to apply granted, no presumption that substantive order would be granted); Re W (contact: application by grandparent) [1997] 2 FCR 643, [1997] 1 FLR 793 (once leave granted and a case for contact has been established, the respondent to an application must show why a contact order should not be made). In considering risk of disruption under the Children Act 1989 s 10(9)(c), the court will also consider risk of disruption if application succeeds: Re M (care: contact: grandmother's application for leave) [1995] 2 FLR 86, sub nom Re M (minors) (contact: leave to apply) [1995] 3 FCR 550. See Re R (adoption: contact) [2005] EWCA Civ 1128, [2007] 1 FCR 149, [2006] 1 FLR 373 (half-sister's application for contact).

As to the importance of applying the statutory test under the Children Act 1989 s 10(9) as opposed to considering the prospects of success see Re J (leave to issue application for residence order) [2002] EWCA Civ 1346, [2003] 1 FLR 114.

An application under the Children Act 1989 s 91(14) (see para 223 ante) is not subject to the criteria set out in s 10(9): Re A (a minor) (contact: parent's application for leave) [1999] 1 FCR 127, [1998] 1 FLR 1, CA.

As to the refusal of leave see C v W (a minor) (contact: leave to apply) [1998] 1 FCR 618 (father repeatedly failed to attend hearings; not in child's best interests to allow him to continue litigating).

13 A 'local authority foster parent' is a person with whom a child has been placed under the Children Act 1989 s 23(2)(a) (as amended) (see para 877 post), unless he is a parent of the child, a person who is not a parent of the child but who has parental responsibility for him or where the child is in care and there was a residence order in force with respect to him immediately before the care order was made, a person in whose favour the residence order was made: see s 23(3), (4); and para 900 post. See further the Department of Health Publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 2.45. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante. For the meaning of 'parental responsibility' see para 134 ante.

14 Ie a section 8 order: see paras 251-263 post.

15 'Relative' in relation to a child, means grandparent, brother, sister, uncle or aunt (whether of the full-blood or half-blood or by marriage or civil partnership), or step-parent: Children Act 1989 s 105(1) (definition amended by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 75(4)). These terms must be interpreted in accordance with the provisions of the Family Law Reform Act 1987 s 1: see para 125 ante.

16 Children Act 1989 s 9(3) (amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 113(a)). Where a local authority acts as both a social services authority and an adoption agency, it is the consent of the social services authority accommodating a child which is required, as the local authority's role as an adoption agency is not part of that consent for the purposes of the Children Act 1989 s 9(3) (as amended): Re P (a minor) (leave to apply: foster-parents) [1994] 2 FCR 1093, sub nom C v Salford County Council [1994] 2 FLR 926, CA.

Where leave is granted to bring any relevant proceedings, the application must proceed in accordance with the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.4 or, as the case may be, the Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 4, but the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.4(1)(a) or, as the case may be, the Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 4(1)(a) (filing of documents) does not apply: Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.3(3); Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 3(3). 'Proper officer' means in relation to the principal registry, the family proceedings department manager, and in relation to any other court or registry, the court manager, or other officer of the court or registry acting on his behalf in accordance with directions given by the Lord Chancellor: Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 1.2 (definition amended by SI 1997/1056). As to the Lord Chancellor see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) paras 477-497. Where proceedings are taken under the Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, the proper officer is the 'designated officer for the court' see the Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 3(2) (amended by SI 2005/617). It will rarely be appropriate for such an application to be dealt with ex parte: Re A (minors) (residence orders: leave to apply) [1992] Fam 182, [1992] 3 All ER 872, CA. It is not generally appropriate for a court to despatch applications for leave to apply for contact orders summarily, so that neither party attends court, no order is drawn up and no reasons for the decision are given: Re W (contact application: procedure) [2000] 1 FLR 263, sub nom Re W (a child) (contact: leave to apply) [2000] 1 FCR 185. The applicant's prospects of success in the substantive application were leave to be granted is a highly material factor: G v Kirklees Metropolitan Borough Council [1993] 1 FCR 357, [1993] 1 FLR 805. See also Re S C (a minor) (leave to seek residence order) [1994] 1 FLR 96, but note this does not outweigh consideration of the statutory test see Re J (leave to issue application for residence order) [2002] EWCA Civ 1346, [2003] 1 FLR 114.

Where at any time after an application under the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.4 (as amended) is made, it appears to the court that, under arts 16-19 of the EC Council Regulation 2201/2003 (OJ L338, 23.12.2003, p 1) concerning jurisdiction and the recognition and enforcement of judgments in matrimonial matters and the matters of parental responsibility repealing Regulation (EC) No 1347/2000, the court does not have jurisdiction to hear the application and is required or may be required to stay the proceedings, the court must stay the proceedings and fix a date for a hearing to determine the questions of jurisdiction and whether there should be a stay or other order and must serve notice of the hearing on the parties to the proceedings: Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.27A(2) (r 4.27A added by SI 2005/264). The court must give reasons for its decision under EC Council Regulation 2201/2003 (OJ L338, 23.12.2003, p 1) arts 16-19 and, where it makes a finding of fact, state such finding of fact: Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.27A(3) (as so added). An application for an order under EC Council Regulation 2201/2003 (OJ L338, 23.12.2003, p 1) art 19 must be made to the district judge, who may determine the application or refer the application, or any question arising on it, to a judge for his decision; and a declaration under art 17 that the court has no jurisdiction over the proceedings must be recorded by the court or proper officer in writing: Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.27A(1), (4) (as so added). The court may, if all parties agree, deal with any question about the jurisdiction of the court without a hearing: r 4.27A(5) (as so added).

PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(1) ORDERS UNDER PART II OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PRIVATE LAW PROCEEDINGS/(i) Introduction to Section 8 Orders/250. Directions and conditions.

250. Directions and conditions.

A contact order<sup>1</sup>, a prohibited steps order<sup>2</sup>, a residence order<sup>3</sup> or a specific issue order<sup>4</sup>, or an order varying or discharging any of those orders<sup>5</sup>, may contain directions<sup>6</sup> about how it is to be carried into effect<sup>7</sup>, and may impose conditions to be complied with by any person:

- 351 (1) in whose favour the order is made; or
- 352 (2) who is a parent of the child<sup>8</sup> concerned; or
- 353 (3) who is not a parent of his but who has parental responsibility<sup>9</sup> for him; or
- 354 (4) with whom the child is living, and to whom the conditions are expressed to apply<sup>10</sup>.

An order may also be made to have effect for a specified period, or contain provisions which are to have effect for a specified period<sup>11</sup>, and may make such incidental, supplemental or consequential provision as the court thinks fit<sup>12</sup>.

1 As to contact orders see para 251 et seq post.

2 As to prohibited steps orders see para 261 post.

3 As to residence orders see para 262 post.

4 As to specific issue orders see para 263 post.

5 All the orders mentioned in the text are known as 'section 8 orders': see the Children Act 1989 s 8(2); and para 247 note 4 ante.

6 Eg an interim residence order may direct that, pending a full hearing, the child be returned to a parent from whom that child has been abducted: Re B (minors) (residence order) [1992] Fam 162, [1992] 3 All ER 867, CA.

7 Children Act 1989 s 11(7)(a). The provisions of s 11(7) are intended to enable the orders to be as flexible as possible and so to reduce or remove the need to resort to wardship: see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 2.22. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante.

The court cannot use a prohibited steps order as a means to oust a spouse from the matrimonial home, as an ouster order (see MATRIMONIAL AND CIVIL PARTNERSHIP LAW vol 72 (2009) PARA 290) may be made only if the criteria in the Family Law Act 1996 are satisfied: D v D (ouster order) [1996] 2 FCR 496, sub nom Re D (prohibited steps order) [1996] 2 FLR 237, CA (at which time the Matrimonial Homes Act 1983 was in force). Where a previous contact order by consent was based on compliance with an ante-nuptial agreement, the court may, under the Children Act 1989 s 11(7), refuse to hear an application for contact until the agreement has been honoured: N v N (divorce: ante-nuptial agreement) [1999] 2 FCR 583, sub nom N v N (jurisdiction: pre-nuptial agreement) [1999] 2 FLR 745.

Where a residence order is granted to a person having the care of the child, it is an unwarranted imposition on the rights of that person for the court to impose conditions of residence under the Children Act 1989 s 11(7): Re E (minors) (residence: conditions) [1997] 3 FCR 245, [1997] 2 FLR 638, CA. See also Re S (a child) (residence order: condition) [2001] EWCA Civ 847, [2001] 3 FCR 154, [2001] All ER (D) 159 (May); and B v B (a child) (residence order: condition) [2004] 2 FLR 979, [2004] All ER (D) 387 (May).

In order to make indirect contact more meaningful the court can impose conditions on the residential parent to provide detailed information to the absent parent: Re O (a minor) (contact: indirect contact) [1995] 2 FLR 124, CA.

(ii) Contact Orders

251. Contact orders.

A contact order is an order requiring the person with whom a child<sup>1</sup> lives, or is to live, to allow the child to visit or stay with the person named in the order, or for that person and the child otherwise to have contact with each other<sup>2</sup>.

The usual order will no doubt often be phrased in terms that one parent allow the other reasonable contact with the child, but it may be desirable to be more specific directing that the child should be made available for contact at certain times with the person named in the order, and the court may make directions as to the carrying into effect of the order or attach conditions to it<sup>3</sup>. Contact may range from long or short visits to contact by letter or by telephone<sup>4</sup>. Contact may be ordered with any person<sup>5</sup> named in the order<sup>6</sup>, not merely with a parent. A contact order may not be made in respect of a child who is in the care of a local authority<sup>7</sup>, and a local authority may not apply for, nor be granted, a contact order<sup>8</sup>.

A contact order which requires the parent with whom a child lives to allow the child to visit, or otherwise have contact with, his other parent, ceases to have effect if the parents live together for a continuous period of more than six months<sup>9</sup>.

Contact orders of this kind should be distinguished from orders for contact with a child in care<sup>10</sup>. The making of a care order with respect to a child who is the subject of a contact order automatically discharges that order<sup>11</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

2 Children Act 1989 ss 8(1), 105(1). A contact order is one of the 'section 8 orders' referred to in the Children Act 1989, as is an order varying or discharging a contact order: see s 8(2); and para 247 ante. Such an order enables the court to give effect to the general principle that it is in the child's best interests for him to preserve links with both parents: see para 869 post.

Contact orders replaced access orders which in the past were commonly made on divorce and provided for a parent to have access to the child. The fact that the contact order provides for the child to visit or stay with the person named in the order shifts the emphasis from the adult to the child: see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 2.29. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante. However, contact orders cannot be made without having first determined with whom the child lives, as it is the responsibility of the person with whom the child lives to make the child available for contact to the named person in the order: Re B (a child: contact) [2001] EWCA Civ 1968, [2001] All ER (D) 349 (Nov).

Where a father makes concurrent applications for a contact order and a parental responsibility order (see para 139 ante), the court must consider each application separately: Re C and V (minors) (parental responsibility order) [1998] 1 FCR 52, [1998] 1 FLR 392, CA. See also Application 60457/00 Kosmopoulou v Greece [2004] 1 FCR 427, [2004] 1 FLR 800, ECtHR (mother had a right to be involved in decision making process on her access to child); Re S (children) (contact order) [2004] EWCA Civ 597, [2004] 2 FLR 710.

As to the reasonableness of the length of time a court takes to hear contact order proceedings and the adequacy of evidence presented in such proceedings see Marshall v Toothill (formerly Marshall) [2005] All ER (D) 49 (May), (2005) Times, 17 June, CA.

The unusual step of making an order that no order for defined contact be made may be taken if it is in the best interests of the child to do so: M v M (defined contact application) [1998] 2 FLR 244, [1998] Fam Law 456; Re M (handicapped child: parental responsibility) [2001] 3 FCR 454 (in best interest of handicapped child to be free from acrimony relating to her care: contact with father drastically reduced); Re D (contact: reasons for refusal)

[1998] 1 FCR 321, [1997] 2 FLR 48, CA (judge entitled to conclude that mother's fear of father was reasonable and justified, and to deny direct contact accordingly), applied in Re M (minors) (contact: violent parent) [1999] 2 FCR 56, [1999] 2 FLR 321 (consideration of whether violent father fit person to have contact). Domestic violence does not constitute an absolute bar to contact: Re H (contact: domestic violence) [1998] 3 FCR 385, [1998] 2 FLR 42, CA; Re L (a child) (contact: domestic violence) [2001] Fam 260, [2000] 4 All ER 609, sub nom Re L, V, M and H (contact: domestic violence) [2000] 2 FLR 334, applied in Re F (a child) (contact order) [2001] 1 FCR 422, CA; see, however, Re G (domestic violence: direct contact) [2001] 2 FCR 134, [2000] 2 FLR 865 (domestic violence does not constitute an absolute bar, but an awareness on the part of the violent parent of the effect of the violence on the child (even if the child was not directly involved in the violence) and a demonstration that he was a fit person to exercise contact were an important consideration in assessing whether contact should be granted). See also the Lord Chancellor's Department publication A Report to the Lord Chancellor on the Question of Parental Contact in Cases where there is Domestic Violence (2000); and Contact and Domestic Violence: Report by Dr Sturge and Dr Glaser [2000] Fam Law 615. Issues of domestic violence that might have an impact on the outcome of the application for contact should be dealt with as a preliminary issue and findings about bad conduct may be considered by the court when considering whether and to what extent contact is appropriate: M v A (contact: domestic violence) [2002] 2 FLR 921. The importance of this approach was stressed in Re H (contact: domestic violence) [2005] EWCA Civ 1404, [2006] 1 FLR 943. See Re C (children) (appointment of guardian) [2006] EWCA Civ 1765, [2007] 1 FLR 1642 (where the father had gender re-assignment, a moratorium on direct contact was not sanctioned).

In deciding whether to make a contact order where there were allegations of sexual abuse by the father, the judge must have the best evidence available to him including, where appropriate, video and audio recordings of the child's allegations to the police: Re S (contact: evidence) [1998] 3 FCR 70, [1998] 1 FLR 798, CA. When the court is evaluating evidence of sexual abuse it must be satisfied on a balance of probabilities that the evidence is credible: Re R (children) (sexual abuse: standard of proof) [2001] 1 FCR 86, CA; following Re H (minors) (sexual abuse: standards of proof) [1996] AC 563, sub nom Re H and R (child sexual abuse) [1996] 1 FCR 509, [1996] 1 FLR 80, HL. See also Re W (a minor) (staying contact) [1998] 2 FCR 453, [1998] 2 FLR 450, CA (an order for staying contact is not appropriate if it is claimed the child has made allegations of sexual abuse and further investigation is needed). Where a 16-year-old child in care expressed a wish to return to her home where she was at risk of sexual abuse, her conduct did not amount to 'seriously irresponsible conduct' within the definition of mental impairment in the Mental Health Act 1983 s 1(1), and the more appropriate course would be to apply for the child to be made a ward of court so that she could be separately represented: Re F (Mental Health Act guardianship) [2000] 1 FCR 11, [2000] 1 FLR 192, (1999) 51 BMLR 128 CA.

In a case where the child is alienated from the non-resident parent, early consideration should be given to the instruction of a consultant child psychiatrist to investigate the source of the child's alienation: Re T (a child: contact) [2003] EWCA Civ 1736, [2003] 1 FCR 303, [2003] 1 FLR 531. The court may also consider ordering the local authority to investigate the children's circumstances under Children Act 1989 s 37 (as amended) (see para 272 post): see Re F (family proceedings: section 37 investigation) [2005] EWHC 2935 (Fam), [2006] 1 FLR 1122. Consideration could also be given to the joinder of the child: see President's Practice Direction (representation of children in family proceedings pursuant to Family Proceedings Rules 1991 r 9.5) 5 April 2004 [2004] 1 FLR 1188; CAFCASS Practice Note (representation of children in family proceedings pursuant to the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, r 9.5) [2004] 1 FLR 1190; Re W (contact proceedings: joinder of child) [2001] EWCA Civ 1830, [2003] 2 FCR 175, [2003] 1 FLR 681.

Breach of a contact order may result in an order for committal, which must state both the nature of the contact order and the nature of the breach that has taken place: F v F (contact: committal) [1999] 2 FCR 42, [1998] 2 FLR 237, CA. For guidelines as to when a judge, by his own motion, may commit a parent who is in open defiance of a contact order for contempt of court see Re M (a minor) (contempt of court: committal of court's own motion) [1999] Fam 263, sub nom Re M (a minor) (contact order: committal) [1999] 2 All ER 56, CA. The welfare of the child is a material, but not a paramount, consideration when deciding whether to commit a mother to prison for breach of a contact order: A v N (committal: refusal of contact) [1997] 2 FCR 475, [1997] 1 FLR 533, CA. See also Re S (a child) (contact order: committal) [2004] EWCA Civ 1790, [2005] 1 FLR 812, [2005] Fam Law 206 (judge entitled to impose suspended custodial sentence in view of defiant refusal to comply with contact order). As to the welfare principle see para 300 post. See also Re F (contact: enforcement: representation of a child) [1998] 3 FCR 216, [1998] 1 FLR 691, CA (where a judge has refused to attach a penal notice to a contact order he may properly reserve the case to himself to prevent a party applying to another judge, instead of appealing against the decision); Re M (contact: long-term best interests) [2005] EWCA Civ 1090, [2006] 1 FLR 627 (order for indirect contact inappropriate where father had biased children against mother).

3 As to directions and conditions in relation to section 8 orders see the Children Act 1989 s 11(7); and para 250 ante. As to contact activity directions and contact activity conditions (giving the court the power to attach directions and conditions to contact orders requiring a party to take part in an activity that promotes contact with the child concerned) see para 252 et seq post. See eg Re R (a child) (contact) [2007] All ER (D) 46 (Aug), CA (directions given for preliminary contact sessions).

Contact with a parent is a fundamental right of a child (although see Thorpe LJ in Re L (a child) (contact: domestic violence) [2000] 4 All ER 609 at 636, sub nom Re L, V, M and H (contact: domestic violence) [2000] 2 FLR 334 at 362) save in wholly exceptional circumstances: Re W (a minor) (contact) [1994] 2 FCR 1216, [1994]

252. Contact activity directions.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. In proceedings in which the court is considering whether to make provision about contact with a child by making either a contact order<sup>2</sup> with respect to the child, or an order varying or discharging a contact order with respect to the child, the court may make a contact activity direction in connection with that provision about contact<sup>3</sup>. A contact activity direction is a direction requiring an individual who is a party to the proceedings to take part in an activity that promotes contact with the child concerned, and it must specify the activity and the person providing the activity<sup>4</sup>. The activities that may be so required include, in particular:

- 355 (1) programmes, classes and counselling or guidance sessions of a kind that may assist a person as regards establishing, maintaining or improving contact with a child or may by addressing a person's violent behaviour, enable or facilitate contact with a child<sup>5</sup>;
- 356 (2) sessions in which information or advice is given as regards making or operating arrangements for contact with a child, including making arrangements by means of mediation<sup>6</sup>.

However, no individual may be required by a contact activity direction to undergo medical or psychiatric examination, assessment or treatment or to take part in mediation<sup>7</sup>.

In considering whether to make a contact activity direction, the welfare of the child concerned is to be the court's paramount consideration<sup>8</sup>.

Contact activity directions may not be made in certain circumstances. A court may not on the same occasion both make a contact activity direction and dispose finally of the proceedings as they relate to contact with the child concerned<sup>9</sup>. Nor may a court make a contact activity direction in any proceedings unless there is a dispute as regards the provision about contact that the court is considering whether to make in the proceedings<sup>10</sup>. A court may not make a contact activity direction requiring an individual who is a child to take part in an activity unless the individual is a parent of the child in relation to whom the court is considering provision about contact<sup>11</sup>. A court may not make a contact activity direction in connection with the making, variation or discharge of a contact order, if the contact order is, or would if made be, an excepted order<sup>12</sup>. Nor may a court make a contact activity direction in relation to an individual unless the individual is habitually resident in England and Wales; and a direction ceases to have effect if the individual subject to the direction ceases to be habitually resident in England and Wales<sup>13</sup>.

253. Contact activity conditions.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. If in any family proceedings the court makes a contact order with respect to a child, or makes an order varying a contact order with respect to a child<sup>2</sup>, the contact order may impose (or the contact order may be varied so as to impose) a condition requiring an individual<sup>3</sup> to take part in an activity that promotes contact with the child concerned<sup>4</sup>. Such a condition is called a 'contact activity condition'<sup>5</sup>, and it must specify the activity and the person providing the activity<sup>6</sup>. The activities that may be so required include, in particular:

- 357 (1) programmes, classes and counselling or guidance sessions of a kind that may assist a person as regards establishing, maintaining or improving contact with a child or may, by addressing a person's violent behaviour, enable or facilitate contact with a child<sup>7</sup>;
- 358 (2) sessions in which information or advice is given as regards making or operating arrangements for contact with a child, including making arrangements by means of mediation<sup>8</sup>.

However, no individual may be required by a contact activity condition to undergo medical or psychiatric examination, assessment or treatment or to take part in mediation<sup>9</sup>.

Contact activity conditions may not be imposed in certain circumstances. A contact order may not impose a contact activity condition on an individual who is a child unless the individual is a parent of the child concerned<sup>10</sup>. If a contact order is an excepted order, it may not impose (and it may not be varied so as to impose) a contact activity condition<sup>11</sup>. A contact order may not impose a contact activity condition on an individual unless the individual is habitually resident in England and Wales; and a condition ceases to have effect if the individual subject to the condition ceases to be habitually resident in England and Wales<sup>12</sup>.

3 I.e. an individual who falls within the Children Act 1989 s 11C(3) (as prospectively added). An individual falls within this provision if he is:

188 (1) for the purposes of the contact order so made or varied, the person with whom the child concerned lives or is to live (s 11C(3)(a) (as prospectively added: see note 2 supra);

189 (2) the person whose contact with the child concerned is provided for in that order (s 11C(3)(b) (as so prospectively added); or

190 (3) a person upon whom that order imposes a condition under s 11(7)(b) (see para 250 ante) (s 11C(3)(c) (as so prospectively added)).

254. Matters to be considered before making contact activity directions and conditions.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. Before making a contact activity direction<sup>2</sup> (or imposing a contact activity condition<sup>3</sup> by means of a contact order<sup>4</sup>), the court must satisfy itself as to the following matters<sup>5</sup>:

- 359 (1) the first matter is that the activity proposed to be specified is appropriate in the circumstances of the case<sup>6</sup>;
- 360 (2) the second matter is that the person proposed to be specified as the provider of the activity is suitable to provide the activity<sup>7</sup>;
- 361 (3) the third matter is that the activity proposed to be specified is provided in a place to which the individual who would be subject to the direction (or the condition) can reasonably be expected to travel<sup>8</sup>.

Before making such a direction (or such an order), the court must obtain and consider information about the individual who would be subject to the direction (or the condition) and the likely effect of the direction (or the condition) on him<sup>9</sup>.

The court may ask an officer of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS') or a Welsh family proceedings officer<sup>10</sup> to provide the court with information as to the matters described above<sup>11</sup> and it is the duty of the officer to comply with any such request<sup>12</sup>.

256. Monitoring contact.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. If in any family proceedings the court makes: (1) a contact order<sup>2</sup> with respect to a child in favour of a person; or (2) an order varying such a contact order<sup>3</sup>, then the court may request an officer of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS')<sup>4</sup> or a Welsh family proceedings officer<sup>5</sup> to:

- 364 (a) monitor whether an individual complies with the contact order (or the contact order as varied)<sup>6</sup>;
- 365 (b) report to the court on such matters relating to the individual's compliance as the court may specify in the request<sup>7</sup>.

The court may make the request either on making the contact order (or the order varying the contact order), or at any time during the subsequent course of the proceedings as they relate to contact with the child concerned<sup>8</sup>. In making the request, the court must specify the period for which the officer of the Service<sup>9</sup> or Welsh family proceedings officer is to monitor compliance with the order (and the period specified may not exceed 12 months)<sup>10</sup>.

It is the duty of the officer of the Service or Welsh family proceedings officer to comply with the court's request<sup>11</sup>. The court may order an individual<sup>12</sup> to take such steps as may be specified in the order with a view to enabling the officer to comply with the court's request<sup>13</sup>, but it may not do so with respect to an individual who is a child unless he is a parent of the child with respect to whom the order mentioned in head (1) or (2) above was made<sup>14</sup>.

If the contact order (or the contact order as varied) includes a contact activity condition<sup>15</sup>, the court's request for monitoring is to be treated as relating to the provisions of the order other than the contact activity condition<sup>16</sup>. A court may not make a request in relation to a contact order that is an excepted order<sup>17</sup>.

PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(1) ORDERS UNDER PART II OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PRIVATE LAW PROCEEDINGS/(ii) Contact Orders/257. Consequences of non-compliance with contact orders.

257. Consequences of non-compliance with contact orders.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. Where the court makes (or varies) a contact order<sup>2</sup>, it must attach to the contact order (or the order varying the contact order) a notice warning of the consequences of failing to comply with the contact order<sup>3</sup>.

If a contact order with respect to a child has been made<sup>4</sup> and the court is satisfied beyond reasonable doubt that a person has failed to comply with it, the court may make an enforcement order imposing on the person an unpaid work requirement<sup>5</sup>. However, the court may not make an enforcement order if it is satisfied that the person had a reasonable excuse for failing to comply with the contact order<sup>6</sup>. The burden of proof lies on the person claiming to have had a reasonable excuse, and the standard of proof is the balance of probabilities<sup>7</sup>.

The court may make an enforcement order in relation to the contact order only on the application of:

- 366 (1) the person who is, for the purposes of the contact order, the person with whom the child concerned lives or is to live<sup>8</sup>;
- 367 (2) the person whose contact with the child concerned is provided for in the contact order<sup>9</sup>;
- 368 (3) any individual subject to condition<sup>10</sup>; or
- 369 (4) the child concerned<sup>11</sup>.

The court is not prevented from making more than one enforcement order in relation to the same person on the same occasion<sup>12</sup>. The court may suspend an enforcement order for such period as it thinks fit<sup>13</sup>.

There are certain restrictions on the making of enforcement orders. The court may not make an enforcement order against a person in respect of a failure to comply with a contact order unless it is satisfied that before the failure occurred the person had been given a copy of, or otherwise informed of the terms of any warning notices<sup>14</sup>. The court may not make an enforcement order against a person in respect of any failure to comply with a contact order occurring before the person attained the age of 18<sup>15</sup>. The court may not make an enforcement order against a person in respect of a failure to comply with a contact order that is an excepted order<sup>16</sup>. Nor may the court make an enforcement order against a person unless he is habitually resident in England and Wales; and an enforcement order ceases to have effect if he ceases to be habitually resident in England and Wales<sup>17</sup>.

Where the person proposing to apply for an enforcement order is the child concerned, the child must obtain the leave of the court before making such an application: s 11J(6) (as so prospectively added). The court may grant leave to the child concerned only if it is satisfied that he has sufficient understanding to make the proposed application: s 11J(7) (as so prospectively added).

258. Matters to be considered before making enforcement orders.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. Before making an enforcement order<sup>2</sup> as regards a person in breach of a contact order<sup>3</sup>, the court must be satisfied that:

- 370 (1) making the enforcement order proposed is necessary to secure the person's compliance with the contact order or any contact order that has effect in its place<sup>4</sup>;
- 371 (2) the likely effect on the person of the enforcement order proposed to be made is proportionate to the seriousness of the breach of the contact order<sup>5</sup>;

The court must also be satisfied that provision for the person to work under an unpaid work requirement imposed by an enforcement order can be made in the local justice area in which the person in breach resides or will reside<sup>6</sup>. Before making the order, the court must obtain and consider information about the person and the likely effect of the enforcement order on him<sup>7</sup>. If the court proposes to make an enforcement order it may ask an officer of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS')<sup>8</sup> or a Welsh family proceedings officer<sup>9</sup> to provide the court with such information<sup>10</sup> and it is the duty of the officer to comply with the request<sup>11</sup>.

In making an enforcement order, the court must take into account the welfare of the child who is the subject of the contact order<sup>12</sup>. Where the court makes an enforcement order, it must attach to the order a notice warning of the consequences of failing to comply with the order<sup>13</sup>.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. On making an enforcement order<sup>2</sup> in relation to a person, the court must ask an officer of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS')<sup>3</sup> or a Welsh family proceedings officer<sup>4</sup> to:

- 372 (1) monitor, or arrange for the monitoring of, the person's compliance with the unpaid work requirement imposed by the order<sup>5</sup>;

- 375 (4) report to the court if the person is, or becomes, unsuitable to perform work under the requirement<sup>8</sup>.

It is the duty of the officer of the Service<sup>9</sup> or Welsh family proceedings officer to comply with any such request<sup>10</sup>.

PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(1) ORDERS UNDER PART II OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PRIVATE LAW PROCEEDINGS/(ii) Contact Orders/260. Compensation for financial loss.

260. Compensation for financial loss.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. If a contact order with respect to a child has been made<sup>2</sup> and the court is satisfied that:

- 376 (1) an individual has failed to comply with the contact order; and
- 377 (2) a person who falls within any of heads (a) to (d) below has suffered financial loss by reason of the breach, the court may make an order requiring the individual in breach to pay the person compensation in respect of his financial loss<sup>3</sup>. The persons referred to in head (2) above are: (a) the person who is, for the purposes of the contact order, the person with whom the child concerned lives or is to live<sup>4</sup>; (b) the person whose contact with the child concerned is provided for in the contact order<sup>5</sup>; (c) an individual subject to a contact order condition<sup>6</sup> or a contact activity condition imposed by the contact order<sup>7</sup>; or (d) the child concerned<sup>8</sup>.

However, the court may not make such a compensation order if it is satisfied that the individual in breach had a reasonable excuse for failing to comply with the contact order<sup>9</sup>. An order may be made only on an application by the person who claims to have suffered financial loss<sup>10</sup>.

The amount of compensation is to be determined by the court, but may not exceed the amount of the applicant's financial loss<sup>11</sup>. In determining the amount of compensation payable by the individual in breach, the court must take into account the individual's financial circumstances<sup>12</sup>.

In exercising these powers, the court must take into account the welfare of the child concerned<sup>13</sup>.

3 Children Act 1989 s 11O(2), (12) (as prospectively added: see note 2 supra).

The court may not make an order under s 11O(2) (as prospectively added) requiring an individual to pay compensation in respect of a failure by him to comply with a contact order unless it is satisfied that before the failure occurred the individual had been given (in accordance with rules of court) a copy of, or otherwise informed of the terms of:

191 (1) in the case of a failure to comply with a contact order that was varied before the failure occurred, a notice under s 11I (as prospectively added: see para 257 ante) relating to the order varying the contact order or, where more than one such order has been made, the last order preceding the failure in question (s 11P(1)(a) (s 11P prospectively added by the Children and Adoption Act 2006 s 5));

192 (2) in any other case, a notice under the Children Act 1989 s 11I (as prospectively added) relating to the contact order (s 11P(1)(b) (as so prospectively added)).

A court may not make an order requiring an individual to pay compensation in respect of a failure by him to comply with a contact order where the failure occurred before the individual attained the age of 18: s 11P(2) (as so prospectively added). Nor may it make an order where the contact order is an excepted order (within the meaning of s 11B(4) (as prospectively added: see para 252 note 12 ante): s 11P(3) (as so prospectively added).

- 4 Ibid s 110(6)(a) (as prospectively added: see note 2 supra).

- 6 Ie a condition under ibid s 11(7)(b): see para 250 ante.
- 7 Ibid s 110(6)(c) (as prospectively added: see note 2 supra). As to contact activity conditions see para 253 ante.
- 8 Ibid s 110(6)(d) (as prospectively added: see note 2 supra). Where the person proposing to apply for an order is the child concerned, the child must obtain the leave of the court before making such an application: s 110(7) (as so prospectively added). The court may grant leave to the child concerned only if it is satisfied that he has sufficient understanding to make the proposed application: s 110(8) (as so prospectively added).
- 9 Ibid s 110(3) (as prospectively added: see note 2 supra). The burden of proof as to this matter lies on the individual claiming to have had a reasonable excuse: s 110(4) (as so prospectively added).
- 10 Ibid s 110(5) (as prospectively added: see note 2 supra).
- 11 Ibid s 110(9) (as prospectively added: see note 2 supra). The amount ordered to be paid as compensation may be recovered by the applicant as a civil debt due to him: s 110(11) (as so prospectively added).
- 12 Ibid s 110(10) (as prospectively added: see note 2 supra).

UPDATE

252-260 Contact activity directions ... Compensation for financial loss

These provisions have effect from 8 December 2008: SI 2008/2870.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/4. PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(1) ORDERS UNDER PART II OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PRIVATE LAW PROCEEDINGS/(iii) Prohibited Steps Orders/261. Prohibited steps orders.

(iii) Prohibited Steps Orders

261. Prohibited steps orders.

A prohibited steps order is an order that no step which could be taken by a parent in meeting his parental responsibility<sup>1</sup> for a child<sup>2</sup>, and which is of a kind specified in the order, may be taken by any person without the consent of the court<sup>3</sup>. A prohibited steps order could thus be used, for example, to direct that the child should not be brought into contact with a named person or taken to a particular place, or should not undergo specified medical procedures. A prohibited steps order could also be used to prohibit a child's removal from the country when no residence order has been made and therefore no automatic restriction on removal<sup>4</sup> applies, or to prevent the child's removal from his home before the court has had the opportunity to decide what order, if any, should be made.

A prohibited steps order can be made to prevent the removal of a child from the jurisdiction, even if it is made ex parte and the person against whom it is made is not, and has no assets, within the jurisdiction<sup>5</sup>.

A prohibited steps order may not be made in respect of a child who is in the care of a local authority<sup>6</sup>. No court may exercise its powers to make a prohibited steps order: (1) with a view to achieving a result which could be achieved by making a residence order or a contact order<sup>7</sup>; or (2) in any way which is denied to the High Court<sup>8</sup> in the exercise of its inherent jurisdiction with respect to children<sup>9</sup>.

Where an application has been made by a local authority for an interim care order, the court should not alternatively make a prohibited steps order without giving the parties notice of its intention to do so and an opportunity to make representations<sup>10</sup>.

The making of a care order with respect to a child who is the subject of a prohibited steps order automatically discharges that order<sup>11</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'parental responsibility' see para 134 ante. It follows from the reference to 'parent' and 'parental responsibility' in this definition that a prohibited steps order could not be granted against a newspaper to restrain it from publishing information about a child: see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 2.31. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante. See also the text and note 2 infra.

2 Thus a prohibited steps order could not be made to prevent the parents having contact with each other, since such an order 'did not impinge upon the parental responsibility of the parent concerned': Croydon London Borough Council v A [1992] Fam 169, [1992] 3 All ER 788. For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

3 Children Act 1989 ss 8(1), 105(1). A prohibited steps order is one of the 'section 8 orders' referred to in the Children Act 1989, as is an order varying or discharging a prohibited steps order: s 8(2).

The prohibited steps order is modelled on the orders traditionally made in the wardship jurisdiction of the High Court (see para 218 et seq ante), but it has been said that the purpose of the prohibited steps order is to impose a specific restriction on the exercise of parental responsibility instead of the vague requirement in wardship that no 'important step' be taken in respect of the child without the court's consent: see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 2.31. See eg Re J (child's religious upbringing and circumcision) [1999] 2 FCR 345, sub nom Re J (specific issue orders: Muslim upbringing and circumcision) [1999] 2 FLR 678 (father prohibited, without the court's permission, from making arrangements for the circumcision of his five-year-old son for religious purposes). A prohibited steps order can be made against any person and this includes someone who is not a party to the proceedings: see Re H (prohibited steps order) [1995] 1 WLR 667, [1995] 1 FLR 638, CA (prohibited steps order made against mother's former cohabitee preventing him from having or seeking contact with the children)

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/4. PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(1) ORDERS UNDER PART II OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PRIVATE LAW PROCEEDINGS/(iv) Residence Orders/262. Residence orders.

(iv) Residence Orders

262. Residence orders.

A residence order is an order settling the arrangements to be made as to the person<sup>1</sup> with whom a child<sup>2</sup> is to live<sup>3</sup>. Where a residence order is made in favour of two or more persons who do not themselves all live together, the order may specify the periods during which the child is to live in the different households concerned<sup>4</sup>. It will be a matter for the court, applying the welfare principle<sup>5</sup>, to decide whether it would be in the child's interest to do so<sup>6</sup>. Where a residence order has been made with respect to a child and as a result of the order the child lives, or is to live, with one of two parents<sup>7</sup> who each has parental responsibility<sup>8</sup> for him, the order ceases to have effect if the parents live together for a continuous period of more than six months<sup>9</sup>.

When the court makes a residence order in favour of any person who is not the parent or guardian<sup>10</sup> of the child concerned, that person has parental responsibility<sup>11</sup> for the child while the residence order remains in force<sup>12</sup>. Where the court makes the order in favour of the father, it must, if the father would not otherwise have parental responsibility for the child, make an order<sup>13</sup> giving him that responsibility<sup>14</sup>. However, the acquisition of parental responsibility by virtue of a residence order does not deprive any other person of parental responsibility<sup>15</sup>. A person with parental responsibility by virtue of a residence order does not have the right: (1) to agree or refuse to agree, to the making of an adoption order<sup>16</sup> with respect to the child<sup>17</sup>; (2) to agree or refuse to agree to the making of a parental responsibility order with respect to the adoption of a child abroad<sup>18</sup>; or (3) to appoint a guardian for the child<sup>19</sup>.

Where a residence order is in force with respect to a child, no person may cause the child to be known by a new surname or remove him from the United Kingdom<sup>20</sup>, without either the written consent of every person who has parental responsibility for the child or the leave of the court<sup>21</sup>, but this does not prevent the removal of a child for a period of less than one month by the person in whose favour the residence order was made<sup>22</sup>.

The making of a residence order with respect to a child who is the subject of a care order discharges the care order<sup>23</sup>, and the making of a care order with respect to a child who is the subject of a residence order discharges that order<sup>24</sup>. No application may be made by a local authority<sup>25</sup> for a residence order and no court may make such an order in favour of a local authority<sup>26</sup>.

Where a residence order is in force with respect to a child in favour of any person, and any other person, including one in whose favour the order is also in force is in breach of the arrangements settled by the order, then the former person may, as soon as a copy of the residence order has been served on the other person, enforce the order under the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980<sup>27</sup> as if it were an order requiring the other person to produce the child to him<sup>28</sup>.

The court has jurisdiction to make an interim residence order on an ex parte application in exceptional circumstances<sup>29</sup>.

2 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

3 Children Act 1989 ss 8(1), 105(1). A residence order is one of the 'section 8 orders' referred to in the Children Act 1989, as is an order varying or discharging a residence order: s 8(2). An interim residence order may be made to run concurrently with an existing residence order, the effect of the latter being suspended until a later court hearing: Re M (minors) (interim residence order) [1997] 2 FCR 28, CA. A residence order may be made if it may be of benefit to a child's welfare, even if the child is subject to immigration control and there is no dispute about the child's welfare. However, the order must be of limited duration so that it does not fetter the Secretary of State's eventual decision as to the child's immigration status: Re E [1995] Imm AR 475. The relevance and value of the UN Declaration of the Rights of the Child 1959, 20 November 1959 (UN General Assembly Resolution 1386 (XIV)) is doubtful, and Principle 6 (that a child of tender years must not, save in exceptional circumstances, be separated from its mother) is not reflected in the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child 1989, 20 November 1989 (UN General Assembly Resolution 44/25; TS 44 (1992); Cm 1976): Re A (a minor) (residence order) [1998] 2 FCR 633, sub nom Re A (children: 1959 UN Declaration) [1998] 1 FLR 354, CA.

The court must take into account new care arrangements before making a residence order: Re Dhaliwal (a child) [2005] EWCA Civ 743, [2005] 2 FCR 398 (procedural irregularity where judge made residence order to father without cross-examining him on his new job and the consequent care arrangements involving his extended family). A judge should provide adequate reasons before refusing to make a residence order: Re G (care proceedings: placement for adoption) [2005] EWCA Civ 896, [2005] Fam Law 770, sub nom Re G (a child) (care proceedings: lack of reasons) (2005) Times, 1 August.

The making of a new residence order in response to difficulties in contact is a last resort; the status quo is to be preferred to speculative improvements in contact: Re B (a minor) (residence order) [1998] 1 FCR 549, sub nom Re B (a minor) (residence order: status quo) [1998] 1 FLR 368, CA. See also Re K (residence order: securing contact) [1999] 3 FCR 365, [1999] 1 FLR 583, CA (father refused admittance by mother's family); Re A (a child) (mental health of mother) [2001] EWCA Civ 162, [2001] 1 FCR 577, [2001] All ER (D) 106 (Feb); Re E (children) (residence order) [2001] EWCA Civ 567, [2001] 2 FCR 662, [2001] All ER (D) 354 (Mar). See also Re G (children: residence: same-sex partner) [2006] UKHL 43, [2006] 4 All ER 241, [2006] 2 FLR 629.

References in the Children Act 1989 to a person with whom a child lives, or is to live, as the result of a residence order are to be construed as references to the person named in the order as the person with whom the child is to live: s 105(3).

4 Ibid s 11(4). A shared residence order is justified in circumstances where the circumstances and the reality of the case support that conclusion, and the conclusion is consistent with the principle that the welfare of the child is the paramount consideration: see para 300 post. It is no longer an unusual order to be made in exceptional circumstances: see Re C (a child) (shared residence) [2006] EWCA Civ 235, [2006] All ER (D) 94 (Jan); Re D (shared residence orders) [2001] 1 FCR 147, [2001] 1 FLR 495, CA (there should be a low threshold for shared residence orders; ie that the order would be in the child's interest, not necessarily of positive benefit). See Re P (children) (shared residence order) [2005] EWCA Civ 1639, [2006] 1 FCR 309, [2006] 2 FLR 347 (shared residence order appropriate where parents had created two homes for child to the child's advantage). Previously the approach had been as set out in A v A (minors) (shared residence) [1995] 1 FCR 91, [1994] 1 FLR 669, CA.

Housing expectations should be provided where a joint residence order is being proposed and the court should consider asking the local housing authority to make representations in cases of doubt: R (on the application of Bibi) v Camden London Borough Council [2004] EWHC 2527 (Admin), [2005] 1 FLR 413, [2005] Fam Law 108. A shared residence order can be justified on the grounds of finance: Re R (residence order: finance) [1995] 3 FCR 334, [1995] 2 FLR 612, CA. See also G v G (joint residence order) [1993] Fam Law 615; G v F (shared residence: parental responsibility) [1998] 3 FCR 1, sub nom G v F (contact and shared residence: applications for leave) [1998] 2 FLR 799 (application by a lesbian partner); Re G (residence: same-sex partner) [2005] EWCA Civ 462, [2006] 1 FCR 436, [2005] 2 FLR 957 (shared residence order was the only way to give the same sex partner parental responsibility).

5 As to the welfare principle see para 300 post.

6 Cf Riley v Riley [1986] 2 FLR 429, [1987] Fam Law 15, CA (decided in relation to custody orders). Where an application is made to include a further party to the proceedings a court may use its discretion to take into account the wishes of the child: see A v A and Newham London Borough Council [1993] 1 FCR 870, sub nom Re A (a minor) (residence order: leave to apply) [1993] 1 FLR 425. There is a strong presumption that the best interests of the child are served by his being brought up by his natural parents: A Local Authority v D [2006] EWHC 295 (Fam), [2006] All ER (D) 392 (Feb).

7 As to the meaning of 'parent' see para 248 note 1 ante.

8 For the meaning of 'parental responsibility' see para 134 ante.

9 Children Act 1989 s 11(5).

10 For the meaning of 'guardian of a child' see para 144 note 5 ante. As to guardians and guardianship see para 144 et seq ante.

11 It has been said that the Children Act 1989 treats residence and parental responsibility as 'quite separate concepts' and that the intention is that both parents should feel that they have a continuing role to play in relation to their children: see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 2.23. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante.

12 Children Act 1989 s 12(2). See eg B v B (grandparent: residence order) [1993] 1 FCR 211, sub nom B v B (residence order) [1992] 2 FLR 327. The power of a court to make a residence order in favour of any person who is not the parent or guardian of the child concerned includes power to direct, at the request of that person, that the order continue in force until the child reaches the age of 18 (unless the order is brought to an end earlier); and any power to vary a residence order is exercisable accordingly: Children Act 1989 s 12(5) (s 12(5), (6) added by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 114(1)). Where a residence order includes such a direction, an application to vary or discharge the order may only be made, if apart from this subsection the leave of the court is not required, with such leave: Children Act 1989 s 12(6) (as so added).

13 Ie under ibid s 4 (as amended): see para 139 ante.

14 Ibid s 12(1). A natural unmarried father without parental responsibility is entitled to apply as of right for a residence order, but ceases to be so entitled after an order is made freeing the child for adoption: Re C (minors) (parent: residence order) [1994] Fam 1, [1993] 3 All ER 313, CA.

15 See the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 2.23; and para 141 ante. Thus the making of a residence order in favour of the child's mother does not deprive the father with parental responsibility of his right to take decisions about education or any other matter within the term parental responsibility. The general restrictions on the exercise of parental responsibility apply, in addition to those set out in the text to notes 16-19 infra: see paras 141-142 ante.

19 Children Act 1989 s 12(3)(c).

20 For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see para 102 note 7 ante. A condition restricting the primary carer's right to choose his place of residence within the United Kingdom is only appropriate in exceptional circumstances: Re B (a child) (relocation) (2007) Times, 10 October, CA.

21 Children Act 1989 s 13(1). The court may, when making a residence order, grant such leave generally or for specified purposes: s 13(3). ## (v) Specific Issue Orders

263. Specific issue orders.

A specific issue order is an order giving directions for the purpose of determining a specific question which has arisen, or which may arise, in connection with any aspect of parental responsibility<sup>1</sup> for a child<sup>2</sup>. No court may exercise its powers to make a specific issue order:

- 378 (1) with a view to achieving a result which could be achieved by making a contact order<sup>3</sup> or a residence order<sup>4</sup>; or
- 379 (2) in any way which is denied to the High Court<sup>5</sup> in the exercise of its inherent jurisdiction with respect to children<sup>6</sup>.

A specific issue order can be made for the return of a child to the jurisdiction, even if it is made ex parte and the person against whom it is made is not, and has no assets, within the jurisdiction<sup>7</sup>.

The making of a care order with respect to a child who is the subject of a specific issue order automatically discharges that order<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'parental responsibility' see para 134 ante.

2 Children Act 1989 ss 8(1), 105(1); and see Re B (minors) (residence order) [1992] Fam 162, [1992] 3 All ER 867, CA.

A specific issue order is one of the 'section 8 orders' referred to in the Children Act 1989, as is an order varying or discharging a specific issue order: s 8(2). For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

A specific issue order enables the court to resolve a dispute about a particular matter (eg regarding medical treatment, education, the changing of a child's surname), and such an order may be made in conjunction with a residence or contact order or on its own. 'The aim, however, is not to give one parent or the other a general 'right' to make decisions about a particular aspect of the child's upbringing ... but rather to enable a particular dispute over such a matter to be resolved by the court, including the giving of detailed directions where necessary': Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 2.32. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante. For an example of a specific issue order relating to a matter of education see M v M (specific issue: choice of school) [2005] EWHC 2769 (Fam), [2007] 1 FLR 251.

The availability of specific issue orders enables the court to deal with issues which, in the past, were dealt with by wardship: see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 2.33.

As to the procedure on applications under the Children Act 1989 s 8 (as amended) for leave to perform a sterilisation operation on a child see Practice Note [1996] 3 FCR 95, [1996] 2 FLR 111. However, it may be preferable to apply under the inherent jurisdiction of the court: see Practice Note (Official Solicitor: appointment in family proceedings) [2001] 2 FLR 155; CAFCASS Practice Note (representation of children in family proceedings pursuant to the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, r 9.5) [2004] 1 FLR 1190.

A local authority can make an application under the Children Act 1989 s 8 (as amended) to obtain the court's authorisation for use of blood products in the treatment of a child whose parents are withholding consent to such treatment: Re R (minor) [1993] 2 FCR 544, 15 BMLR 72. See also Re C (a child) (HIV test) [2000] Fam 48, [1999] 3 FCR 289 (grant of application by local authority for order to test baby for HIV against wishes of both parents).

It is not appropriate to make a specific issue order under the Children Act 1989 s 8 (as amended) where a right of occupation is involved: Pearson v Franklin [1994] 2 All ER 137, [1994] 1 WLR 370, CA (Children Act 1989 s 8 not intended to be used for purpose of making ouster orders under guise of specific issue orders).

A child may use both parents' surnames in certain circumstances see Re R (surname: using both parents') [2001] EWCA Civ 1344, [2002] 1 FCR 170, [2001] 2 FLR 1358.

PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(1) ORDERS UNDER PART II OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PRIVATE LAW PROCEEDINGS/ (vi) Supplementary Provisions relating to Section 8 Orders/264. Restrictions on court's powers to make section 8 orders.

(vi) Supplementary Provisions relating to Section 8 Orders

264. Restrictions on court's powers to make section 8 orders.

No court may exercise its powers to make a specific issue order<sup>1</sup> or a prohibited steps order<sup>2</sup> with a view to achieving a result which could be achieved by making a residence order<sup>3</sup> or a contact order<sup>4</sup>.

In addition, no court may exercise its powers to make a prohibited steps order or a specific issue order in any way which is denied to the High Court<sup>5</sup> in the exercise of its inherent jurisdiction with respect to children<sup>6</sup>.

No application may be made by a local authority for a residence order or a contact order, and no court may make such an order in favour of a local authority<sup>7</sup>.

No court may make a contact order, a prohibited steps order or a specific issue order with respect to a child who is in the care of a local authority<sup>8</sup>. Decisions of a local authority relating to a child in care may therefore only be questioned by other methods<sup>9</sup>, and the local authority itself may not obtain the court's guidance about specific issues<sup>10</sup>. Instead, it may seek leave to invoke the court's inherent jurisdiction<sup>11</sup>. These prohibitions do not apply where the child is being voluntarily accommodated by the local authority<sup>12</sup>.

No court may make any contact order, prohibited steps order, residence order or specific issue order or an order varying or discharging such an order<sup>13</sup> which is to have effect for a period which will end after the child has reached the age of 16 unless it is satisfied that the circumstances of the case are exceptional<sup>14</sup>. No court may make any contact order, prohibited steps order, residence order or specific issue order, other than one varying or discharging such an order with respect to a child who has reached the age of 16 unless it is satisfied that the circumstances of the case are exceptional<sup>15</sup>.

1 As to specific issue orders see para 263 ante.

2 As to prohibited steps orders see para 261 ante.

3 As to residence orders see para 262 ante.

4 Children Act 1989 s 9(5)(a). See Nottinghamshire County Council v P [1994] Fam 18, [1993] 3 All ER 815, CA (on appeal from [1993] 2 WLR 406); Re B (minors) (residence order) [1992] Fam 162, [1992] 3 All ER 867, CA. As to contact orders see para 251 et seq ante.

It is intended thereby to avoid prohibited steps orders or specific issue orders being used to achieve much the same procedural results as residence orders and contact orders but without the same legal effects (eg the conferment by a residence order of parental responsibility on the person in whose favour it is made: see para 406 ante): see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 2.34. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante.

5 Ie denied to the High Court by the Children Act 1989 s 100(2): see para 201 ante.

6 Ibid s 9(5)(b). As to the inherent jurisdiction of the High Court with respect to children see para 218 et seq ante. The intention appears to be, whilst permitting local authorities to seek leave to apply for orders which previously could only be obtained in wardship (eg relating to medical treatment), to prevent a local authority from seeking to achieve the substance of a care order or supervision order without satisfying the special conditions relating to the making of such orders: see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 2.33; and note 4 supra. As to the conditions for the making of a care order or supervision order see para 274 post. It is doubtful whether the High Court has an inherent jurisdiction to restrain a local authority or the police from exercising their statutory or common law powers: D v D (child case: powers of court) [1994] 3 FCR 28, sub nom D v D (county court jurisdiction: injunctions) [1993] 2 FLR 802, CA. See also Re H (minors) (prohibited steps order) [1995] 4 All ER 110, [1995] 1 WLR 667, CA (order requiring mother's former cohabitee not to have or to seek contact with her children does not contravene the Children Act 1989 s 9(5)); Re S and D (child case: powers of court) [1995] 1 FCR 626, [1995] 2 FLR 456, CA (although an order was in form of an injunction, it was in essence a prohibited steps order, which the judge could not properly make).

7 Children Act 1989 s 9(2). This provision was enacted in pursuance of the policy that parental responsibility for a child can only be acquired by a local authority if the criteria for the grant of a care order are satisfied: see note 6 supra. For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante. For the meaning of 'local authority' see para 248 note 10 ante.

8 Ibid s 9(1). The policy of the Children Act 1989 is to draw a clear distinction between children being provided with accommodation or other services by a local authority and children formally in the care of a local authority, and to prevent the courts' private law powers from being used to interfere with the local authority's exercise of its statutory parental responsibilities (see para 270 et seq post): see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 2.46; and note 4 supra.

9 See para 944 et seq post.

10 See para 262 ante; and the text and note 8 supra.

11 See the Children Act 1989 s 100(3); and para 218 ante.

13 Ie a section 8 order: see para 247 note 4 ante.

14 Children Act 1989 s 9(6) (which is subject to s 12(5) (see para 262 ante): see s 9(6) (amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 114(2))). A section 8 order, if it would otherwise still be in force, ceases to have effect when the child reaches the age of 16 unless it is to have effect beyond that age by virtue of the Children Act 1989 s 9(6) (as amended) or s 12(5): s 91(10) (amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 114(3)). Cf the powers of the court under the Matrimonial Causes Act 1973 to make orders extending to age 18: see MATRIMONIAL AND CIVIL PARTNERSHIP LAW. Where a section 8 order has effect with respect to a child who has reached the age of 16, if it would otherwise still be in force, it ceases to have effect when he reaches the age of 18: Children Act 1989 s 91(11).

There is no presumption of a right of contact between a parent and an adult child who is suffering from mental incapacity: D-R v D-R [1999] 2 FCR 49, sub nom Re D-R (adult: contact) [1999] 1 FLR 1161, CA.

264 Restrictions on court's powers to make section 8 orders

TEXT AND NOTE 13--For 'any contact order ... discharging such an order' read 'a specific issue order, contact order or prohibited steps order': Children Act 1989 s 9(6) (amended by Children and Young Persons Act 2008 s 37(1)).

NOTE 14--The reference is now to a section 8 order other than a residence order, and reference to Children Act 1989 s 12(5) omitted: s 91(10) (amended by Children and Young Persons Act 2008 s 37(2), Sch 4).

PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(1) ORDERS UNDER PART II OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PRIVATE LAW PROCEEDINGS/ (vi) Supplementary Provisions relating to Section 8 Orders/265. Termination of section 8 orders.

265. Termination of section 8 orders.

A contact order<sup>1</sup>, a prohibited steps order<sup>2</sup>, a residence order<sup>3</sup> or a specific issue order<sup>4</sup> or an order varying such an order will come to an end if the court discharges it<sup>5</sup>, or in accordance with the terms of the order<sup>6</sup>. It will cease to have effect when the child<sup>7</sup> concerned attains the relevant age<sup>8</sup>. In certain circumstances a contact order or a residence order ceases to have effect if the parents<sup>9</sup> of the child live together for a continuous period of more than six months<sup>10</sup>. The making of a care order with respect to a child who is the subject of any of the orders mentioned above discharges that order<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to contact orders see para 251 et seq ante.

2 As to prohibited steps orders see para 261 ante.

3 As to residence orders see para 262 ante.

4 As to specific issue orders see para 263 ante.

5 See the Children Act 1989 s 8(2). The discharging order is itself a 'section 8 order': see para 247 note 4 ante.

6 See ibid s 11(7)(c); and para 250 ante.

7 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

8 See para 264 ante.

9 For the meaning of 'parent' see para 248 note 1 ante.

10 See the Children Act 1989 s 11(5), (6); and paras 251, 262 ante.

Other powers of the court in relation to section 8 orders.

266. Other powers of the court in relation to section 8 orders.

In proceedings in which there arises any question of making a contact order<sup>1</sup>, a prohibited steps order<sup>2</sup>, a residence order<sup>3</sup> or a specific issue order<sup>4</sup>, or an order varying or discharging any of those orders, or any other question with respect to such an order, the court must<sup>5</sup> draw up a timetable with a view to determining the question without delay<sup>6</sup>, and give such directions as it considers appropriate for the purpose of ensuring, so far as is reasonably practicable, that that timetable is adhered to<sup>7</sup>.

Where the court has power to make a contact order, a prohibited steps order, a residence order or a specific issue order, or an order varying or discharging any of those orders, it may do so at any time during the course of the proceedings in question even though it is not in a position to dispose finally of those proceedings<sup>8</sup>.

When a court determines any question with respect to the upbringing<sup>9</sup> of a child, the child's welfare must be the paramount consideration<sup>10</sup>. If the court is considering whether to make, vary or discharge a contact order, a prohibited steps order, a residence order or a specific issue order, and the making, variation or discharge is opposed by any party to the proceedings, the court must have regard in particular to the welfare checklist laid down by the Children Act 1989<sup>11</sup>.

In appropriate circumstances the court may, when disposing of any application for an order under the Children Act 1989 (whether or not it makes any order in response to the application), order that no application for an order under the Act or of any specified kind may be made with respect to the child concerned by any person named in the order without the leave of the court<sup>12</sup>.

2 As to prohibited steps orders see para 261 ante.

3 As to residence orders see para 262 ante.

5 In the light of any rules made by virtue of the Children Act 1989 s 11(2): see note 7 infra.

6 Ibid s 11(1)(a).

7 Ibid s 11(1)(b). Rules of court may specify periods within which specified steps must be taken in relation to proceedings in which such questions arise and make other provision with respect to such proceedings for the purpose of ensuring, so far as is reasonably practicable, that such questions are determined without delay: s 11(2). Proceedings in which any question of making an enforcement order, or any other question with respect to such an order, arises are to be regarded for the purposes of s 11(1), (2) as proceedings in which a question arises with respect to a section 8 order: s 11J(11) (prospectively added by the Children and Adoption Act 2006 s 4); see para 257 ante. Similarly, proceedings in which any question of making an order for financial compensation under the Children Act 1989 s 11O(2) arises are to be regarded for the purposes of s 11(1), (2) as proceedings in which a question arises with respect to a section 8 order: s 11O(13) (prospectively added by the Children and Adoption Act 2006 s 5).

8 Children Act 1989 s 11(3). This power arises in all family proceedings: see s 10(1); and para 247 ante. See Re C (contact: jurisdiction) [1996] Fam 79, [1995] 1 FLR 777, CA (although a contact order made pending a possible adoption application is an interim order, family proceedings are concluded and, therefore, the court has no jurisdiction to vary an order under the Children Act 1989 s 10). The court will make interim orders with the aim of holding the balance so as to cause least possible harm see B v B (interim contact with grandparents) [1993] Fam Law 393. In the family proceedings court (see para 208 ante), a justices' clerk or single justice must not make an order under the Children Act 1989 s 11(3) unless: (1) a written request for such an order has been made to which the other parties and any children's guardian consent and which they or their representatives have signed; (2) a previous such order has been made in the same proceedings; (3) the terms of the order sought are the same as those of the last such order made: Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 28 (amended by SI 2001/818). As to children's guardians (formerly known as guardians ad litem: see para 230 ante) see paras 319-321 post.

11 See ibid s 1(3), (4); and para 303 post. As to the welfare checklist see para 303 post.

Family assistance orders.

(vii) Family Assistance and Financial Relief Orders

267. Family assistance orders.

A family assistance order is an order requiring an officer of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS') or a Welsh family proceedings officer<sup>1</sup> to be made available<sup>2</sup>, or a local authority<sup>3</sup> to make an officer of the authority available<sup>4</sup>, to advise, assist and (where appropriate) befriend any person named in the order<sup>5</sup>. A family assistance order may be made whenever in any family proceedings, the court has power to make an order under Part II of the Children Act 1989<sup>6</sup> with respect to any child<sup>7</sup>, but no court may make an order unless it has obtained the consent of every person to be named in the order other than the child<sup>8</sup>.

The persons who may be named in a family assistance order are: (1) any parent<sup>9</sup> or guardian or special guardian of the child<sup>10</sup>; (2) any person with whom the child is living or in whose favour a contact order<sup>11</sup> is in force with respect to the child; and (3) the child himself<sup>12</sup>.

A family assistance order may direct the person named in the order, or such of the persons named in the order as may be specified, to take such steps as may be specified with a view to enabling the officer concerned to be kept informed of the address of any person named in the order and to be allowed to visit any such person<sup>13</sup>. A family assistance order has effect for 12 months beginning with the day on which it is made unless it specifies a shorter period<sup>14</sup>.

If the court makes a family assistance order with respect to a child and the order is to be in force at the same time as a section 8 order<sup>15</sup> made with respect to the child, the family assistance order may direct the officer concerned to report to the court on such matters relating to the section 8 order as the court may require (including the question whether the section 8 order ought to be varied or discharged)<sup>16</sup>.

A family assistance order may not be made so as to require a local authority to make an officer available unless the authority agrees or the child concerned lives or will live within the authority's area: s 16(7). A family assistance order under s 16(7) cannot be made requiring an officer to take a father's children to visit him in prison unless the local authority agrees to make an officer available, or the child lives within the authority's area: S v P (contact application: family assistance order) [1997] 2 FCR 185, [1997] 2 FLR 277.

Such an order aims to provide short term help to a family to overcome the problems connected with their separation or divorce: Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 2.50. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante.

Before making a family assistance order the court must have obtained the opinion of the appropriate officer about whether it would be in the best interests of the child in question for a family assistance order to be made and, if so, how the family assistance order could operate and for what period. The appropriate officer will be an officer of the Service, a Welsh family proceedings officer or an officer of a local authority, depending on the category of officer the court proposes to require to be made available under the family assistance order. The opinion of the appropriate officer may be given orally or in writing (eg it may form part of a welfare report under the Children Act 1989 s 7 (as amended) (see para 311 post)). Before making a family assistance order the court must give any person whom it proposes be named in the order an opportunity to comment upon any opinion given by the appropriate officer: Practice Direction (family proceedings) (family assistance orders) [2007] All ER (D) 59 (Sep).

268. Financial relief orders.

The court is empowered under the Children Act 1989 to make orders for financial relief for children<sup>1</sup>. Applications for such orders are family proceedings and accordingly a number of other orders<sup>2</sup> are available to the court in such proceedings<sup>3</sup>.

PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(1) ORDERS UNDER PART II OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PRIVATE LAW PROCEEDINGS/(viii) Risk Assessments/269. Duty to make risk assessments.

(viii) Risk Assessments

269. Duty to make risk assessments.

If, in carrying out:

- 380 (1) any function in connection with family proceedings<sup>1</sup> in which the court has power to make an order under Part II of the Children Act 1989<sup>2</sup> with respect to a child<sup>3</sup> or in which a question with respect to such an order arises<sup>4</sup>; or
- 381 (2) any function in connection with an order made by the court in such proceedings<sup>5</sup>, an officer of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS')<sup>6</sup> or a Welsh family proceedings officer<sup>7</sup> is given cause to suspect that the child concerned is at risk of harm, he must make a risk assessment in relation to the child, and provide that risk assessment to the court<sup>8</sup>. A risk assessment, in relation to a child who is at risk of suffering harm of a particular sort, is an assessment of the risk of that harm being suffered by the child<sup>9</sup>.

The duty to provide the risk assessment to the court arises irrespective of the outcome of the assessment<sup>10</sup>. Where an officer of the Service or a Welsh family proceedings officer is given cause to suspect that the child concerned is at risk of harm and makes a risk assessment, the officer must provide the assessment to the court, even if he or she reaches the conclusion that there is no risk of harm to the child<sup>11</sup>. The fact that a risk assessment has been carried out is a material fact that should be placed before the court, whatever the outcome of the assessment, and, in reporting the outcome to the court, the officer should make clear the factor or factors that triggered the decision to carry out the assessment<sup>12</sup>.

(2) APPLICATIONS UNDER

(i) Applications for Care Orders and Supervision Orders

270. The legislation.

A distinction is drawn in the Children Act 1989 between cases in which the state seeks to intervene by compulsion in a child's upbringing<sup>1</sup>, and those cases in which the issue relating to the child is brought before the court by a relative or other interested person<sup>2</sup>. The policy of the legislation is that compulsory intervention can only be justified if there is evidence that the child is being or is likely to be positively harmed because of a failure in the family, and it is not sufficient merely to show that state intervention would be in the child's interests<sup>3</sup>.

For this reason, compulsory intervention in the care and upbringing of a child is now only possible by order of the court following proceedings<sup>4</sup> in which the child, his parents and others who are connected with the child are entitled to participate<sup>5</sup>, and the legislative structure itself has been made to give effect to the principles set out above.

The scheme of the legislation is that the court may only make a care order<sup>6</sup> or supervision order<sup>7</sup> if:

- 382 (1) there is an application by a local authority<sup>8</sup> or authorised person<sup>9</sup>;
- 383 (2) the court is satisfied that the significant harm 'threshold criteria'<sup>10</sup> are met;
- 384 (3) the court is satisfied, having directed itself by reference to the matters to which the Children Act 1989 requires it to have particular regard<sup>11</sup> that the making of the order would promote the child's welfare, that being the paramount consideration<sup>12</sup>; and
- 385 (4) the court is satisfied that making an order would be better for the child than making no order at all<sup>13</sup>.

3    The former Lord Chancellor, Lord Mackay of Clashfern, in defending the government's decision to debar local authorities from having recourse to the wardship jurisdiction, said that it may be the case that a broad discretion guided by the principle of the child's best interests would 'be appropriate and defensible where a court is deciding a dispute between warring members of a family. However, once the court becomes involved in intervention from outside the family, and especially where state intervention is proposed, I do not believe that a broad discretion can be justified ... The integrity and independence of the family is the basic building block of a free and democratic society and the need to defend it should be clearly perceivable in the law ... To provide otherwise would make it lawful for children to be removed from their families simply on the basis that a court considered that the state could do better for the child than his family. The threat to the poor and to minority groups, whose views of what is good for a child may not coincide closely with that of the majority, is all too apparent ...': Lord Mackay of Clashfern LC 'Joseph Jackson Memorial Lecture 1989' (1989) 139 NLJ 505 at 507-508.

PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(2) APPLICATIONS UNDER PART IV OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PUBLIC LAW PROCEEDINGS/(i) Applications for Care Orders and Supervision Orders/271. Application by local authority or authorised person.

271. Application by local authority or authorised person.

On the application of any local authority<sup>1</sup> or authorised person, the court<sup>2</sup> may make an order placing the child<sup>3</sup> with respect to whom the application is made in the care of a designated local authority (a 'care order')<sup>4</sup>, or may make an order putting him under the supervision of a designated local authority (a 'supervision order')<sup>5</sup>.

'Authorised person' means the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and any of its officers, and any person authorised by order of the Secretary of State to bring proceedings under the Children Act 1989<sup>6</sup> and any officer of a body which is so authorised<sup>7</sup>.

The local authority designated in a care order must be the authority within whose area the child is ordinarily resident<sup>8</sup> or, where the child does not reside in the area of a local authority, the authority within whose area any circumstances arose in consequence of which the order is being made<sup>9</sup>. Where an authorised person proposes to make an application for a care order or supervision order, he must, if it is reasonably practicable to do so and before making the application, consult the local authority appearing to him to be the authority in whose area the child concerned is ordinarily resident<sup>10</sup>.

An application made by an authorised person must not be entertained if, at the time when it is made, the child concerned is the subject of an earlier application for a care order, or supervision order which has not been disposed of or is subject to a care order or supervision order<sup>11</sup>.

Applications for a care or supervision order are subject to strict time-tabling guidelines to ensure that the applications are disposed of without unnecessary delay<sup>12</sup>.

4 Children Act 1989 s 31(1)(a). A 'care order' means an order made under s 31(1)(a) and, except where express provision to the contrary is made, includes an interim care order made under s 38 (see para 288 post): ss 31(11), 105(1). However, it also includes any order which by or under any enactment has the effect of, or is deemed to be, a care order for the purposes of the Children Act 1989; and any reference to a child who is in the care of an authority is a reference to a child who is in its care by virtue of a care order: s 105(1).

In an application for a care order, the burden of proof rests on the local authority applying for the order: Re O and N (children) (non-accidental injury: burden of proof) [2002] EWCA Civ 1271, [2002] 3 FCR 418, [2002] 2 FLR 1167. The criteria listed in the Children Act 1989 s 10(9) (see para 249 ante) for determining whether to grant a person party status apply also to public law proceedings, and those criteria apply irrespective of whether the applicant is seeking a specific order: see Re W (a child) (care proceedings: leave to issue application) [2004] EWHC 3342 (Fam), [2005] 2 FLR 468, [2005] Fam Law 527. 5 Children Act 1989 s 31(1)(b) (amended by the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 ss 74, 75, Sch 7 Pt II paras 87, 90, Sch 8). A 'supervision order' means an order made under the Children Act 1989 s 31(1)(b)

(as amended) and, except where express provision to the contrary is made, includes an interim supervision order made under s 38 (see para 288 post): ss 31(11), 105(1).

The Secretary of State may make regulations with respect to the exercise by a local authority of its functions where a child has been placed under its supervision by a supervision order: s 35, Sch 3 para 11(1). Where a supervision order requires compliance with directions given by virtue of this provision, any expenditure incurred by the supervisor for the purposes of the directions is to be defrayed by the local authority designated in the order: Sch 3 para 11(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such regulations had been made. As to the Secretary of State, and as to the transfer of certain functions of the Secretary of State, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, to the Welsh Ministers see para 155 ante.

The general power of a magistrates' court under the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 63(2) (see MAGISTRATES vol 29(2) (Reissue) para 827) to suspend or rescind orders does not apply in relation to orders under the Children Act 1989: s 92(5). There is no jurisdiction to include in a care order provisions as to review by the court of the operation of the order: Cheshire County Council v B [1992] 2 FCR 572, sub nom Re B (a minor) (care order: review) [1993] 1 FLR 421. Where there is a fundamental change of circumstances between making a supervision order and an appeal against it, an application for a care order should be remitted for rehearing: Suffolk County Council v C [1999] 1 FCR 473n, [1999] 1 FLR 259n.

7 Ibid s 31(9). At the date at which this volume states the law no order had been made authorising any person other than the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children to bring such proceedings.

8 Ibid s 31(8)(a). In determining the ordinary residence of a child for any purpose of the Children Act 1989, there is to be disregarded any period in which he lives in any place: (1) which is a school or other institution; (2) in accordance with the requirements of a supervision order under the Children Act 1989 or an order under the Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s 63(1); or (3) while he is being provided with accommodation by or on behalf of a local authority (see para 863 post): Children Act 1989 s 105(6) (amended by the Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s 165(1), Sch 9 para 129).

'School' means an educational institution which is outside the further education sector and the higher education sector and is an institution for providing: (a) primary education; (b) secondary education; or (c) both primary and secondary education, whether or not the institution also provides further education: Education Act 1996 s 4(1) (substituted by the Education Act 1997 s 51; and amended by the Education Act 2002 s 215(2), Sch 22 Pt 3); definition applied by the Children Act 1989 s 105(1) (definition amended by the Education Act 1996 s 582(1), Sch 37 para 91). See further EDUCATION.

The phrase 'any period in which he lives in any place' focuses on both the period in the child's life and the location of the place in which he lives: Re R (a child); North Yorkshire County Council v Wiltshire County Council [1999] Fam 323, [1999] 4 All ER 291 (the Children Act 1989 s 105(6) does not have the effect of determining a child's place of residence for the purposes of s 31(8) as the place where he was first accommodated). As to the court's jurisdiction to make a care order where a child is temporarily resident in England and Wales see Re R (care orders: jurisdiction) [1995] 3 FCR 305, [1995] 1 FLR 711. Where there is an issue as to which authority is to be designated, the Children Act 1989 ss 31(8), 105(6) are to be construed to achieve the result for which they were designed, namely as a simple mechanism to determine the question of administration: Northamptonshire County Council v Islington London Borough Council [2001] Fam 364, [1999] 3 FCR 385, CA. The words 'the child does not live within the area' are to be construed as if they read 'the child does not ordinarily live within the area': Gateshead Metropolitan Borough Council v L [1996] Fam 55, [1996] 3 All ER 264. ## 272. Power of court to direct investigation of child's circumstances.

In contrast to the court's powers in family proceedings<sup>1</sup> to make contact orders, prohibited steps orders, residence orders, specific issue orders and orders varying or discharging such orders<sup>2</sup>, which it may exercise of its own motion<sup>3</sup>, an application by a qualified person is essential to confer jurisdiction on the court to make a care order or supervision order<sup>4</sup>.

Where, in any family proceedings in which a question arises with respect to the welfare of any child<sup>5</sup>, it appears to the court that it may be appropriate for a care order or supervision order to be made with respect to him, the court may direct the appropriate authority<sup>6</sup> to undertake an investigation of the child's circumstances<sup>7</sup>. Where the court gives such a direction the local authority concerned, when undertaking the investigation, must consider whether it should: (1) apply for a care order or for a supervision order with respect to the child; (2) provide services or assistance for the child or his family; or (3) take any other action with respect to the child<sup>8</sup>. Where a local authority undertakes such an investigation, and decides not to apply for a care order or supervision order with respect to the child concerned, it must inform the court of: (a) its reasons for so deciding; (b) any service or assistance which it has provided, or intends to provide, for the child and his family; and (c) any other action which it has taken, or proposes to take, with respect to the child<sup>9</sup>. This information must be given to the court before the end of the period of eight weeks beginning with the date of the direction, unless the court otherwise directs<sup>10</sup>.

272 Power of court to direct investigation of child's circumstances

PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(2) APPLICATIONS UNDER PART IV OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PUBLIC LAW PROCEEDINGS/(i) Applications for Care Orders and Supervision Orders/273. Relationship between care proceedings and other family proceedings.

273. Relationship between care proceedings and other family proceedings.

The distinction between proceedings under Part IV of the Children Act 1989<sup>1</sup> (which governs applications for care orders and supervision orders<sup>2</sup>) and proceedings under Part I and Part II of the Act<sup>3</sup> (which govern orders with respect to children in private law matters) is not rigid<sup>4</sup>. First, it is provided that an application for a care order or supervision order may be made on its own or in any other family proceedings<sup>5</sup>. Secondly, applications by local authorities<sup>6</sup> or authorised persons<sup>7</sup> for care orders or supervision orders fall within the definition of family proceedings<sup>8</sup> and consequently the court may in such proceedings make any other specified order<sup>9</sup> rather than making the care order or supervision order for which application has been made<sup>10</sup>. Additionally, where a court has power to make such other order, it may do so at any time during the course of the proceedings in question even though it is not in a position to dispose finally of those proceedings<sup>11</sup>.

2    For the meaning of 'care order' see para 271 note 4 ante. For the meaning of 'supervision order' see para 271 note 5 ante.

PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(2) APPLICATIONS UNDER PART IV OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PUBLIC LAW PROCEEDINGS/(i) Applications for Care Orders and Supervision Orders/274. When a care order or supervision order may be made; the threshold criteria.

274. When a care order or supervision order may be made; the threshold criteria.

The court may only make a care order or supervision order<sup>1</sup> if it is satisfied:

- 386 (1) that the child<sup>2</sup> concerned is suffering, or is likely to suffer<sup>3</sup>, significant harm<sup>4</sup>; and
- 387 (2) that the harm, or likelihood of harm, is attributable to:
15
- 40. (a) the care given to the child, or likely to be given to him if the order were not made, not being what it would be reasonable to expect a parent to give to him<sup>5</sup>; or
- 41. (b) the child's being beyond parental control<sup>6</sup>.

These conditions are known as the 'threshold criteria'<sup>7</sup>. In this context 'harm' means ill-treatment or the impairment of health or development including, for example, impairment suffered from seeing or hearing the ill-treatment of another<sup>8</sup>; 'development' means physical, intellectual, emotional, social or behavioural development; 'health' means physical or mental health; and 'ill-treatment' includes sexual abuse and forms of treatment which are not physical<sup>9</sup>. Where the question whether harm suffered by a child is significant turns on the child's health or development, his health or development must be compared with that which could reasonably be expected of a similar child<sup>10</sup>.

If the court is satisfied that the 'threshold criteria' are met, it has jurisdiction to make a care order or supervision order, but it is not obliged to do so<sup>11</sup>. In deciding whether or not it should make an order, it must apply the principle requiring it to treat the child's welfare as the paramount consideration<sup>12</sup>. The court is required to have regard in particular to a checklist of relevant matters<sup>13</sup>, including the range of powers available to the court in the proceedings in question<sup>14</sup>.

The court cannot make a care order unless it has considered the care plan<sup>15</sup>. Before making a care order with respect to any child the court must consider the arrangements which the authority has made, or proposes to make, for affording any person contact with the child<sup>16</sup> and must invite the parties to the proceedings to comment on those arrangements<sup>17</sup>. Where a court is considering whether or not to make one or more orders with respect to a child, it must have regard to the presumption against making an order<sup>18</sup>.

No court may exercise the High Court's inherent jurisdiction with respect to children so as to require a child to be placed in the care, or put under the supervision, of a local authority, or so as to make a child who is the subject of a care order a ward of court<sup>19</sup>.

It is an abuse of process to use the court's family proceedings jurisdiction in other situations (for example to attempt to frustrate a decision to remove failed asylum seekers from the United Kingdom)<sup>20</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'care order' see para 271 note 4 ante. For the meaning of 'supervision order' see para 271 note 5 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

3 As to the meaning of 'likely to suffer' see Newham London Borough Council v A-G [1992] 2 FCR 119, [1993] 1 FLR 281, CA ('likely' should not be equated with the 'balance of probabilities'). 'Likely' means a real possibility, one which cannot sensibly be ignored having regard to the nature and gravity of the feared harm in the particular case: Re H (minors) (sexual abuse: standard of proof) [1996] AC 563, [1996] 1 All ER 1, HL; applied in Re G (a child) (care order: threshold criteria) [2001] 1 FCR 165, CA, and Re U (a child) (Department for Education and Skills intervening) [2004] EWCA Civ 567, [2004] 2 FCR 257, [2004] 2 FLR 263 (judge is entitled to rely on both medical and non-medical evidence to reach conclusions); Re T (children) (sexual abuse: standard of proof) [2004] EWCA Civ 558, [2004] 2 FLR 838, [2004] All ER (D) 277 (May). Re H (minors) (sexual abuse: standard of proof) supra was also considered in A Local Authority v H [2005] EWHC 2885 (Fam), [2005] All ER (D) 185 (Dec). See also A Local Authority v S, W and T (by his guardian) [2004] EWHC 1270 (Fam), [2004] 2 FLR 129; Haringey London Borough Council v C (E intervening) [2004] EWHC 2580 (Fam), [2005] 2 FLR 47, [2005] Fam Law 351; Re W (a child) (care proceedings) [2007] EWCA Civ 102, [2007] 2 FCR 160, sub nom Re W (care: threshold criteria) [2007] 2 FLR 98.

The Children Act 1989 s 31 (as amended) is designed to protect families from invasive care orders, and a care order will not be made if there is merely a theoretical risk of significant harm to a child: Birmingham City Council v D; Birmingham City Council v M [1994] 2 FCR 245, [1994] 2 FLR 502. See also Northamptonshire County Council v S [1993] Fam 136, [1993] 1 FLR 554 (likelihood to be determined when local authority involvement begins); but note Humberside County Council v B [1993] 1 FCR 613, [1993] 1 FLR 257 (welfare of child irrelevant in determining whether child has suffered harm). In any case in which the threshold criteria are alleged to be satisfied on the basis of future risk rather than of past harm to a child, there must be a clear written analysis and description by the local authority of the facts alleged to give rise to that future risk in relation to each child, to which all other parties have the opportunity to make written response: Re P (children) (care proceedings: split hearing) [2007] EWCA Civ 1265, [2007] All ER (D) 475 (Nov).

4 Children Act 1989 s 31(2)(a). See Re O (a minor) (care proceedings: education) [1992] 4 All ER 905, [1992] 1 WLR 912; Birmingham City Council v H [1993] 1 FCR 247, [1992] 2 FLR 323. In considering whether a child is suffering significant harm, the relevant time to be taken into account is the date at which the care order application is made or, if protective arrangements have been continuously in force from an earlier date, the date when those arrangements were made: Re M M (care order: abandoned baby) [1996] 2 FCR 521, sub nom Re M (care order: parental responsibility) [1996] 2 FLR 84 (abandoned baby held to be suffering significant harm immediately before being rescued, and likely to suffer significant harm in future because of emotional and physical problems). See H v Trafford Borough Council [1997] 3 FCR 113, 161 JPN 556 (lengthy absences of mother, combined with risk that she might reclaim child, placed child at risk of significant harm through lack of stable home). The extent to which harm needs to be 'significant' was considered in Re L (children) (care proceedings: significant harm) [2006] EWCA Civ 1282, [2006] 3 FCR 301; and in Re L (care: threshold criteria) [2007] 1 FLR 2050. See also Re O (a child) (supervision order: future harm) [2001] EWCA Civ 16, [2001] 1 FCR 289. Evidence can continue to be gathered after proceedings are initiated as to the state of affairs that existed at the time proceedings were initiated: see Re G (children) (care order: evidence) [2001] EWCA Civ 968, [2001] 2 FCR 757, sub nom Re G (care proceedings: threshold conditions) [2001] 2 FLR 1111.

5 Children Act 1989 s 31(2)(b)(i). In a case where the care of the child is shared and it has been proved that the child has suffered significant harm in consequence of deficient care on the part of one of the carers, the threshold conditions required for a care order or supervision order to be made are satisfied even when the court has been unable to identify which of the carers was deficient in the care given to the child: Lancashire County Council v B [2000] 2 AC 147, sub nom Lancashire County Council v A [2000] 2 All ER 97, HL.

As to the correct approach of the court in non-accidental injury cases where the perpetrator is uncertain, see Re O and N (children) (non accidental injury) [2003] UKHL 18, [2004] 1 AC 523, [2003] 2 All ER 305; applied in North Yorkshire County Council v S A [2003] EWCA Civ 839, [2003] 3 FCR 118, [2003] 2 FLR 849 (correct test was whether there was a likelihood or real possibility that potential perpetrators had inflicted the injuries). Where it has been proved that the injuries were non-accidental, it is often sufficient merely to demonstrate that the child was injured in the care of identifiable people and that one or more of those was responsible; the latter will not suffice where it cannot be proved that the injuries were non-accidental: Re L (a child) (care proceedings: responsibility for child's injury) [2006] EWCA Civ 49, [2006] 1 FCR 285, [2006] All ER (D) 72 (Feb). See also Re A and D (non-accidental injury: subdural haematomas) [2002] 1 FLR 337, [2002] Fam Law 266 (threshold criteria met on basis that rough play was not credible cause of subdural haematoma in baby).

When, at a hearing for an application under the Children Act 1989 s 31(2), interim arrangements for the protection of the child by the local authority have been continuously in place for some time, the relevant date at which the threshold conditions have to be satisfied is the date at which the local authority initiated the protection procedure: Re M (minor) (care order: threshold conditions) [1994] 2 AC 424, [1994] 3 All ER 298, HL; applied in Southwark London Borough Council v B [1999] 1 FCR 550, [1998] 2 FLR 1095 (the date is the same for both limbs of the Children Act 1989 s 31(2)(a) (see the text and note 4 supra). As to the making of care orders see further Re C and B (care order: future harm) [2000] 2 FCR 614, [2001] 1 FLR 611, CA. Guidance has been given to local authorities by the Secretary of State under the Local Authority Social Services Act 1970 s 7 (as amended) stating that the power to apply for a care order or supervision order should be exercised only when there appears to be no better way of safeguarding and promoting the welfare of the child suffering, or likely to suffer, significant harm. As to the Secretary of State, and as to the transfer of certain functions of the Secretary of State, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, to the Welsh Ministers see para 155 ante. The local authority has a general duty to promote the upbringing of children in need by their families so far as this is consistent with its duty to promote children's welfare, and to avoid the need for proceedings where possible; it should have regard to the presumption against making an order contained in the Children Act 1989 s 1(5) (see para 302 post) while at the same time giving paramount consideration to the child's welfare (see para 300 post). This means that voluntary arrangements through the provision of services to the child and his family should always be fully explored. Where a care order or supervision order is the appropriate remedy because control of the child's circumstances is necessary to promote his welfare, applications in such proceedings should be part of a carefully planned process. The new scheme imposes strict conditions which have to be met but does not place unnecessary obstacles in the way of action that is necessary to protect the child: see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 3.2. Extensive guidance is given in paras 3.9-3.14 on the matters to be considered when deciding whether to apply for an order. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante. As to the local authority's performance of these duties see Nottinghamshire County Council v P [1994] Fam 18, [1993] 3 All ER 815, CA. The official view of the Department of Health is accordingly that where the prognosis for change is reasonable and parents show a willingness to co-operate with voluntary organisations, an application for a care order or supervision order is unlikely to succeed: Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 3.16.

7 This term is not used in the Children Act 1989 but is used in Guidance relating thereto: see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 3.17. A judge may, in appropriate circumstances, allow a local authority to re-open the issue of threshold criteria, even though the issue has been determined by an earlier agreement and there is no fresh evidence to consider: Re D (a child) (threshold criteria: issue estoppel) [2001] 1 FCR 124. When a split hearing is ordered in care proceedings, express consideration should be given by all parties and the court as to whether satisfaction of the threshold criteria under the Children Act 1989 s 31(2) will be considered and determined as part of the first, the final or an intermediate hearing: Re P (children) (care proceedings: split hearing) [2007] EWCA Civ 1265, [2007] All ER (D) 475 (Nov).

For the official view of the Department of Health about the construction of these provisions see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) paras 3.17-3.25. See Re O (a minor) (care proceedings: education) [1992] 4 All ER 905, [1992] 1 WLR 912 (it is open to the court to conclude that the intellectual and social development of a child playing truant was being hindered, and that she was thereby suffering significant harm).

11 See the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 3.16. In particular, if it considers that the child's welfare would thereby be promoted, the court may instead make an order under the Children Act 1989 s 8 (as amended) (para 247 et seq ante): see eg Humberside County Council v B [1993] 1 FCR 613, [1993] 1 FLR 257. The court must ensure all the necessary information is obtained before making a care order: Re C H (care or interim care order) [1998] 2 FCR 347, [1998] 1 FLR 402, CA. See Re K (care order or residence order) [1996] 1 FCR 365, [1995] 1 FLR 675 (care order may be made despite local authority opposition if 'threshold criteria' are satisfied and the welfare of the child demands it). See also Re R (care proceedings: adjournment) [1998] 3 FCR 654, [1998] 2 FLR 390, CA (judge wrong to adjourn care proceedings when 'threshold criteria' had been met and the interests of the child required a permanent care order); R v East Sussex County Council, ex p W [1999] 1 FCR 536, [1998] 2 FLR 1082 (challenge to authority's decision not to apply for an order). See also Re F (children) (interim care order) [2007] EWCA Civ 516, [2007] 2 FCR 639.

See Re W (a child: care order) [2005] EWCA Civ 649, [2005] 2 FCR 277 (failure of judge to explain why expert evidence which showed parent was incapable of caring for child was not followed; refusal of care order could not stand). Where the court decides that it is necessary to hold a preliminary fact-finding inquiry, it should set out the preliminary issues for determination: Re D (children: contact order) [2005] EWCA Civ 825, [2005] All ER (D) 79 (Jul). It is no obstacle to the holding of a preliminary fact-finding inquiry that no order is at the time being sought: A County Council v DP [2005] EWHC 1593 (Fam), [2005] 2 FLR 1031, [2005] Fam Law 769. Split hearings may be useful to determine factual matters that may impact on the assessment of child protection issues relevant to the final disposal of the application and, if so, judicial continuity is advised if possible: see Re G (a child) (care order: threshold criteria) [2001] 1 FCR 165, [2001] 1 FLR 872, sub nom Re G (care proceedings: split trials) [2000] All ER (D) 2043, CA. A finding of no case to answer is inappropriate in care proceedings: see Re F (a child) (care proceedings) [2007] EWCA Civ 810, [2007] All ER (D) 503 (Jul) (split hearing; allegation of sexual abuse).

Whether a care order or supervision order is made is a matter for the discretion of the court: Re C (care or supervision order) [1999] 2 FLR 621, [1999] Fam Law 750. The court ought to be cautious about making a care order in circumstances where a less draconian supervision order would suffice: Re O (care or supervision order) [1997] 2 FCR 17, [1996] 2 FLR 755. The court cannot make a supervision order as a means of achieving the same ends as a care order, as the effect of the two orders is different: Re V (a minor) (care or supervision order) [1996] 2 FCR 555, [1996] 1 FLR 776, CA. On an application for a care order, where a county court judge is satisfied that a child is likely to suffer significant harm, he has no jurisdiction to make a supervision order instead of a care order on the basis of accepting undertakings from the parent: Re B (a minor) (supervision order: parental undertaking) [1996] 1 WLR 716, [1996] 3 FCR 446, CA. In each case where the choice between a care order or supervision order must be made, the right to respect for private and family life pursuant to Art 8 of the European Convention on Human Rights (ie the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953) Cmd 8969)) must be considered: Re O (a child) (supervision order: future harm) [2001] EWCA Civ 16, [2001] 1 FCR 289, [2001] 1 FLR 923, CA.

Evidence will be required to enable the court to discharge its duties under these provisions; and in this context the children's guardian (see paras 319-321 post) can be expected to play an important role. Where the parties agree that a care order should be made, the court is still obliged to investigate the relevant evidence upon which the order is to be based. The court may even re-investigate confession evidence which has been held to be inadmissible in criminal proceedings, as such a confession may nevertheless be true and relevant in care proceedings: Re G (a minor) (care order: threshold conditions) [1995] Fam 16, sub nom Hackney London Borough Council v G [1994] 2 FCR 216.

The local authority has a duty in care proceedings to conduct itself with integrity, transparency and inclusiveness necessary to satisfy the parents' rights to a fair hearing (pursuant to Art 6 of the European Convention on Human Rights: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) para 134 et seq) and to respect for their private and family life (pursuant to Art 8 of the European Convention on Human Rights: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) para 149 et seq): see Re M (care: challenging decisions by local authority) [2001] 2 FLR 1300; Re C (care proceedings: disclosure of local authority's decision making process) [2002] EWHC 1379 (Fam), [2002] 2 FCR 673, sub nom Re L (care: assessment: fair trial) [2002] 2 FLR 730; but cf Re J (a child) (care proceedings: fair trial) [2006] EWCA Civ 545, [2007] 1 FLR 77, [2006] 2 FCR 107 (local authority fell short of the standards of transparency and fairness set by the decision in Re C (care proceedings: disclosure of local authority's decision making process) supra, but these were not substantial enough to affect the fairness of the proceedings). See also Re B (a child) [2007] EWCA Civ 556, [2007] Fam Law 798 (emphasising the need for fairness of care proceedings).

Where there is consensus amongst the parties, the profundity of the investigation which it is the court's duty to carry out must reflect the reality that there is such a consensus, particularly where those parties include the local authority with statutory duties in respect of the child and the children's guardian (as to which see paras 319-321 post): Devon County Council v S [1992] Fam 176, [1992] 3 All ER 793. See also Re D (a minor) (basis of uncontested care order) [1995] 2 FCR 681, sub nom Stockport Metropolitan Borough Council v D [1995] 1 FLR 873 (in care proceedings, the court has no definable statutory duty in relation to unborn children). The court does not have jurisdiction to attach a direction to a care order: Re C (a minor) (care order) (1992) Times, 18 August.

13 Ie the welfare checklist: see ibid s 1(3), (4) (as amended); and para 303 post.

14 See ibid s 1(3)(g); and para 303 post. Accordingly, the court will need to consider whether the making of any other order might be appropriate (eg a residence order rather than a care order): see para 273 ante.

275. Care plans.

Where an application is made on which a care order<sup>1</sup> might be made with respect to a child<sup>2</sup>, the appropriate local authority<sup>3</sup> must, within such time as the court may direct, prepare a care plan<sup>4</sup> for the future care of the child<sup>5</sup>. While the application is pending, the authority must keep any such care plan under review and, if it is of the opinion some change is required, the authority must revise the plan, or make a new plan, accordingly<sup>6</sup>. A care plan must give any prescribed information and do so in the prescribed manner<sup>7</sup>. If a children's guardian wishes to challenge a local authority's care plan the appropriate method is not by way of judicial review, but within the existing care proceedings<sup>8</sup>.

The court is under a duty to scrutinise the care plan advanced by the local authority, and if the court does not think that it meets the needs of the child concerned, the court can refuse to make a care order<sup>9</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'care order' see para 271 note 4 ante. For these purposes, references to a care order do not include an interim care order: Children Act 1989 s 31A(5) (s 31A added by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 120(2)).

2 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'local authority' see para 248 note 10 ante. For these purposes, the appropriate local authority, in relation to a child in respect of whom a care order might be made, is the local authority proposed to be designated in the order: Children Act 1989 s 31A(4) (as added: see note 1 supra).

4 A plan prepared, or treated as prepared, under ibid s 31A (as added) is referred to in the Children Act 1989 as a 'section 31A plan': s 31A(6) (as added: see note 1 supra).

5 Ibid s 31A(1) (as added: see note 1 supra). The content of the care plan required was set out in Manchester City Council v F [1993] 1 FCR 1000, [1993] 1 FLR 419n. Prior to the enactment of s 31(3A), the court's duty to scrutinise the care plan was set out in Re R (minors) (care proceedings: care plan) [1994] 2 FCR 136, sub nom Re J (minors) (care: care plan) [1994] 1 FLR 253; applied in Re C H (care or interim care order) [1998] 2 FCR 347, [1998] 1 FLR 402, CA. The court has no power to supervise the execution of a care plan once a full care order has been made, and it must therefore ensure before making the order that the plan has been comprehensively compiled in accordance with the relevant criteria and considerations, including those set out in the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 3 Family Placements (HMSO, 1991) para 2.62: Re R (minors) (care proceedings: care plan) supra. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante. See also Re H (care: change in care plan) [1998] 2 FCR 657, [1998] 1 FLR 193, CA (care plan fatally flawed after being altered on the information of a witness who refused to sign a written statement or give evidence in the care proceedings). When a local authority, in preparing a care plan, recognises adoption as an option, it ought to adopt a twin track rather than a sequential approach, or consider concurrent planning: Re D and K (minors) (care plan: twin track planning) [1999] 4 All ER 893, [1999] 3 FCR 109. See also B Metropolitan Borough Council v H (Goodman Project: Concurrent Planning) [2000] Fam Law 237.

6 Children Act 1989 s 31A(2) (as added: see note 1 supra).

7 Ibid s 31A(3) (as added: see note 1 supra).

8 See Re C (care proceedings: care plan) [2002] Fam Law 497, sub nom Re C (adoption: religious observance) [2002] 1 FLR 1119. As to children's guardians see paras 319-321 post.

9 Re S (children) (care proceedings: care plan) [2007] EWCA Civ 232, [2007] 1 FCR 721. The court also has the right to invite the local authority to reconsider the care plan if the court comes to the conclusion that the plan, or any change in the plan, involves a course of action which the court believes is contrary to the interests of the child, and which would be likely to lead the court to refuse to make a care order if the local authority were to adhere to the care plan it had proposed: Re S (children) (care proceedings: care plan) supra.

NOTE 6--See Re A (care plan) [2008] EWCA Civ 650, [2008] Fam Law 722, [2008] All ER (D) 192 (May).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/4. PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(2) APPLICATIONS UNDER PART IV OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PUBLIC LAW PROCEEDINGS/(ii) Care Orders/276. Effect and duration of care order.

(ii) Care Orders

276. Effect and duration of care order.

Where a care order<sup>1</sup> is made with respect to a child<sup>2</sup> it is the duty of the local authority<sup>3</sup> designated by the order to receive the child into its care and to keep him in its care while the order remains in force<sup>4</sup>. While a care order is in force with respect to a child, the local authority designated by the order has parental responsibility<sup>5</sup> for the child<sup>6</sup>, and has the power to determine the extent to which the child's parent, guardian, special guardian<sup>7</sup> or step-parent who has acquired parental responsibility for the child<sup>8</sup> may meet his parental responsibility for him<sup>9</sup>. However, the authority must not exercise this power<sup>10</sup> unless it is satisfied that it is necessary to do so in order to safeguard or promote the child's welfare<sup>11</sup>. This does not prevent a person as mentioned above<sup>12</sup> who has care of the child from doing what is reasonable in all the circumstances of the case for the purpose of safeguarding or promoting his welfare<sup>13</sup>. The local authority must carry out periodic reviews of the child's case to consider whether the care order can be discharged or the care plan revised<sup>14</sup>.

While a care order is in force with respect to a child, no person may cause the child to be known by a new surname, or remove him from the United Kingdom<sup>15</sup>, without either the written consent of every person who has parental responsibility for the child or the leave of the court<sup>16</sup>. However, this does not prevent the removal of such a child, for a period of less than one month, by the authority in whose care he is<sup>17</sup>. Nor does the prohibition apply to arrangements for such a child to live outside England and Wales<sup>18</sup>.

Any care order, other than an interim order, continues in force until the child reaches 18 unless it is brought to an end earlier<sup>19</sup>. The making of a care order discharges any contact, prohibited steps, residence or specific issue order or any order varying such an order<sup>20</sup>, or any supervision or school attendance order<sup>21</sup>, and brings wardship to an end<sup>22</sup>. A care order is discharged by the making of a residence order<sup>23</sup> or the making of a special guardianship order<sup>24</sup>, and takes effect subject to any emergency protection order<sup>25</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'care order' see para 271 note 4 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante. No care order may be made with respect to a child who has reached the age of 17 (or 16 in the case of a child who is married): Children Act 1989 s 31(3).

3 For the meaning of 'local authority' see para 248 note 10 ante.

4 Children Act 1989 s 33(1). For the methods whereby this duty may be discharged see para 867 et seq post. Where a care order has been made with respect to a child on the application of an authorised person (see para 271 ante), but the local authority designated by the order was not informed that that person proposed to make the application, the child may be kept in the care of that person until received into the care of the authority: s 33(2). It would be an inappropriate fetter on a local authority's discretion for a court to require a children's guardian to be allowed continued involvement with the child: Kent County Council v C [1993] Fam 57, [1993] 1 All ER 719. As to children's guardians (formerly known as guardians ad litem: see para 230 ante) see paras 319-321 post. A local authority is not under a general duty to inform other bodies of the identities and findings against people found guilty of sexual abuse in care or family proceedings: Re V (minors) (sexual abuse: disclosure), Re L (sexual abuse: disclosure) [1999] 1 WLR 299, [1999] 1 FCR 308, CA. However, see Re C (sexual abuse: disclosure to landlords) [2002] EWHC 234 (Fam), [2002] 2 FCR 385, [2002] 2 FLR 375 (court allowed disclosure to housing association of finding that child's father had history of sexually abusing children).

5 For the meaning of 'parental responsibility' see para 134 ante.

6 Children Act 1989 s 33(3)(a).

7 For the meaning of 'guardian of a child' see para 144 note 5 ante. As to special guardianship see paras 151-154 ante.

8 Ie a person who has acquired parental responsibility by virtue of the Children Act 1989 s 4A (as added): see para 140 ante.

9 Ibid s 33(3)(b) (amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 139(1), Sch 3 paras 54, 63). The power in the Children Act 1989 s 33(3)(b) (as amended) is subject (in addition to being subject to the provisions of s 33) to any right, duty, power, responsibility or authority which a person mentioned in s 33(3)(b) (as amended) has in relation to the child and his property by virtue of any other enactment: s 33(9) (amended by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 Sch 3 paras 54, 63). The Supreme Court Act 1981 s 37 (prospectively renamed the Senior Courts Act 1981 by the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59(5), Sch 11 para 1 as from a day to be appointed) supports the rights conferred under the Children Act 1989 s 33, and in particular s 33(3) after a care order has been made: Re P (care orders: injunctive relief) [2000] 3 FCR 426.

As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante.

While a care order<sup>1</sup> is in force with respect to a child<sup>2</sup>, the local authority<sup>3</sup> designated by the order<sup>4</sup> must not cause the child to be brought up in any religious persuasion other than that in which he would have been brought up if the order had not been made<sup>5</sup>. Nor does the authority have the right: (1) to agree or refuse to agree to the making of an adoption order with respect to the child<sup>6</sup> or an order giving parental responsibility for the child to an applicant abroad<sup>7</sup>; or (2) to appoint a guardian<sup>8</sup> for the child<sup>9</sup>.

PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(2) APPLICATIONS UNDER PART IV OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PUBLIC LAW PROCEEDINGS/(ii) Care Orders/278. Contact with child in care.

278. Contact with child in care.

The Children Act 1989 establishes the principle that in respect of a child<sup>1</sup> in care, the local authority<sup>2</sup> must allow the child reasonable contact with his parents<sup>3</sup> and certain other people, unless directed otherwise by a court order<sup>4</sup>. The underlying principle is that the authority, the child and other persons concerned should as far as possible agree reasonable arrangements before the care order<sup>5</sup> is made, but should be able to seek the court's assistance if agreement cannot be reached or the authority wants to deny contact to a person who would otherwise be entitled to it<sup>6</sup>. The Act accordingly provides that where a child is in the care of a local authority, the authority must allow the child reasonable contact with: (1) his parents; (2) any guardian or special guardian of his; (3) any step-parent who has acquired parental responsibility for the child under the Children Act 1989; (4) where there was a residence order in force with respect to the child immediately before the care order was made, the person in whose favour the order was made; and (5) where, immediately before the care order was made, a person had care of the child by virtue of an order made in the exercise of the High Court's inherent jurisdiction with respect to children, that person<sup>7</sup>.

An authority may refuse to allow the contact that would otherwise be required under the above provisions if it is satisfied that it is necessary to do so in order to safeguard or promote the child's welfare, and the refusal is decided upon as a matter of urgency and does not last for more than seven days<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'local authority' see para 248 note 10 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'parent' see para 248 note 1 ante.

4 See the Children Act 1989 s 34 (as amended); and the text and notes 7-8 infra. Prior to the Children Act 1989, the question of who should have power to determine the extent to which parents and others should be entitled to contact with a child in care was a controversial one: see, in particular, the decision of the House of Lords in A v Liverpool City Council [1982] AC 363, [1981] 2 All ER 385, HL. In R v United Kingdom (Application 11468/85) [1988] 2 FLR 445, ECtHR, the question arose whether English law was compatible with the right to respect for family life embodied in Art 8 of the European Convention on Human Rights (ie the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950) (TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969).

A care order which provides for contact to take place at the authority's discretion does not erode the authority's duty under the Children Act 1989 s 34: Re L (minors) (care proceedings: contact) [1998] 3 FCR 339, (1997) 161 JP 960, sub nom L v Bromley London Borough Council [1998] 1 FLR 709. The jurisdiction under the Children Act 1989 s 34 is not to be employed so as to prevent contact which the local authority considers advantageous to the child's welfare: Re W (a child) (parental contact: prohibition) [2000] Fam 130, [2000] 2 WLR 1276, CA.

5 For the meaning of 'care order' see para 271 note 4 ante.

6 See the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 3.76. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante. But cf Re B (minors) (children in care: contact) [1993] Fam 301, [1993] 1 FCR 363, CA (presumption of contact must be balanced against child's long-term interests, and the court is entitled to assume that local authority's plans to terminate contact are for child's welfare). However, it is for the local authority to justify refusal of contact, and for the court to decide on contact, and the court can require the authority to justify its plans where they involve excluding contact: Re B (minors) (children in care: contact) [1993] Fam 301, [1993] 1 FCR 363, CA; applied in Re N (minors) (care orders: termination of parental contact) [1994] 2 FCR 1101, sub nom Re N (contested care application) [1994] 2 FLR 992 (order for termination of contact made where contact would hamper efforts to find permanent secure homes for disturbed children). Where both the child and the mother are children in care, the court still has a duty to assess the relative benefits and detriment of contact to the two children: Re H (minors) (parental contact) [1993] 1 FCR 904, 157 LG Rev 621, CA. Although it is open to the court to make an order inconsistent with the local authority care plan, this will usually be inadvisable: Re D and H (care: termination of contact) [1997] 1 FLR 841, CA. As to the use of psychological evidence by a mother at risk of being permanently separated from her child see H v West Sussex County Council [1998] 3 FCR 126, [1998] 1 FLR 862. The provisions of the Children Act 1989 s 34 do not contravene a person's right to family and private life under Art 8 of the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953) Cmd 8969): Re F (care: termination of contact) [2000] 2 FCR 481.

See Re G (children: contact) [2002] EWCA Civ 761, [2002] 3 FCR 377, [2003] 1 FLR 270 (where a care order was made in relation to children who had suffered serious injuries by one of the parents and the court was unable to determine which, and the mother was to continue having contact, there was no reason to terminate the father's contact).

8 Children Act 1989 s 34(6). The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision as to: (1) the steps to be taken by a local authority which has exercised its powers under s 34(6); (2) the circumstances in which, and conditions subject to which, the terms of any order under s 34 may be departed from by agreement between the local authority and the person in relation to whom the order is made; (3) notification by a local authority of any variation or suspension of arrangements made (otherwise than under an order under s 34) with a view to affording any person contact with a child to whom s 34 applies: s 34(8). As to the regulations made under this provision see the Contact with Children Regulations 1991, SI 1991/891; and para 279 post. If the authority exercises the power to refuse to allow contact it must give notice to: (a) the child, if he is of sufficient understanding; (b) the persons mentioned in heads (1)-(5) in the text; and (c) any other person whose wishes and feelings the authority considers to be relevant: reg 2. Such notice must be given in writing and may be sent by post: reg 1(2).

278 Contact with child in care

PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(2) APPLICATIONS UNDER PART IV OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PUBLIC LAW PROCEEDINGS/(ii) Care Orders/279. Contact orders in respect of children in care.

279. Contact orders in respect of children in care.

On an application made by a local authority<sup>1</sup> or a child<sup>2</sup> in its care<sup>3</sup>, the court may make such order (a 'care contact order') as it considers appropriate with respect to the contact which is to be allowed between the child and any named person<sup>4</sup>. On an application made by<sup>5</sup>:

- 388 (1) the child's parents<sup>6</sup>;
- 389 (2) any guardian or special guardian<sup>7</sup> of his;
- 390 (3) any step-parent who has acquired parental responsibility under the Children Act 1989<sup>8</sup>;
- 391 (4) where there was a residence order in force with respect to the child immediately before the care order<sup>9</sup> was made, the person in whose favour the order was made; and
- 392 (5) where, immediately before the care order was made, a person had care of the child by virtue of an order made in the exercise of the High Court's inherent jurisdiction with respect to children, that person, or on an application by any person who has obtained the leave of the court to make the application, the court may make such order as it considers appropriate with respect to the contact which is to be allowed between the child and that person<sup>10</sup>.

Any order made under these provisions may impose such conditions as the court considers appropriate<sup>11</sup> and may be made either at the same time as the care order itself or later<sup>12</sup>. Moreover, when making a care order with respect to a child, or in any family proceedings in connection with a child who is in the care of a local authority, the court may make an order under these provisions even though no application for such an order has been made with respect to the child, if it considers that the order should be made<sup>13</sup>.

On an application<sup>14</sup> made by the authority or the child, the court may make an order authorising the authority to refuse to allow contact between the child and any person who is mentioned in heads (1) to (5) above and named in the order<sup>15</sup>. Where a person has made an application for a care contact order, the application has been refused and a period of not less than six months has elapsed since the refusal, that person may not make a further application for such an order with respect to the same child, unless he has obtained the leave of the court<sup>16</sup>.

A local authority may depart from the terms of a care contact order by agreement with the person in relation to whom the order is made, and where the child is of sufficient understanding, subject also to agreement with him<sup>17</sup>, and on condition that a written notification is sent to: (a) the child, if he is of sufficient understanding<sup>18</sup>; (b) the child's parents<sup>19</sup>; (c) any guardian of his<sup>20</sup>; (d) where there was a residence order in force with respect to the child immediately before the care order was made, the person in whose favour the order was made<sup>21</sup>; and (e) where, immediately before the care order was made, a person had care of the child by virtue of an order made in the exercise of the High Court's inherent jurisdiction with respect to children, that person<sup>22</sup>; and (f) any other person whose wishes and feelings the authority considers to be relevant<sup>23</sup>, within seven days of the agreement to depart from the terms of the order and containing those parts of the following information<sup>24</sup> which the authority considers those persons need to know<sup>25</sup>: (i) the local authority's decision<sup>26</sup>; (ii) the date of the decision<sup>27</sup>; (iii) the reasons for the decision<sup>28</sup>; (iv) the duration of the order, if applicable<sup>29</sup>; (v) the remedies available in case of dissatisfaction<sup>30</sup>.

A care contact order ceases to have effect when the child reaches 18, if it would otherwise still be in force<sup>31</sup>. The court may vary or discharge a care contact order on the application of the authority, the child concerned or the person named in the order<sup>32</sup>.

2 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

3 Ie where no agreement as to contact is reached: see para 278 ante.

4 Children Act 1989 s 34(2). The power extends to an order that there be no contact between the child and a named person, but it will rarely be appropriate to make such an order: Kent County Council v C [1993] Fam 57, [1993] 1 All ER 719, [1993] 1 FLR 308; West Glamorgan County Council v P (No 2) [1992] 2 FCR 406, [1993] 1 FLR 407; Nottinghamshire County Council v P [1994] Fam 18, [1993] 3 All ER 815, CA. In a situation where both the mother and child are children, the principle that the child's welfare should be the court's paramount consideration applies only to the mother's child since it is that child which is the subject of the contact applications: Birmingham City Council v H (a minor) [1994] 2 AC 212, [1994] 1 All ER 12, HL; F v Leeds City Council [1994] 2 FCR 428, [1994] 2 FLR 60, CA. An order under the Children Act 1989 s 34(4) should not be made merely because circumstances might change in the future so as to make termination of contact appropriate: see Re S (children) (termination of contact) [2004] EWCA Civ 1397, [2005] 1 FCR 489, sub nom Re S (care: parental contact) [2005] 1 FLR 469. PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(2) APPLICATIONS UNDER PART IV OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PUBLIC LAW PROCEEDINGS/(ii) Care Orders/280. Avoidance of delay in care proceedings.

280. Avoidance of delay in care proceedings.

In any proceedings in which any question with respect to the upbringing<sup>1</sup> of a child<sup>2</sup> arises, the court must have regard to the general principle that any delay in determining the question is likely to prejudice his welfare<sup>3</sup>.

A court hearing an application for a care order or supervision order<sup>4</sup> must draw up a timetable with a view to disposing of the application without delay<sup>5</sup>, and must give such directions as it considers appropriate for the purpose of ensuring, so far as is reasonably practicable, that that timetable is adhered to<sup>6</sup>. Rules of court may specify periods within which specified steps must be taken in relation to such proceedings, and may make other provision with respect to such proceedings for the purpose of ensuring, so far as is reasonably practicable, that they are disposed of without delay<sup>7</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'upbringing' see para 266 note 9 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

3 See the Children Act 1989 s 1(2); and para 301 post. It must be expected that the court hearing an application for a care order or supervision order will normally need to adjourn the proceedings to a further hearing or hearings because it is not in a position to decide the application, even when it is not contested. The children's guardian (formerly known as the guardian ad litem: see paras 230 ante, 319-321 post) will usually need time to make inquiries, establish the child's and others' views, investigate the applicant's plans and prepare a report and recommendations for the court. Other parties will need to prepare their case, instruct a solicitor where appropriate, obtain witness statements etc: see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 3.31. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante. See also Re B (a minor) (interim order for contact) [1994] 1 FCR 905, [1994] 2 FLR 269. For consideration of time estimates, discovery and presentation of evidence in care proceedings see Re J C (care proceedings: practice and procedure) [1996] 1 FCR 434, [1995] 2 FLR 77. The court should not adjourn care proceedings in order to allow related criminal proceedings against the child's parents to be heard first, as the child's welfare takes precedence over any possible prejudice to the parents, and delay is generally detrimental to a child's welfare: Re T B (care proceedings: criminal trial) [1996] 1 FCR 101, [1995] 2 FLR 810, CA. PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(2) APPLICATIONS UNDER PART IV OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PUBLIC LAW PROCEEDINGS/(iii) Supervision Orders/281. Supervision orders and their effects.

(iii) Supervision Orders

281. Supervision orders and their effects.

While a supervision order<sup>1</sup>, putting the child<sup>2</sup> under the supervision of a designated local authority<sup>3</sup>, is in force it is the supervisor's duty:

- 393 (1) to advise, assist and befriend the supervised child<sup>4</sup>;
- 394 (2) to take such steps as are reasonably necessary to give effect to the order<sup>5</sup>; and
- 395 (3) where the order is not wholly complied with, or the supervisor considers that it may no longer be necessary, to consider whether or not to apply to the court for its variation or discharge<sup>6</sup>.

The court may make a supervision order only if it is satisfied that the 'threshold criteria' are satisfied<sup>7</sup>. In appropriate circumstances an interim supervision order may be made<sup>8</sup>, and where in any proceedings on an application for a care order<sup>9</sup> or supervision order, a court makes a residence order with respect to the child concerned, it must also make an interim supervision order with respect to him unless it is satisfied that his welfare will be satisfactorily safeguarded without an interim order being made<sup>10</sup>.

A supervision order may require the supervised child to comply with any directions given from time to time by the supervisor which require him to do all or any of the following things: (a) to live at a place or places specified in the directions for a period or periods so specified; (b) to present himself to a person or persons specified in the directions at a place or places and on a day or days so specified; and (c) to participate in activities specified in the directions on a day or days so specified<sup>11</sup>. It is for the supervisor to decide whether, and to what extent, he exercises his power to give directions and to decide the form of any directions which he gives<sup>12</sup>.

The making of a supervision order with respect to any child brings to an end any earlier care order or supervision order which was made with respect to that child and would otherwise continue in force<sup>13</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'supervision order' see para 271 note 5 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante. No supervision order may be made with respect to a child who has reached the age of 17 (or 16 in the case of a child who is married): Children Act 1989 s 31(3).

3 See under ibid s 31(1)(b) (as amended): see para 271 ante.

4 Ibid s 35(1)(a).

5 Ibid s 35(1)(b).

6 Ibid s 35(1)(c). In the case of 'private law' proceedings (see para 247 et seq ante), a family assistance order may be appropriate: see s 16 (as amended); and para 267 ante. 'Supervised child' and 'supervisor', in relation to a supervision order mean, respectively, the child who is, or is to be, under supervision, and the person under whose supervision he is, or is to be, by virtue of the order: s 105(1). This definition also applies in relation to education supervision orders: see paras 296-298 post.

7 See ibid s 31(2); and para 274 ante. See also Leeds City Council v C [1993] 1 FCR 585, [1993] 1 FLR 269. In the exercise of its discretion, the court is guided by the welfare principle set out in the Children Act 1989 s 1(1) (see para 300 post) and it must consider in particular the matters specified in the welfare checklist contained in s 1(3) (see para 303 post), as well as the presumption against making an order set out in s 1(5) (see para 302 post). A county court judge has no inherent jurisdiction to accept undertakings as part of a supervision order from a parent even though the parent is willing to give them: Re B (a minor) (supervision order: parental undertaking) [1996] 1 WLR 716, [1996] 3 FCR 446, CA.

10 Children Act 1989 s 38(3). For general provisions regarding interim orders see paras 288-292 post.

11 Ibid s 35(2), Sch 3 para 2(1). The supervisor's powers under this provision do not extend to the giving of directions in respect of any medical or psychiatric examination or treatment, which are dealt with by specific provisions: see Sch 3 para 2(3); and para 283 post. Schedule 3 (as amended) does not confer jurisdiction on the court to make a supervision order subject to conditions: Re V (a minor) (care or supervision order) [1996] 2 FCR 555, [1996] 1 FLR 776, CA; followed in Re S (care or supervision order) [1996] 2 FCR 719, [1996] 1 FLR 753.

In certain circumstances, a child may be placed under a supervision requirement by a children's hearing in Scotland. Such a requirement may require a child to reside at a specified place, which may include a place in England and Wales: see the Children (Scotland) Act 1995 s 70(3), (4).

PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(2) APPLICATIONS UNDER PART IV OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PUBLIC LAW PROCEEDINGS/(iii) Supervision Orders/283. Psychiatric and medical examinations and treatment.

283. Psychiatric and medical examinations and treatment.

A supervision order<sup>1</sup> may require the supervised child<sup>2</sup> to submit to a medical or psychiatric examination or to submit to any such examination from time to time as directed by the supervisor<sup>3</sup>. However, no court may include such a requirement in a supervision order unless it is satisfied that: (1) where the child has sufficient understanding to make an informed decision, that he consents to its inclusion; and (2) satisfactory arrangements have been, or can be, made for the examination<sup>4</sup>.

Where a court which proposes to make or vary a supervision order is satisfied, on the evidence of a registered medical practitioner, that the mental or physical condition of the supervised child is such as requires, and may be susceptible to, treatment but, in the case of a mental condition, is not such as to warrant his detention in pursuance of a hospital order<sup>5</sup>, the court may include in the order a requirement that the supervised child must, for a period specified in the order, submit to such treatment as is so specified<sup>6</sup>. No court may include such a requirement in a supervision order unless it is satisfied, where the child has sufficient understanding to make an informed decision, that he consents to its inclusion, and that satisfactory arrangements have been, or can be made for the treatment<sup>7</sup>. The treatment specified must be: (a) by, or under the direction of, such registered medical practitioner as may be specified in the order<sup>8</sup>; (b) as a non-resident patient at such a place as may be so specified<sup>9</sup>; or (c) in the case of treatment of a mental condition, as a resident patient in a hospital, independent hospital or care home, or in the case of treatment of a physical condition, in a health service hospital<sup>10</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'supervision order' see para 271 note 5 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'supervised child' see para 281 note 6 ante.

3 Children Act 1989 s 35(2), Sch 3 para 4(1). For the meaning of 'supervisor' see para 281 note 6 ante.

Any such examination is required to be conducted: (1) by, or under the direction of, such registered medical practitioner as may be specified in the order; (2) at a place specified in the order and at which the supervised child is to attend as a non-resident patient; or (3) at a health service hospital or (in the case of a psychiatric examination) a hospital, independent hospital or care home, at which the supervised child is, or is to attend as, a resident patient: Sch 3 para 4(2) (amended by the Care Standards Act 2000 s 116, Sch 4 para 14(1), (24)). However, a requirement under head (3) supra may not be included unless the court is satisfied, on the evidence of a registered medical practitioner, that the child may be suffering from a physical or mental condition that requires and may be susceptible to treatment, and that a period as a resident patient is necessary if the examination is to be carried out properly: Children Act 1989 Sch 3 para 4(3).

As to registered medical practitioners see MEDICAL PROFESSIONS vol 30(1) (Reissue) para 1 et seq. For these purposes, 'health service hospital' means a health service hospital within the meaning given by the National Health Service Act 2006 or the National Health Service (Wales) Act 2006: Children Act 1989 s 105(1) (definition amended by the National Health Service (Consequential Provisions) Act 2006 s 2, Sch 1 paras 124, 125). For these purposes 'hospital' has the same meaning as in the Mental Health Act 1983 s 145(1) (see MENTAL HEALTH vol 30(2) (Reissue) para 417), except that it does not include a hospital at which high security psychiatric services within the meaning of the Mental Health Act 1983 are provided (see MENTAL HEALTH vol 30(2) (Reissue) para 418): Children Act 1989 s 105(1) (definition amended by the Health Act 1999 (Supplementary, Consequential etc Provisions) Order 2000, SI 2000/90, art 3(2), Sch 2 para 5). 'Care home' has the same meaning as in the Care Standards Act 2000 (see MENTAL HEALTH vol 30(2) (Reissue) para 430): Children Act 1989 s 105(1) (definition added by the Care Standards Act 2000 Sch 4 para 14(1), (23)). See also Re W (a minor) (medical treatment: court's jurisdiction) [1993] Fam 64, [1992] 4 All ER 627, CA, where the court decided that the Family Law Reform Act 1969 s 8 did not empower a minor who had attained the age of 16 to override a consent to medical treatment given by someone with parental authority (see para 4 ante); Lord Donaldson of Lymington MR rejected the submission that that decision was inconsistent with the approach of the Children Act 1989 Sch 3 para 5.

If a medical practitioner by whom or under whose direction a supervised person is being treated in pursuance of a requirement included in a supervision order by virtue of the Children Act 1989 Sch 3 para 5 (as amended) is unwilling to continue to treat or direct the treatment of the supervised child or is of the opinion that: (1) the treatment should be continued beyond the period specified in the order; (2) the supervised child needs different treatment; (3) he is not susceptible to treatment; or (4) he does not require further treatment, the practitioner must make a report in writing to that effect to the supervisor: Sch 3 para 5(6). On receiving such a report, the supervisor must refer it to the court, and on such a reference the court may make an order cancelling or varying the requirement: Sch 3 para 5(7).

PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(2) APPLICATIONS UNDER PART IV OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PUBLIC LAW PROCEEDINGS/(iii) Supervision Orders/284. Power of supervisor to give directions to responsible persons.

284. Power of supervisor to give directions to responsible persons.

A supervision order<sup>1</sup> may, with the consent of any responsible person<sup>2</sup>, include a requirement<sup>3</sup> that: (1) he take all reasonable steps to ensure that the supervised child<sup>4</sup> complies with any direction given by the supervisor<sup>5</sup>; (2) he take all reasonable steps to ensure that the supervised child complies with any requirement for medical or psychiatric examination or treatment included in the order<sup>6</sup>; and (3) he comply with any directions given by the supervisor<sup>7</sup> requiring him to attend at a place specified in the directions for the purpose of taking part in activities so specified<sup>8</sup>. A supervision order may also require any person who is a responsible person in relation to the supervised child to keep the supervisor informed of his address, if it differs from the child's<sup>9</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'supervision order' see para 271 note 5 ante.

2 'Responsible person', in relation to a supervised child, means any person who has parental responsibility for the child, and any other person with whom the child is living: Children Act 1989 ss 35(2), 105(1), Sch 3 para 1. For the meaning of 'parental responsibility' see para 134 ante. The co-operation of the responsible person is a vital contribution to the effectiveness of the order: see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 3.91. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'supervised child' see para 281 note 6 ante.

4 Children Act 1989 Sch 3 para 3(1). The inability of the court to require adults to contribute towards making the supervision order effective, or even to allow access to the child, was often an important factor in the perceived ineffectiveness of supervision orders: see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Vol 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 3.89.

5 Children Act 1989 Sch 3 para 3(1)(a). The reference in the text to directions is those given by the supervisor under Sch 3 para 2: see para 281 ante.

7 Children Act 1989 Sch 3 para 3(1)(b). The reference in the text to any requirement for medical or psychiatric examination is to any such requirement under Sch 3 para 4 or para 5 (as amended): see para 283 ante.

8 Ibid Sch 3 para 3(1)(c). A direction under head (3) in the text may specify the time at which the responsible person is to attend and whether or not the supervised child is required to attend with him: Sch 3 para 3(2). Only a supervisor has the power to direct a responsible person to attend at a specified place to undergo a course of treatment, although the court can order a responsible person to comply with such a direction: Re H (minors) (terms of supervision order) [1994] 2 FCR 1, [1994] 2 FLR 979.

285. Address of supervised child.

A supervision order<sup>1</sup> may require the supervised child<sup>2</sup> to: (1) keep the supervisor<sup>3</sup> informed of any change in his address<sup>4</sup>; and (2) allow the supervisor to visit him at the place where he is living<sup>5</sup>. The responsible person<sup>6</sup> in relation to any child with respect to whom a supervision order is made must<sup>7</sup>: (a) if asked by the supervisor, inform him of the child's address if it is known to him<sup>8</sup>; and (b) if he is living with the child, allow the supervisor reasonable contact with the child<sup>9</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/4. PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(2) APPLICATIONS UNDER PART IV OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PUBLIC LAW PROCEEDINGS/(iii) Supervision Orders/286. Breach of a requirement or direction.

286. Breach of a requirement or direction.

There is no prescribed remedy for breach of a requirement or direction. However, where the supervision order is not wholly complied with, the supervisor<sup>1</sup> must consider whether to apply to the court for its variation or discharge<sup>2</sup>. If the supervisor is prevented from visiting the child<sup>3</sup> or having reasonable contact with him<sup>4</sup> he may apply to the court for a warrant authorising a constable to assist him to exercise his powers<sup>5</sup>. If the supervisor considers that the refusal of reasonable contact requires that urgent action be taken, he may apply for an emergency protection order<sup>6</sup> or ask the constable to take the child into police protection<sup>7</sup>.

Failure to comply with requirements may lead to the local authority reconsidering its plans for the child, and this possibility should be explained to the child, the responsible person and his parents, and to any other person caring for the child, so that they know where they stand and can see the value to the child of their co-operation<sup>8</sup>.

8 See the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989 Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 3.95. The local authority should at all times respond to non-co-operation in a positive and constructive way designed to regain that co-operation. Failure to work closely with those concerned with the child's welfare, in particular with the parents, may lead to a breakdown in the local authority's relationship with the parents, and consequent deleterious effects on the welfare of the child. The aim must be at all times to strive to gain the parent's support for the plans for the child's future. The court and children's guardian are also likely to want to ensure that the child and other persons understand the significance of the order when it is made: see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989 Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 3.95. As to children's guardians (formerly known as guardians ad litem: see para 230 ante) see paras 319-321 post.

287. Duration of supervision order.

A supervision order<sup>1</sup> is discharged by the making of a care order<sup>2</sup> with respect to the child<sup>3</sup>, or by the termination of an existing custody order under the Child Abduction and Custody Act 1985<sup>4</sup>, and in any event comes to an end when the child attains 18 unless it is brought to an end earlier<sup>5</sup>. Otherwise it will last for one year from the date on which it was made<sup>6</sup>. Where the supervisor<sup>7</sup> applies to the court to extend, or further extend, a supervision order the court may extend the order for such period as it may specify<sup>8</sup>. A supervision order may not be extended so as to run beyond the end of the period of three years beginning with the date on which it was made<sup>9</sup>.

(iv) Interim Orders

288. Interim orders.

Where (1) in any proceedings on an application for a care order<sup>1</sup> or supervision order<sup>2</sup>, the proceedings are adjourned<sup>3</sup>; or (2) it appears to the court in family proceedings that it might be appropriate for a care order or supervision order to be made and the court gives a direction<sup>4</sup> for an authority to undertake an investigation of the child's circumstances, the court may make an interim care order or an interim supervision order with respect to the child concerned<sup>5</sup>.

However, the court must not make an interim care order or interim supervision order unless it is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the 'threshold criteria'<sup>6</sup> are satisfied<sup>7</sup>. In deciding whether to exercise its discretion to make an interim order the court must have regard to the paramountcy of the child's welfare<sup>8</sup> and direct itself by reference to the welfare checklist<sup>9</sup> and to the 'no order principle'<sup>10</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'care order' see para 271 note 4 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'supervision order' see para 271 note 5 ante.

3 Children Act 1989 s 38(1)(a).

4 I.e a direction under ibid s 37 (as amended): see para 272 ante.

5 Ibid s 38(1)(b). In the family proceedings court (see para 208 note 10 ante), a justices' clerk or single justice may not make an order under s 38(1) unless: (1) a written request for such an order has been made to which the other parties and any children's guardian consent and which they or their representatives have signed; (2) a previous such order has been made in the same proceedings; (3) the terms of the order sought are the same as those of the last such order made: Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 28 (amended by SI 2001/818). However, the court must be conscious of delay arising if uncritical use of this rule is made: see Re R (minors) [1994] 2 FCR 136, sub nom Re J (minors) [1994] 1 FLR 253, [1994] Fam Law 248. Once an order is made, the court may not exercise a supervisory role over the local authority in whose care a child has been placed: Re S (children: care plan) [2002] UKHL 10, [2002] 2 AC 291, [2002] 2 All ER 192. As to children's guardians (formerly known as guardians ad litem: see para 230 ante) see paras 319-321 post.

6 As to the 'threshold criteria' see para 274 ante.

7 Children Act 1989 s 38(2). See Gateshead Metropolitan Borough Council v N [1993] 1 FCR 400, [1993] 1 FLR 811; Re B (a minor) (interim care order: criteria) [1993] Fam Law 335. At the hearing of an application for an interim order where there are disputed facts, the court must consider whether the evidence before it is potentially credible and gives the court the reasonable grounds required by the Children Act 1989 s 38(2): F v Kent County Council [1993] 1 FCR 217 (order of magistrates' court 'fatally flawed' by refusal to hear submissions by mother as to facts and law). For guidance as to the manner in which interim hearings should be conducted see eg Hampshire County Council v S [1993] Fam 158, [1993] 1 All ER 944; Re W (a minor) (interim care order) [1994] 3 FCR 102, [1994] 2 FLR 892, CA. It is not necessary for the court to be satisfied of the existence of the threshold criteria, but merely to be satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the threshold criteria will be satisfied: Re S (children: interim care order) [1993] 2 FCR 475. See also Re G (minors) (interim care order) [1993] 2 FCR 557, [1993] 2 FLR 839, CA; and Re W (children) (care plan) [2001] EWCA Civ 757, [2001] 2 FCR 450, [2001] 2 FLR 582. In Re K and H (children) (interim care order) [2006] EWCA Civ 1898, [2007] 1 FLR 2043, the test for removal of children at an interim stage was that it was necessary for their interim protection (applying Re H (a child) (interim care order) [2002] EWCA Civ 1932, [2003] 1 FCR 350; and Re M (children) (interim care order) [2005] EWCA Civ 1594, [2006] 1 FLR 143).

See Re C (a minor) (care proceedings) [1992] 2 FCR 341, sub nom C v Solihull Metropolitan Borough Council [1993] 1 FLR 290 (possibility of making interim section 8 orders to be considered); and Hounslow London Borough Council v A [1993] 1 WLR 291, sub nom Re A (a minor) (care proceedings) [1993] 1 FCR 164. The test which has to be satisfied before the court may make an interim order is not the same as for a full order, which requires proof that the child is suffering or likely to suffer significant harm. It would not be realistic to require proof of the condition at the interim stage when the children's guardian final report will probably not have been received nor all the evidence heard. The child's version of events may form an integral part of 'reasonable grounds for believing' as could, for example, medical evidence that certain symptoms were consistent with abuse. After further assessment this may be rejected at the full hearing. Court findings of fact leading to the making of interim orders should therefore not be binding on the court at the final hearing, and should not be regarded as prejudicial to any of the parties to the proceedings: see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 3.37. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante. As to children's guardians (formerly known as guardians ad litem: see para 230 ante) see paras 319-321 post.

8 As to the welfare principle see the Children Act 1989 s 1(1); and para 300 post.

9 As to the welfare checklist see ibid s 1(3), (4) (as amended); and para 303 post.

10 As to the 'no order' principle see ibid s 1(5); and para 302 post. Once the court has concluded that the threshold criteria have been satisfied, it must have regard to all the evidence in deciding whether to make no order, a supervision order or a care order, and it must give reasons for rejecting or accepting that evidence in reaching its decision: Leicestershire County Council v G [1995] 1 FCR 205, [1994] 2 FLR 329. See Re B (a minor) (interim care order: criteria) [1993] Fam Law 335; Hampshire County Council v S [1993] Fam 158, [1993] 1 All ER 944 (although such an order is a holding order until the substantive hearing all relevant risks must be considered; consideration should be given to transfer to adjacent court if insufficient time is available for a speedy hearing; findings on disputed facts are usually best left to the final hearing; caution should be exercised in changing a child's residence; it is usually appropriate to leave the child where he is with directions for safeguards, and to fix an early hearing date). See also Re B (children) (residence; interim care order) [2002] EWCA Civ 1225, [2002] 3 FCR 562, [2002] All ER (D) 301 (Jul) (judge wrong to reject expert evidence on mother's psychological disturbance which precluded refusal of interim care order).

289. Duration of interim orders.

An interim order has effect for such period as may be specified in the order, but in any event ceases to have effect on whichever of the following events first occurs<sup>1</sup>:

- 396 (1) the expiry of the period of eight weeks beginning with the date on which the order is made<sup>2</sup>;
- 397 (2) if the order is the second or subsequent such order made with respect to the same child in the same proceedings, the expiry of the relevant period<sup>3</sup>;
- 398 (3) in proceedings on an application for a care order or supervision order<sup>4</sup>, the disposal of the application<sup>5</sup>;
- 399 (4) where a direction for an investigation of the child's circumstances has been made, on the disposal of any consequent application for a care order or supervision order<sup>6</sup>; and
- 400 (5) where, pursuant to such a direction, the court has given a subsequent direction as to the time at which information must be furnished to it<sup>7</sup> but no application for a care order or supervision order has been made, the expiry of the period fixed by the latter direction<sup>8</sup>.

Where a court makes an interim order<sup>9</sup> it must, in determining the period for which the order is to be in force, consider whether any party who was, or might have been, opposed to the making of the order was in a position to argue his case against the order in full<sup>10</sup>.

1 Children Act 1989 s 38(4). See Gateshead Metropolitan Borough Council v N [1993] 1 FCR 400, [1993] 1 FLR 811.

2 Children Act 1989 s 38(4)(a).

3 Ibid s 38(4)(b). For these purposes, 'relevant period' means: (1) the period of four weeks beginning with the date on which the order was made; or (2) the period of eight weeks beginning with the date on which the first order was made if that period ends later than the period in head (1) supra: s 38(5). Thus if the first order was made for three weeks, the second order could be made for five weeks; if there had been two previous orders each made for one week, the third order could be made for up to six weeks: see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Vol 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 3.45. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante.

5 See the Children Act 1989 s 38(4)(c).

7 I.e. under ibid s 37(4): see para 272 ante.

8 See ibid s 38(4)(e). When deciding the timetable in the case (see para 280 ante) the court will need to be satisfied on the need for a long interim order and it would not be expected that four week applications for subsequent orders will be made. The balance will have to be struck between allowing sufficient time for inquiries, reports and statements, and risking allowing the child to continue in interim care or supervision for so long that the balance of advantage is distorted in favour of continued intervention. Subject to that, the emphasis should be very firmly on pressing on to a final hearing as quickly as possible (unless, of course, the matter can be resolved by negotiation without further compulsory intervention out of court). The children's guardian will have a key role in advising the court on interim orders: see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 3.46. As to children's guardians (formerly known as guardians ad litem: see para 230 ante) see paras 319-321 post.

PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(2) APPLICATIONS UNDER PART IV OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PUBLIC LAW PROCEEDINGS/(iv) Interim Orders/290. Exclusion requirements in interim care orders.

290. Exclusion requirements in interim care orders.

Where:

- 401 (1) on being satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the child<sup>1</sup> concerned is suffering, or is likely to suffer, significant harm<sup>2</sup> and that harm or likelihood of harm is attributable to the care given to the child, or likely to be given to him if the order were not made, not being what it would be reasonable to expect a parent to give to him<sup>3</sup>, the court makes an interim care order<sup>4</sup> with respect to that child<sup>5</sup>; and
- 402 (2) the court is satisfied: (a) that there is reasonable cause to believe that, if a person ('the relevant person') is excluded from a dwelling house in which the child lives, the child will cease to suffer, or cease to be likely to suffer, significant harm<sup>6</sup>; and (b) that another person living in the dwelling house (whether a parent of the child or some other person) is able and willing to give to the child the care which it would be reasonable to expect a parent to give him<sup>7</sup>, and consents to the inclusion of the exclusion requirement<sup>8</sup>, the court may include an exclusion requirement in the interim care order<sup>9</sup>. An exclusion requirement is any one or more of the following: (i) a provision requiring the relevant person to leave a dwelling house in which he is living with the child; (ii) a provision prohibiting the relevant person from entering a dwelling house in which the child lives; and (iii) a provision excluding the relevant person from a defined area in which a dwelling house in which the child lives is situated<sup>10</sup>.

The court may provide that the exclusion requirement is to have effect for a shorter period than the other provisions of the interim care order<sup>11</sup>. Where the court makes an interim care order containing an exclusion requirement, the court may attach a power of arrest to the exclusion requirement<sup>12</sup>. Where the court attaches a power of arrest to an exclusion requirement of an interim care order, it may provide that the power of arrest is to have effect for a shorter period than the exclusion requirement<sup>13</sup>.

If, while an interim care order containing an exclusion requirement is in force, the local authority has removed the child from the dwelling house from which the relevant person is excluded to other accommodation for a continuous period of more than 24 hours, the interim care order ceases to have effect in so far as it imposes the exclusion requirement<sup>14</sup>.

8 See ibid s 38A(1)(b), (2)(b)(ii) (as added: see note 5 supra). Consent for the purposes of the Children Act 1989 s 38A(2)(b)(ii) (as added) must be given either orally in court or in writing to the designated officer for the court or the court and signed by the person giving his consent: Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.24(1)(b) (amended by SI 1992/456; SI 1997/1893); Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 25(1)(b) (amended by SI 1992/2068; SI 1997/1895; SI 2001/615; SI 2005/617). Any such written consent must include a statement that the person giving consent is able and willing to give to the child the care which it would be reasonable to expect a parent to give him, and understands that the giving of consent could lead to the exclusion of the relevant person from the dwelling house in which the child lives: Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.24(2) (added by SI 1997/1893); Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 25(2) (added by SI 1997/1895). Undertakings relating to interim care orders.

291. Undertakings relating to interim care orders.

In any case where the court has power to include an exclusion requirement<sup>1</sup> in an interim care order<sup>2</sup>, the court may accept an undertaking from the relevant person<sup>3</sup>. However, no power of arrest may be attached to any undertaking so given<sup>4</sup>.

An undertaking given to a court under these provisions is enforceable as if it were an order of the court, and ceases to have effect if, while it is in force, the local authority<sup>5</sup> has removed the child<sup>6</sup> from the dwelling house<sup>7</sup> from which the relevant person is excluded to other accommodation for a continuous period of more than 24 hours<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'exclusion requirement' see para 290 ante; definition applied by the Children Act 1989 s 38B(5) (s 38B added by Family Law Act 1996 s 52, Sch 6 para 1).

Supplementary powers on making interim orders.

292. Supplementary powers on making interim orders.

Where the court makes an interim care order<sup>1</sup> or interim supervision order<sup>2</sup>, it may give such directions, if any, as it considers appropriate<sup>3</sup> with regard to the medical or psychiatric examination or other assessment of the child<sup>4</sup>, but if the child is of sufficient understanding to make an informed decision he may refuse to submit to the examination or other assessment<sup>5</sup>. Such a direction may be to the effect that there is to be no such examination or assessment, or no such examination or assessment unless the court directs otherwise<sup>6</sup>. Such a direction may be given when the interim order is made or at any time while it is in force, and may be varied at any time on the application of any person falling within any class of person prescribed by rules of court for the purpose<sup>7</sup>.

(v) Discharge, Variation and Substitution of Orders

293. Discharge of care orders; discharge and variation of supervision orders.

A care order<sup>1</sup> may be discharged by the court on the application<sup>2</sup> of: (1) any person who has parental responsibility<sup>3</sup> for the child<sup>4</sup>; (2) the child himself<sup>5</sup>; or (3) the local authority<sup>6</sup> designated by the order<sup>7</sup>. On the application of a person who is not entitled to apply for the order to be discharged, but who is a person to whom an exclusion requirement<sup>8</sup> contained in the order applies, an interim care order may be varied or discharged by the court in so far as it imposes the exclusion requirement<sup>9</sup>.

A supervision order<sup>10</sup> may be varied or discharged by the court on the application of: (a) any person who has parental responsibility for the child<sup>11</sup>; (b) the child himself<sup>12</sup>; or (c) the supervisor<sup>13</sup>. On the application of a person who is not entitled to apply for the order to be discharged but who is a person with whom the child is living, a supervision order may be varied by the court in so far as it imposes a requirement which affects that person<sup>14</sup>.

In reaching decisions on applications for the variation or discharge of care orders and supervision orders the court must have regard to the welfare principle<sup>15</sup>, and must have particular regard to the matters specified in the welfare checklist<sup>16</sup>.

A local authority must consider whether to apply for discharge of the care order at every review of the case of a child in its care<sup>17</sup>. The supervisor must consider applying for the discharge of a supervision order where it is not being wholly complied with or he considers that the order may no longer be necessary<sup>18</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'care order' see para 271 note 4 ante.

2 Where an application has been made for: (1) the discharge of a care order, supervision order or education supervision order (see para 296 post); (2) the substitution of a supervision order for a care order (see para 294 post); or (3) a child assessment order (see para 581 post), no further application of a kind mentioned in heads (1)-(3) supra may be made with respect to the child concerned, without the leave of the court, unless the period between the disposal of the previous application and the making of the further application exceeds six months: Children Act 1989 s 91(15). However, this does not apply on applications relating to interim orders: s 91(16). A judge hearing an application to discharge a care order under s 39 (as amended) does not have the jurisdiction, if he decides to discharge it, to substitute an interim care order: Re C (a child) (care order: application to discharge) [2005] EWCA Civ 1329, [2005] All ER (D) 148 (Nov).

13 Ibid s 39(2)(c). For the meaning of 'supervisor' see para 281 note 6 ante. The Children Act 1989 draws a distinction between supervision orders and care orders: the former may be varied or discharged, but (in line with the principle that management of compulsory care is the local authority's responsibility) the Act does not provide for the variation of a care order: see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 3.54. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante.

294. Substitution of supervision orders for care orders.

Where a care order<sup>1</sup> is in force with respect to a child<sup>2</sup> the court may, on the application of any person entitled to apply for the order to be discharged<sup>3</sup>, substitute a supervision order<sup>4</sup> for the care order<sup>5</sup>. When a court is considering such a substitution, any provision of the Children Act 1989 which would otherwise require the threshold criteria<sup>6</sup> to be satisfied at the time when the proposed order is substituted or made is to be disregarded<sup>7</sup>. The court is not empowered, however, to make a care order following an application to vary or discharge a supervision order unless, after a full hearing, the threshold criteria are re-established<sup>8</sup>.

In reaching decisions regarding the substitution of a supervision order for a care order the court must have regard to the welfare principle<sup>9</sup>, and must have particular regard to the matters specified in the welfare checklist<sup>10</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'care order' see para 271 note 4 ante.

8 This is so even though such an application will most likely arise from non-compliance with the terms of the original order: see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 3.55. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante. As to the variation or discharge of supervision orders see para 293 ante.

PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(2) APPLICATIONS UNDER PART IV OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PUBLIC LAW PROCEEDINGS/(v) Discharge, Variation and Substitution of Orders/295. Court's powers on care order and supervision order appeals.

295. Court's powers on care order and supervision order appeals.

An appeal lies against the making of a care order or supervision order<sup>1</sup> (including an interim order<sup>2</sup>) or an order varying or discharging such an order or against the court's refusal to make a care order<sup>3</sup>.

The Children Act 1989 contains powers<sup>4</sup> to make orders having effect during the 'appeal period'<sup>5</sup>. Where a court dismisses an application for a care order and at the time of that dismissal the child concerned is the subject of an interim care order<sup>6</sup>, the court may make a care order with respect to the child to have effect subject to such directions, if any, as the court may see fit to include in the order<sup>7</sup>. Where a court dismisses an application for a care order or an application for a supervision order and at the time of that dismissal the child concerned is the subject of an interim supervision order, the court may make a supervision order with respect to the child to have effect subject to such directions, if any, as the court may see fit to include in the order<sup>8</sup>. Where a court grants an application to discharge a care order or supervision order, it may order that its decision is not to have effect, or that the care order or supervision order is to continue to have effect but subject to such directions as the court sees fit to include in the order<sup>9</sup>.

An order under the above provisions only has effect for such period, not exceeding the appeal period, as may be specified in the order<sup>10</sup>.

Where (1) an appeal is made against any decision of a court under these provisions; or (2) any application is made to the appellate court in connection with a proposed appeal against that decision, the appellate court may extend the period for which the order in question is to have effect, but not so as to extend it beyond the end of the appeal period<sup>11</sup>.

3 See the Children Act 1989 s 94(1) (as amended) (appeals from magistrates' courts to the High Court); and para 304 post. As to interim orders see paras 288-292 ante.

4 The underlying policy is to allow these powers to be exercised where there is already some background of compulsory intervention in the child's upbringing; the basic approach is to allow the immediate status quo to be maintained in order to provide continual protection for the child or to prevent interruption in the continuity of his care until the appeal is heard: see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 3.61. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante.

5 See the Children Act 1989 s 40; and the text and notes 6-11 infra. The 'appeal period' is: (1) where an appeal is made against the decision in question, the period between the making of that decision and the determination of the appeal; and otherwise (2) the period during which an appeal may be made against the decision: s 40(6).

(vi) Education Supervision Orders

296. Duration and effect of education supervision orders.

On the application of any local education authority<sup>1</sup> the court may make an education supervision order, that is to say an order putting the child<sup>2</sup> with respect to whom the application is made under the supervision of a designated<sup>3</sup> local education authority<sup>4</sup>. A court may only make an education supervision order if it is satisfied that the child concerned is of compulsory school age<sup>5</sup> and is not being properly educated<sup>6</sup>. For these purposes, a child is being properly educated only if he is receiving efficient full-time education suitable to his age, ability and aptitude and any special educational needs he may have<sup>7</sup>.

Where a local education authority proposes to make an application for an education supervision order, it must, before making the application, consult the appropriate local authority<sup>8</sup>.

An education supervision order may not be made with respect to a child who is in the care of a local authority<sup>9</sup>.

An education supervision order has effect for a period of one year beginning with the date on which it is made<sup>10</sup>. It may be discharged on the application of the child concerned, his parent<sup>11</sup> or the local education authority concerned<sup>12</sup>. An education supervision order will not expire if, before it would otherwise have expired, the court, on the application of the authority in whose favour the order was made, has extended the period during which it is in force<sup>13</sup>. In any event, an order ceases to have effect on the child's ceasing to be of compulsory school age, or on the making of a care order with respect to the child<sup>14</sup>.

Where an education supervision order is in force with respect to a child, it supersedes or precludes the operation of certain statutory provisions regarding that child<sup>15</sup>.

1 'Local education authority' has the same meaning as in the Education Act 1996 (see EDUCATION vol 15(1) (2006 Reissue) para 20): Children Act 1989 s 105(1) (definition amended by the Education Act 1996 s 582(1), Sch 37 para 91).

2 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

3 The local education authority designated in an education supervision order must be: (1) the authority within whose area the child concerned is living or will live; or (2) where the child is a registered pupil at a school, and the authority mentioned in head (1) supra and the authority within whose area the school is situated agree, the latter authority: Children Act 1989 s 36(7). 'Registered pupil', in relation to a school, means a person registered as a pupil at the school in the register kept under the Education Act 1996 s 434 (as amended) (see EDUCATION vol 15(1) (2006 Reissue) para 512): Education Act 1996 s 434(5); definition applied by the Children Act 1989 s 105(1) (amended by the Education Act 1996 Sch 37 para 91). For the meaning of 'school' see para 271 note 8 ante.

4 Children Act 1989 ss 36(1), (2), 105(1). In the ordinary case an education supervision order is the appropriate procedure to secure a child's attendance at school, but in a proper case application for a care order may be founded on playing truant: Re O (a minor) (care proceedings: education) [1992] 4 All ER 905, [1992] 1 WLR 912. Such an application is not within the definition of 'specified proceedings' in the Children Act 1989 s 41(6) (see para 311 post), and there is no power for a children's guardian to be appointed in a family proceedings court on such an application: Essex County Council v B [1993] 1 FCR 145, [1993] 1 FLR 866. The general power of a magistrates' court under the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 63(2) (see MAGISTRATES vol 29(2) (Reissue) para 827) to suspend or rescind orders does not apply in relation to orders under the Children Act 1989: s 92(5). As to children's guardians (formerly known as guardians ad litem: see para 230 ante) see paras 319-321 post.

The provisions of s 36 (as amended) replace the Children and Young Persons Act 1969 s 1(2)(e) (repealed), under which the court had power to make a care order if satisfied that a child of compulsory school age was not receiving efficient full time education; the Children Act 1989 contains no provision empowering the court to make a care order on educational grounds as such.

The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision modifying, or displacing, the provisions of any enactment about education in relation to any child with respect to whom an education supervision order is in force to such extent as appears to the Secretary of State to be necessary or expedient in consequence of the provision made by the Children Act 1989 with respect to such orders: s 36(10), Sch 3 para 20. At the date at which this volume states the law no such regulations had been made. As to the Secretary of State, and as to the transfer of certain functions of the Secretary of State, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, to the Welsh Ministers see para 155 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'compulsory school age' see the Education Act 1996 s 8 (as amended); and EDUCATION vol 15(1) (2006 Reissue) para 15.

6 Children Act 1989 s 36(3).

7 Ibid s 36(4). A child has 'special educational needs' if he has a learning difficulty which calls for special educational provision to be made for him: Education Act 1996 s 312(1); definition applied by the Children Act 1989 s 105(1) (definition amended by the Education Act 1996 s 582(1), Sch 37 para 91). See further EDUCATION vol 15(2) (2006 Reissue) para 984.

Where a child is the subject of a school attendance order which is in force under the Education Act 1996 s 437 and which has not been complied with, or where a child is not attending regularly (within the meaning of s 444 (as amended) (see EDUCATION vol 15(1) (2006 Reissue) para 521):

193 (1) a school at which he is a registered pupil; or

194 (2) any place at which education is provided for him in the circumstances mentioned in s 444ZA(1) (as added) (see EDUCATION vol 15(1) (2006 Reissue) para 522); or

195 (3) any place which he is required to attend in the circumstances mentioned in s 444ZA(2) (as added) (see EDUCATION vol 15(1) (2006 Reissue) para 522), then, unless it is proved that he is being properly educated, it is assumed that he is not: Children Act 1989 s 36(5) (substituted by the Education Act 2005 s 117, Sch 18 para 1).

8 Children Act 1989 s 36(8) (amended by the Education Act 1996 s 307(1), (3), Sch 19 para 149, Sch 21 Pt II). As to the procedure for such consultation see the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.27 (amended by SI 1997/1893); the Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 31 (amended by SI 1997/1895). The appropriate local authority, in the case of a child who is being provided with accommodation by, or on behalf of, a local authority, is that authority, and in any other case is the local authority within whose area the child concerned lives, or will live: Children Act 1989 s 36(9).

10 Ibid Sch 3 para 15(1).

11 For the purposes of ibid Sch 3 paras 12-21 (as amended) (see paras 297-298 post), 'parent', in relation to a child or young person, includes any person who is not a parent of his but who has parental responsibility for him, or who has care of him: Education Act 1996 s 576(1); definition applied by the Children Act 1989 Sch 3 para 21 (amended by the Education Act 1996 s 582(1), Sch 37 para 93(1), (3)). For the meaning of 'parental responsibility' see para 134 ante.

12 Children Act 1989 Sch 3 para 17(1). On discharging an education supervision order the court may direct the local authority within whose area the child lives, or will live, to investigate the child's circumstances: Sch 3 para 17(2).

13 Ibid Sch 3 para 15(2). The period may be extended on more than one occasion, but no one extension may be for more than three years: Sch 3 para 15(4), (5). An application for extension may not be made earlier than three months before the date on which the order would otherwise expire: Sch 3 para 15(3).

14 See ibid Sch 3 para 15(6).

15 See ibid Sch 3 para 13 (as amended). Where an education supervision order is in force with respect to a child, the duties of the child's parents under the Education Act 1996 ss 7, 444 (as amended) (duties to secure education of children and to secure regular attendance of registered pupils) are superseded by their duty to comply with any directions in force under the education supervision order: Children Act 1989 Sch 3 para 13(1). See further EDUCATION vol 15(1) (2006 Reissue) para 526 et seq. Where an education supervision order is made with respect to a child:

- 196 (1) any school attendance order made under the Education Act 1996 s 437 (as amended) with respect to the child and in force immediately before the making of the education supervision order, ceases to have effect (Children Act 1989 Sch 3 para 13(2)(a) (amended by the Education Act 1996 s 582(1), Sch 37 para 93(1), (2)(b))); and
- 197 (2) while the education supervision order remains in force, the following provisions do not apply with respect to the child: (a) the Education Act 1996 s 437 (as amended) (school attendance orders); (b) s 9 (as amended) (pupils to be educated in accordance with wishes of their parents); (c) ss 411, 423 (both repealed) (parental preference and appeals against admission decisions) (Children Act 1989 Sch 3 para 13(2)(b) (amended by the Education Act 1996 s 582(1), Sch 37 para 93(1), (2)(b)));
- 198 (3) a supervision order made with respect to the child in criminal proceedings, while the education supervision order is in force, may not include an education requirement of the kind which could otherwise be included under the Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s 63 (as amended), Sch 6 para 7 (see para 1351 post) (Children Act 1989 Sch 3 para 13(2)(c) (amended by Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s 165(1), Sch 9 para 131(1), (2)));
- 199 (4) any education requirement of a kind mentioned in head (3) supra, which was in force with respect to the child immediately before the making of the education supervision order, ceases to have effect (Children Act 1989 Sch 3 para 13(2)(d)).

297. Duties of the supervisor.

Where an education supervision order<sup>1</sup> is in force, it is the duty of a supervisor<sup>2</sup> to advise, assist and befriend, and give directions to, the supervised child<sup>3</sup> and his parents<sup>4</sup> in such a way as will, in the opinion of the supervisor, secure that he is properly educated<sup>5</sup>. It is also the supervisor's duty, where any such directions given to the supervised child or a parent have not been complied with, to consider what further steps to take in the exercise of the supervisor's powers under the Children Act 1989<sup>6</sup>. Before giving any directions the supervisor, so far as is reasonably practicable, must ascertain the wishes and feelings of the child and his parents, including in particular their wishes as to the place at which the child should be educated<sup>7</sup>. When settling the terms of any such directions, the supervisor must give due consideration, having regard to the child's age and understanding, to such wishes and feelings of his as the supervisor has been able to ascertain, and to such wishes and feelings of the child's parents as he has been able to ascertain<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'education supervision order' see para 296 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'supervisor' see para 281 note 6 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'supervised child' see para 281 note 6 ante. For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'parent' in this context see para 296 note 11 ante.

5 Children Act 1989 s 36(10), Sch 3 para 12(1)(a). Directions may be given under Sch 3 para 12 at any time while the education supervision order is in force: Sch 3 para 12(4).

6 Ibid Sch 3 para 12(1)(b). An education supervision order may require the child to keep the supervisor informed of any change in his address, and to allow the supervisor to visit him at the place where he is living: Sch 3 para 16(1). Moreover, a person who is the parent of a child with respect to whom an education supervision order has been made must, if asked by the supervisor, inform him of the child's address (if it is known to him); and if he is living with the child, allow the supervisor reasonable contact with the child: Sch 3 para 16(2).

7 Ibid Sch 3 para 12(2).

8 Ibid Sch 3 para 12(3).

PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(2) APPLICATIONS UNDER PART IV OF THE CHILDREN ACT 1989: PUBLIC LAW PROCEEDINGS/(vi) Education Supervision Orders/298. Failure to comply with direction under education supervision order.

298. Failure to comply with direction under education supervision order.

If a parent<sup>1</sup> of a child<sup>2</sup> with respect to whom an education supervision order<sup>3</sup> is in force persistently fails to comply with a direction given under the order, he is guilty of an offence<sup>4</sup>. It is a defence for any person charged with such an offence to prove: (1) that he took all reasonable steps to ensure that the direction was complied with; (2) the direction was unreasonable; or (3) that he had complied with a requirement included in a supervision order<sup>5</sup> made with respect to the child, or with directions given under such a requirement, and it was not reasonably practicable to comply both with the direction under the education supervision order and with the requirement or directions under the supervision order<sup>6</sup>.

Where a child with respect to whom an education supervision order is in force persistently fails to comply with any direction given under the order, the local education authority<sup>7</sup> concerned must notify the appropriate local authority<sup>8</sup>, which must investigate the circumstances of the child<sup>9</sup>.

(3) CRITERIA APPLIED BY THE COURT IN DETERMINING FAMILY PROCEEDINGS

299. Introduction.

The Children Act 1989 contains three principles relating to the exercise of the court's discretion in proceedings relating to children. The first is known as the welfare principle<sup>1</sup>, the second is the principle that any delay in determining any question with respect to the upbringing of a child is likely to prejudice the welfare of the child<sup>2</sup>, and the third is the general presumption against making orders<sup>3</sup>.

1 See the Children Act 1989 s 1(1); and para 300 post.

300. The welfare principle.

When a court determines any question with respect to the upbringing<sup>1</sup> of a child<sup>2</sup> or the administration of a child's property or the application of any income arising from it, the child's welfare must be the court's paramount consideration<sup>3</sup>. This provision is general in scope<sup>4</sup>, and restates principles first embodied in statute in the Guardianship of Infants Act 1925<sup>5</sup>. In interpreting the provisions of the earlier legislation, however, it has been held that the paramountcy principle (as this principle is sometimes called) would apply only when the matters specified (such as the child's upbringing) were directly in issue, and that accordingly, it did not apply to an application for the grant of an injunction excluding one spouse from the matrimonial home<sup>6</sup>. However, it has been said that the circumstances of each individual case are so infinitely varied that no formula can be applied to cases concerning the upbringing of children<sup>7</sup>, and that the value of decided cases as precedents is accordingly limited<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'upbringing' see para 266 note 9 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

3 Children Act 1989 s 1(1). This provision is referred to in this work as the 'welfare principle'.

4 The question is not what the essential justice of the case requires, but what the best interests of the child would require: S (B D) v S (D J) (children: care and control) [1977] Fam 109 at 114, [1977] 1 All ER 656 at 660, CA, per Ormrod LJ; Re K (minors) (children: care and control) [1977] Fam 179 at 183, [1977] 1 All ER 647 at 649, CA. Because of the paramountcy of the child's welfare, the doctrine of estoppel per res judicata does not apply in child care cases: K v P (Children Act proceedings: estoppel) [1995] 2 FCR 457, [1995] 1 FLR 248. See also Re A (children) (conjoined twins: surgical separation) [2001] Fam 147, [2000] 4 All ER 961. The welfare principle has been held to be compatible with Art 8(2) of the European Convention on Human Rights (see the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969); and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) para 149): Re L (a child) (contact: domestic violence) [2001] Fam 260, [2000] 2 FCR 404, sub nom Re L, V, M and H (contact: domestic violence) [2000] 2 FLR 334, CA. This view was upheld in Yousef v Netherlands (Application 33711/96) [2002] 3 FCR 577, [2003] 1 FLR 210, ECtHR.

5 See the Guardianship of Infants Act 1925 (repealed) and the Guardianship of Minors Act 1971 (repealed). The court had to regard the child's welfare as its 'first and paramount' consideration in the leading case of J v C [1970] AC 668 at 710-711, [1969] 1 All ER 788 at 820-821, HL, where Lord MacDermott stated that the principle laid down by the Guardianship of Infants Act 1925 connoted 'a process whereby, when all the relevant facts, relationships, claims and wishes of parents, risks, choices and other circumstances are taken into account and weighed, the course to be followed will be that which is most in the interests of the child's welfare as that term has now to be understood. That is the first consideration because it is of first importance and the paramount consideration because it rules upon or determines the course to be followed'. It would seem that the omission of the words 'first and' from the formulation of the welfare principle now embodied in the Children Act 1989 is of little practical significance, because decisions of the courts had made those words largely redundant; the child's welfare rules upon and determines the course to be followed. See also Re K D (a minor) (ward: termination of access) [1988] AC 806, [1988] 1 All ER 577, HL; followed in Re M (child's upbringing) [1996] 2 FCR 473, [1996] 2 FLR 441, CA; F v Wirral Metropolitan Borough Council [1991] Fam 69, [1991] 2 All ER 648, CA. The principle did not apply when the court had to decide whether to prevent publication of a book which might be harmful to a child: Re X (a minor) [1975] Fam 47, [1975] 1 All ER 697, CA.

The principle might also yield to considerations of public policy: Re Mohamed Arif [1968] Ch 643, sub nom Re A (an infant), Hanif v Secretary of State for Home Affairs [1968] 2 All ER 145, CA; Re J S (a minor) (boy soldier) [1990] Fam 182, [1990] 2 All ER 861. ### 301. Delay prejudicial.

The second general principle laid down by the Children Act 1989 is that in any proceedings in which any question with respect to the upbringing<sup>1</sup> of a child<sup>2</sup> arises, the court must have regard to the general principle that any delay in determining the question is likely to prejudice the welfare of the child<sup>3</sup>. The court must draw up a timetable with a view to determining the question without delay, and must give such directions as it considers appropriate for the purpose of ensuring, so far as is reasonably practicable, that the timetable is adhered to<sup>4</sup>. There may, however, be cases where, on the facts, delay is in the child's interests<sup>5</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'upbringing' see para 266 note 9 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

3 Children Act 1989 s 1(2). Delay in court proceedings was considered to be generally harmful to children not only because of the uncertainty it creates for them but also because of the harm it does to the relationship between the parents in their capacity to co-operate with one another in the future; and it was considered that progress of a case should be controlled by the court (rather than the parties): see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 1.8. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante.

See Re M (child's upbringing) [1996] 2 FCR 473, [1996] 2 FLR 441, CA (order made for review in two years' time of arrangements to be made for return of Zulu child to his native country overruled, as delay in making final decision might hamper re-introduction of child to his parents and culture, and was therefore contrary to child's interests).

4 See the Children Act 1989 ss 11(1), 32; and paras 266, 280 ante. In this context, it is intended that preliminary hearings should be used to minimise delay and produce less adversarial conduct of cases in court: see the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 1.17. The court should not adjourn care proceedings in order to allow related criminal proceedings against the child's parents to be heard first, as the child's welfare takes precedence over any possible prejudice to the parents, and delay is generally detrimental to a child's welfare: Re T B (care proceedings: criminal trial) [1996] 1 FCR 101, [1995] 2 FLR 801, CA. See also Re R (a child) (care proceedings: teenage pregnancy) [2000] 2 FCR 556. As to where a father's late application to be joined as a party to care proceedings was refused see Re P (care proceedings: father's application to be joined as a party) [2001] 3 FCR 279, [2001] 1 FLR 781.

5 See eg Re S (minors) (interim custody) [1992] 1 FCR 158, CA; Re C (a minor) (care proceedings) [1992] 2 FCR 341, sub nom C v Solihull Metropolitan Borough Council [1993] 1 FLR 290 (delay for purposes of assessment is proper delay); Leeds City Council v C [1993] 1 FCR 585, [1993] 1 FLR 269 (planned and purposeful delay may well be beneficial).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/4. PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(3) CRITERIA APPLIED BY THE COURT IN DETERMINING FAMILY PROCEEDINGS/302. The presumption against making an order.

302. The presumption against making an order.

The third general principle laid down by the Children Act 1989 provides that where a court is considering whether or not to make one or more orders under the Act with respect to a child<sup>1</sup> it must not make the order or any of the orders unless it considers that doing so would be better for the child than making no order at all<sup>2</sup>. This provision is intended to discourage unnecessary court orders being made, for example as part of a standard package of orders. It is thought that to restrict the making of orders to those cases where they are necessary to resolve a specific problem should reduce conflict and promote parental agreement and co-operation<sup>3</sup>. It is also intended to ensure that the order is granted only where it will positively improve the child's welfare and not simply because the grounds for making the order are made out, as, for example, in care proceedings where the court may decide that it would be better for a particular child not to be in local authority care<sup>4</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

2 Children Act 1989 s 1(5). The principle has been referred to as the 'no order' principle, although this term does not appear in the Children Act 1989. Where the court applies this principle it should nonetheless draw an order determining the application: S v R (parental responsibility) [1993] 1 FCR 331, [1993] Fam Law 339. See Re D (a minor) [1992] 1 All ER 892, [1992] 1 WLR 315, CA (nothing in the Children Act 1989 precludes the court from making prohibited steps and specific issue orders where child removed abroad); B v B (grandparent: residence order) [1993] 1 FCR 211, sub nom B v B (a minor: residence order) [1992] 2 FLR 327 (case for order made out); and see also Re S (minors: access) [1990] FCR 379, [1990] 2 FLR 166, CA.

Where no order for contact is made, the practical effect of the decision and possible future applications must be considered: D v D (application for contact) [1994] 1 FCR 694. See also Re W (a minor) (contact) [1994] 2 FCR 1216, [1994] 2 FLR 441, CA (the Children Act 1989 s 1(5) is irrelevant where a parent seeking a contact order has wilfully been denied contact by the parent with day-to-day care of the child who states that she will disobey any contact order); Re S (contact: grandparents) [1996] 3 FCR 30, [1996] 1 FLR 158, CA (successful appeal against decision to make no order for contact in respect of grandparents because of mother's unwillingness to obey contact order, despite merits of grandparents' application). See also Re E (a minor) (parental responsibility) [1994] 2 FCR 709, [1995] 1 FLR 392, CA (no order made for inclusion of child's name on parent's passport).

The principle does not create a presumption either way; the court must simply consider whether it is in the best interests of the child to make the order: Re G (children) (residence order: no order principle) [2005] EWCA Civ 1283, [2006] 1 FLR 771, [2005] All ER (D) 399 (Jul). When applying the principle, the child's medium to long-term interests are to be considered: Re X and Y (application to remove children from jurisdiction) [2001] 2 FCR 398, [2001] 2 FLR 118.

3 See the Department of Health publication The Children Act 1989: Guidance and Regulations Volume 1 Court Orders (HMSO, 1991) para 1.12. As to the guidance and regulations generally see para 163 ante. See also B v B (grandparent: residence order) [1993] 1 FCR 211, sub nom B v B (a minor: residence order) [1992] 2 FLR 327. In general, the court should not depart from the views of parents who have expressed a consensual desire that a certain order be made: Re G (children) (residence order: no order principle) [2005] EWCA Civ 1283, [2006] 1 FLR 771, [2005] All ER (D) 399 (Jul).

303. Matters for the court's particular attention: the welfare checklist.

Where: (1) the court is considering whether to make, vary or discharge a contact order, a prohibited steps order, a residence order or a specific issue order<sup>1</sup>, and the making, variation or discharge of the order is opposed by any party to the proceedings; or (2) the court is considering whether to make, vary or discharge an order under Part IV of the Children Act 1989<sup>2</sup>, the court must have regard in particular to<sup>3</sup>:

- 403 (a) the ascertainable wishes and feelings of the child<sup>4</sup> concerned (considered in the light of his age and understanding)<sup>5</sup>;
- 404 (b) his physical, emotional and educational needs<sup>6</sup>;
- 405 (c) the likely effect on him of any change in his circumstances<sup>7</sup>;
- 406 (d) his age, sex, background and any characteristics of his which the court considers relevant<sup>8</sup>;
- 407 (e) any harm which he has suffered or is at risk of suffering<sup>9</sup>;
- 408 (f) how capable each of his parents, and any other person in relation to whom the court considers the question to be relevant, is of meeting his needs<sup>10</sup>;
- 409 (g) the range of powers available to the court under the Act in the proceedings in question<sup>11</sup>.

This provision would seem to direct the court's consideration to what could be achieved by an exercise of all the powers, ranging from the power to order a welfare report, to the power to make various substantive orders under the Children Act 1989<sup>12</sup>.

Note that there is no duty on a judge personally to interview a child: R (a minor) (religious sect) supra. The courts have, under previous legislation, emphasised that the decision is for the court, and not for the child: see Adams v Adams [1984] FLR 768, [1984] Fam Law 249, CA (pressures on children quite sufficient when marriage has broken down and one of the parents has left home without putting on the additional burden of being made to feel that they have to decide their own future). child's expressed wishes have been relevant see eg Clarke-Hunt v Newcombe (1982) 4 FLR 482, CA; Re D W (a minor) (custody) [1984] Fam Law 17, CA. ## (4) APPEALS

304. Appeals from the family proceedings court.

An appeal lies to the High Court against the making by a magistrates' court of any order under the Children Act 1989 or the Adoption and Children Act 2002 or any refusal to make such an order<sup>1</sup> except in relation to an interim order for periodical payments<sup>2</sup>. However, where a magistrates' court has power, in relation to any proceedings under the Children Act 1989 or the Adoption and Children Act 2002 to decline jurisdiction because it considers that the case can more conveniently be dealt with by another court, no appeal lies against the exercise of that power<sup>3</sup>.

On any such appeal, the High Court may make such orders as may be necessary to give effect to its determination of the appeal<sup>4</sup>, and where such an order is made the High Court may make such incidental or consequential orders as appear to it to be just<sup>5</sup>. Where an appeal from the magistrates' court relates to an order for the making of periodical payments, the High Court may order that its determination of the appeal is to have effect from such date as it thinks fit to specify in the order<sup>6</sup>, but that date may not be earlier than the earliest date allowed in accordance with rules of court made for these purposes<sup>7</sup>. Any order of the High Court made on an appeal, other than an order requiring the case to be re-heard by the magistrates' court, is treated, for the purposes of the enforcement of the order and any power to vary, revive or discharge orders, as if it were an order of the magistrates' court from which the appeal was brought and not an order of the High Court<sup>8</sup>.

The Lord Chancellor<sup>9</sup> may, after consulting the Lord Chief Justice, by order make provision as to the circumstances in which appeals may be made against decisions taken by courts on questions arising in connection with the transfer, or proposed transfer, of proceedings by virtue of certain orders<sup>10</sup>.

1 Children Act 1989 s 94(1) (amended by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 116, Sch 16 para 23; and the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 100). This provision is expressed to be subject to any express provision made by or under the Children Act 1989: s 94(1) (as so amended). As to the rules which apply where an appeal lies to the High Court under s 94 (as amended) see the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.22 (amended by SI 1992/2067; SI 2001/821; SI 2005/617; SI 2005/2922). Appeals under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 must comply with the Family Procedure (Adoption) Rules 2005, SI 2005/2795, Pt 19 (rr 171-183): see para 511 post. Where, on an appeal in respect of an order for periodical payments, the High Court reduces the amount of those payments or discharges the order, it may order the person entitled to those payments to pay to the person making them such sums in respect of payments already made as it thinks fit, and if any arrears are due under the order for periodical payments it may remit payment of the whole, or part, of those arrears: s 94(8). The text refers to any order under the Children Act 1989 Sch 11 para 2 (as amended): see para 208 ante. Except to the extent provided for in any order made under s 94(10), no appeal may be made against any decision of a kind mentioned in s 94(10): s 94(11). The Lord Chief Justice may nominate a judicial office holder to exercise his functions under s 94(10) (as amended): s 94(12) (added by the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 4 paras 203, 206).

In exercise of the power under the Children Act 1989 s 94(10), the Children (Allocation of Proceedings) (Appeals) Order 1991, SI 1991/1801, has been made, which provides that where a district judge orders the transfer of proceedings to a magistrates' court in accordance with the Children (Allocation of Proceedings) Order 1991, SI 1991/1677, art 11 (as amended), an appeal may be made against that decision: (1) to a judge of the Family Division of the High Court; or (2) except where the order was made by a district judge or deputy district judge of the principal registry of the Family Division, to a circuit judge: arts 1, 2.

305. County court appeals.

In a county court any party may appeal from an order or decision made or given by the district judge in family proceedings to a judge on notice<sup>1</sup>. Where a district judge is sitting in the Principal Registry of the High Court, the appeal lies to a judge of the High Court<sup>2</sup>. Such an appeal is limited to a review of the decision or order of the district judge unless the judge considers that in the circumstances of the case it would be in the interests of justice to hold a rehearing<sup>3</sup>. Unless the court otherwise orders, any such notice must be issued within 14 days of the order or decision appealed against and served not less than 14 days before the day fixed for the hearing of the appeal<sup>4</sup>. Such appeals are heard in chambers unless the judge otherwise directs<sup>5</sup>. Unless the court otherwise orders, the appeal does not operate as a stay of proceedings on the order or decision appealed against<sup>6</sup>.

1 Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 8.1(1). This provision does not apply where any order or decision granting or varying an order (or refusing to do so): (1) on an application for ancillary relief; or (2) in proceedings to which r 3.1 (as amended) (application in case of failure to provide reasonable maintenance), r 3.2 (application for alteration of maintenance agreement during lifetime of parties), r 3.3 (application for alteration of maintenance agreement after death of one party), or r 3.6 (Married Women's Property Act 1882) apply, is treated as a final order for the purposes of CPR Sch 2 CCR Ord 37 r 6 (which gives a right of appeal to the judge from a judgment or final decision of the district judge): see the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 8.1(1), (2) (amended by SI 1997/1893); and MATRIMONIAL AND CIVIL PARTNERSHIP LAW vol 73 (2009) PARA 737. Note that the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 8.1 (as amended) does not apply to any appeal by a party to proceedings for the assessment of costs against a decision in those proceedings: r 8.1(7) (added by SI 2003/184). For the rules which apply in proceedings under the Children Act 1989 (see para 204 ante) where an appeal lies from any decision of a district judge to the judge of the court in which the decision was made see the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.22 (amended by SI 1992/2067; SI 2001/821; SI 2005/617; SI 2005/2922). ### 305 County court appeals

NOTE 1--SI 1991/1247 r 4.22 revoked: SI 2009/636. See now SI 1991/1247 rr 8.A1, 8.2, 8.2A-8.2H; and MATRIMONIAL AND CIVIL PARTNERSHIP LAW vol 73 (2009) PARA 900. SI 1991/1247 r 8.1 now also does not apply to proceedings referred to in r 8.2: r 8.1(7) (substituted by SI 2009/636).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/4. PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(4) APPEALS/306. Appeals to the Court of Appeal.

306. Appeals to the Court of Appeal.

An appeal lies to the Court of Appeal<sup>1</sup> from:

- 410 (1) the determination of the judge of a county court in such manner and subject to such conditions as may be provided by the Civil Procedure Rules<sup>2</sup>; and
- 411 (2) any judgment or order of the High Court<sup>3</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> When determining an application for permission to appeal against orders for residence and contact, the Court of Appeal is restricted to a review of the judge's decision to see whether the appellant has an arguable case, which is fit to present before a full court on appeal, that the judge's order is plainly wrong: Re W (children) (permission to appeal) (2007) Times, 2 August, CA (considering G v G [1985] 2 All ER 225, HL).

<sup>2</sup> See the County Courts Act 1984 s 77(1) (amended by the Civil Procedure Act 1997 s 10, Sch 2 para 2(7); and the Access to Justice Act 1999 (Destination of Appeals) Order 2000, SI 2000/1071, art 8); and CIVIL PROCEDURE. For the procedure governing appeals to the Court of Appeal commenced before 2 May 2000 see CPR Sch 1 RSC Ord 59. For the procedure governing appeals to the Court of Appeal commenced on or after 2 May 2000 see CPR Pt 52; Practice Direction-Appeals (1999) PD 52 (as amended). As to the test to be applied by the appellate court in children cases see para 304 note 1 ante.

In the Family Division of the High Court an application for permission to appeal should be made to the judge at the conclusion of the judgment, but if it is not so made, it may be made to the same judge at a later stage. The position in the county court is somewhat different in that if the application is not made to the judge at the conclusion of the trial, it cannot be advanced to the circuit judge at a later stage but must go to the Court of Appeal: see Klentzeris v Klentzeris [2007] EWCA Civ 533, [2007] Fam Law 790.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/4. PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(5) PARTICULAR DUTIES OF THE COURT IN MATRIMONIAL AND CIVIL PARTNERSHIP PROCEEDINGS/307. Divorce, nullity of marriage, judicial separation and civil partnership proceedings.

(5) PARTICULAR DUTIES OF THE COURT IN MATRIMONIAL AND CIVIL PARTNERSHIP PROCEEDINGS

307. Divorce, nullity of marriage, judicial separation and civil partnership proceedings.

In any proceedings for a decree of divorce or nullity of marriage, or a decree of judicial separation or in any proceedings for dissolution, nullity or separation order in respect of a civil partnership<sup>1</sup>, the court<sup>2</sup> must consider: (1) whether there are any children of the family to whom the relevant provisions of the Matrimonial Causes Act 1973 or the Civil Partnership Act 2004 apply<sup>3</sup>; and (2) where there are any such children, whether (in the light of the arrangements which have been, or are proposed to be, made for their upbringing and welfare) it should exercise any of its powers under the Children Act 1989 with respect to any of them<sup>4</sup>.

A child of the family, in relation to the parties to a marriage or a civil partnership, means: (a) a child<sup>5</sup> of both those parties; and (b) any other child, not being a child who is placed with those parties as foster parents by a local authority or voluntary organisation, who has been treated by both of those parties as a child of their family<sup>6</sup>. An unborn child cannot be treated as a child of the family<sup>7</sup>.

Where a petition for divorce, nullity of marriage or judicial separation, or for dissolution, nullity of civil partnership or separation, discloses that there is a minor child of the family who is under 16 or who is over that age and is receiving instruction at an educational establishment or undergoing training for a trade or profession, the petition must be accompanied by a statement, signed by the petitioner personally, and if practicable agreed with the respondent, containing the information required by the prescribed form<sup>8</sup> to which must be attached a copy of any medical report mentioned in the statement<sup>9</sup>.

A respondent on whom a statement of arrangements is served<sup>10</sup> may sign the form indicating his agreement with the arrangements. However, whether or not he does agree, the respondent may file in the court office a statement of his views of the present and proposed arrangements for the children and on receipt of such a statement from the respondent, the proper officer must send a copy to the petitioner<sup>11</sup>. If no application<sup>12</sup> for an order under Part I or Part II of the Children Act 1989<sup>13</sup> in the cause is pending, the district judge<sup>14</sup> must, after certifying that the petitioner is entitled to a decree nisi or a conditional order in civil partnership proceedings<sup>15</sup> or after giving directions as to the provision of evidence in a defended cause<sup>16</sup>, as the case may be, proceed to consider the matters specified in heads (1) and (2) above<sup>17</sup>.

1 As to such proceedings see the Matrimonial Causes Act 1973 ss 1-18 (as amended; prospectively further amended) (see MATRIMONIAL AND CIVIL PARTNERSHIP LAW vol 72 (2009) PARA 319 et seq).

2 'The court' means the High Court or, where a county court has jurisdiction by virtue of the Matrimonial and Family Proceedings Act 1984 Pt V (ss 32-44) (as amended), the county court: Matrimonial Causes Act 1973 s 52(1) (amended by the Matrimonial and Family Proceedings Act 1984 s 46(1), Sch 1 para 16). In respect of civil partnerships, the court having jurisdiction is the High Court or a county court which has been designated a 'civil partnership proceedings county court' by virtue of the Matrimonial and Family Proceedings Act 1984 Pt V (as amended) : Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 220.

3 Matrimonial Causes Act 1973 s 41(1)(a) (s 41 substituted by the Children Act 1989 s 108(4), Sch 12 para 31); Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 63(1)(a). As from a day to be appointed the Matrimonial Causes Act 1973 s 41(1) is amended by the Family Law Act 1996 s 66(3), Sch 10. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed and this amendment is unlikely to be brought into force: see para 150 note 7 ante.

4 Matrimonial Causes Act 1973 s 41(1)(b) (as substituted: see note 3 supra); Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 63(1)(b).

The provisions of the Matrimonial Causes Act 1973 s 41 (as substituted) and the Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 63 apply to any child of the family who has not reached the age of 16 at the date when the court considers the case in accordance with the requirements of the section, and to any child of the family who has reached that age at that date and in relation to whom the court directs that the section should apply: s 41(3) (as so substituted); Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 63(3). For the meaning of 'child of the family' see the text and notes 5-7 infra.

5 'Child' is not confined to a minor child (Whytte v Ticehurst [1986] Fam 64, [1986] 2 All ER 158 (but see para 309 post)); and includes an illegitimate child (Matrimonial Causes Act 1973 s 52(1) (amended by the Children Act 1975 s 108(1)(b), Sch 4 Pt I)). For the meaning of 'child of the family' in the Children Act 1989 see para 248 note 10 ante.

6 Matrimonial Causes Act 1973 s 52(1) (amended by the Children Act 1989 s 108(7), Sch 12 para 33, Sch 15). There must be a 'family' (M v M (child of the family) (1980) 2 FLR 39, CA) and the child must have been 'treated' as a part of that family for however short a period: W v W (child of the family) [1984] FLR 796, CA; W (R J) v W (S J) [1972] Fam 152, [1971] 3 All ER 303. Form M4 requires the petitioner to give details of the children (children of both parties, other children of the family, and other children who are not children of the family), and requires that the arrangements which are proposed for the children of the family should be set out in some detail (eg including the addresses at which the children now live, the number of living rooms, bedrooms, etc at that address, details of the tenure of the house, the names of all other persons living with the children, and a statement by the petitioner as to whether there are any changes proposed in those arrangements). Full details of education and training are required. The petitioner must give details of child care arrangements, stating for example which parent looks after the children from day to day, and whether that parent goes out to work (and if so what his or her hours of work are, who looks after the children during school holidays, etc). Details of maintenance arrangements must be given, as must details of arrangements for contact with the children, details of the children's health, and details of all court proceedings. The petitioner is finally asked whether he would agree to discuss the matter with a conciliator and the other spouse or civil partner if there is disagreement about the arrangements for the children. PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(5) PARTICULAR DUTIES OF THE COURT IN MATRIMONIAL AND CIVIL PARTNERSHIP PROCEEDINGS/308. Powers of district judge.

308. Powers of district judge.

If the district judge<sup>1</sup> is satisfied that there are no children of the family<sup>2</sup> to whom the relevant statutory provision applies<sup>3</sup>, or that there are such children but the court need not exercise its powers under the Children Act 1989 with respect to any of them, or give any direction<sup>4</sup> that the making of the decree be postponed, he must certify accordingly<sup>5</sup>. If he is not so satisfied, he may, without prejudice to his other powers<sup>6</sup>, direct that the parties or any of them file further evidence relating to the arrangements for the children (and the direction must specify the matters to be dealt with in further evidence), that a welfare report on the children, or any of them be prepared<sup>7</sup> or that the parties, or any of them, attend before him as specified, and the parties must be notified accordingly<sup>8</sup>.

Where it appears to the court that the circumstances of the case require it, or are likely to require it, to exercise any of its powers under the Children Act 1989 with respect to a child but it is not in a position to exercise that power or, as the case may be, those powers, without giving further consideration to the case, and there are exceptional circumstances which make it desirable in the interests of the child that the court should give a direction, it may direct that the decree of divorce or nullity is not made absolute or that the decree of judicial separation is not granted or the civil partnership order is not made final or a separation order not made, until the court orders otherwise<sup>9</sup>.

Matrimonial proceedings and civil partnership proceedings as family proceedings.

310. Matrimonial proceedings and civil partnership proceedings as family proceedings.

All proceedings under the Domestic Proceedings and Magistrates' Courts Act 1978 and the Matrimonial Causes Act 1973 and certain proceedings under the Civil Partnership Act 2004 are within the meaning of 'family proceedings'<sup>1</sup>. Accordingly the court has jurisdiction in any such proceedings to make contact orders, prohibited steps orders, residence orders or specific issue orders<sup>2</sup> in exactly the same way as in any other family proceedings<sup>3</sup>. In particular, if the court considers that it might be appropriate for a care order or supervision order to be made with respect to a child, the court has power to direct the appropriate authority to undertake an investigation of a child's circumstances<sup>4</sup>. There is power to make orders if the court considers that the order should be made even though no application has been made for such an order<sup>5</sup>, and the court may make an order at any time during the proceedings even though it is not in a position to dispose finally of those proceedings<sup>6</sup>.

(6) WELFARE REPORTS AND CHILDREN'S GUARDIANS

(i) Introduction

311. Independent reports.

The Children Act 1989 contains two provisions which enable the court to have independent reports available to it. First, a court considering any question with respect to a child under the Act may ask an officer of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS') or a Welsh family proceedings officer<sup>1</sup> or ask a local authority to arrange for an officer of the authority or such other person (other than an officer of the Service or a Welsh family proceedings officer) as the authority considers appropriate, to report to the court on such matters relating to the welfare of that child as are required to be dealt with in the report<sup>2</sup>. Secondly, for the purpose of any specified proceedings<sup>3</sup>, the court must appoint an officer of the Service or a Welsh family proceedings officer for the child concerned unless satisfied that it is not necessary to do so in order to safeguard his interests<sup>4</sup>. The officer must be appointed in accordance with rules of court<sup>5</sup>, and is under a duty to safeguard the interests of the child in the manner prescribed by such rules<sup>6</sup>.

1 Children Act 1989 s 7(1)(a) (s 7(1) amended by the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 74, Sch 7 para 88; and the Children Act 2004 s 40, Sch 3 paras 5, 6). As to CAFCASS see para 230 et seq ante. As to the exercise of CAFCASS functions in Wales see para 230 ante. For the meaning of 'officer of the Service' see para 230 ante; and for the meaning of 'Welsh family proceedings officer' see para 230 note 9 ante.

2 Children Act 1989 s 7(1)(b) (as amended: see note 1 supra). Where, before 1 April 2001 (ie the date on which the Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) (Amendment) Rules 2001, SI 2001/818, came into force) a person had been requested to prepare a welfare report in accordance with the Children Act 1989 s 7(1) and the proceedings in which the report was requested are still continuing, that person is treated, for the purposes of the Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, as the children and family reporter in those proceedings: Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) (Amendment) Rules 2001, SI 2001/818, r 18; see para 230 ante. For the meaning of 'children and family reporter' see para 230 note 13 ante.

As to the respective functions of a court welfare officer or children and family reporter and a children's guardian see Re S (a minor) (care proceedings: reports) [1992] 2 FCR 554, sub nom Re S (a minor) (guardian ad litem/welfare officer) [1993] 1 FLR 110, CA. See also para 317 text and note 7 post. Children and family reporters were formerly known as welfare officers: see para 230 ante. As to children's guardians (formerly known as guardians ad litem: see para 230 ante) see paras 319-321 post.

In separate proceedings relating to siblings, information compiled for the purpose of public law proceedings can be made available in private law proceedings by way of an application under the Children Act 1989 s 7 (as amended): W v Wakefield County Council [1994] 2 FCR 564, [1995] 1 FLR 170. As to private law proceedings see para 247 et seq ante. As to public law proceedings see para 270 et seq ante.

3 For the purposes of the Children Act 1989 s 41 (as amended), 'specified proceedings' means any proceedings:

200 (1) on an application for a care order or supervision order (see para 270 et seq ante) (s 41(6)(a));

201 (2) in which the court has given a direction under s 37(1) (see paras 201, 272 ante) and has made, or is considering whether to make, an interim care order (see paras 288-292 ante) (s 41(6)(b));

- 202 (3) on an application for the discharge of a care order or the variation or discharge of a supervision order (see paras 293-295 ante) (s 41(6)(c));
- 203 (4) on an application under s 39(4) (see para 294 ante) (s 41(6)(d));
- 204 (5) in which the court is considering whether to make a residence order (see para 262 ante) (s 41(6)(e));
- 205 (6) with respect to contact between a child who is the subject of a care order and any other person (see paras 278-279 ante) (s 41(6)(f));
- 206 (7) under Pt V (ss 43-52) (as amended) (see paras 578-609 post) with respect to a child who is the subject of a care order (s 41(6)(g));
- 207 (8) on an appeal against: (a) the making of, or refusal to make, a care order, supervision order or any order under s 34 (see paras 278-279 ante); (b) the making of, or refusal to make, a residence order with respect to a child who is the subject of a care order; or (c) the variation or discharge, or refusal of an application to vary or discharge, an order of a kind mentioned in heads (a) or (b) supra; (d) the refusal of an application under s 39(4) (see para 294 ante); (e) the making of, or refusal to make, an order under Pt V (as amended) (s 41(6)(h));
- 208 (9) on an application for the making or revocation of a placement order (within the meaning of the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 21) (Children Act 1989 s 41(6)(hh) (added by Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 122(1)(a)));;
- 209 (10) which are specified for the time being, for the purposes of the Children Act 1989 s 41 (as amended), by rules of court (s 41(6)(i)).

In respect of proceedings in the High Court and county court, the following proceedings are specified for the purposes of s 41 (as amended) in accordance with s 41(6)(i):

- 210 (i) proceedings under the Children Act 1989 s 25 (as amended) (see para 1037 et seq post) (Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.2(2)(a));
- 211 (ii) applications under the Children Act 1989 s 33(7) (see para 276 ante) (Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.2(2)(b));

Rules of court may make provision as to: (1) the assistance which any officer of the Service or Welsh family proceedings officer may be required by the court to give to it; (2) the consideration to be given by any officer of the Service or Welsh family proceedings officer, where an order of a specified kind has been made in the proceedings in question, as to whether to apply for the variation or discharge of the order; and (3) the participation of officers of the Service or Welsh family proceedings officers in reviews, of a kind specified in the rules, which are conducted by the court: Children Act 1989 s 41(10) (amended by the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 74, Sch 7 Pt II paras 87, 91; and the Children Act 2004 Sch 3 paras 5, 9(1), (4)).

Regardless of any enactment or rule of law which would otherwise prevent it from doing so, the court may take account of: (a) any statement contained in a report made by an officer of the Service or a Welsh family proceedings officer who is appointed under the Children Act 1989 s 41 (as amended) for the purpose of the proceedings in question; and (b) any evidence given in respect of the matters referred to in the report, in so far as the statement or evidence is, in the opinion of the court, relevant to the question which the court is considering: s 41(11) (amended by the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 74, Sch 7 Pt II paras 87, 91; and the Children Act 2004 Sch 3 paras 5, 9(1), (5)).

312. Confidentiality of reports.

The following wording must be indorsed on all welfare reports filed in Family Division proceedings and on all copies which are supplied to the parties or their solicitors: 'This report has been prepared for the court and should be treated as confidential. It must not be shown nor its contents revealed to any person other than a party or a legal adviser to such a party. Such legal adviser may make use of the report in connection with an application for assistance from the Community Legal Service Fund'<sup>1</sup>.

Subject to certain provisions<sup>2</sup>, nothing in the Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991<sup>3</sup> prevents the disclosure of a document prepared by an officer of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS') or a Welsh family proceedings officer<sup>4</sup> for the purpose of enabling a person to perform functions required under the Justices of the Peace Act 1997<sup>5</sup> or the Children Act 2004 and assisting an officer of the Service and a Welsh family proceedings officer who is appointed by the court under any enactment to perform his functions<sup>6</sup>.

It is a contempt of court to show the contents of the report to any person who is not a party to the proceedings for which the report was obtained, the legal representative of a party, the children's guardian<sup>7</sup>, the Legal Services Commission or a children and family reporter<sup>8</sup>, and leave of the court can, as a general rule, only be given by the court which ordered the report or in which the proceedings were conducted<sup>9</sup>. The court to which an application is made will have to balance, on the one hand the public interest in maintaining the confidentiality of information tendered in confidence to assist the court in promoting the welfare of children, and on the other hand the public interest, in the administration of justice, that all relevant and admissible evidence should, as a general rule, be before the court when it decides an action between two parties<sup>10</sup>.

A party must file and serve on: (1) the parties; (2) any local authority that is preparing or has prepared a special guardianship report<sup>11</sup>; (3) any welfare officer or children and family reporter; (4) any officer of CAFCASS or any Welsh family proceedings officer who is preparing or has prepared a family assistance order report or a risk assessment; and (5) any children's guardian of whose appointment he has been given notice<sup>12</sup>, written statements of the substance of the oral evidence which the party intends to adduce at a hearing of, or a directions appointment in, those proceedings and copies of any documents, including experts' reports, upon which the party intends to rely at a hearing of, or a directions appointment in, those proceedings at or by such time as the court directs or, in the absence of a direction, before the hearing or appointment<sup>13</sup>.

The judge should not discuss the case with the welfare officer in the absence of the parties, save perhaps in the most exceptional circumstances<sup>14</sup>.

As an officer of CAFCASS, a children and family reporter who, in the course of compiling a report instigated by the court, has obtained information which gives rise to concern about a child's welfare may report such information to the social services without the court's permission: see Re M (a child) (disclosure: children and family reporter) [2002] EWCA Civ 1199, [2002] 4 All ER 401, [2003] Fam 26.

Nothing in the Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 23 (as amended), prevents the notification by the court or the designated officer of the court of a direction under the Children Act 1989 s 37(1) (see paras 201, 272 ante) to the authority concerned: Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 23(2) (amended by SI 2005/617).

NOTES 5, 6--SI 1991/1247 r 4.11(1) further amended: SI 2008/2861. SI 1991/1395 r 11(1) further amended: SI 2008/2858.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/4. PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(6) WELFARE REPORTS AND CHILDREN'S GUARDIANS/(ii) Officers of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service and Welsh Family Proceedings Officers/315. Duties in relation to family assistance order reports and risk assessments.

315. Duties in relation to family assistance order reports and risk assessments.

When an officer of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS')<sup>1</sup> or a Welsh family proceedings officer<sup>2</sup> is preparing a family assistance order report<sup>3</sup> or a risk assessment<sup>4</sup> he must consider whether:

- 429 (1) to notify the child of such of the contents of the report or assessment as he considers appropriate to the age and understanding of the child<sup>5</sup>;
- 430 (2) to recommend in the report or assessment that the court lists a hearing for the purposes of considering the report or assessment<sup>6</sup>;
- 431 (3) it is in the best interests of the child for the child to be made a party to the proceedings<sup>7</sup>.

If the officer decides to notify the child of any of the contents of the report or assessment, he must explain those contents to the child in a manner appropriate to the child's age and understanding<sup>8</sup>. If the officer considers that the child should be made a party to the proceedings he must notify the court of his opinion together with the reasons for that opinion<sup>9</sup>. If the officer considers that the court should exercise its discretion<sup>10</sup> in relation to service of a risk assessment, he must state in the risk assessment both the way in which he considers the court should exercise its discretion (including his view on the length of any suggested delay in service) and his reasons for reaching his view<sup>11</sup>. The officer must file the report or assessment with the court: (a) at or by the time directed by the court; (b) in the absence of any such direction, at least 14 days before a relevant hearing<sup>12</sup>; or (c) where there has been no direction from the court and no relevant hearing is listed, as soon as possible following completion of the report or assessment<sup>13</sup>. When an officer prepares a family assistance order report, he must, as soon as practicable, serve copies of that report on each party and on any local authority that is preparing or has prepared a special guardianship report<sup>14</sup>.

At any hearing where a family assistance order report or a risk assessment is considered, any party may question the officer about the report or assessment<sup>15</sup>.

316. Right to have access to local authority records.

Where an officer of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS') or Welsh family proceedings officer has been appointed<sup>1</sup> he has the right at all reasonable times to examine and take copies of:

- 432 (1) any records of, or held by, a local authority or an authorised person<sup>2</sup> which were compiled in connection with the making, or proposed making, by any person of any application under the Children Act 1989 with respect to the child concerned<sup>3</sup>;
- 433 (2) any records of, or held by, a local authority which were compiled in connection with any functions which stand referred to its social services committee<sup>4</sup> so far as those records relate to that child<sup>5</sup>; or
- 434 (3) any records of, or held by, an authorised person which were compiled in connection with the activities of that person, so far as those records relate to that child<sup>6</sup>.

Where an officer of the Service or a Welsh family proceedings officer takes a copy of any record which he is entitled to examine<sup>7</sup> under these provision, that copy or any part of it is admissible as evidence of any matter referred to in any report which he makes to the court in the proceedings in question, or evidence which he gives in those proceedings<sup>8</sup>. Disclosure under the provisions described above<sup>9</sup> cannot be resisted on the ground of public interest immunity<sup>10</sup>.

Apart from the statutory requirements, it appears that a local authority is under a duty to disclose to the applicants before the hearing evidence which is to be used (or which is available)<sup>11</sup>.

Welfare reports, welfare officer and children and family reporter.

(iii) Welfare Reports, Welfare Officers and Children and Family Reporters

317. Welfare reports, welfare officer and children and family reporter.

The power to request a welfare report is available to the court in considering any question with respect to a child under the Children Act 1989<sup>1</sup>. It is the duty of the local authority or an officer of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS') or Welsh family proceedings officer<sup>2</sup> to comply with any request for such a report<sup>3</sup>.

The court has power to ask for a report on any matter relating to the welfare of the child<sup>4</sup>. It is not obliged, however, to require a welfare report in any case, and if a report is unduly delayed the court may proceed so far as it thinks it right and proper to do so without the benefit of a full report<sup>5</sup>. The report may be made in writing or orally as the court requires<sup>6</sup> and after the filing of a written report by a welfare officer<sup>7</sup>, the court or the justices' clerk may direct that the welfare officer attend any hearing at which the report is to be considered<sup>8</sup>. In the absence of special circumstances the court should not require a welfare report in addition to a report of a children's guardian<sup>9</sup>.

The primary function of the welfare report is to assist the court by providing it with the factual information on which to make a decision<sup>10</sup>, and a full welfare report will contain: (1) a statement of the conditions, material and otherwise, in which the children are living or in which it is proposed that they should live; (2) a reference to, or summary of, any relevant reports on the family and the children by independent persons such as doctors, school teachers, social workers, probation officers, and including police records; and (3) a statement of the relations of the children with each of their parents, including, when the children are old enough, a summary of their own views about their respective parents and their homes, and their own wishes as to the future<sup>11</sup>. It is not a function of an officer preparing a welfare report to undertake conciliation<sup>12</sup>.

The Lord Chancellor may, after consulting the Lord Chief Justice, make regulations specifying matters which, unless the court orders otherwise, must be dealt with in any report<sup>13</sup>.

Regardless of any enactment or rule of law which would otherwise prevent it from doing so, the court may take account of any statement contained in the report and any evidence given in respect of the matters referred to in the report, in so far as the statement or evidence is, in the court's opinion, relevant to the question which it is considering<sup>14</sup>. Welfare reports may, and almost inevitably do, contain hearsay evidence<sup>15</sup>, but where a judge has to arrive at crucial findings of fact he should found them upon sworn evidence rather than an unsworn report<sup>16</sup>. The parties may well wish to cross-examine the officer of the Service or the Welsh family proceedings officer or children and family reporter<sup>17</sup>, and the rules provide that any party may question them about the report at such a hearing<sup>18</sup>.

A welfare report will often contain a recommendation, but although the court should give any recommendation careful consideration, and state its reasons clearly if it decides not to follow that recommendation<sup>19</sup>, it is entirely within the court's discretion whether or not to accept the recommendation in a report<sup>20</sup>.

1 See the Children Act 1989 s 7(1) (as amended); and para 311 ante. The power would therefore be available for example when the court is considering making a parental responsibility order, on the application of an unmarried father (see para 139 ante), or where an application is made for the appointment of a guardian of a child (see para 144 et seq ante), or in any other family proceedings in which the court is considering the making of an order under the Children Act 1989. The court might thus seek a welfare report in proceedings which have been started under the Family Law Act 1996 Pt IV (ss 30-63) (as amended): see para 199 et seq ante; and MATRIMONIAL AND CIVIL PARTNERSHIP LAW vol 72 (2009) PARA 285 et seq. For the meaning of 'child' see para 3 ante.

Appropriate directions may be given at any time under the provisions of the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.14 (as amended); the Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 14 (as amended): see para 280 ante. As to the court's powers to give directions as to the preparation of welfare reports under the Children Act 1989 s 7 (as amended) see the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.14(2)(g); and the Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 14(2)(g). A district judge exercising his functions under the Matrimonial Causes Act 1973 s 41 (as substituted) or Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 63 (see para 307 ante) may direct that a welfare report on a child be prepared: see the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 2.39 (amended by SI 2005/2992); and MATRIMONIAL AND CIVIL PARTNERSHIP LAW vol 73 (2009) PARA 884. Where there is an appeal it may be preferable that a welfare report is ordered by the Court of Appeal rather than by the county court judge, and it is wrong to order an up-to-date welfare report for use in the Court of Appeal automatically: M v M [1990] FCR 80, [1989] 2 FLR 354, 357, CA, per Croom-Johnson LJ. See also Re W (welfare reports) [1995] 3 FCR 793, [1995] 2 FLR 142, CA (where the court welfare officer was ordered to prepare a welfare report even though one had already been prepared by a local authority social worker, and even though additional report might lead to delay in proceedings).

6 Children Act 1989 s 7(3). Where the court or justices' clerk has directed that a written report be made by children and family reporter or an officer of the local authority in accordance with s 7(1)(b) (see para 311 ante), the report must be filed at or by such time as the court or justices' clerk directs, or (in the absence of such a direction) at least 14 days before a relevant hearing, and the proper officer or the designated officer for the court must, as soon as practicable, serve a copy of the report on the parties and any local authority that is preparing, or has prepared, a report under s 14A(8) or s 14A(9) (as added) (see para 151 ante) and any children's guardian: see the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.13(1) (r 4.13 substituted by SI 1992/2067; and amended by SI 2001/821; 2005/2922); and the Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 13(1) (r 13 substituted by SI 1992/2068; amended by SI 2001/818; SI 2005/617; SI 2005/2930). As to children's guardians (formerly known as guardians ad litem: see para 230 ante) see paras 319-321 post. A hearing is relevant if the proper officer or designated officer for the court has given the welfare officer notice that his report is to be considered at it: Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.13(2) (substituted by SI 2001/821); Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 13(2) (substituted by SI 2001/818; amended by SI 2005/617).

7 In accordance with the Children Act 1989 s 7(1)(b) (as amended): see para 311 ante. 'Welfare officer' is the name given to an officer of the authority under the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.13 (as substituted and amended).

8 See the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.13(3) (substituted by SI 1992/3027); and the Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 13(3) (substituted by SI 1992/2068; and amended by SI 2001/615). Except where such a direction is given at a hearing attended by the welfare officer, the proper officer or designated officer of the court must inform the children and family reporter or the officer of the local authority of such a direction, and at the hearing at which the report is considered any party may question the children and family reporter or the officer of the local authority on the report: see the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.13(3)(a) (as so substituted); Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 13(3)(a) (as so substituted; and amended by SI 2005/617). If any party considers it desirable that the children and family reporter or officer of the local authority should attend the hearing, the proper course is to ask the district judge so to direct, or if time does not permit, to inform the officer of the local authority or children and family reporter that it is proposed at the hearing to ask for a direction that he attend: Practice Direction [1981] 2 All ER 1056, [1981] 1 WLR 1162. Children and family reporters were formerly known as welfare officers: see para 230 ante.

The welfare officer must consider whether it is in the best interests of the child for the child to be made party to the proceedings: Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.13(3A) (added by SI 2001/821); Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 13(3A) (added by SI 2001/818). If the welfare officer considers the child should be made a party to the proceedings he must notify the court of his opinion together with the reasons for that decision: Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.13(3B) (added by SI 2001/821); Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 13(3B) (added by SI 2001/818).

15 See the Children (Admissibility of Hearsay Evidence) Order 1993, SI 1993/621, which, in effect, disappplies the hearsay rule to civil proceedings when evidence relating to the upbringing, maintenance or welfare of a child is being heard. 18 See the Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 4.13(3)(b) (as substituted: see note 6 supra); and the Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 13(3)(b) (as substituted: see note 6 supra). As to the attendance of the officer of the local authority or children and family reporter see note 6 supra. If the officer of the local authority or children and family reporter goes into the witness-box the parties are entitled to ask him questions, but as an officer of the court, the officer of the local authority or children and family reporter does not give evidence on oath: I v H (contact hearing: procedure) [1998] 2 FCR 433, sub nom Re I and H (contact: right to give evidence) [1998] 1 FLR 876, CA.

The court may limit the issues on which an officer of the Service or Welsh family proceedings officer may be cross-examined: Family Proceedings Rules 1991, SI 1991/1247, r 10.14A (added by SI 2001/821; amended by SI 2005/559); Family Proceedings Courts (Children Act 1989) Rules 1991, SI 1991/1395, r 22A (added by SI 2001/818; amended by SI 2005/585).

Recommendations in a report should normally be explored in cross-examination: W v W (custody of child) [1988] FCR 640, [1988] 2 FLR 505, CA. A whole day of cross-examination of the welfare officer would usually be considered excessive and unhelpful: Re B (a minor) (residence order) [1998] 1 FCR 549, sub nom Re B (residence order: status quo) [1998] 1 FLR 368, CA.

19 S v Oxfordshire County Council [1993] 2 FCR 676, [1993] 1 FLR 452. This principle applies equally to court welfare reports as to recommendations of children's guardians: S v Oxfordshire County Council supra. The court is entitled to weigh up the relevant considerations without the officer's attendance and can depart from his recommendations even if he does not attend to give oral evidence: Re C (a minor) (application for residence order) [1995] 2 FCR 276, sub nom Re C (section 8 order: court welfare officer) [1995] 1 FLR 617, CA. PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(6) WELFARE REPORTS AND CHILDREN'S GUARDIANS/(iii) Welfare Reports, Welfare Officers and Children and Family Reporters/318. Specific powers and duties of the children and family reporter.

318. Specific powers and duties of the children and family reporter.

The children and family reporter<sup>1</sup> is under a duty<sup>2</sup> to: (1) notify the child of such contents of his report (if any) as he considers appropriate to the age and understanding of the child, including any reference to the child's own views on the application and the recommendation of the children and family reporter<sup>3</sup>; and (2) if he does notify the child of any contents of his report, explain them to the child in a manner appropriate to his age and understanding<sup>4</sup>.

Where the court has directed that a written report be made by a children and family reporter and notified the children and family reporter that his report is to be considered at the hearing, the children and family reporter must file his report and serve a copy on the other parties, and on any local authority that is preparing, or has prepared, a special guardianship report<sup>5</sup> and on the children's guardian<sup>6</sup> (if any) by such time as the court may direct and if no direction is given, not less than 14 days before that hearing<sup>7</sup>.

The court may direct that the children and family reporter attend any hearing at which his report is to be considered<sup>8</sup>. The children and family reporter must advise the court if he considers that the joinder of a person as a party to the proceedings would be likely to safeguard the interests of the child<sup>9</sup>. The children and family reporter must consider whether it is in the best interests of the child for the child to be made a party to the proceedings<sup>10</sup>, and if he considers the child should be made a party to the proceedings he must notify the court of his opinion together with the reasons for that opinion<sup>11</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/4. PROCEEDINGS RELATING TO THE UPBRINGING OF CHILDREN/(6) WELFARE REPORTS AND CHILDREN'S GUARDIANS/(iv) Children's Guardians/319. Appointment of children's guardians.

(iv) Children's Guardians

319. Appointment of children's guardians.

As soon as practicable after the commencement of specified proceedings<sup>1</sup>, or the transfer of such proceedings to the court, the justices' clerk or the court must appoint a children's guardian<sup>2</sup>, unless such an appointment has already been made by the court which made the transfer and is subsisting, or the court considers that such an appointment is not necessary to safeguard the interests of the child<sup>3</sup>. At any stage in the proceedings a party may apply, without notice to the other parties unless the justices' clerk or the court directs otherwise, for the appointment of a children's guardian<sup>4</sup>. The justices' clerk or the court must grant such an application unless he or it considers such an appointment not to be necessary to safeguard the interests of the child, in which case reasons must be given, and a note of such reasons must be taken by the justices' clerk or proper officer<sup>5</sup>.

At any stage in the proceedings the court may, of its own motion, appoint a children's guardian<sup>6</sup>. The court or the designated officer for the court may, in specified proceedings, appoint more than one children's guardian in respect of the same child<sup>7</sup>. The proper officer or the designated officer for the court must, as soon as practicable, notify the parties and any welfare officer or children and family reporter of an appointment<sup>8</sup> or, as the case may be, of a decision not to make such an appointment<sup>9</sup>. Upon the appointment of a children's guardian the proper officer or the designated officer for the court must, as soon as practicable, notify him of the appointment and serve on him copies of the application and of documents filed<sup>10</sup>.

A children's guardian appointed by the court or the designated officer for the court must not: (1) be a member, officer or servant of the local authority which, or an authorised person<sup>11</sup> who, is a party to the proceedings<sup>12</sup>; (2) be, or have been, a member, officer or servant of a local authority or voluntary organisation<sup>13</sup> who has been directly concerned in that capacity in arrangements relating to the care, accommodation or welfare of the child during the five years prior to the commencement of proceedings<sup>14</sup>; or (3) be a serving probation officer who has, in that capacity, been previously concerned with the child or his family<sup>15</sup>. When appointing a children's guardian the court must consider the appointment of anyone who has previously acted as children's guardian of the same child<sup>16</sup>.

The appointment of a children's guardian must continue for such time as is specified in the appointment or until terminated by the court<sup>17</sup>. When terminating an appointment, the court must give its reasons in writing for so doing<sup>18</sup>. Where the justices' clerk or the court appoints a children's guardian or refuses to make such an appointment, the court or the proper officer must record the appointment or refusal in the appropriate form<sup>19</sup>.

320. Specific powers and duties of children's guardians.

The children's guardian<sup>1</sup> must (1) appoint a solicitor to represent the child unless such a solicitor has already been appointed<sup>2</sup>; and (2) give such advice to the child as is appropriate having regard to his understanding and, subject to the child instructing the solicitor direct, instruct the solicitors representing the child on all matters relevant to the interests of the child including possibilities for appeal, arising in the course of proceedings<sup>3</sup>. Where it appears to the children's guardian that the child is instructing his solicitor direct or intends to conduct and is capable of conducting the proceedings on his own behalf, he must inform the court<sup>4</sup>. From then on the children's guardian: (a) must perform all of his duties<sup>5</sup>, other than those duties under head (1) above, and such other duties as the justices' clerk or the court may direct<sup>6</sup>; (b) must take such part in the proceedings as the justices clerk or the court may direct<sup>7</sup>; and (c) may, with the leave of the justices' clerk or the court, have legal representation in the conduct of those duties<sup>8</sup>.

Unless excused by the justices' clerk or the court, the children's guardian must attend all directions appointments in and hearings of the proceedings and must advise the court<sup>9</sup> on the following matters: (i) whether the child is of sufficient understanding for any purpose including the child's refusal to submit to a medical or psychiatric examination or other assessment that the court has the power to require, direct or order<sup>10</sup>; (ii) the wishes of the child in respect of any matter relevant to the proceedings including his attendance at court<sup>11</sup>; (iii) the appropriate forum for the proceedings<sup>12</sup>; (iv) the appropriate timing of the proceedings or any part of them<sup>13</sup>; (v) the options available to it in respect of the child and the suitability of each such option including what order should be made in determining the application<sup>14</sup>; and (vi) any other matter concerning which the designated officer for the court, the justices clerk or the court seeks his advice or concerning which he considers that the designated officer for the court, the justices' clerk or the court should be informed<sup>15</sup>.

The advice given under heads (i) to (vi) above may, subject to any order of the court, be given orally or in writing, and if the advice be given orally, a note of it must be taken by the justices' clerk or the proper officer or the court<sup>16</sup>. The children's guardian must, where practicable, notify any person whose joinder as a party to those proceedings would be likely<sup>17</sup> to safeguard the interests of the child of that person's right to apply to be joined<sup>18</sup> and must inform the designated officer for the court or the court of any such notification given, of anyone whom he attempted to so notify but was unable to contact, and of anyone whom he believes may wish to be joined to the proceedings<sup>19</sup>.

The children's guardian must, unless the justices' clerk or the court otherwise directs, not less than 14 days before the date fixed for the final hearing of the proceedings, file a written report advising on the interests of the child and serve a copy of the filed report on the other parties and any local authority that is preparing or has prepared a special guardianship report<sup>20</sup>. The children's guardian must serve and accept service of documents on behalf of the child<sup>21</sup> and, where the child has not himself been served, and has sufficient understanding, advise the child of the contents of any document so served<sup>22</sup>.

If the children's guardian inspects records<sup>23</sup> he must bring to the attention of the court, and unless the court or the justices' clerk otherwise directs, the other parties to the proceedings, all records and documents which may, in his opinion, assist in the proper determination of the proceedings<sup>24</sup>.

The children's guardian must ensure that, in relation to a decision made by the justices' clerk or the court in the proceedings, if he considers it appropriate to the age and understanding of the child, the child is notified of that decision, and if the child is notified of the decision, it is explained in a manner appropriate to his age and understanding<sup>25</sup>.

If a care order<sup>26</sup> is made, however, the children's guardian has no role to play in the performance by the local authority of its duties, and the court has no power to direct his continued involvement<sup>27</sup>. If a children's guardian wishes to challenge a local authority's care plan the appropriate method is not by way of judicial review, but within the existing care proceedings<sup>28</sup>.

321. Solicitor for the child.

In any specified proceedings<sup>1</sup>, where the child concerned is not represented by a solicitor and any of the following conditions is satisfied, the court may appoint a solicitor to represent him<sup>2</sup>. The conditions are that: (1) no officer of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS') or Welsh family proceedings officer<sup>3</sup> has been appointed for the child<sup>4</sup>; (2) the child has sufficient understanding to instruct a solicitor and wishes to do so<sup>5</sup>; (3) it appears to the court that it would be in the child's best interests for him to be represented by a solicitor<sup>6</sup>.

An appointed solicitor<sup>13</sup> must serve and accept service of documents on behalf of the child<sup>14</sup> and, where the child has not himself been served and has sufficient understanding, advise the child of the contents of any document so served<sup>15</sup>. Where the child wishes an appointment of a solicitor<sup>16</sup> to be terminated, he may apply to the court for an order terminating the appointment, and the solicitor and the children's guardian must be given an opportunity to make representations<sup>17</sup>.

Where the children's guardian wishes an appointment of a solicitor<sup>18</sup> to be terminated, he may apply to the court for an order terminating the appointment; and the solicitor and, if he is of sufficient understanding, the child, must be given an opportunity to make representations<sup>19</sup>. When terminating an appointment the court must give reasons for so doing, a note of which must be taken by the proper officer or the justices' clerk<sup>20</sup>. In the High Court or county court, where the court appoints a solicitor<sup>21</sup> or refuses to make such an appointment, the court or the proper officer must record the appointment or refusal in the appropriate form<sup>22</sup>. In the family proceedings court, where the justices' clerk or the court appoints a solicitor<sup>23</sup> or refuses to make such an appointment, the justices' clerk must record the appointment or refusal in the appropriate form<sup>24</sup> and the designated officer for the court must serve a copy on the parties and, where he is appointed, on the solicitor<sup>25</sup>.

The Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS')<sup>1</sup> established CAFCASS Legal Services and Special Casework (CAFCASS Legal) principally to take over the Official Solicitor's responsibilities of representing children who are the subject of family proceedings<sup>2</sup>. Since 1 April 2001 the Official Solicitor has ceased to represent children who are the subject of family proceedings (other than in very exceptional circumstances and after liaison with CAFCASS)<sup>3</sup>. However, in cases of doubt or difficulty, staff of the Official Solicitor's office liaise with staff of CAFCASS Legal to avoid duplication and ensure the most suitable arrangements are made<sup>4</sup>.

(1) INTRODUCTION

323. Effect of adoption.

An adoption order<sup>1</sup> achieves a complete and permanent legal transference of parental responsibility from one parent or set of parents to another; no other family law order has such profound consequences<sup>2</sup>. Under an adoption order, a child<sup>3</sup> becomes in law a full member of another family<sup>4</sup>, and an adopted person is treated in law as if born as the child of the adopters or adopter<sup>5</sup>. An adopted person is the legitimate child of the adopters or adopter and, if adopted by a couple or one of a couple<sup>6</sup>, is treated as the child of the relationship of the couple in question<sup>7</sup>. An adoption order may be set aside only on the grounds of procedural irregularity<sup>8</sup>.

324. Common law and equity.

Adoption law remains a creature of statute; there is no procedure for adoption under the common law<sup>1</sup>. However, the common law does give recognition to some foreign adoptions<sup>2</sup>, which do not qualify for automatic recognition as overseas adoptions by statute<sup>3</sup>.

At common law the rights, liabilities and duties of parents are inalienable<sup>4</sup>, and adoption, in the sense of the transfer of parental rights and duties in respect of a child to another person and their assumption by him, is unknown<sup>5</sup>. The Children Act 1989 provides that a person who has parental responsibility for a child may not surrender or transfer any part of that responsibility to another but may arrange for some or all of it to be met by one or more persons acting on his behalf<sup>6</sup>. The making of any such arrangement does not affect the fact that the person who has parental responsibility may remain liable for any failure in meeting the obligations of the parental responsibility towards the child<sup>7</sup>.

In English law the making of an adoption order effects the transfer of a child into a different family group and by that order extinguishes the parental responsibility previously held by the child's former parent or parents who are not members of the child's new family group<sup>8</sup>.

325. Adoption legislation.

The Adoption of Children Act 1926 introduced adoption as a legal institution into English law. Over the years, many changes in the law were made, and the legislation was consolidated in the Adoption Act 1976, which until the enactment and commencement of the Adoption and Children Act 2002 remained the principal statute<sup>1</sup>. During the currency of the Adoption Act 1976, the Children Act 1989 was enacted, introducing a number of changes in concepts and terminology, which necessitated many detailed consequential changes to the law relating to adoption, and amendments were also made with a view to harmonising adoption law across the jurisdictions of England and Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland. A small number of substantive changes were introduced into the law designed to remedy particular defects in adoption law or to introduce improvements<sup>2</sup>.

The Adoption and Children Act 2002 received Royal Assent on 7 November 2002 and was brought fully into force on 30 December 2005<sup>3</sup>. It embodies the principal statute law currently in force, and in replacing the Adoption Act 1976<sup>4</sup> it reforms and re-codifies the law relating to adoption. Children adopted prior to 30 December 2005 remain subject to the provisions of the Adoption Act 1976 concerned with the status of adopted children which (to that limited extent) remains in force<sup>5</sup>.

<sup>3</sup> See note 1 supra. Regulations made by the Secretary of State after consultation with the Welsh Ministers may provide for any reference in any provision of the Adoption and Children Act 2002 to an enactment (including an enactment contained in the Act) to include a provision of the law of the Isle of Man or any of the Channel Islands which appears to the Secretary of State to correspond in its effect to that enactment (s 108(1)(c), (3)), and may modify any provision of the Act, as such provision applies to any order made, or other thing done, under the law of the Isle of Man or any of the Channel Islands (s 108(2)). As to the Secretary of State and the Welsh Ministers see para 155 ante. At the date at which this volume states the law no such regulations had been made. As to the making of regulations generally see para 334 note 12 post.

<sup>4</sup> The other than the Adoption Act 1976 Pt IV (ss 38-49) (as amended) (status of adopted children: see para 375 et seq post) and Sch 2 para 6 (rights relating to property) (see SETTLEMENTS vol 42 (Reissue) para 733).

327. Welfare test.

Under previous legislation<sup>1</sup> the welfare of the child<sup>2</sup> was not the court's paramount consideration: rather, 'first consideration' had to be given to the child's welfare<sup>3</sup>. This position has changed significantly with the enactment of the new adoption legislation<sup>4</sup>, under which the 'paramount consideration' of a court<sup>5</sup> or adoption agency<sup>6</sup> coming to a decision relating to the adoption of a child<sup>7</sup> must be the child's welfare, throughout his life<sup>8</sup>.

1    Ie the Adoption Act 1976, which is largely repealed (see para 325 ante).

2    For the purposes of both the Adoption Act 1976 and the Adoption and Children Act 2002, 'child', except where used to express a relationship, means a person who has not attained the age of 18 years: Adoption Act 1976 s 72(1) (repealed); Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 144(1). References in the Adoption and Children Act 2002, in connection with any adoption proceedings (whether or not concluded), to a 'child', such as 'child to be adopted' or 'adopted child', include a person who has attained the age of 18 years before the proceedings are concluded: ss 49(5), 147, Sch 6.

3    See the Adoption Act 1976 s 6 (repealed).

4    Ie the Adoption and Children Act 2002.

5    As to the court see para 511 post.

6    Ie a local authority or a registered adoption society: see paras 394-395 post.

7    For these purposes 'coming to a decision relating to the adoption of a child', in relation to a court, includes coming to a decision in any proceedings where the orders that might be made by the court include an adoption order (or the revocation of such an order), a placement order (or the revocation of such an order) or an order under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 26 (or the revocation or variation of such an order) (see para 339 post), and coming to a decision about granting leave in respect of any action (other than the initiation of proceedings in any court) which may be taken by an adoption agency or individual under the Adoption and Children Act 2002, but does not include coming to a decision about granting leave in any other circumstances: s 1(7). Thus 'coming to a decision relating to the adoption of a child' within s 1(1), (7) applies only to decisions under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 and does not include coming to a decision about granting leave in any other circumstances (including decisions about granting leave in proceedings under the Children Act 1989): see Re P (a child) (adoption order: leave to oppose making of adoption order) [2007] EWCA Civ 616, [2007] 2 FCR 407, [2007] All ER (D) 334 (Jun).

For the meaning of 'adoption order', and as to adoption orders generally, see para 359 et seq post. For the meaning of 'placement order', and as to placement orders generally, see para 335 et seq post.

Section 1(7) is modified in its application to an order under s 84 giving parental responsibility prior to an overseas adoption and in relation to an adoption within the scope of the Convention on Protection of Children and Co-operation in Respect of Intercountry Adoptions (The Hague, 29 May 1993; TS 40 (1994); Cm 2691): see the Adoptions with a Foreign Element Regulations 2005, SI 2005/392, regs 11, 52, 55; and paras 490, 502 post.

For the purposes of the Adoption and Children Act 2002 'local authority' means any unitary authority, or any county council so far as it is not a unitary authority: ss 144(1), 147, Sch 6. For these purposes 'unitary authority' means the council of any county so far as it is the council for an area for which there are no district councils, the council of any district comprised in an area for which there is no county council, the council of a county borough, the council of a London borough or the Common Council of the City of London: s 144(1), Sch 6. As to the local government areas and authorities in England and Wales see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 22 et seq. As to the London boroughs and their councils see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) paras 30, 35-39, 59 et seq. As to the Common Council of the City of London see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) paras 51-55.

If the Secretary of State is satisfied or the Welsh Ministers are satisfied that any local authority has failed, without reasonable excuse, to comply with any of the duties imposed on it by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 or the Adoption (Intercountry Aspects) Act 1999 s 1 (see para 483 post) or s 2(4) (see para 486 post), he or they may make an order declaring that authority to be in default in respect of that duty: Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 14(1). The order may contain such directions as appear to be necessary for the purpose of ensuring that, within the period specified in the order, the duty is complied with (s 14(3)), and must give the reasons why it was made (s 14(2)). Any such directions are enforceable, on the application of the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers, by a mandatory order: s 14(4). As to the Secretary of State and the Welsh Ministers see para 155 ante.

8 See ibid s 1(1), (2). This corresponds to the provision made with regard to child welfare generally by the Children Act 1989, which requires a court determining any question with respect to a child's upbringing or the administration of his property or income to give paramount consideration to the child's welfare (see s 1(1); and para 300 ante). See also Re S (a child) (adoption order or special guardianship order) [2007] EWCA Civ 54, [2007] 1 FCR 271, [2007] 1 FLR 819. As to which inquiries are in the interests of the child see Re C (a child) (adoption: duty of local authority) [2007] EWCA Civ 1206, [2007] All ER (D) 368 (Nov) (when a decision was required to be made about the long term care of a child, whom a mother wished to be adopted, there was no duty to make inquiries which it was not in the interests of the child to make; and inquiries were not in the interests of the child simply because they would provide more information about the child's background: they had genuinely to further the prospect of finding a long term carer for the child without delay).

328. Delay.

The current legislation governing adoption<sup>1</sup> specifically incorporates the principle that delay is inimical to the welfare of children, requiring a court<sup>2</sup> or adoption agency<sup>3</sup> at all times to bear in mind that, in general, any delay in coming to a decision relating to the adoption of a child<sup>4</sup> is likely to prejudice the child's welfare<sup>5</sup>. Accordingly, for the avoidance of delay the legislation provides that in proceedings in which a question may arise as to whether an adoption order<sup>6</sup> or placement order<sup>7</sup> should be made, or any other question with respect to such an order, the court must<sup>8</sup> draw up a timetable with a view to determining such a question without delay<sup>9</sup> and give such directions as it considers appropriate for the purpose of ensuring that the timetable is adhered to<sup>10</sup>.

5    Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 1(3). As to the paramountcy of the child's welfare see para 327 ante. This corresponds to the provision made with regard to child welfare generally by the Children Act 1989, which requires the court in any proceedings in which any question with respect to the upbringing of a child arises to have regard to the general principle that any delay in determining the question is likely to prejudice the welfare of the child (see s 1(2); and para 301 ante), and is also embodied in the Family Procedure (Adoption) Rules 2005, SI 2005/2795 (amended by SI 2007/2189), which provide that dealing with a case justly includes, inter alia, ensuring so far as is practicable that it is dealt with expeditiously (see r 1(2)(a); and para 511 post). As to the court see para 511 post.

6    For the meaning of 'adoption order', and as to adoption orders generally, see para 359 et seq post.

7    For the meaning of 'placement order', and as to placement orders generally, see para 335 et seq post.

8    The court is required to exercise these powers in the light of any rules made by virtue of the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 109(2), which may prescribe periods within which prescribed steps must be taken in relation to such proceedings (s 109(2)(a)) and make other provision with respect to such proceedings for the purpose of ensuring that such questions are determined without delay (s 109(2)(b)). NOTE 5--SI 2005/2795 further amended: SI 2008/2447, SI 2009/3348.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/5. ADOPTION/(1) INTRODUCTION/329. Welfare checklist.

329. Welfare checklist.

Whenever a court<sup>1</sup> or adoption agency<sup>2</sup> is coming to a decision relating to the adoption of a child<sup>3</sup> it must have regard to:

- 435 (1) the child's ascertainable wishes and feelings regarding the decision (considered in the light of the child's age and understanding)<sup>4</sup>;
- 436 (2) the child's particular needs<sup>5</sup>;
- 437 (3) the likely effect on the child (throughout his life) of having ceased to be a member of the original family<sup>6</sup> and become an adopted person<sup>7</sup>;
- 438 (4) the child's age, sex, background and any of the child's characteristics which the court or agency considers relevant<sup>8</sup>;
- 439 (5) any harm<sup>9</sup> which the child has suffered or is at risk of suffering<sup>10</sup>; and
- 440 (6) the relationship which the child has with relatives<sup>11</sup>, and with any other person in relation to whom the court or agency considers the relationship to be relevant<sup>12</sup>.

The matters to which a court or agency is required to have regard in coming to a decision relating to the adoption of a child correspond to those to which a court is required to have regard in making a decision with regard to child welfare generally<sup>13</sup>, and it follows that a court or agency coming to a decision relating to the adoption of a child must always consider the whole range of powers<sup>14</sup> available to it in the child's case<sup>15</sup>. The 'no-order' principle also applies<sup>16</sup>.

1 As to the court see para 511 post.

2 I.e. a local authority or a registered adoption society: see paras 394-395 post.

3 For the meaning of 'child' see para 327 note 2 ante. As to the meaning of 'coming to a decision relating to the adoption of a child' see para 327 note 7 ante.

4 Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 1(4)(a).

5 Ibid s 1(4)(b).

6 For these purposes references to relationships are not confined to legal relationships: ibid s 1(8)(a).

7 Ibid s 1(4)(c).

8 Ibid s 1(4)(d). In placing a child for adoption an adoption agency is also required to give due consideration to the child's religious persuasion, racial origin and cultural and linguistic background: s 1(5). References in the Adoption and Children Act 2002 (apart from s 18 (see para 331 post)) to an adoption agency placing a child for adoption are to its placing a child for adoption with prospective adopters (ss 18(5)(a), 147, Sch 6) and include, where it has placed a child with any persons (whether under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 or not), leaving the child with them as prospective adopters (s 18(5)(b)); and references (apart from in s 18) to a child who is placed for adoption by an adoption agency are to be interpreted accordingly.

10 Ibid s 1(4)(e).

11 For the purposes of the Adoption and Children Act 2002 'relative', in relation to a child, means a grandparent, brother, sister, uncle or aunt, whether of the full blood or half blood or by marriage or civil partnership (ss 144(1), 147, Sch 6 (s 144(1) amended by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 79(1), (11))), and for the particular purposes of the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 1 references to a 'relative', in relation to a child, include the child's mother and father (s 1(8)(b)).

12 Ibid s 1(4)(f). The matters to which the court or agency is required to have regard in this context include:

- 219 (1) the likelihood of any such relationship continuing and the value to the child of its doing so (s 1(4)(f)(i));
- 220 (2) the ability and willingness of any of the child's relatives, or of any such person, to provide the child with a secure environment in which the child can develop, and otherwise to meet the child's needs (s 1(4)(f)(ii)); and
- 221 (3) the wishes and feelings of any of the child's relatives, or of any such person, regarding the child (s 1(4)(f)(iii)).

13 See the Children Act 1989 s 1(3), (4). These provisions require a court which is either considering whether to make, vary or discharge a section 8 order (see para 303 ante) in circumstances where the making, variation or discharge of the order is opposed by any party to the proceedings, or is considering whether to make, vary or discharge a special guardianship order (see para 151 et seq ante) or an order under Pt IV (ss 31-42) (as amended) (care and supervision orders: see para 270 et seq ante), to have regard in particular to:

- 222 (1) the ascertainable wishes and feelings of the child concerned (considered in the light of his age and understanding) (see s 1(3)(a), (4) (as amended); and para 303 ante);
- 223 (2) the child's physical, emotional and educational needs (see s 1(3)(b); and para 303 ante);
- 224 (3) the likely effect on the child of any change in his circumstances (see s 1(3)(c); and para 303 ante);
- 225 (4) the child's age, sex, background and any of the child's characteristics which the court or agency considers relevant (see s 1(3)(d); and para 303 ante); and
- 226 (5) any harm which the child has suffered or is at risk of suffering (see s 1(3)(e); and para 303 ante).

15 Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 1(6). In connection with the operation of the welfare checklist provisions contained in the Children Act 1989 and the Adoption and Children Act 2002, with reference to the circumstances in which a special guardianship order (see para 152 ante), rather than an adoption order, may be appropriate, see Re S (a child) (adoption order or special guardianship order) [2007] EWCA Civ 54, [2007] 1 FCR 271, [2007] 1 FLR 819.

330. 'No order' principle.

The 'no order' principle under the Children Act 1989 (which provides that where a court is considering whether or not to make one or more orders under that Act with respect to a child, it must not make the order or any of the orders unless it considers that doing so would be better for the child than making no order at all<sup>1</sup>) is also embodied in the Adoption and Children Act 2002, which provides that a court<sup>2</sup> or adoption agency<sup>3</sup> coming to a decision relating to the adoption of a child<sup>4</sup> must, in addition to always considering the whole range of powers available to it<sup>5</sup> in the child's case, not make any order under the Act unless it considers that making the order would be better for the child than not doing so<sup>6</sup>.

(2) PLACEMENT FOR ADOPTION

(i) Placement and Placement Orders

331. Placement for adoption by agencies.

An adoption agency<sup>1</sup> may place a child<sup>2</sup> for adoption with prospective adopters<sup>3</sup> or, where it has placed a child with any persons<sup>4</sup>, leave the child with them as prospective adopters<sup>5</sup>; however, unless the child in question is less than six weeks old, the agency may do this only with parental consent<sup>6</sup> or under a placement order<sup>7</sup>. An agency may place a child for adoption with prospective adopters only if it is satisfied that the child ought to be placed for adoption<sup>8</sup>.

If an application for an adoption order<sup>9</sup> has been made by any persons in respect of a child and has not been disposed of, an adoption agency which placed the child with those persons may leave the child with them until the application is disposed of<sup>10</sup> but, apart from that, the child may not be placed for adoption with any prospective adopters<sup>11</sup>.

4    le whether under ibid Pt I (ss 1-110) (as amended) or not: s 18(1).

5    Ibid s 18(1)(b).

6    le under ibid s 19 (see para 332 post).

7    Ibid s 18(1). See also the Adoption Agencies Regulations 2005, SI 2005/389, reg 35(3), (4) (which provide that where a prospective adopter notifies an adoption agency that he wishes to proceed with the placement and the agency is authorised to place the child for adoption or the child is less than six weeks old (subject to the proviso that unless there is a placement order in respect of the child, the agency may not place for adoption a child who is less than six weeks old unless the parent or guardian of the child has agreed in writing with the agency that the child may be placed for adoption), the agency may place the child for adoption with the prospective adopter). For the meaning of 'placement order', and as to placement orders generally, see para 335 et seq post. The Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 18 is subject to ss 30-35 (see para 342 et seq post): s 18(7).

Section 18 does not apply where on or after 30 December 2005 a child is free for adoption by virtue of a freeing order made under the Adoption Act 1976 s 18 (repealed as from that date by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 139, Sch 5) but is not placed for adoption, and the adoption agency may place the child for adoption accordingly: see the Adoption and Children Act 2002 (Commencement No 10 Transitional and Savings Provisions) Order 2005, SI 2005/2897, art 4(a).

8    Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 18(2). Once a child has been placed (or authorised to be placed) for adoption with prospective adopters by a local authority, that child becomes 'looked after' by the authority: s 18(3). References in Pt I Ch 3 (ss 18-65) to an adoption agency being, or not being, 'authorised' to place a child for adoption are to the agency being or (as the case may be) not being authorised to do so under s 19 (see para 332 post) or a placement order (see s 21 et seq; and para 335 post): s 18(6). By virtue of s 147, Sch 6, for the duties of local authorities towards children 'looked after' by them see the Children Act 1989 s 22 (as amended); and para 867 et seq post. For the meaning of 'local authority' see para 327 note 7 ante.

In Wales, where a local authority ('the placing authority') is considering the placement of a child who is looked after with a prospective adopter who is resident in the area of another local authority ('the recovering authority') the placing authority must consult the recovering authority in writing about the placement and the result of the assessments undertaken in accordance with the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 4(1), (2) (see para 415 post) and in particular about the ability of the agencies in the area of the recovering authority to provide any identified adoption support services: Adoption Support Services (Local Authorities) (Wales) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1512, reg 7(4). As to the provision of adoption support services see para 394 et seq post. A placing authority must allow a period of 20 working days following such consultation before the placement of the child can be considered by the adoption panel in accordance with the Adoption Support Agencies (Wales) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1514, reg 18 (see para 471 post): Adoption Support Services (Local Authorities) (Wales) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1512, reg 7(5). Where a recovering authority has responded in writing to the consultation, that response must be taken into account by the adoption panel when considering the placement of the child in accordance with the Adoption Support Agencies (Wales) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1514, reg 18 and by the adoption agency in accordance with reg 19 (see para 470 post): Adoption Support Services (Local Authorities) (Wales) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1512, reg 7(6).

9 For the meaning of 'adoption order', and as to adoption orders generally, see para 359 et seq post. As to applications for adoption see the Adoption and Children Act 2002 ss 49-51; and paras 361-363 post. For this purpose 'adoption order' includes a Scottish or Northern Irish adoption order (s 18(4)); and a 'Scottish adoption order' is an order made, or having effect as if made, under the Adoption (Scotland) Act 1978 s 12, and a 'Northern Irish adoption order' is an order made, or having effect as if made, under the Adoption (Northern Ireland) Order 1987, SI 1987/2203, art 12 (Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 144(1), Sch 6).

10 Ibid s 18(4)(a). Section 18(4) is modified in its application to an order under s 84 giving parental responsibility prior to an overseas adoption and in relation to an adoption within the scope of the Convention on Protection of Children and Co-operation in Respect of Intercountry Adoptions (The Hague, 29 May 1993; TS 40 (1994); Cm 2691): see the Adoptions with a Foreign Element Regulations 2005, SI 2005/392, regs 11, 52, 55; and paras 490, 502 post.

Where an adoption agency<sup>1</sup> is satisfied that each parent<sup>2</sup> or guardian<sup>3</sup> of a child<sup>4</sup> has consented<sup>5</sup> to the child being placed for adoption<sup>6</sup> with prospective adopters identified in the consent<sup>7</sup>, or being placed for adoption with any prospective adopters who may be chosen by the agency<sup>8</sup>, and has not withdrawn the consent, the agency is authorised to place the child for adoption accordingly<sup>9</sup>.

If an agency has placed a child for adoption under these provisions in pursuance of consent given by a parent of the child<sup>10</sup>, and at a later time, the other parent of the child acquires parental responsibility for the child<sup>11</sup>, the other parent is to be treated as having at that time given consent in the same terms as those in which the first parent gave consent<sup>12</sup>.

2     For the purposes of the provisions relating to placements for adoption and adoption orders (ie the Adoption and Children Act 2002 Pt I Ch 3 (ss 18-65)), 'parent' (except in s 52(9), (10) (see para notes 10-12 infra)) means a parent having parental responsibility: ss 19(5), 20(6), 52(2), (6). As to the meaning of 'parental responsibility' see, by virtue of Sch 6, the Children Act 1989 s 3; and para 134 ante.

3     For the meaning of 'guardian' see ibid s 105(1); and para 144 note 5 ante (definition applied by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 ss 144(1), 147, Sch 6). For the purposes of the Adoption and Children Act 2002 'guardian' also includes a 'special guardian' within the meaning of the Children Act 1989 s 105(1) (as amended) (see para 151 ante): see the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 144(1), Sch 6.

4     For the meaning of 'child' see para 327 note 2 ante.

5     For the meaning of 'consent' see para 370 post. Consent to a child being placed for adoption with prospective adopters identified in the consent may be combined with consent to the child subsequently being placed for adoption with any prospective adopters who may be chosen by the agency in circumstances where the child is removed from or returned by the identified prospective adopters: s 19(2). ### 334. Parental responsibility in placements.

Where a child<sup>1</sup> is placed for adoption<sup>2</sup> or an adoption agency<sup>3</sup> is authorised to place<sup>4</sup> a child for adoption<sup>5</sup>, parental responsibility<sup>6</sup> for the child is given to the agency concerned<sup>7</sup>. While the child is placed with prospective adopters, parental responsibility is given to them<sup>8</sup>. The agency may determine that the parental responsibility of any parent<sup>9</sup> or guardian<sup>10</sup>, or of prospective adopters, is to be restricted to the extent specified in the determination<sup>11</sup>.

Where a local authority is authorised to place a child for adoption or a child who has been placed for adoption is less than six weeks old, the authority's duty to ascertain and give due weight to the wishes and feelings of the parent and to promote contact are disapplied, and the adoption agency is instead required to provide counselling and information for, and to ascertain the wishes and feelings of, inter alia, the child's parent or guardian<sup>12</sup>.

11 Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 25(4).

12 In these circumstances an adoption agency must, so far as is reasonably practicable: (1) provide a counselling service for the parent or guardian of the child; (2) explain to the parent or guardian (and provide the necessary written information): (a) the procedure in relation to both placement for adoption and adoption; (b) the legal implications of giving consent to placement for adoption under ibid s 19 (see para 332 ante), giving consent to the making of a future adoption order under s 20 (see para 333 ante) and a placement order; and (c) the legal implications of adoption; and (3) ascertain the wishes and feelings of the parent or guardian of the child and of any other person (or, in Wales, any other significant person) the agency considers relevant, regarding: (a) the placement of the child for adoption and his adoption, including any wishes and feelings about the child's religious and cultural upbringing; (b) contact with the child if the child is authorised to be placed for adoption or the child is adopted; and (c) in England, the child himself: Adoption Agencies Regulations 2005, SI 2005/389, reg 14(1); Adoption Agencies (Wales) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1313, regs 14(1). These provisions do not, however, apply in England if the agency is satisfied that the requirements set out above have been carried out in respect of the parent or guardian and any other person the agency considers relevant by another adoption agency: Adoption Agencies Regulations 2005, SI 2005/389, reg 14(2).

Where the father of a child does not have parental responsibility for the child and the father's identity is known to the adoption agency, an adoption agency must, where it is satisfied that it is appropriate to do so: (i) provide a counselling service for the father; (ii) explain to him (and provide the necessary written information) the procedure in relation to both placement for adoption and adoption and the legal implications of adoption; (iii) ascertain his wishes and feelings regarding: (A) the placement of the child for adoption and his adoption, including any wishes and feelings about the child's religious and cultural upbringing; (B) contact with the child if the child is authorised to be placed for adoption or the child is adopted; and (C) in England, the child himself; and (iv) ascertain so far as possible whether the father wishes to acquire parental responsibility for the child under the Children Act 1989 s 4 (see para 139 ante) or intends to apply for a residence order or contact order with respect to the child under s 8 (see paras 251, 262 ante) or, where the child is subject to a care order, an order under s 34 (see para 270 et seq ante): Adoption Agencies Regulations 2005, SI 2005/389, reg 14(3), (4); Adoption Agencies (Wales) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1313, regs 14(2), (3).

For modifications of the Children Act 1989 in relation to adoption see the Adoption Agencies Regulations 2005, SI 2005/389, reg 45 (amended by SI 2005/3482); the Adoption Agencies (Wales) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1313, reg 46; and para 977 post.

Any power to make subordinate legislation (which does not include a direction: Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 140(9)) conferred by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 on the Lord Chancellor, the Secretary of State, the Scottish Ministers, the Welsh Ministers or the Registrar General is exercisable by statutory instrument (s 140(1)). Other than in the case of an Order in Council or subordinate legislation made by the Scottish Ministers (s 140(4)(a)) or the Welsh Ministers (unless made jointly by the Secretary of State and the Welsh Ministers) (s 140(4)(b)), a statutory instrument containing subordinate legislation under s 9 which includes provision made by virtue of s 45(2), or under s 92(6), s 94 or s 123(6), or which adds to, replaces or omits any part of the text of an Act (s 140(3)(a)-(c)), is not to be made unless a draft of the instrument has been laid before, and approved by resolution of, each House of Parliament, and a statutory instrument containing subordinate legislation made under any provision of the Adoption and Children Act 2002 (other than s 14 or s 148 or an instrument to which s 140(3) applies) is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament (s 140(2)). As to the Secretary of State and the Welsh Ministers see para 155 ante. As to the bringing of subordinate legislation made by the Welsh Ministers before the National Assembly for Wales see the Government of Wales Act 2006 Sch 11 paras 33-35; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

Subordinate legislation made under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 may make different provision for different purposes: s 140(7). A power to make such subordinate legislation (as well as being exercisable in relation to all cases to which it extends) may be exercised in relation to those cases subject to specified exceptions (s 140(8)(a)) or a particular case or class of case (s 140(8)(b)).

334 Parental responsibility in placements

NOTE 12--SI 2005/389 reg 14(4) amended, SI 2005/1313 reg 14(2) substituted, reg 14(3) amended: SI 2009/1892.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/5. ADOPTION/(2) PLACEMENT FOR ADOPTION/(i) Placement and Placement Orders/335. Application for placement orders.

335. Application for placement orders.

A placement order is an order made by the court<sup>1</sup> authorising a local authority<sup>2</sup> to place a child<sup>3</sup> for adoption with any prospective adopters who may be chosen by the authority<sup>4</sup>. A local authority must apply to the court for a placement order in respect of a child<sup>5</sup> if:

- 441 (1) the child is placed for adoption by it or is being provided with accommodation by it<sup>6</sup>;
- 442 (2) no adoption agency<sup>7</sup> is authorised to place the child for adoption<sup>8</sup>;
- 443 (3) the child has no parent<sup>9</sup> or guardian<sup>10</sup> or the authority considers that the conditions for making a care order<sup>11</sup> are met<sup>12</sup>; and
- 444 (4) the authority is satisfied that the child ought to be placed for adoption<sup>13</sup>, and it may so apply if the child is subject to a care order<sup>14</sup> and the appropriate local authority<sup>15</sup> is authorised<sup>16</sup> to place the child for adoption<sup>17</sup>.

These provisions<sup>18</sup> do not apply in respect of a child if any persons have given notice of intention to adopt<sup>19</sup> or if an application for an adoption order has been made and has not been disposed of<sup>20</sup>; however, the appropriate local authority<sup>21</sup> is required to apply to the court for a placement order if it is satisfied that the child ought to be placed for adoption and either an application has been made (and not disposed of) on which a care order might be made in respect of a child<sup>22</sup> or a child is subject to a care order and the authority is not authorised to place the child for adoption<sup>23</sup>.

If a local authority is under a duty to apply to the court for a placement order in respect of a child<sup>24</sup>, or has applied for a placement order in respect of a child and the application has not been disposed of<sup>25</sup>, the child is 'looked after' by the authority<sup>26</sup>.

335 Application for placement orders

NOTE 13--Expert reports which have been filed and served in care proceedings and which address the present and future needs of the subject child should be provided to members of an adoption panel in advance of the meeting and to decision makers for pre-reading: Re B (children) (placement order: expert reports) [2008] EWCA Civ 835, [2008] 2 FCR 570.

The court<sup>1</sup> may make a placement order<sup>2</sup> only if, in the case of each parent<sup>3</sup> or guardian<sup>4</sup> of the child<sup>5</sup>, it is satisfied either that the parent or guardian has consented<sup>6</sup> to the child being placed for adoption with any prospective adopters who may be chosen by the local authority<sup>7</sup> and has not withdrawn the consent<sup>8</sup> or that the parent's or guardian's consent should be dispensed with<sup>9</sup>, and may not make a placement order in respect of a child unless the child is subject to a care order<sup>10</sup>, the court is satisfied that the conditions for making a care order<sup>11</sup> are met<sup>12</sup>, or the child has no parent or guardian<sup>13</sup>.

Before making a placement order the court must consider the arrangements which the adoption agency<sup>14</sup> has made, or proposes to make, for allowing any person contact with the child<sup>15</sup> and invite the parties to the proceedings to comment on those arrangements<sup>16</sup>, and when making the order the court may on its own initiative make an order for contact<sup>17</sup>.

In proceedings in which a question may arise as to whether a placement order should be made, or any other question with respect to such an order, the court must, for the avoidance of delay, draw up and make provision for adherence to a timetable for the determination of such a question<sup>18</sup>.

As part of the process of application for a placement order<sup>19</sup>, where an application in respect of a child has been made and has not been disposed of<sup>20</sup> and no interim care order<sup>21</sup> is in force<sup>22</sup>, the court may give any directions it considers appropriate for the medical or psychiatric examination or other assessment of the child, although a child who is of sufficient understanding to make an informed decision may refuse to submit to the examination or other assessment<sup>23</sup>.

336 Power of court to make orders

NOTE 16--See Re T (placement order) [2008] EWCA Civ 248, [2008] Fam Law 608, [2008] All ER (D) 279 (Mar) (finding that adoption in best interests of children, who needed specialist therapeutic foster placement for a few months, and that a placement order should follow, premature).

337. Effect of a placement order.

A placement order<sup>1</sup> continues in force until it is revoked<sup>2</sup>, an adoption order<sup>3</sup> is made in respect of the child<sup>4</sup>, or the child marries, forms a civil partnership or attains the age of 18 years<sup>5</sup>. A care order<sup>6</sup> is suspended for the duration of the placement order<sup>7</sup>; and on the making of a placement order any existing contact order<sup>8</sup>, prohibited steps order<sup>9</sup>, residence order<sup>10</sup>, specific issue order<sup>11</sup> or supervision order<sup>12</sup>, ceases to have effect<sup>13</sup>. Where a placement order is in force, no prohibited steps order, residence order or specific issue order<sup>14</sup>, and no supervision order or child assessment order<sup>15</sup>, may be made in respect of the child<sup>16</sup>; and no special guardianship order<sup>17</sup> may be made in respect of the child unless an application has been made for an adoption order<sup>18</sup> and the person applying for the special guardianship order has obtained the court's leave<sup>19</sup>.

7 Where a placement order is made in respect of a child and either the child is subject to a care order (ibid s 29(1)(a)) or the court at the same time makes a care order in respect of the child (s 29(1)(b)), the care order does not have effect at any time when the placement order is in force (s 29(1)). ### 338. Variation or revocation of placement order.

The court<sup>1</sup> may vary a placement order<sup>2</sup> so as to substitute another local authority<sup>3</sup> for the local authority authorised by the order to place the child<sup>4</sup> for adoption<sup>5</sup>. Such variation may be made only on the joint application of both authorities<sup>6</sup>. The court may also revoke a placement order on the application of any person<sup>7</sup>, although such an application may not be made by a person other than the child or the local authority authorised by the order to place the child for adoption unless the court has given leave to apply<sup>8</sup> and the child is not placed for adoption by the authority<sup>9</sup>. Where an application for the revocation of a placement order has been made and has not been disposed of<sup>10</sup>, and the child is not placed for adoption by the authority<sup>11</sup>, the child may not without the court's leave be placed for adoption under the order<sup>12</sup>.

If the court determines, on an application for an adoption order<sup>13</sup>, not to make the order, it may revoke any placement order in respect of the child<sup>14</sup>.

NOTE 8--Re M, cited, reported sub nom M v Warwickshire CC [2008] 1 WLR 991. ## (ii) Effect of Placement

339. Adoption and contact.

On an adoption agency<sup>1</sup> being authorised to place a child<sup>2</sup> for adoption<sup>3</sup>, or placing a child for adoption<sup>4</sup> who is less than six weeks old, any provision for contact under the Children Act 1989<sup>5</sup> (and, as from a day to be appointed, any contact activity direction) ceases to have effect<sup>6</sup>. Where an adoption agency is authorised to place a child for adoption, or a child is placed for adoption, no application may be made for any provision for contact under the Children Act 1989<sup>7</sup>, and the court<sup>8</sup> may make an order<sup>9</sup> requiring the person with whom the child lives, or is to live, to allow the child to visit or stay with the person named in the order, or for the person named in the order and the child otherwise to have contact with each other<sup>10</sup>. Those entitled to apply for a contact order are:

- 445 (1) the child or the agency<sup>11</sup>;
- 446 (2) any parent<sup>12</sup>, guardian<sup>13</sup> or relative<sup>14</sup>;
- 447 (3) any person in whose favour there was provision for contact under the Children Act 1989 which ceased<sup>15</sup> to have effect<sup>16</sup>;
- 448 (4) if a residence order<sup>17</sup> was in force immediately before the adoption agency was authorised to place the child for adoption or (as the case may be) placed the child for adoption at a time when he was less than six weeks old, the person in whose favour the order was made<sup>18</sup>;
- 449 (5) if a person had care of the child immediately before that time by virtue of an order made in the exercise of the High Court's inherent jurisdiction with respect to children, that person<sup>19</sup>; and
- 450 (6) any person who has obtained the court's leave to make the application<sup>20</sup>.

A contact order<sup>21</sup> will continue to be of effect for as long as the agency is authorised to place the child for adoption (or the child is placed for adoption)<sup>22</sup>, but it can be varied or revoked on application by the child, the agency or by a person named in the order<sup>23</sup>, and the agency may refuse to allow (for a limited period) the contact that would otherwise be required by virtue of an order<sup>24</sup>.

6 Ibid s 26(1) (prospectively amended by the Children and Adoption Act 2006 s 15(1), Sch 2 paras 13, 14). For the meaning of 'contact activity direction' see the Children Act 1989 s 11A (prospectively added); and para 252 ante (definition applied by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 26(5)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

7 Ibid s 26(2)(a). This does not prevent an application for a contact order under the Children Act 1989 s 8 (see para 251 ante) being made where the application is to be heard together with an application for an adoption order in respect of the child: Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 26(5). For the meaning of 'adoption order', and as to adoption orders generally, see para 359 et seq post. Where there are competing contact and adoption applications concerning a child, the applications should be heard concurrently: G v G (children: concurrent applications) [1993] Fam 253, [1993] 2 FLR 306.

8 As to the court see para 511 post.

9 le under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 26(2).

10 Ibid s 26(2)(b). A court in England and Wales does not have jurisdiction to make an order under s 26 unless the condition in the Family Law Act 1986 s 3 (as amended) (see para 833 post) is satisfied: s 2(2B) (added by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 139(1), Sch 3 paras 46, 48). In England, where an adoption agency decides that a child should be placed for adoption it must consider what, if any, arrangements it should make for allowing any person contact with the child once the agency is authorised to place the child for adoption ('the contact arrangements'), subject to the requirement that in coming to a decision in relation to contact arrangements the agency must take into account the wishes and feelings of the parent or guardian of the child and (where the Adoption Agencies Regulations 2005, SI 2005/389, reg 14(3) (see para 334 ante) applies and the agency considers it is appropriate), the father of the child, take into account any advice given by the adoption panel in accordance with reg 18(3) (see para 434 post), and have regard to the considerations set out in the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 1(2), (4) (see paras 327, 329 ante): Adoption Agencies Regulations 2005, SI 2005/389, reg 46(1)-(3). The agency must give notification of the contact arrangements to the child (if the agency considers he is of sufficient age and understanding), the parent or guardian (if their whereabouts are known to the agency), and, where reg 14(3) applies and the agency considers it is appropriate, the father of the child (if his whereabouts are known to the agency), any person in whose favour there was a provision for contact under the Children Act 1989 which ceased to have effect by virtue of s 26(1) (see para 936 post), and any other person the agency considers relevant: Adoption Agencies Regulations 2005, SI 2005/389, reg 46(4). If the agency proposes to make any change to the contact arrangements which affects any person mentioned in reg 46(4), it must seek the views of that person and take those views into account in deciding what arrangements it should make for allowing any person contact with the child while he is placed for adoption with the prospective adopter: reg 46(6).

Where an adoption agency in England decides that a child should be placed for adoption with a particular prospective adopter, the agency must review the contact arrangements in light of the views of the prospective adopter and any advice given by the adoption panel in accordance with reg 32(3) (see para 443 post): reg 46(5). The agency must set out the contact arrangements in the placement plan and keep the contact arrangements under review: reg 46(7).

Under the legislation having effect prior to the enactment of the Adoption and Children Act 2002 it was uncommon for the court to impose a condition of contact on an adoption order. The court could make a contact order as an alternative to attaching conditions to the contact order: see generally Re C (a minor) (adoption order: condition) [1986] 1 FLR 315, CA (condition that annual progress report be sent to natural father contrary to concept of adoption and threatened adoptive parents' feeling of security so as not to be in the child's interests); Re V (a minor) (adoption: consent) [1987] Fam 57, [1986] 1 All ER 752, CA (adoption order inappropriate where regular access by natural parent necessary for child's welfare); Re W (a minor) (adoption or custodianship) [1988] FCR 129, [1988] 1 FLR 175, CA (access by natural parents where child adopted by grandparents); Re C (a minor) (adoption order: conditions) [1989] AC 1, [1988] 1 All ER 705, HL (maintenance of affectionate relationship between child and natural brother in child's best interests, therefore adoption order made subject to condition as to access but only in most exceptional case would such a condition be imposed to which adopters do not agree); Re B (adoption: father's objections) [1999] 3 FCR 522, [1999] 2 FLR 215, CA; Re F (a minor) (adoption order: injunction) [1990] Fam 189, [1990] 3 All ER 580 (injunction preventing communication with parents and preventing the natural father from going within 500 yards of adopted child), overruled by Re D (a minor) (adoption order: validity) [1991] Fam 137, [1991] 3 All ER 461, CA; but see Re O (contempt: committal) [1996] 2 FCR 89, [1995] 2 FLR 767, CA (sentence of 12 months' imprisonment upheld for breach of an injunction preventing contact taking place). An adoption order is intended to be final, and it was accordingly held that contact should not be re-opened unless there has been a fundamental change of circumstances: Re O (a minor) (wardship: adopted child) [1978] Fam 196, [1978] 2 All ER 27, CA; Re S (a minor) (adoption: contact) (1993) Times, 8 March. The High Court could, under its inherent jurisdiction, attach to an adoption order an order that the Registrar General should not reveal the details of an adoption recorded in the Adopted Children's Register (see para 383 et seq post) without leave of the court: see Re X (a minor) (adoption details: disclosure) [1994] Fam 174, [1994] 2 FLR 450, CA; Re W (adoption details: disclosure) [1999] 2 FCR 283, [1998] 2 FLR 625. The agency may exercise this power only if it is satisfied that it is necessary to do so in order to safeguard or promote the child's welfare (s 27(2)(a)) and the refusal is decided upon as a matter of urgency and does not last for more than seven days (s 27(2)(b)). Regulations may make provision as to the steps to be taken by an agency which has exercised its power under s 27(2), the circumstances in which, and conditions subject to which, the terms of any order under s 26 (see the text and notes 1-20 supra) may be departed from by agreement between the agency and any person for whose contact with the child the order provides, and notification by an agency of any variation or suspension of arrangements made (otherwise than under an order under s 26) with a view to allowing any person contact with the child: s 27(3). In England, it is accordingly provided that where an adoption agency has decided under s 27(2) to refuse to allow the contact that would otherwise be required by virtue of an order under s 26, the agency must, as soon as the decision is made, inform the child (if the agency considers he is of sufficient age and understanding), the person in whose favour the order under s 26 was made, and the prospective adopter (if the child is placed for adoption) and notify them of the decision, the date of the decision, the reasons for the decision and the duration of the period: Adoption Agencies Regulations 2005, SI 2005/389, reg 47(1), (3). The terms of an order under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 26 may be departed from by agreement between the agency and any person for whose contact with the child the order provides, although this is subject to where the child's agreement (where he is of sufficient age and understanding) to consultation before the agreement is reached with the prospective adopter with whom the child is placed for adoption (where the child is placed for adoption) or written confirmation by the agency to the persons required to be informed of a decision of a refusal to allow contact of the terms of that agreement: Adoption Agencies Regulations 2005, SI 2005/389, reg 47(2).

Similar provision is made in respect of Wales, where it is provided that where the adoption agency has decided under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 27(2) to refuse to allow the contact that would otherwise be required by virtue of an order under s 26, the agency must, as soon as the decision is made, notify specified persons in writing of such specified parts of the information as the agency considers those persons need to know: Adoption Agencies (Wales) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1313, reg 47(1). The specified persons are:

227 (1) the child, if the adoption agency considers the child is of sufficient age and understanding (reg 47(4)(a));

228 (2) the child's parents (reg 47(4)(b));

229 (3) any guardian of the child (reg 47(4)(c));

230 (4) any person for whose contact with the child the order under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 26 provides (Adoption Agencies (Wales) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1313, reg 47(4)(d));

- 231 (5) any person the agency allowed contact with the child (reg 47(4)(e));
- 232 (6) if the child is placed for adoption, the prospective adopter (reg 47(4)(f)); and
- 233 (7) any other person whose wishes and feelings the agency considers to be relevant (reg 47(4)(g)).

The specified parts of the information are:

- 234 (a) the adoption agency's decision (reg 47(5)(a));
- 235 (b) the date of the decision (reg 47(5)(b));
- 236 (c) the reasons for the decision (reg 47(5)(c)); and
- 237 (d) the duration (if applicable) (reg 47(5)(d)).

In Wales, the terms of an order under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 26 may be departed from by agreement between the adoption agency and any person for whose contact with the child the order provides, if the child is of sufficient age and understanding (and subject to the child's agreement), if the child is placed for adoption (subject to prior consultation with the prospective adopter with whom the child is placed for adoption) and if written notification by the agency to the specified persons (cf heads (1)-(7) supra) of those specified parts of the information (cf heads (a)-(d) supra) as the agency considers those persons need to know, within seven days of the agreement to depart from the terms of the order: Adoption Agencies (Wales) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1313, reg 47(2). Where the agency varies or suspends any arrangements made (otherwise than under an order under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 26) with a view to allowing any person contact with the child, the agency must notify the specified persons in writing of those parts of the specified information as the agency considers those persons need to know: Adoption Agencies (Wales) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1313, reg 47(3).

Before making a placement order the court must consider the contact arrangements which the adoption agency has made or proposes to make and invite the parties to comment on those arrangements: see the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 27(4); and para 336 ante.

UPDATE

339 Adoption and contact

NOTE 6--Amendment to Children Act 1989 s 26(1) in force on 8 December 2008: SI 2008/2870.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/5. ADOPTION/(2) PLACEMENT FOR ADOPTION/(ii) Effect of Placement/340. Placement restricting application of other orders.

340. Placement restricting application of other orders.

In taking any decision relating to the adoption of a child the court<sup>1</sup> or adoption agency<sup>2</sup> will have to consider the whole range of powers available to it under the Children Act 1989 and the Adoption and Children Act 2002<sup>3</sup>. Once a child<sup>4</sup> has been placed for adoption<sup>5</sup> or an adoption agency is authorised to place a child for adoption<sup>6</sup>, a parent<sup>7</sup> or guardian<sup>8</sup> of the child may not apply for a residence order<sup>9</sup> unless an application for an adoption order<sup>10</sup> has been made and the parent or guardian has obtained the court's leave<sup>11</sup>; moreover, if an application has been made for an adoption order, a guardian of the child may not apply for a special guardianship order<sup>12</sup> unless he also has so obtained the court's leave<sup>13</sup>.

Once a child<sup>1</sup> is placed for adoption<sup>2</sup> or an adoption agency<sup>3</sup> is authorised to place a child for adoption<sup>4</sup> or a placement order<sup>5</sup> is in force in respect of a child<sup>6</sup>, then (whether or not the child is in England and Wales) a person may neither cause the child to be known by a new surname<sup>7</sup>, nor remove the child from the United Kingdom<sup>8</sup>, unless the court<sup>9</sup> gives leave or each parent<sup>10</sup> or guardian<sup>11</sup> of the child gives written consent<sup>12</sup> (although this does not prevent the removal of a child from the United Kingdom for a period of less than one month by a person who provides the child's home)<sup>13</sup>. ### (iii) Recovery and Removal of Children Placed for Adoption

Provision is made for the prevention of the removal of children placed for adoption or accommodated by adoption agencies or local authorities<sup>1</sup>. These provisions apply whether or not the child<sup>2</sup> in question is in England and Wales<sup>3</sup>, although they do not in general<sup>4</sup> apply if the child is subject to a care order<sup>5</sup>, do not prevent the removal of a child who is arrested<sup>6</sup>, and do not affect the exercise by any local authority<sup>7</sup> or other person of any power conferred by any enactment (other than that relating to the removal of children from local authority accommodation)<sup>8</sup>. Removal or intended removal in contravention of these provisions is ground for making a recovery order<sup>9</sup>.

343. Removal of child placed for adoption.

Where a child<sup>1</sup> is placed for adoption<sup>2</sup> by an adoption agency<sup>3</sup>, no person (other than the agency) can remove the child from the prospective adopters<sup>4</sup>. The same protection applies in circumstances where a child is placed for adoption by an adoption agency and either the child is less than six weeks old or the agency has at no time been authorised to place the child for adoption<sup>5</sup>. A person who removes a child in contravention of these provisions is guilty of an offence<sup>6</sup>, and removal or intended removal in contravention of these provisions is ground for making a recovery order<sup>7</sup>.

Where a child<sup>1</sup> who is not for the time being placed for adoption is being provided with accommodation by a local authority<sup>2</sup> and the authority has applied to the court<sup>3</sup> for a placement order<sup>4</sup> and the application has not been disposed of<sup>5</sup>, the child may be removed from the accommodation only by the authority or by a person who has the court's leave<sup>6</sup>. Where this does not apply, but a child who is not for the time being placed for adoption is being provided with accommodation by an adoption agency<sup>7</sup> and the agency is authorised to place the child for adoption<sup>8</sup> or would be so authorised if any consent<sup>9</sup> to such placement had not been withdrawn<sup>10</sup>, the child may be removed from the accommodation only by the agency<sup>11</sup>. ADOPTION/(2) PLACEMENT FOR ADOPTION/(iii) Recovery and Removal of Children Placed for Adoption/345. Recovery by parent or guardian where consent to placement withdrawn.

345. Recovery by parent or guardian where consent to placement withdrawn.

The parent<sup>1</sup> or guardian<sup>2</sup> of any child<sup>3</sup> who has been placed for adoption<sup>4</sup> by an adoption agency<sup>5</sup> may, where consent<sup>6</sup> to such placement has been withdrawn<sup>7</sup>, inform the agency that he wishes the child to be returned to him, and unless an application is, or has been, made for a placement order<sup>8</sup> and the application has not been disposed of<sup>9</sup>, the agency must give notice<sup>10</sup> of the parent's or guardian's wish to the prospective adopters<sup>11</sup> and the prospective adopters must return the child to the agency within the period of 14 days beginning with the day on which the notice is given<sup>12</sup>. Failure to give up the child is an offence<sup>13</sup>, although if the prospective adopters have made a prior application for an order in respect of the child which is still pending<sup>14</sup> they are not required by virtue of the notice to return the child to the agency unless the court<sup>15</sup> so orders<sup>16</sup>.

The parent or guardian of any child who is not for the time being placed for adoption, but who is being provided with accommodation by an adoption agency<sup>17</sup> in circumstances where the agency would be authorised to place the child for adoption<sup>18</sup> if consent to placement had not been withdrawn<sup>19</sup>, may inform the agency that he wishes the child to be returned to him and, unless an application is, or has been, made for a placement order and the application has not been disposed of, the agency must return the child within the period of seven days beginning with the request<sup>20</sup>.

7 Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 35(1)(b).

8 In England, where the child is returned to the adoption agency in accordance with ibid s 35(1) or s 35(2) (see para 351 post) the agency must conduct a review of the child's case no earlier than 28 days, or later than 42 days, after the date on which the child is returned to the agency, and when carrying out that review the agency must consider the matters set out in the Adoption Agencies Regulations 2005, SI 2005/389, reg 36(6) (a), (b), (c), (f) (see para 446 post) (reg 36(10)); where a child is so returned in Wales, the agency must conduct a review of the child's case as soon as reasonably practicable and in any event no later than 28 days after the date on which the child is returned to the agency (Adoption Agencies (Wales) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1313, reg 37(11)).

351. Recovery of child from prospective adopters.

Where a child<sup>1</sup> is placed for adoption by an adoption agency<sup>2</sup> and the agency is of the opinion that the child should not remain with the prospective adopters<sup>3</sup> and gives notice<sup>4</sup> to them of its opinion<sup>5</sup>, the prospective adopters must, not later than the end of the period of seven days beginning with the giving of the notice, return the child to the agency<sup>6</sup>. Failure to give up the child is an offence<sup>7</sup>, although if the prospective adopters have made a prior application for an order in respect of the child which is still pending<sup>8</sup> they are not required by virtue of the notice to return the child to the agency unless the court<sup>9</sup> so orders<sup>10</sup>. The child's case must be reviewed after he is returned<sup>11</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'child' see para 327 note 2 ante. These provisions apply whether or not the child in question is in England and Wales: Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 35(6).

2 I.e. a local authority or a registered adoption society: see paras 394-395 post. For the meaning of 'child placed for adoption by an adoption agency' see para 329 note 8 ante.

3 Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 35(2)(a). The provisions of s 35(2), (3), (5) are modified in relation to a child brought into the United Kingdom for adoption in non-Hague Convention cases: see the Adoptions with a Foreign Element Regulations 2005, SI 2005/392, regs 6(a), 8; and para 499 note 2 post.

4 As to the giving of notices under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 see para 333 note 11 ante.

5 Ibid s 35(2)(b). If the agency gives such a notice, it must also give notice to any parent or guardian of the child of the obligation to return the child to the agency: s 35(3). For the meaning of 'parent' see para 332 note 2 ante. As to the meaning of 'guardian' see para 332 note 3 ante.

6 Ibid s 35(2).

7 A prospective adopter who fails to comply with ibid s 35(2) is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months, or a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale, or both: s 35(4). As to the standard scale see para 132 note 2 ante. Failure to comply with this requirement is also grounds for making a recovery order: see s 41(1)(a); and para 357 post.

8 I.e. where an adoption agency gives notice under ibid s 35(2) (s 35(5)(a)) but: (1) before the notice was given, an application for an adoption order (including a Scottish or Northern Irish adoption order), special guardianship order (see para 151 ante) or residence order, or for leave to apply for a special guardianship order or residence order, was made in respect of the child (s 35(5)(b)); and (2) the application (and, in a case where leave is given on an application to apply for a special guardianship order or residence order, the application for the order) has not been disposed of (s 35(5)(c)). For the meaning of 'adoption order', and as to adoption orders generally, see para 359 et seq post. For the meaning of 'residence order' see the Children Act 1989 s 8(1); and para 262 ante (definition applied by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 147, Sch 6). As to Scottish and Northern Irish adoption orders see para 331 note 9 ante. Section 35(5) is modified in its application to an order under s 84 giving parental responsibility prior to an overseas adoption and in relation to an adoption within the scope of the Convention on Protection of Children and Co-operation in Respect of Intercountry Adoptions (The Hague, 29 May 1993; TS 40 (1994); Cm 2691): see the Adoptions with a Foreign Element Regulations 2005, SI 2005/392, regs 11, 52, 55; and paras 490, 502 post.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/5. ADOPTION/(2) PLACEMENT FOR ADOPTION/(v) Removal of Children in Non-Agency Cases/352. Restrictions on removal generally.

(v) Removal of Children in Non-Agency Cases

352. Restrictions on removal generally.

Provision is made within the legislation restricting the removal of children<sup>1</sup> whose home is with any persons ('the people concerned') with whom the child is not placed by an adoption agency<sup>2</sup> but who:

- 454 (1) have applied for an adoption order<sup>3</sup> in respect of the child, and the application has not been disposed of<sup>4</sup>;
- 455 (2) have given notice of intention to adopt<sup>5</sup>; or
- 456 (3) have applied for leave to apply for an adoption order<sup>6</sup>, and the application has not been disposed of<sup>7</sup>.

Such a child may be removed only by specified persons depending on the circumstances in which he is living<sup>8</sup>. Removal of a child in contravention of these restrictions (which apply whether or not the child in question is in England and Wales<sup>9</sup>, although they do not prevent the removal of a child who is arrested<sup>10</sup>) is an offence<sup>11</sup>, and removal or intended removal in contravention of these provisions is ground for making a recovery order<sup>12</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'child' see para 327 note 2 ante.

2 I.e. a local authority or a registered adoption society: see paras 394-395 post. As to an adoption agency placing a child for adoption see para 329 note 8 ante. For these purposes the reference to a child placed by an adoption agency includes a child placed by a Scottish or Northern Irish adoption agency: s 36(1). 'Scottish adoption agency' means a local authority, or a voluntary organisation providing a registered adoption service; but in relation to the provision of any particular service, references to a Scottish adoption agency do not include a voluntary organisation unless it is registered in respect of that service or a service which, in Scotland, corresponds to that service: ss 144(3), 147, Sch 6. Expressions used in s 144(3) have the same meaning as in the Regulation of Care (Scotland) Act 2001; and 'registered' means registered under Pt 1 (ss 1-32): Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 144(3). 'Northern Irish adoption agency' means an adoption agency within the meaning of the Adoption (Northern Ireland) Order 1987, SI 1987/2203, art 3: Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 144(1), Sch 6.

3 For the meaning of 'adoption order', and as to adoption orders generally, see para 359 et seq post.

4 Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 36(1)(a). Section 36 is modified in its application to an adoption within the scope of the Convention on Protection of Children and Co-operation in Respect of Intercountry Adoptions (The Hague, 29 May 1993; TS 40 (1994); Cm 2691): see the Adoptions with a Foreign Element Regulations 2005, SI 2005/392, regs 52, 54; and para 490 post.

5 Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 36(1)(b). For the meaning of 'notice of intention to adopt' see s 44(2); and para 365 post. As to the giving of notices under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 see para 333 note 11 ante. For the purposes of ss 36-40, a notice of intention to adopt is to be disregarded if the period of four months beginning with the giving of the notice has expired without the people concerned applying for an adoption order (s 36(2)(a)) or the notice is a second or subsequent notice of intention to adopt and was given during the period of five months beginning with the giving of the preceding notice (s 36(2)(b)). Section 36(2) does not apply in relation to a child brought into the United Kingdom for adoption in non-Hague Convention cases: see the Adoptions with a Foreign Element Regulations 2005, SI 2005/392, reg 6(b); and para 499 note 2 post.

6 I.e. under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 42(6) (see para 364 post).

7 Ibid s 36(1)(c). For the purposes of ss 36-40, if the people concerned apply for leave to apply for an adoption order under s 42(6) and the leave is granted, the application for leave is not to be treated as disposed of until the period of three days beginning with the granting of the leave has expired: s 36(3).

8 Ibid s 36(1). As to removal of a child subject to an adoption order application, removal of a child living with local authority foster parents, removal of a child by a partner of a parent, and removal of a child in other non-agency cases see ss 37-40; and paras 353-356 post.

11 Ibid s 36(6)(b). The offence is punishable on summary conviction by imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months, or a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale, or both: s 36(6). As to the standard scale see para 132 note 2 ante.

353. Removal of child subject to adoption order application.

When a child's<sup>1</sup> home is with any persons with whom he is not placed by an adoption agency<sup>2</sup> but who have applied for an adoption order<sup>3</sup> in respect of him, and the application has not been disposed of, the child may be removed only by a person who has the court's<sup>4</sup> leave<sup>5</sup> or a local authority<sup>6</sup> or other person in the exercise of a power conferred by any enactment (other than that relating to the removal of children from local authority accommodation)<sup>7</sup>. Removal or intended removal in contravention of these provisions is ground for making a recovery order<sup>8</sup>.

354. Removal of child living with local authority foster parents.

Where a child's<sup>1</sup> home is with local authority foster parents<sup>2</sup>, the categories of person who may remove him depend on how long the child has had that home and whether those foster parents have given notice of an intention to adopt him<sup>3</sup>. If the child has had his home with the foster parents at all times during the period of five years ending with the removal and the foster parents have given notice of intention to adopt<sup>4</sup>, or an application has been made<sup>5</sup> for leave to apply for an adoption order<sup>6</sup> and has not been disposed of<sup>7</sup>, he may be removed only by a person who has the court's<sup>8</sup> leave<sup>9</sup> or by a local authority or other person in the exercise of a power conferred by any enactment (other than that relating to the removal of children from local authority accommodation)<sup>10</sup>. If, however, the above circumstances do not obtain but the child has had his home with the foster parents at all times during the period of one year ending with the removal<sup>11</sup> and the foster parents have given notice of intention to adopt<sup>12</sup>, the child may be removed by a person with parental responsibility<sup>13</sup> for the child who is exercising the power relating to the removal of children from local authority accommodation<sup>14</sup> (in addition to the persons referred to above<sup>15</sup>). Removal or intended removal in contravention of these provisions is ground for making a recovery order<sup>16</sup>.

3 Ibid s 38(1). As to the application of these restrictions, and the punishment of their contravention, see para 352 ante. ### 355. Removal of child by partners of parents.

Where a child's<sup>1</sup> home is with a partner of a parent<sup>2</sup> who has given notice of an intention to adopt<sup>3</sup>, the categories of person who may remove him depend on how long the child has had that home<sup>4</sup>. If the child's home has been with the partner for not less than three years (whether continuous or not) during the period of five years ending with the removal he may be removed only by a person who has the court's<sup>5</sup> leave<sup>6</sup> or by a local authority<sup>7</sup> or other person in the exercise of a power conferred by any enactment (other than that relating to the removal of children from local authority accommodation)<sup>8</sup>. If, however, the above circumstances do not obtain, the child may be removed by a parent or guardian<sup>9</sup> (in addition to the persons referred to above<sup>10</sup>). Removal or intended removal in contravention of these provisions is ground for making a recovery order<sup>11</sup>.

Where a parent or guardian may remove a child from persons with whom the child has not been placed by an adoption agency (that is, 'the people concerned')<sup>12</sup> in accordance with these provisions, the people concerned must at the request of the parent or guardian return the child to the parent or guardian at once<sup>13</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'child' see para 327 note 2 ante. See also para 352 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'parent' see para 332 note 2 ante. For the purposes of the Adoption and Children Act 2002 a person is the partner of a child's parent if the person and the parent are a couple but the person is not the child's parent (s 144(7)); and a 'couple' means a married couple (ss 144(4)(a), 147, Sch 6), two people who are civil partners of each other (s 144(4)(aa) (added by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 79(1), (12))) or two people (whether of different sexes or the same sex) living as partners in an enduring family relationship (Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 144(4)(b)) (not including two people one of whom is the other's parent, grandparent, sister, brother, aunt or uncle (s 144(5))). References to relationships in s 144(5) are to relationships of the full blood or half blood or, in the case of an adopted person, such of those relationships as would exist but for adoption (s 144(6)(a)) and include the relationship of a child with his adoptive, or former adoptive, parents (s 144(6)(b)), but do not include any other adoptive relationships (s 144(6)).

(vi) Recovery Orders

357. Power to make orders.

A 'recovery order', in relation to a child, is an order:

- 457 (1) directing any person who is in a position to do so to produce the child<sup>1</sup> on request<sup>2</sup>;
- 458 (2) authorising the removal of the child<sup>3</sup>;
- 459 (3) requiring any person who has information as to the child's whereabouts to disclose that information on request<sup>4</sup>; or
- 460 (4) authorising a constable to enter any specified premises and search for the child<sup>5</sup>.

The court may make a recovery order on the application of any person<sup>6</sup> where it appears to it that a child has been removed in contravention of any of the statutory restrictions on removal<sup>7</sup> or that there are reasonable grounds for believing that a person intends to remove a child in contravention of those provisions<sup>8</sup>, or that a person has failed to comply with specified elements of those restrictions relating to the timely recovery or return of a child<sup>9</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'child' see para 327 note 2 ante.

2 Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 41(2)(a). The persons to whom the child must be produced or by whom the child may be removed (see the text and note 3 infra) pursuant to such a direction are any person named by the court (s 41(4)(a)), any constable (s 41(4)(b)), or any person who, after the order is made, is authorised to exercise any power under the order by an adoption agency which is authorised to place the child for adoption (s 41(4)(c)). As to the court see para 511 post. 'Adoption agency' means a local authority or a registered adoption society: see paras 394-395 post. As to references to an adoption agency being, or not being, authorised to place a child for adoption see para 331 note 8 ante.

3 Ibid s 41(2)(b). For the persons who may remove a child pursuant to a recovery order see note 2 supra.

4 Ibid s 41(2)(c). The persons who may request such disclosure pursuant to a recovery order are any constable or officer of the court: s 41(2)(c).

5 Ibid s 41(2)(d). A constable may be empowered to use reasonable force if necessary: s 41(2)(d). Premises may be specified under s 41(2)(d) only if it appears to the court that there are reasonable grounds for believing the child to be on them: s 41(3).

358. Compliance.

A person must comply with a request to disclose information as required by a recovery order<sup>1</sup> even if the information sought might constitute evidence that he had committed an offence<sup>2</sup>; however, in criminal proceedings in which the person is charged with an offence (other than specified perjury offences<sup>3</sup>) no evidence relating to the information provided may be adduced<sup>4</sup>, and no question relating to the information may be asked<sup>5</sup>, by or on behalf of the prosecution unless evidence relating to it is adduced, or a question relating to it is asked, in the proceedings by or on behalf of the person<sup>6</sup>.

A person who intentionally obstructs a person exercising a power of removal conferred by a recovery order is guilty of an offence<sup>7</sup>.

1 As to the making of recovery orders see para 357 ante. A recovery order has effect in relation to Scotland as if it were an order made by the Court of Session which that court had jurisdiction to make: Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 41(9).

(3) ADOPTION ORDERS

359. Effect of adoption order.

An adoption order is an order made by the court<sup>1</sup> giving parental responsibility<sup>2</sup> for a child<sup>3</sup> to the adopters or adopter<sup>4</sup>. The making of an adoption order operates to extinguish the parental responsibility which any person other than the adopters or adopter has for the adopted child immediately before the making of the order<sup>5</sup>, any order under the Children Act 1989 or its Scottish or Northern Irish equivalents<sup>6</sup>, and any duty arising by virtue of an agreement or an order of a court to make payments, so far as the payments are in respect of the adopted child's maintenance or upbringing for any period after the making of the adoption order<sup>7</sup>. An adoption order does not affect parental responsibility so far as it relates to any period before the making of the order<sup>8</sup> and, in the case of an order made on an application<sup>9</sup> by the partner of a parent<sup>10</sup> of the adopted child, does not affect the parental responsibility of that parent or any duties of that parent arising by virtue of an agreement or an order of a court to make payments, so far as the payments are in respect of the adopted child's maintenance or upbringing for any period after the making of the adoption order<sup>11</sup>. An adoption order may be made even if the child to be adopted is already an adopted child<sup>12</sup>. There is a right of appeal against an adoption order made by a magistrates' court<sup>13</sup>.

1 As to the court see para 511 post.

The Scottish and Northern Irish equivalents of the Children Act 1989 are the Children (Northern Ireland) Order 1995, SI 1995/755, and the Children (Scotland) Act 1995, although orders under s 9, s 11(1)(d) or s 13, and exclusion orders within the meaning of s 76(1), are excepted from these provisions: Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 46(2).

7 Ibid s 46(2)(d). Section 46(2)(d) does not apply to a duty arising by virtue of an agreement which constitutes a trust (s 46(4)(a)) or which expressly provides that the duty is not to be extinguished by the making of an adoption order (s 46(4)(b)).

360. Persons in respect of whom an adoption order cannot be made.

An adoption order<sup>1</sup> may not be made in relation to a person:

- 461 (1) who is or has been married<sup>2</sup>;
- 462 (2) who is or has been a civil partner<sup>3</sup>; or
- 463 (3) who has attained the age of 19 years<sup>4</sup>.

There are also restrictions on the adoption of children<sup>5</sup> having parents<sup>6</sup> or guardians<sup>7</sup>. Subject to the statutory requirements as to the giving of consent<sup>8</sup>, an adoption order may not be made if the child has a parent or guardian<sup>9</sup> unless:

- 464 (a) in the case of each parent or guardian of the child, the court<sup>10</sup> is satisfied that consent is given or should be dispensed with<sup>11</sup>;
- 465 (b) the child has been placed for adoption by an adoption agency<sup>12</sup> with the prospective adopters in whose favour the order is proposed to be made<sup>13</sup> and the placement is not opposed<sup>14</sup>; or
- 466 (c) the child is free for adoption under Scottish or Northern Irish law<sup>15</sup>.

10 As to the court see para 511 post.

11 Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 47(2). The court must be satisfied that the parent or guardian consents to the making of the order (s 47(2)(a)) or has consented under s 20 (see para 333 post) (and has not withdrawn the consent) and does not oppose the making of the order (s 47(2)(b)), or that the parent's or guardian's consent should be dispensed with (s 47(2)(c)). A parent or guardian may not oppose the making of an adoption order under s 47(2)(b) without the court's leave (s 47(3)), and the court cannot give such leave unless satisfied that there has been a change in circumstances since the consent was given (s 47(7)).

For the meaning of 'placement order' see para 335 ante. A parent or guardian may not oppose the making of an adoption order under this provision without the court's leave (s 47(5)), and the court cannot give such leave unless satisfied that there has been a change in circumstances since the consent of the parent or guardian was given or, as the case may be, the placement order was made (s 47(7)). ### 361. Persons who can apply.

An adoption order<sup>1</sup> may be made on an application either by a couple<sup>2</sup> or by an individual person<sup>3</sup>. An application may be made if the applicant<sup>4</sup> or at least one of the couple<sup>5</sup> is domiciled in a part of the British Islands<sup>6</sup> or if the applicant or both of the couple have been habitually resident in a part of the British Islands for a period of not less than one year ending with the date of the application<sup>7</sup>. An application for an adoption order may be made only if the person to be adopted has not attained the age of 18 years on the date of the application<sup>8</sup>.

The court may not hear an application for an adoption order in relation to a child where a previous adoption application<sup>9</sup> made in relation to the child<sup>10</sup> by the same persons was refused by any court, unless it appears to the court that, because of a change in circumstances or for any other reason, it is proper to hear the application<sup>11</sup>.

362. Adoption by couple.

An adoption order<sup>1</sup> may be made on the application of a couple<sup>2</sup> where:

- 467 (1) both of them have attained the age of 21 years<sup>3</sup>; or
- 468 (2) one is the mother or father of the person to be adopted and has attained the age of 18 years<sup>4</sup> and the other has attained the age of 21 years<sup>5</sup>.

363. Adoption by one person.

An adoption order<sup>1</sup> may be made on the application of one person who has attained the age of 21 years and is neither married nor a civil partner<sup>2</sup>. This does not, however, mean that a person who has attained the age of 21 years cannot adopt as an individual if he is part of a couple (whether married, unmarried or in a civil partnership)<sup>3</sup>, since an adoption order may also be made on the application of such a person if the court<sup>4</sup> is satisfied that he is the partner of a parent<sup>5</sup> of the person to be adopted<sup>6</sup>, that his spouse or civil partner cannot be found<sup>7</sup>, that the spouses or civil partners have separated and are living apart and the separation is likely to be permanent<sup>8</sup>, or that the person's spouse or civil partner is by reason of ill-health, whether physical or mental, incapable of making an application for an adoption order<sup>9</sup>. An adoption order may not, however, be made on an application under these provisions by the mother or the father of the person to be adopted unless the court is satisfied that the other natural parent is dead or cannot be found<sup>10</sup>, there is no other parent (by virtue of the statutory provisions governing fatherhood in cases of artificial insemination)<sup>11</sup>, or there is some other reason justifying the child's being adopted by the applicant alone<sup>12</sup>.

<sup>3</sup> Where any child adopted by one natural parent as sole adoptive parent subsequently becomes a legitimated person on the marriage of the natural parents, the court by which the adoption order was made (which in relation to an adoption order made by a magistrates' court includes a court acting for the same local justice area) may, on the application of any of the parties concerned, revoke the order: Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 55(1), (2) (s 55(2) amended by the Courts Act 2003 s 109(1), Sch 8 para 412). Where an order is so revoked, the officer of the court (as prescribed by the Family Procedure (Adoption) Rules 2005, SI 2005/2795 (as amended)) must communicate the revocation in the prescribed manner to the Registrar General who must then cancel or secure the cancellation of the entry in the Adopted Children Register relating to the adopted person (Adoption and Children Act 2002 Sch 1 para 6(1), (2)(a)) and the marking with the word 'Adopted' of any entry relating to the adopted person in the registers of live births or other records (Sch 1 para 6(2)(b)). As to the Adopted Children Register see para 383 post. A copy or extract of an entry in any register or other record, being an entry the marking of which is cancelled under these provisions, is not to be treated as an accurate copy unless both the marking and the cancellation are omitted from it: Sch 1 para 6(3). As to the Registrar General see the Registration Service Act 1953 s 1 et seq; and REGISTRATION CONCERNING THE INDIVIDUAL vol 39(2) (Reissue) para 605 et seq.

Under the former legislation (ie the Adoption Act 1976 s 15 (repealed)) an adoption application could have been made by a single person, whether living alone, or cohabiting in a heterosexual, homosexual, or asexual relationship with another person whom it is proposed should fulfil a quasi parental role towards the child: see Re W (a minor) (adoption: homosexual adopter) [1998] Fam 58, [1997] 3 All ER 620. It is possible for an adoption order to be made in favour of one co-habitee with a joint residence order in favour of both of them: see Re AB (adoption: parental consent) [1996] 1 FCR 633, sub nom Re AB (adoption: joint residence) [1996] 1 FLR 27. An adoption order made in favour of a married couple who had separated could only be made if the requirements of the Adoption Act 1976 s 13(3) (repealed) had been met: see Re WM (adoption: non-patril) [1997] 2 FCR 494, [1997] 1 FLR 132.

6 Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 51(2). Under the former legislation (ie the Adoption Act 1976) considerable caution was expressed as to the court making adoption orders in favour of a step-parent (see Re Pj (adoption: practice on appeal) [1998] 2 FLR 252, [1998] Fam Law 452, CA), and in particular where the natural father objected to an adoption order (see Re B (adoption: father's objections) [1999] 3 FCR 522, [1999] 2 FLR 215, CA). 9 Ibid s 51(3)(c), (3A)(c) (as added: see note 2 supra).

12 Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 51(4)(c). Where the court makes an adoption order on such an application it must record the reason: s 51(4). As to the construction of s 51(4)(c), with particular reference to that provision's compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 8 (right to family life: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) para 149 et seq), see Re B (a child) (sole adoption by unmarried father) [2001] UKHL 70, [2002] 1 All ER 641, [2002] 1 FCR 150 (decided under the corresponding provision of the Adoption Act 1976 (ie s 15(3)(b) (repealed))).

364. Child to live with adopters before application.

As with the former legislation<sup>1</sup>, an application for an adoption order<sup>2</sup> may not be made unless particular conditions relating to the child's<sup>3</sup> residence are met<sup>4</sup>. These are:

- 469 (1) if the child was placed for adoption with the applicant or applicants by an adoption agency<sup>5</sup> or in pursuance of an order of the High Court<sup>6</sup>, or the applicant is a parent<sup>7</sup> of the child<sup>8</sup>, an application for an adoption order may be made only if the child has had his home with the applicant or, in the case of an application by a couple, with one or both of them at all times during the period of ten weeks preceding the application<sup>9</sup>;
- 470 (2) if the applicant or one of the applicants is the partner of a parent<sup>10</sup> of the child, an application for an adoption order may be made only if the child has had his home with the applicant or, as the case may be, applicants at all times during the period of six months preceding the application<sup>11</sup>;
- 471 (3) if the applicants are local authority foster parents<sup>12</sup>, an application for an adoption order may be made only if the child has had his home with the applicants at all times during the period of one year preceding the application<sup>13</sup> (although this does not prevent an application being made if the court<sup>14</sup> gives leave to make it<sup>15</sup>); and
- 472 (4) in any other case, an application for an adoption order may be made only if the child has had his home with the applicant or, in the case of an application by a couple, with one or both of them for not less than three years (whether continuous or not) during the period of five years preceding the application<sup>16</sup> (although this does not prevent an application being made if the court gives leave to make it<sup>17</sup>).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS (VOLUME 5(3) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 1-742; VOLUME 5(4) (2008 REISSUE) PARAS 743-1433)/5. ADOPTION/(3) ADOPTION ORDERS/365. Notice of intention to adopt.

365. Notice of intention to adopt.

Where persons ('proposed adopters') wish to adopt a child<sup>1</sup> who is not placed for adoption with them by an adoption agency<sup>2</sup>, an adoption order<sup>3</sup> may not be made in respect of the child unless the proposed adopters have given notice<sup>4</sup> to the appropriate local authority<sup>5</sup> of their intention to apply for the adoption order (a 'notice of intention to adopt')<sup>6</sup>.

If the child has had his home with the proposed adopters (or, in the case of an application by a couple<sup>7</sup>, with one or both of them) for less than three years (whether continuous or not) during the past five years, or where the proposed adopters are local authority foster parents<sup>8</sup> but the child has not had his home with them at all times during the preceding year, notice of intention to adopt may not be given unless the person giving the notice has the court's<sup>9</sup> leave to apply for an adoption order<sup>10</sup>.

On receipt of a notice of intention to adopt, the local authority must arrange for the investigation of the matter and submit to the court a report of the investigation<sup>11</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'child' see para 327 note 2 ante.

2 I.e. a local authority or a registered adoption society: see paras 394-395 post. As to an adoption agency placing a child for adoption see para 329 note 8 ante. Those who fall into this category of non-agency placements will include step-parents and relatives; foster parents who do not have the support of the local authority may apply to adopt under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 42(4) or (6) if the child has had his home with them for a year (see para 364 ante). Under the former legislation (ie the Adoption Act 1976 s 14 (repealed)), considerable caution was expressed as to the court making adoption orders in favour of a step-parent (see Re PJ (adoption: practice on appeal) [1998] 2 FLR 252, [1998] Fam Law 452, CA), and in particular where the natural father objected to an adoption order (see Re B (adoption: father's objections) [1999] 3 FCR 522, [1999] 2 FLR 215, CA). See also Re G (adoption order) [1999] 1 FCR 482, [1999] 1 FLR 400, CA (complex cases should be transferred to the High Court at an early stage). However, see also Söderback v Sweden [1999] 1 FLR 250, ECtHR.

3 For the meaning of 'adoption order' see para 359 ante.

4 As to the giving of notices under the Adoption and Children Act 2002 see para 333 note 11 ante. The notice must be given not more than two years, or less than three months, before the date on which the application for the adoption order is made: s 44(3). Section 44(3) does not apply in the application of these provisions to an adoption within the scope of the Convention on Protection of Children and Co-operation in Respect of Intercountry Adoptions (The Hague, 29 May 1993; TS 40 (1994); Cm 2691): see the Adoptions with a Foreign Element Regulations 2005, SI 2005/392, regs 52, 57; and para 490 post.

5 For the meaning of 'local authority' see para 327 note 7 ante. The reference to the 'appropriate local authority' in relation to any proposed adopters is in certain cases (generally where the prospective adopters have moved abroad) a reference to the authority prescribed by regulations: see the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 44(9)(a). In England these authorities are: (1) in the case of the proposed adoption by one person who no longer has his home in England, the local authority for the area in which that person's last home in England was situated (Local Authority (Adoption) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/3390, reg 3(1), (2)); (2) in the case of the proposed adoption by a couple who no longer have their home in England and who shared together the last home they had in England, the local authority for the area in which that home in England was situated (reg 3(3)); (3) in the case of the proposed adoption by a couple who no longer have their home in England and who did not share together the last home each had in England, the local authority which the couple nominate, being the local authority for the area in which the last home in England of one of them was situated (reg 3(4)); and (4) in the case of the proposed adoption by a couple only one of whom ever had his home in England, the local authority for the area in which that person's last home in England was situated (reg 3(5)). In Wales the authorities are: (a) in the case of a proposed adoption by one person who no longer has a home in Wales, the local authority for the area in which that person's last home in Wales was situated (Local Authority (Non-agency Adoptions) (Wales) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/3113, reg 3(1), (2)); (b) in the case where the proposed adopters no longer have a home in Wales and shared together the last home they had in Wales, the local authority for the area in which that home was situated (reg 3(3)); (c) in the case where the proposed adopters no longer have a home in Wales and did not share together the last home each had in Wales, the local authority which the proposed adopters nominate, being the local authority for the area in which the last home in Wales of one of the adopters was situated (reg 3(4)); and (d) where there are two proposed adopters and neither of them has a home in Wales but where one of them has had a home or homes in Wales, the local authority for the area in which the last of that person's homes in Wales was situated (reg 3(5)). In any other case the reference to the appropriate local authority in relation to any proposed adopters is a reference to the local authority for the area in which, at the time of giving the notice of intention to adopt, they have their home: Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 44(9)(b).

6 Ibid ss 44(1), (2), 147, Sch 6. Where a local authority has placed a child with any persons otherwise than as prospective adopters, and the persons give notice of intention to adopt, the authority is not to be treated as leaving the child with them as prospective adopters for the purposes of s 18(1)(b) (see para 331 ante): s 44(8). If a local authority receives a notice of intention to adopt in respect of a child whom it knows was (immediately before the notice was given) looked after by another local authority, it must, not more than seven days after the receipt of the notice, inform the other local authority in writing that it has received the notice: s 44(7). As to the meaning of 'child looked after by a local authority' see the Children Act 1989 s 22; and para 335 ante (definition applied by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 147, Sch 6).

Section 44(2) is modified in its application to an order under s 84 giving parental responsibility prior to an overseas adoption and in relation to an adoption within the scope of the Convention on Protection of Children and Co-operation in Respect of Intercountry Adoptions (The Hague, 29 May 1993; TS 40 (1994); Cm 2691): see the Adoptions with a Foreign Element Regulations 2005, SI 2005/392, regs 11, 52, 55; and paras 490, 502 post.

7 For the meaning of 'couple' see para 355 note 2 ante.

8 As to the meaning of 'local authority foster parent' see the Children Act 1989 s 23(3); and para 900 post (definition applied by the Adoption and Children Act 2002 Sch 6).

9 As to the court see para 511 post.

10 Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 44(4).

11 Ibid s 44(5). In particular, the investigation must, so far as practicable, include the suitability of the proposed adopters and any other matters relevant to the operation of s 1 (see paras 327-330 ante) in relation to the application: s 44(6). For the purposes of an investigation arranged under s 44(5), the local authority must take steps to obtain in respect of both the proposed adopters and any other member of their household aged 18 or over an enhanced criminal record certificate: Local Authority (Adoption) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/3390, reg 4; Local Authority (Non-agency Adoptions) (Wales) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/3113, reg 4. Those provisions state that the reference to an enhanced criminal record certificate is to such a certificate within the meaning of the Police Act 1997 s 115 including the matters specified in s 115(6A) (as added); however, those provisions have been repealed and reference should now be made to s 116 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARAS 716-717). Additional requirements have effect in connection with Hague Convention adoptions: see the Adoptions with a Foreign Element Regulations 2005, SI 2005/392, regs 30, 49.

366. Assessment of suitability of applicants.

Where an application for an adoption order<sup>1</sup> relates to a child<sup>2</sup> placed for adoption by an adoption agency<sup>3</sup>, the agency must submit to the court<sup>4</sup> a report on the suitability of the applicants and on any other relevant matters<sup>5</sup>, and must assist the court in any manner the court directs<sup>6</sup>. Regulations<sup>7</sup> may make provision as to the matters to be taken into account by an adoption agency in determining, or making any report in respect of, the suitability of any persons to adopt a child<sup>8</sup>.

An adoption order may not be made unless the court is satisfied that sufficient opportunities to see the child with the applicant<sup>9</sup> in the home environment have been given either to the adoption agency (where the child was placed for adoption with the applicant or applicants by an agency)<sup>10</sup> or to the local authority<sup>11</sup> within whose area the home is (in any other case)<sup>12</sup>.

5 Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 43(a). 'Relevant matters' are matters relevant to the operation of s 1 (see paras 327-330 ante): s 43(a). Additional requirements have effect (and s 43 is applied with modifications) in connection with adoptions under the Convention on Protection of Children and Co-operation in Respect of Intercountry Adoptions (The Hague, 29 May 1993; TS 40 (1994); Cm 2691) (the 'Hague Convention'): see the Adoptions with a Foreign Element Regulations 2005, SI 2005/392, regs 11, 49, 52, 55. The Adoption and Children Act 2002 s 43 is also modified in its application to an order under s 84 giving parental responsibility prior to an overseas adoption: see the Adoptions with a Foreign Element Regulations 2005, SI 2005/392, reg 11; and para 502 post.

7 I.e. under ibid s 9 (general power to regulate adoption agencies: see para 397 note 1 post).

8 Ibid s 45(1). In particular, the regulations may make provision for the purpose of securing that, in determining the suitability of a couple to adopt a child, proper regard is had to the need for stability and permanence in their relationship: s 45(2). As to assessing the suitability of adopters see the Adoption Agencies Regulations 2005, SI 2005/389, regs 21-30; in relation to England, the Suitability of Adopters Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1712; in relation to Wales, the Adoption Agencies (Wales) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1313, reg 21-31; and para 438 post. ### 367. Matters to which the court must have regard.

Before making an adoption order<sup>1</sup>, the court<sup>2</sup> must consider whether there should be arrangements for allowing any person contact with the child<sup>3</sup>; and for that purpose the court must consider any existing or proposed arrangements and obtain any views of the parties to the proceedings<sup>4</sup>. In proceedings in which a question may arise as to whether an adoption order should be made, or any other question with respect to such an order, the court must, for the avoidance of delay, draw up and make provision for adherence to a timetable for the determination of such a question<sup>5</sup>.

369. Correction and rectification of adoption orders.

The court<sup>1</sup> by which an adoption order<sup>2</sup> has been made may<sup>3</sup>:

- 473 (1) amend the order by the correction of any error in the particulars contained in it<sup>4</sup>;
- 474 (2) amend the order by substituting or, as the case may be, adding a new name for an adopted person in the particulars required to be entered in the Adopted Children Register<sup>5</sup>; and
- 475 (3) revoke a direction for the marking of an entry in the registers of live births<sup>6</sup>, the Adopted Children Register or other records wrongly included<sup>7</sup> in the order<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to the court see para 511 post.

2 For the meaning of 'adoption order' see para 359 ante.

3 Where an adoption order is amended or a direction revoked pursuant to these provisions the prescribed officer of the court must communicate the amendment in the prescribed manner to the Registrar General (Adoption and Children Act 2002 Sch 1 para 4(4)), and the Registrar General must then either amend the entry in the Adopted Children Register accordingly (Sch 1 para 4(5)(a)) or secure that the marking of the entry in the registers of live births, the Adopted Children Register or other records is cancelled, as the case may be (Sch 1 para 4(5)(b)). Prescription is by rules: see Sch 1 para 4(4); and the Family Procedure (Adoption) Rules 2005, SI 2005/2795 (amended by SI 2007/2189). Without prejudice to the Adoption and Children Act 2002 Sch 1 para 4(5), where, after an entry in the registers of live births or other records has been marked in accordance with Sch 1 para 1 or 2 (see para 368 ante), the birth is re-registered under the Births and Deaths Registration Act 1953 s 14 (re-registration of births of legitimated persons: see REGISTRATION CONCERNING THE INDIVIDUAL vol 39(2) (Reissue) paras 552-555), the entry made on the re-registration must be marked in the like manner: Adoption and Children Act 2002 Sch 1 para 5(1). Where an adoption order is quashed or an appeal against an adoption order is allowed by any court, the court must give directions to the Registrar General to secure that any entry in the Adopted Children Register and any marking of an entry in that register, the registers of live births or other records as the case may be, which was effected in pursuance of the order, is cancelled: Sch 1 para 4(6). As to the Adopted Children Register see para 383 post.

4 Ibid Sch 1 para 4(1). The court may amend an order only on the application of the adopter or the adopted person: Sch 1 para 4(1).

5 As to the particulars of registration see para 368 ante. The court may make this amendment only if satisfied on the application of the adopter or the adopted person that within the period of one year beginning with the date of the order any new name has been given to the adopted person (whether in baptism or otherwise) (ibid Sch 1 para 4(2)(a)) or has been taken by the adopted person (Sch 1 para 4(2)(b)). The new name may be added to the order either in place of or in addition to a name specified in the particulars required to be entered in the Adopted Children Register in pursuance of the order: Sch 1 para 4(2).

6 As to the registration of live births see REGISTRATION CONCERNING THE INDIVIDUAL vol 39(2) (Reissue) para 541 et seq.

7 Ie included in pursuance of the Adoption and Children Act 2002 Sch 1 para 1(2) or (3) (see para 368 ante).

8 Ibid Sch 1 para 4(3). For the purposes of any references in the statutory provisions relating to placements for adoption and adoption orders<sup>1</sup> to any parent<sup>2</sup> or guardian<sup>3</sup> of a child<sup>4</sup> giving or withdrawing consent to the placement of a child for adoption<sup>5</sup> or consent to the making of an adoption order (including a future adoption order)<sup>6</sup>, 'consent' means consent given unconditionally and with full understanding of what is involved, although a person may consent to adoption without knowing the identity of the persons in whose favour the order will be made<sup>7</sup>. Any consent given by a child's mother to the making of an adoption order is ineffective if it is given less than six weeks after the child's birth<sup>8</sup>, and the withdrawal of any consent to the placement of a child for adoption<sup>9</sup>, or of any advance consent to adoption<sup>10</sup>, is ineffective if it is given after an application for an adoption order is made<sup>11</sup>.

371. Form of consent.

Parental consent to the placement of children<sup>1</sup> and advance consent to adoption<sup>2</sup> must be given in the form prescribed by rules<sup>3</sup>, and the rules may prescribe forms in which a person giving consent under any of the other statutory provisions relating to placements for adoption and adoption orders<sup>4</sup> may do so if he wishes<sup>5</sup>. Consents, including advance consents, to placements and adoptions<sup>6</sup> can be withdrawn only in the form prescribed by rules<sup>7</sup> or by notice given to the adoption agency<sup>8</sup>. Where consent is withdrawn the adoption agency must conduct a review of its decision to place the child for adoption<sup>9</sup>.

Where the parent or guardian of the child resides in England and Wales and is prepared to consent to the placement of the child for adoption under s 19 and, as the case may be, to consent to the making of a future adoption order under s 20 (advance consent to adoption), the adoption agency must request the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service ('CAFCASS') to appoint an officer of the Service, or the Welsh Ministers to appoint a Welsh family proceedings officer, for the purposes of the signification by that officer of the consent to placement or to adoption by that parent or guardian: see the Adoption Agencies Regulations 2005, SI 2005/389, reg 20 (amended by SI 2005/3482); and the Adoption Agencies (Wales) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1313, reg 20.
